Briggs 'drawing the line' on gays

State Sen. John V. Briggs, R-Fullerton, the first announced candidate for the GOP gubernatorial nomination, is a controversial legislator who has forthrightly condemned homosexuals, criminals and often Democrats. He is a graduate of Long Beach State University, elected first to the State Assembly in 1966 and to the Senate in 1976. He was interviewed by Independent, Press-Telegram reporter Janice Perry.

Q and A

Q. Senator Briggs, in late 1972, the Los Angeles Times reported that you were instrumental in securing a $7.1-million Medi-Cal contract for an unaccredited Orange County hospital with whom your insurance firm had financial dealings. Wasn't that a gross conflict of interest?

A. When was that?

Q. 1972.

A. Well, if you're going to conduct an interview on an old 1972 item that never appeared anywhere but the Los Angeles Times . . . that was a onetime news story that quickly faded. I think they (the Times) found they had been had on that particular story. Two years later they endorsed me for re-election.

Q. Were those allegations true?

A. I'm not going to discuss it. That was an old charge, and I am not interested in it.

(Los Angeles Times researchers were unable to find any retraction of its 1972 expose, and a spokesperson Saturday said, "In no way did the Times endorse the re-election of Sen. Briggs for State Assembly in 1971 or to the State Senate.")

Q. More recently, just before you gained your present Senate seat, in October 1976, the California Citizen Action group reported that you had the poorest attendance record in the Assembly, and it said that you had attended only 24.1 per cent of the votes in subcommittees and committees. Why?

A. Because, I made it very clear at the time, the speaker of the house — a liberal Democrat, from that cesspool over there, San Francisco — put me on committees where there were 11 Democrats and two Republicans and nine Democrats and I think two Republicans. And all the votes were decided before I went into committee. And I just was not going to waste my time filling up a room when the votes had all been determined prior to my entry. I took care of my constituents' problems and was going about doing something constructive.

Q. You don't think you were denying your constituents representation?

A. Not when all the votes . . . decisions were pre-made, rubber stamped. Do you understand me? It was 9 to 2. I mean it wasn't 5 to 4, or 6 to 5 where you have an opportunity to be influential.

Q. A controversial issue you've embroiled yourself in is that of gay rights. You recently said you were going to introduce a bill that would, in effect, allow school districts to openly discriminate against homosexual teachers. Why have you sponsored this legislation?

A. Did you hear me say I was going to put in a bill that was going to openly discriminate against homosexual teachers? Or is this something you read?

Q. This is what I have gathered.

A. Well, that isn't what I said at all.

Q. I have also read the bill and that's effectively what it would allow school districts to do.

A. Yes, but I don't use those words. What I call it is the California Save Our Children law.

Q. Discriminate is what in essence it actually does, doesn't it?

Angelic Farrah

. . . dons her halo

Farrah Fawcett-Majors, of "Charlie's Angels" TV fame, shook her tawny mane in disgust at reports she was arrested for shoplifting seven years ago. She was simply acting as a "self help consumer advocate," she explained, when she took items of clothing from two shops in Los Angeles which had refused to exchange "inferior" merchandise she bought. Page A-2.

Family life

. . . due some breaks?

The Father's Day interviewee stressed the importance of family life, said married working couples should get a tax break, and suggested removal of incentives for welfare fathers to desert their families. Maybe he'll do something about it. It was President Carter. Page A-4.

There's gold

Gary Gilmore, his uncle says, "wanted the same things you and I want — marriage, a home, a job and love." Maybe because he didn't have them he became a cold-blooded killer. Typically, someone is always ready to cash in on such misfits. There are books, plays, movies, T-shirts — and, of course, love. Of money. Page A-6.

Saints

Just a game

It was a tragic accident. The result of horse play, with guns, at the Long Beach police station. Some people saw sinister motives, afterwards. Most raised an outcry about irresponsible handling of firearms. But an I-PT reporter died. One of the officers involved recalls graphically the night Bill Hunter was killed. Page B-1.

Mondale in L.A. drive for energy

By Bob Houser
Political Editor

Vice President Mondale lobbied for the President's energy program in Los Angeles Saturday only hours after a Democratic senator blistered the administration program before the same forum as an astronomically priced dud with billions of windfall dollars for oil companies.

The critic, who agreed with Mondale and President Carter on the urgency of energy conservation, was Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio, a member of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee.

Mondale and Metzenbaum were speakers at an enegy conference sponsored by the National Democratic Forum, a Washington, D.C., based educational, non-profit organization, in the Beverly Hilton Hotel. About 500 people attended the day-long conference.

Mondale said the plan would encourage conversion to more abundant fuels by pricing scarce petroleum reserves "at their true replacement cost through a wellhead tax on crude oil."

THAT TAX, said Metzenbaum, will cost consumers $15.3 billion and will save only 25,000 barrels a day out of a total of 17 million barrels a day. "We could probably save this much if it rains during the July 4th weekend," he said.

While Mondale stressed "the potential for absolute catastrophe . . . if we don't act now" on the energy crisis, his detailing of elements of the administration plan accented persuasion and rewards. Metzenbaum hammered on "tough, mandatory conservation programs."

"We want to encourage the use of more efficient cars . . . we must insulate our homes better . . . design more efficient appliances, machinery and buildings," said Mondale.

Achievement would come through enacting fuel-efficiency

ASTRONAUTS Fred W. Haise Jr., left, and Gordon Fullerton at news conference after successful test flight of orbiting Space Shuttle "Enterprise." —AP Wirephoto

Headed for rocket launch into orbit in '80s

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Two astronauts tested flaps and the speed brake on the piggyback Space Shuttle "Enterprise" Saturday in the first manned airborne test of the space program's latest craft.

"Those speed brake tests looked good, and all the other tests look good so far," Johnson Space Center in Houston radioed to the craft halfway through the 54-minute flight above the desert.

"Okie doke," flight commander Fred W. Haise Jr. called back.

Haise, a civilian, flew in the shuttle with Air Force Lt. Col. Gordon Fullerton. The 150,000-pound shuttle, the size of a jetliner, was carried to 15,000 feet attached atop a modified Boeing 747 jumbo jet, which had its own crew of four.

The flight, originally scheduled for 42 minutes, lasted longer because the Houston control center had trouble receiving some data from the shuttle and ordered several tests rerun.

Haise was the first to leave the craft at 9:50 a.m. PDT, about 50 minutes after the shuttle and its partner jumbo jet touched down. Fullerton, the pilot, followed a few moments later.

The two astronauts were lowered 40 feet from the shuttle hatchway by an Air Force firetruck "cherry picker." The astronauts chatted a few minutes with space agency officials and then were driven away in a van to be debriefed.

The piggyback testing is designed to simulate the shuttle's eventual takeoff. The shuttle will go into space on a rocket in the 1980s, then will detach and fly by itself with crew and supplies to build space stations. It will be able to land again on earth to be reused as many as 100 times.

The shuttle and its jet partner flew at 209 miles an hour during most of the flight over the 154-mile racetrack-shaped oval at the Dryden Flight Research Center here.

The two astronauts conducted "flutter tests" of the flaps and the speed brake at the rear of the tail. The brake will slow the craft as it enters the earth's atmosphere from space. The tests were designed to show how much structural flutter developed during the flight at relatively low altitudes and slow speeds.

FBI spying history on ACLU told

CHICAGO (AP) — The FBI infiltrated the American Civil Liberties Union from 1920 to 1943 and kept dossiers on leading members such as Clarence Darrow, Helen Keller and Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, the Chicago Daily News reported Saturday.

The newspaper said in a copyright story that the infiltration was personally supervised by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI from 1924 until his death in 1972.

A spokesman for the FBI said the bureau would have no immediate comment on the report.

Frankfurter's file, according to the report, said that as a Harvard professor he was considered a "dangerous man by United States government employes." He was appointed to the high court in 1939.

Attorney Darrow's file said that, through his defense of John Scopes in the celebrated Tennessee "monkey trial," radical groups were "capitalizing . . . on evolution and gaining entree . . . to certain coveted circles."

MISS KELLER, the famed blind and deaf author and lecturer, was said to be a "writer on radical subjects."

Others on whom dossiers were kept, according to the account, included:

—William Allen White, nationally renowned author and journalist, described as "a member of the Foreign Policy Association, a radical organization affiliated with the American Civil Liberties Union."

—Nobel laureate Jane Addams, founder of Chicago's Hull House, who was viewed by the FBI as a "zealous and consistent supporter of radical and revolutionary movements."

The newspaper said it obtained FBI files containing this information as a result of a freedom of information suit filed in U.S. District Court in Washington, D.C.

It said the files showed that Hoover personally supervised the

Alaska pipeline: dream to reality

By Wallace Turner
New York Times Service

ANCHORAGE — The trans-Alaska pipeline system, built in one of the world's most hostile climates as a memorable national technical achievement, will go into service Monday after surviving attacks by environmentalists, congressional debates as to its fundamental worth and the financial hazards of billions of dollars of excess costs.

Conceived as a vehicle for the recovery and marketing of the continent's largest deposit of petroleum, the $7.7 billion installation will begin operation slowly as the oil flows at one mile an hour to fill the 789-mile pipe running from the shores of the Arctic Ocean to the ice-free waters of Prince William Sound.

When the pipe is filled by late July, the system will be tested with gradually expanding loads so that by autumn 1.2 million barrels a day will be delivered to a national market that in 1976 consumed 17.4 million barrels daily. That oil, drawn from wellheads on the tundra-covered plain where the land slumps down toward the Arctic Ocean from the Brooks Range, will supplement imported oil, which in 1976 amounted to 7.3 million barrels a day.

These first deliveries from the 9.7-billion-barrel reservoir at Prudhoe Bay will enter the national market at a time when the United States is edging toward basic revisions in national energy policy, a policy that for decades will count on the Arctic oil resources that will begin to flow toward market Monday when buttons are pushed at Pump Station 1 of the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co.

The temperature will probably be in the mid-30s. Perhaps the sun will be out; perhaps there will be fog, or perhaps it will snow.

The scene will be the North Slope, a bleak place that has come into the national consciousness along with remembered photos of men in hard hats, parkas and heavy gloves, surrounded by blowing snow. The pictures showed that ice formed on the men's beards while they tugged at wrenches used to assemble oil derricks in bitter cold. The captions usually said that the cold caused steel to become brittle and crack easily.

All this is true. The wells were drilled and the pipeline was built in weather conditions of terrible severity. But it is now almost summer, the time of constant daylight. Yet it will be cold Monday, perhaps just above freezing.

Alyeska is a corporation owned by eight of the major leaseholders on the Slope: Exxon, British Petroleum, Atlantic Richfield Co., Union Oil Co. of California, Standard Oil Co. (Ohio), Mobil Oil Corp., Phillips Petroleum Co. and Amerada Hess Corp. With eight lesser holders, these companies

Shoplifting? No—I was just helping myself, says Farrah

Combined News Services

Television star Farrah Fawcett-Majors was acting not as a shoplifter but as a "self-help consumer advocate" when she took items of clothing from two shops, her lawyer said Saturday.

Meanwhile, Miss Fawcett-Majors said Saturday in Paris she was "stunned" at a published report that she had been accused of shoplifting seven years ago. She said she didn't steal anything but just "took justice into my own hands."

The 30-year-old actress who skyrocketed to stardom in the private eye series "Charlie's Angels" said she took items of clothing from two California shops in 1970 as a protest against the shopkeepers' refusal to exchange unsatisfactory items she had purchased.

"I was making a demonstration, and at the time I felt it was the only thing I could do," she said.

Her comments came in response to a story in the New York Post that she was arrested and fined on two occasions for taking dresses and coats from a Los Angeles boutique and a San Fernando Valley shop.

"I'm stunned that anybody seven years later could take it seriously," Miss Fawcett-Majors said.

Her lawyer, Ronald S. Rosen, said that in both incidents the actress, who was a model at the time, "wanted to exchange the merchandise. In both cases, they refused, so she took like merchandise right in front of everyone and walked out.

"Shoplifters don't act in that manner," he said. "They are usually very secretive about things. She just did it openly in an argument."

Elliot Abelson, Miss Fawcett-Majors' lawyer at the time of the incidents, said the actress was charged with petty theft but pleaded guilty to the lesser charge of trespassing in both cases.

She was fined $125 in August 1970 for taking two dresses from Judy's Boutique in Los Angeles and was placed on 18 months probation and fined $265 in November 1970 for taking two coats from a San Fernando Valley shop, Abelson said.

The fine in the second case was suspended, he said, on condition that Miss Fawcett-Majors undergo psychiatric treatment. She did so for about six months.

The lawyer said Miss Fawcett-Majors "is not a thief and not a kleptomaniac. She did not take anything that did not belong to her. She never meant to misappropriate any items, and I consider her one of the first self-help consumer advocates.

"I think it's unfortunate that something as insignificant as this is being brought up now," he said. "There have been no incidences whatsoever since then, and she has no prior record."

Carter at play

President Carter went swimming Saturday and then did paper work, spending a quiet weekend at Camp David, Md., the presidential retreat.

He flew up to the camp in the Catoctin Mountains about 60 miles north of Washington with his wife Rosalynn and daughter Amy on Friday afternoon.

The President, who on his three previous visits to Camp David has attended different local churches, planned this morning to attend a private worship service at Camp David. An Army chaplain was invited to lead the service for the family.

The Carters planned to return to Washington this afternoon. Mrs. Carter is flying to Arizona tonight for a week-long series of meetings and speeches there and in California and Hawaii.

IRS probe

Albert E. Jenner Jr., Republican minority counsel in the impeachment hearings of President Nixon, is reportedly under investigation by the IRS for failing to file income tax returns.

The Chicago Sun-Times said today that Jenner, 69, conceded that his federal returns for 1973, 1974 and 1975 were not filed on time, explaining that he had been unable to assemble the necessary records because of outside activities, including the impeachment proceedings.

Jenner, who is one of the most prominent lawyers in Chicago, said that he had actually overpaid his taxes by $68,000 in the three years, making quarterly estimated payments to the IRS, The Sun-Times said.

His taxable income was said to have run in excess of $320,000 in each of the disputed years.

Not miffed

From her hospital bed in Antelope Valley, actress Tippi Hedren says she has no hard feelings for Tembo, the four-ton elephant.

The 9½-foot tall bull elephant was just trying to help when he wrapped his trunk around Miss Hedren's leg and crushed her ankle, she said.

"Tembo picks me up and puts me on his head. But I keep screaming and yelling and falling off. It's just acting, of course. But Tembo didn't understand," Miss Hedren explained.

The accident occurred Wednesday during the filming of "Roar" in Soledad Canyon.

Belafonte

Harry Belafonte, the singer-actor, is back in Cuba on a sightseeing tour, Radio Havana reports.

Belafonte arrived on the island Friday accompanied by his wife.

Liz goes rural

The people of the northwoods town of Woodruff, Wis. got a rare taste of Hollywood glamour Saturday as Elizabeth Taylor returned to the scene of her childhood summers to help dedicate a new hospital.

The actess was representing the family of her late uncle, Howard Young, who bequeathed $20 million to replace an old medical center with a new one bearing his name.

Also at the dedication were Miss Taylor's husband, John Warner, former secretary of the Navy, and Ralph Edwards, host of the "This Is Your Life" television show that in 1954 promoted a penny drive to help build the original hospital.

Ceremonies featured a ball for 1,000 people at the Holiday Inn Supper Club, film showings, including Miss Taylor's "National Velvet," and a symbolic pile of pennies.

Bulgarian hijack foiled

Combined News Services

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — An pistol-waving man demanding he be flown to Western Europe hijacked a plane carrying 49 persons in neighboring Bulgaria and forced the pilot to land here Saturday night. He was overpowered by police who boarded the plane. No injuries were reported among the passengers, all Bulgarians, or the four crew members. The hijacker was led away from the plane in handcuffs. Police later identified him as Tsankov Dimitrov, 22, and said he was an auto mechanic in the Bulgarian village of Lom.

Cholera toll rises

TOKYO — Health officials reported 16 new cases of cholera Saturday in the southern port city of Arida, raising to 50 the number of persons afflicted there. Another cholera case broke out in Tokyo, the first in the capital.

Refugees barred

TAIPEI, Taiwan — An Israeli ship has been refused permission by Taiwan and by Hong Kong to land a group of 66 Vietnamese refugees rescued from a small boast last week. The freighter Yoveli picked up the group — 34 men, 16 women and 16 children — while sailing from Bangkok to Taiwan.

S. Africa quiet

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — South Africa's segregated black townships were quiet but tense Saturday in the wake of racial unrest that claimed the lives of 11 blacks and one white policeman. The violence came Friday amid a national observance by blacks of the anniversary of protests last June against the white minority government in which 600 blacks were killed.

Arab boycott

CAIRO — The Arab League commission administering the economic boycott of Israel has decided that Arabs should not supply raw materials to companies dealing with the Jewish state, but the boycott chief refused Saturday to say whether oil was included on the raw materials list. He said the organization's decision "is a clear response" to antiboycott legislation passed by the U.S. Congress on June 10.

OAS gets strong rights resolution

ST. GEORGES, Grenada — The U.S. introduced a strong human rights resolution Saturday at the general assembly of the Organization of American States.

It calls for a strengthening of the inter-American human rights commission and an end to "torture, summary execution and prolonged detention."

Cosponsored by Venezuela, Costa Rica and the Dominican Republic, it also urges OAS members to provide the commission with documents on alleged human rights violations and to permit it to carry out investigations in all member countries.

WIESBADEN, West Germany — West Germany appealed Saturday to Moscow to let more of an estimated 2.4 million ethnic Germans in the Soviet Union emigrate to West Germany. Rhodesian 'invasion'

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania — Mozambican President Samora Machel accused Rhodesia Saturday of sending troops into Mozambique for the second time in three weeks. Bhutto abroad

KARACHI, Pakistan — Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, leaving domestic unrest behind, arrived Saturday in Saudi Arabia, the first stop on a surprise tour of the Middle East. "Down with Bhutto," "Death to Bhutto," crowds of several hundred shouted here as they celebrated the government's agreement to restage Pakistan's disputed March 7 election and the homecoming of opposition politicians released from arrest. Opposition leaders voiced suspicion of Bhutto's trip, announced while a government-opposition agreement on new elections was still being finalized.

Pot bust

I understand the law which would allow a person to have his marijuana arrest record expunged has been appealed to the California Supreme Court. This was several months ago, and I would like to know if a decision has been handed down yet. P.H., Long Beach.

The case was heard by the high court April 6, and a decision is expected in the next few weeks, said California Deputy Atty. Gen. William R. Pounders of the agency's criminal division.

Under the marijuana decriminalization law of 1976, a person could petition the California Department of Justice to have his arrest record expunged. If the petition is approved, the attorney general's office would be ordered to destroy the records.

That office has, for the last three years, been automatically sealing misdemeanor and felony records of most persons who have been off parole or probation and have had no trouble with the law for at least seven years. But it has challenged the marijuana record law on the grounds that it violates constitutional provisions about separation of powers of the branches of government.

Pounders said requests for marijuana-record expungement currently are not even being processed or held. They are being returned to the sender with the explanation that such requests are not being considered until the State Supreme Court renders its decision in the case.

Travels with Fido

We are planning a trip to Mexico in a couple of months, and we have a puppy that we want to take with us. What are the regulations for taking pets into and out of that country? S.L., Long Beach.

Before taking your pet into Mexico, you must have the dog's rabies documents certified by the Mexican consulate general's office, 125 E. Sunset Blvd., Los Angeles. There is a $4 certification charge. If your puppy is not old enough to get a rabies inoculation, a health certificate from a veterinarian will be accepted by the Mexican consulate. Vets generally do not recommend rabies shots for puppies younger than 4 months.

To bring the pet back into the United States from Mexico, the U.S. government requires that you present a rabies certificate at the border. If the puppy has not been vaccinated because of its age, you must sign a statement at the border agreeing to keep the pet in quarantine at your home for 30 days after you re-enter the country.

Travel biz

Is a license required to own or operate a travel agency? Do any schools offer this type of training? B.S., Long Beach.

Other than a city business license, no other government license is required. But in order to sell airline tickets, a travel agency must be approved by two private airline trade associations. The domestic Air Traffic Conference (ATC), which is headquartered in Washinton, D.C., requires the manager of an agency to have at least two years full-time travel business experience, such as working for an airline ticketing office or a travel agency.

The International Air Transport Association (IATA), based in Montreal, certifies travel agencies to sell international airline tickets. IATA does not have a specific job-experience requirement for an agency's manager, but he must have what the association deems to be a sufficient background in the travel field.

The Long Beach Unified School District's School for Adults offers a nine-week "Travel Sense" course taught by a travel agent to provide vocational training for employment in a travel agency. The next course, which is free to any adult 18 years of age or older, will be held in the fall. Further information may be obtained by calling the school at 433-7446.

Long way to L.A. — by skateboard

CENTRALIA, Ill. (AP) — Jack Charlton is heading back home to Los Angeles on what may be the world's smallest four-wheel highway vehicle — a skateboard.

"I want to get a world's record," said Charlton, 22, as he rocked his way into Centralia on Friday afternoon. He said there is no known world record, so, he adds, his sojourn should become the record.

Charlton said he has averaged 40 miles per day since starting from the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia on May 10. He said he flew to Philadelphia to begin the trip because he'd never been there.

The skateboarder said he wants to promote skateboarding as a sport.

"If there are more people doing it, it will lose its reputation for being dangerous." He said he is sponsored by no skateboard manufacturer or any other firm.

Charlton rumbles along the traveled portion of the secondary highways of the nation — he chose Illinois 161 to enter Centralia — and moves onto the apron to give way to oncoming cars.

Only once has the law taken a dim view of his making the motorized vehicles share the road. He said police in Pennsylvania told him he could not skateboard for 35 miles because of traffic.

Charlton travels with a camper's pack on his back. "I can't have as much fun as if I had somebody following me," he said. Charlton travels alone.

He said he stayed two nights in hotels since May 10 "out of desperation from being tired and smelly." The traveler probably will not forget Greenville, Ohio.

He said he stopped for 40 minutes to take a shower at a private home.

The place was raided by narcotics officers during that time and one resident was arrested. Charlton was taken to the police station to make a statement, then was released.

Charlton intends to reach California by Labor Day — even with a week's vacation in Oklahoma.

He is also weighing the possibility of putting on a skateboarding marathon, traveling 150 to 200 miles non-stop.

Meteor streaks the West

A brilliant flash of blue light, caused by a burning meteor, lit the Western sky early Saturday, triggering hundreds of calls to police and sheriffs' departments from San Diego to Salt Lake City.

The meteor, streaking north, lasted about four seconds before fading away at 1:50 a.m.

"It was large enough to drop some debris over western states," said Kim Bussman of the Griffith Observatory in Los Angeles. So far, no fragments have been found.

Many persons who called authorities expressed the fear that a plane had crashed, including "six to eight" callers who contacted the Long Beach Police Department, said dispatcher Pat Reynolds.

One Long Beach resident, Randi Warner of 1718 E. Ocean Blvd., said she was traveling on the southbound San Gabriel River (605) Freeway when "the entire sky lit up, despite the overcast. It was rather scary."

A truck driver, who pulled over to the side of the road to watch, said the meteor's tail was "as bright as the sun. It lit up the whole sky."

In some parts of eastern California, residents reported hearing "what sounded like a sonic boom" several minutes after the flash.

Brad Bailey, an employe at Mt. Palomar Observatory near San Diego, said, "It was a very bright, bluish white light that looked like a flash cube going off."

Canoeist drowned

A 13-year-old Compton boy drowned Saturday when he and two companions capsized a rented canoe in a 16-acre lake at El Dorado Park, Long Beach police reported.

City lifeguard divers pulled the body of Robert Davis, 500 W. Almond St., from the bottom of 14-foot-deep Milton Arthur Lake, 300 yards north of Wardlow Road, at 5:02 p.m.

Police said Davis and two friends rented a canoe from a concessionaire earlier in the afternoon. The two boys swam safely ashore when the canoe turned over at 4:25 p.m., but Davis sank immediately, police said.

Elsewhere Saturday, the body of a 28-year-old Long Beach man, an apparent drowning victim, was found in the surf off Cherry Avenue, Long Beach police said.

The victim's name was withheld pending notification of next of kin. Investigators said his fully-clothed body was found floating in 5 feet of water at 3 p.m.

Bathers told police they didn't see the victim go into the water.

He was taken to St. Mary Medical Center and pronounced dead at 4 p.m., police added.

29 arrested in L.A. protest melee

Associated Press

Twenty-nine persons were arrested and others injured in Los Angeles Saturday after a downtown protest march turned into a stick-swinging free-for-all.

The melee broke out shortly after noon when officers tried to arrest one of the 75 demonstrators from the Progressive Labor Party for illegally using an electronic bullhorn.

Police said the other marchers then attacked police with the hardwood sticks of their protest placards.

The group had received repeated warnings about the bullhorn, police added.

Four officers and two demonstrators were injured in the fight. One officer suffered a fractured arm and required 30 stitches for a head wound.

Nine men were charged with assaulting a police officer and an additional 12 men and eight women were charged with inciting a riot.

Tortured L.A. woman rescued

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ten members of a drug ring beat a Los Angeles woman for three days in an extortion attempt before authorities rescued her Saturday, police said.

Betty Joyce Champagne, 27, her body covered with bruises, was found cowering in the bathroom of a five-room apartment.

The FBI said James Tippett, 28, of St. Louis had been holding Miss Champagne for a week in an effort to obtain $25,000 from her family.

SINCE Wednesday, Tippett and nine other members of the drug ring beat Miss Champagne with their fists and with bats, pipes, shoes and "almost everything they could get their hands on," said officer Marvin Temple, one of the first two policemen into the apartment.

"I've been on this job eight years," Temple said. "I've seen some a little worse, but she was beaten pretty bad. She could hardly speak."

Temple said the woman's face was badly bruised, her eyes nearly swollen shut. Her hands, feet and arms were also heavily bruised. She was hospitalized in satisfactory condition.

Seven men and three women ranging in age from 18 to 28 were booked on suspicion of assault with intent to do great bodily harm, and drug possession. Two other persons were arrested in the raid and booked on drug possession. Tippett was booked on suspicion of kidnaping for ransom.

FBI spokesman Kevin Illia said Miss Champagne's mother, Lela Nicholson of Watts, was notified last Friday that her daughter had been kidnaped and would be tortured until $25,000 ransom was paid.

POLICE said Miss Champagne was involved in the drug ring and came to St. Louis about 30 days ago.

Carter emphasizes family importance

By Ann Blackman

REPORTER ANN BLACKMAN INTERVIEWS PRESIDENT CARTER IN WHITE HOUSE

—AP Wirephoto

WASHINGTON — President Carter says the government ought to give married working couples the same tax benefits available to unmarried working people who live together.

He also says the government should remove from welfare programs the economic encouragement for fathers to desert their families.

The President, in a philosophical Father's Day interview, discussed the problems of the American family in 1977 and what the government might do to help.

AWAY FROM his imposing antique desk in the Oval Office, he relaxed across the room in a salmon-colored wing chair. He talked of the problems his own success has created for those close to him — the aides who spend so much time at the White House that he's had to order them to see their families.

The President, dressed in blue pinstripes, sat with his legs crossed, as casually as he might in his favorite blue jeans.

The interview was scheduled to last 10 minutes, but the President stretched it to a half hour.

CARTER, husband for almost 31 years, father of four, spoke of his own family life as a child; of his joy at being a grandfather; of his support for working mothers, including his wife, Rosalynn. Sending her on a diplomatic mission to Latin America "proved to be one of the better things I've ever done," he said.

Then he talked of his hopes for the American family.

In almost every program that his administration puts forward, he said, "the integrity of the family ought to be a factor." Then, pausing almost wistfully, he added, "I would be inclined to put it as a much greater factor, perhaps, than some others."

Even the tax laws discriminate against the most traditional family value: marriage. Federal income taxes total less for two working single people who live together than for a married working couple.

Congress has voted this year to reduce the difference, but it still exists.

"AND I would like to eliminate the disparity altogether," Carter said.

The new standard deductions effective this year can total $1,200 more for two single working people living together than for a married working couple filing jointly. Under the old law, the unmarried couple could have a $2,000 advantage when each took the standard deduction. Married persons filing separate tax returns cannot get the same benefits available to unmarried persons.

The welfare laws, he said, "quite often benefit handsomely the divided family. If the husband works full-time at the minimum wage, he makes a certain income for his wife and children. But if he leaves home or pretends to leave home and continues to work, and his family draws welfare payments, their standard of living can be greatly enhanced."

THIS, Carter said, "is a divisive force that the government artifically imposes on the family system."

But what will he do if he finds it expensive to eliminate laws that make it financially beneficial for welfare families to break up?

Carter replied, "We're struggling with that question now. I don't think it would cost a whole lot more to keep families together."

The President declined to spell out proposals he might offer to change tax and welfare laws.

Does he approve of mothers working when they have small children?

"I think it's good," the President replied, adding that his wife went to work before their oldest child was 2 years old.

Should the tax laws be revised to give working mothers a better deal in such areas as child-care tax credits and Social Security?

Carter said: "I don't want to presuppose the kinds of help we might want to give working mothers. But I think the day- care center concept and the tax laws, among other things, ought to be designed to let a parent be employed and also to prevent children from suffering.

"BUT WHAT form the tax laws should take, I'd rather not say, because we are now working on a comprehensive tax reform program."

Carter said the country's educational system could be used more efficiently. The President said schools haven't been adequately used after school hours. He said the after-school program for his 9-year-old daughter, Amy, "really appeals to me."

"They have what they call an expanded school program where kids can come to school at 7:30 a.m. and not leave until 6 p.m.," Carter said. "This gives both parents freedom to be employed, or, where there is only one parent, that person can do so."

Carter said Amy's fourth-grade after-school curriculum includes computer programming, Spanish and photography. He said there is no truth to a rumor that he plans to transfer her from District of Columbia public schools to a private school.

The reporter turned the discussion to homosexuality, a topic of discussion around the country after repeal of a Florida ordinance banning discrimination against homosexuals.

Q. Let me ask you a question that has become troublesome in the last few weeks in Florida and has become a national issue. I wonder if you think homosexuality is a threat to the family. Should they be able to adopt children and teach school? And marry?

A. I don't see homosexuality as a threat to the family. What has caused the highly publicized confrontations on homosexuality is the desire of homosexuals for the rest of society to approve and to add its acceptance of homosexuality as a normal sexual relationship. I don't feel that it's a normal interrelationship. But at the same time I don't feel that society, through its laws, ought to abuse or harass the homosexual. I think it's one of those things that is not accepted by most Americans as a normal sexual relationship. In my mind it's certainly not a substitute for the family life that I described to you.

Q. Do you think they should be able to adopt children or teach school? Would you be upset if you knew Amy were being taught by a homosexual?

A. That's something I'd rather not answer. I don't see the need to change laws to permit homosexuals to marry. I know that there are homosexuals who teach, and the children don't suffer. But this is a subject I don't particularly want to involve myself in. I've got enough problems without taking on another.

Carter said political life in the capital puts special strains on marriages: "I think in Washington there is a particular conflict between ambition and the desire to do a good job, which is legitimate, on one hand, and the obligations to hold your own families together and meet the needs of your spouse and children, on the other. I don't think the two are necessarily incompatible."

CARTER volunteered that when he has heard of a staffer's possible marriage problems, "Rosalynn and I have invited the family to come over and let the children play with Amy and let us show them that you can have an aggressive, dynamic, competitive political career and at the same time maintain your allegiances and your obligations to your own family duties."

Couples should take marriage vows seriously, Carter said. He added: "I'm not trying to be a prude. I'm not going to interfere with the right of people to make their own decisions under our laws."

The President was asked whether he would counsel a member of his staff to marry the person he or she is living with. Carter said: "I think I'd have to judge that on an individual basis. I have to admit that on a few occasions I have counseled with members of my staff about that subject. I've never tried to tell them what to do. I've never insinuated that they would be punished if they didn't."

CARTER has, on occasion, offered some advice on the subject. While visiting the Department of Housing and Urban Development in February, he told employes: "We need a stable family life to make us better servants of the people. So those of you who are living in sin, I hope you get married."

The President was asked in the interview whether he thinks a White House staffer living with someone out of wedlock would reflect on his administration.

"I don't want to equate it to the administration," he said. "I think it sets an example on a nationwide basis that is bad."

Carter said also that he has written memos to his key staff members and to his Cabinet secretaries instructing them to spend time with their families.

"THIS IS important to me," Carter said. "And I think it's good for my administration and good for the country, because what goes on in Washington, as reported to the rest of the world- the nation, at least—has a great impact on the sanctity of marriage and the need to hold the family together."

Resting his head on the back of his chair, Carter reminisced about ideas on marriage and family life when he was a child.

"I think there was a much greater sense of social pressure to hold the family together," he said. "It was a disgrace, at least where I grew up, for a family to be separated. Divorce was not accepted as part of life."

He continued: "And I think there was a much greater sense of religious commitment, that the marriage vow was sacred, and not only was the love of a partner an important part of it, but an obligation to be involved in honesty, integrity, truthfulness and faithfulness — in times of adversity and in times when the ardor of physical love waned. There was almost a sense of betrayal when one left a marriage partner."

President Carter, the parent, is now a grandfather. What does that mean to him this Fathers Day?

"It's almost as delightful to have a grandchild as it is to have one of your own children," he said. ". . . We are now experiencing the same delight in seeing Jason (age 22 months) and James (almost 4 months) develop without the constant responsibility for their care, and that ability to move in and out of the life of a grandchild and not have the constant responsibility for them is an additional element of the joy."

Byrd defers stand on Vietnam link

WASHINGTON (AP) — Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd says that while he was willing to prevent the Senate from placing the administration in a straitjacket in developing Cuban and South Korean policy, he might not play the same role on Vietnam.

Byrd offered an amendment Thursday that averted Senate repudiation of President Carter's plan to phase out U.S. ground troops in South Korea over four to five years. He also proposed an amendment that sidetracked a move by Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., to suggest tough preconditions for normalizing relations with Cuba.

But Byrd told reporters Saturday that if the Senate tried to take the lead in determining U.S. policy with Vietnam, he doesn't know how he would react.

"Nobody feels more strongly than I do that there should be no reparations. Nobody feels more strongly than I do that we should not pay what is called foreign aid, and I shall so vote until kingdom come if I'm here," the West Virginia senator said.

But normalizing relations is a different matter, and he would have to consider at the time whether it was in the best interests of the United States to do so with Vietnam, Byrd said.

"One has to deal with a subject in the light of changing events and changing interests," he said.

Byrd acknowledged that his actions were partisan "to a degree," but he said he was acting out of longstanding conviction.

"I felt the role that I played this week had to be played by the majority leader," he said. "I didn't want to see the President repudiated in his policy. But to a very much greater degree, my motive was substantive."

Both amendments, which were nonbinding, were added to a $1.6 billion State Department authorization bill.

The one on Korea expressed the sense of the Senate that any plan to withdraw troops from South Korea should be developed by joint decision of the President and Congress. It was adopted after it became apparent that language endorsing a phased troop withdrawal would be defeated.

'Not sensationalist,' says Briggs

A. Don't put words in my mouth. Don't say that I said I want to discriminate, because that's not my wording at all. That's some newspaper guy's wording. My law, the California Save Our Children law, would give the parents of a school district the right to petition the school board to remove a homosexual teacher.

Q. How does one prove that a teacher is homosexual?

A. There is a mechanism in the bill for a hearing by the school board. If you came in, for an example, with an accusation that a certain teacher is homosexual, the school board could have a hearing. If they have a hearing, they have to conclude within 30 days and if the teacher is a homosexual admitted, or a homosexual proved, through certain actions of yours, then (the teacher can be fired) . . . the actual act of homosexuality is defined as the act of sodomy or oral copulation.

Q. With a person of the same sex?

A. Yes, oh yes.

Q. How do you prove homosexuality if a person won't admit to it?

A. Well if they don't admit it — if someone is caught in a very indiscreet position, say, in a men's room or ladies room or car or in a park and it is known and acknowledged — then that's proof.

Q. But if a heterosexual teacher was caught in the same kinds of circumstances — fooling around in public — wouldn't it reflect on that teacher's judgment and ability to teach and wouldn't that teacher also be chastised?

A. Might even be dismissed. For moral turpitude.

Q. Why single out homosexuals?

A. Because they are a threat to family life. Even Vice President Mondale said our problem in this country is that our family life is going to hell. One out of two marriages are falling apart. He said we need to live in a society where . . . we promote family life. And how can you promote family life if you allow homosexuals to openly flaunt . . . living with another person of the same sex and not be able to propagate children, that's what this whole thing is about. Go forth and bear children — that's what God said. And that's what our nation is based on — the family unit.

Q. Do you think you're taking the wind out of (GOP gubernatorial nomination opponent) Ed Davis' sails with your strong action on the death penalty and coming out against homosexuals?

A. What I am attempting to do for the people of California is to provide leadership in many areas including education, property tax reform, law and order, family and spiritual life.

Q. Isn't it a sensationalistic campaign designed to help you attain name identification?

A. I don't have a campaign. Actually, all I have done is introduce legislation as would any other of the 191 legislators.

Q. It is senationalistic legislation, isn't it?

A. All I am attempting to do is repeal a law introduced in 1975 by Willie Brown that legalized homosexuality in California. I put in a bill immediately thereafter to repeal that one, but could not get it repealed. And I don't recall anybody ever complaining that his legislation that allows oral copulation and sodomy to be sensational. So I don't buy that I'm trying to sensationalize anything.

Q. Why did you wait until now to introduce this particular piece of anti-gay school teacher legislation? Was it because Anita Bryant created a political climate you felt you could cash in on?

A. Yes, absolutely. She provided the leadership. That's why I went down there, to help her, to be sure that effort succeeded, and it did. I think that we are in what I consider to be the beginning of a sexual counterrevolution where society has drawn the line, (and said) "This far, no further."

The homosexuals in San Francisco are the fountainhead of all homosexual activity in this country. They came to Los Angeles, spread the blight, and then they went down and tried to establish a beachhead in Miami, and they were thrown back, and they are going to be thrown back even further because society is not going to tolerate the handholding and the kissing and the loving and the squeezing by two persons of the same sex in front of our children. We're just not going to allow it.

If they want to do it in their own private homes, that's fine. But when they try to bring it out into the public and into the schoolrooms, people are not going to tolerate it.

Q. Do you think the hand-holding, the squeezing and the kissing is going to go on in the classrooms?

A. If we don't draw the line. It will.

Q. Your name has also been in the news a great deal lately as a proponent of the death penalty. Why do you favor this form of punishment?

A. Because I believe it is a deterrent to crime.

Q. Why are you sponsoring a movement to defeat the override of Gov. Brown's veto of the Legislature's current death penalty bill?

A. Because I feel that the current law is a very weak law in the hands of a very weak governor. And if we let him throw it back to us, which he did, with the words that he wrote, "I do not want to live in a society where death is used as a punishment," he has absolutely no obligation — no obligation — to enforce it if we override his veto . . . (And with) a weak governor who has a department head (Mario Obledo) who has already told the news (media) . . . that he would resign before he'd give out the death penalty, then really you have no death penalty at all.

In addition to that, the bill is weak in that it covers only a very small group of people. If you kill a policeman, and are convicted, you can get the death penalty. But if you kill a newspaperwoman, or a taxicab driver . . . (you) could not get the death penalty unless there was another felony committed with it like a robbery, rape, assault, and I think that their lives are just as precious as a cop's life.

Q. Isn't it true that the majority of murders are committed between friends and family in moments of passion?

A. A lot of them are.

Q. It is the majority isn't it?

A. I don't know about the majority. I can't tell you, I don't know. You're asking me, and I'm telling you: I don't know. A lot of them are. But by the same token, a lot of murders were committed last year by the Zebra killers in San Francisco. Well, you can (kill someone) right now under this law and you could not get the death penalty — every Zebra killer gets one freebie and no death penalty . . . frankly, when husbands and wives find out that there is no death penalty for killing (each other), then maybe you're going to have a lot more husbands and wives killed. But in any event, you have mitigating circumstances . . . but what I'm talking about is where a guy premeditatedly figures out that he's going to, goes out and blows away a person, knowing full well unless they can also prove that he also committed another crime, that he cannot get the death penalty.

Q. Nevertheless, since you do believe that the death penalty is a deterrent to crime, don't you feel that you are depriving protection from people to create a political issue?

A. I do not, I do not. I'll tell you why. We've had one execution in California in 10 years. How long have we had the death penalty? Most of the time, 1963 was the last year we executed anybody. Since 1963, which is 14 years, we've had one person put to death. So we really haven't had a death penalty that's been really carried out . . . and we've only been without a death penalty law for about two years. In addition to that, the Supreme Court of the state of California is going to find it unconstitutional.

Q. Why will they find it unconstitutional?

A. It's too restrictive. You cannot write a law, in my opinion, and say it only covers policemen and guards, and doesn't cover all the other lives. My life is precious, too. Additionally, the California Supreme Court already has four anti-death penalty judges on it. Gov. Brown has appointed two more and he has one more going. It's well known that when it gets there it is going to be declared unconstitutional.

Q. You have consistently been a strong law-and-order legislator over the years. What are a few of the more prominent laws you have sponsored in the Legislature?

A. First of all, very few of them got through because the liberal Democrats have killed virtually every good bill that anybody ever puts in. I merged my death penalty in 1973 with Sen. Deukmejian. And I have put in numerous bills over the years that would strengthen law enforcement. One of them would have repealed the legislation of last year — that was just declared unconstitutional, fortunately — where all these in prison would get out early. Under Brown's legislation on July of this year, some 3,000 criminals were going to take a quick walk. I put in a repealer on that and it was killed. And, well, I can't remember. After 11 years and hundreds of bills later, you can't remember.

Q. A year ago, the Speaker of the Assembly, Leo McCarthy, asked his Democratic colleagues to refrain from voting on your "right to bear arms" constitutional amendment proposal. McCarthy told the press he and a number of other members of the Assembly were tired of your "show business" tactics. And an Associated Press story described you as "the Assembly's foremost exponent of parliamentary objections." Have you had trouble gaining support from fellow legislators? And if you have, wouldn't that impair you, were you to become governor?

A. Fellow legislators are just about as important as newspaper editors. What the editors like and what your fellow colleagues like isn't necessarily what the people like.

Child witnesses to murder react to ordeal in court

DETROIT (AP) — Eight-year-old Regina Robinson cried when she got home from testifying in court last week. The next day she was afraid to go to school alone.

Regina was one of 10 child witnesses called to the stand at a murder trial in a rare prosecution move. But she was too scared to do more than glance at the man she had seen shoot her teacher in the head five times in the classroom last Nov. 10.

Another witness, Pamela Ann Burnett, saw her mother crying in the audience, left the stand and began sobbing herself. She said later she was frightened by the defendant's "yellow eyes."

But 8-year-old Fred Mrozek, who had been so upset at the time of the slaying that he was reluctant to go outdoors for several months, confidently pointed to defendant Al Lewis as the gunman.

His testimony and that of two other pupils helped persuade a jury to convict Lewis of second-degree murder Friday. Lewis, who was teacher Bettye McCaster's estranged husband, will be sentenced Friday.

Regina's mother, Gloria Robinson, says the experience was so traumatic that her daughter wept uncontrollably afterward and begged her to accompany her to school for the final day of classes.

"She's just upset from the whole ordeal," Mrs. Robinson said. " ... If I had it to do over again, she never would have gone down there to relive all that."

John L. Thompson, assistant Wayne County prosecutor, defends the decision to call the children as witnesses.

"People don't seem to understand," he said. "We have a legal duty. The eyewitnesses have to be produced. They have to testify. If we did not produce them, the jury can infer that the witnesses would be able to testify against us."

Thompson said he interviewed all 29 of the children who witnessed the killing months ago "and none of them exhibited any sort of traumatic behavior."

THE 10 WHO TESTIFIED were selected by Thompson on "sort of an intuitive judgment, based on how I thought they would react on the stand."

Thompson said some parents "did indicate a reluctance to let their children testify," but none asked specifically that their children not be put through the ordeal.

The children underwent preparation for testifying with a trip to the courtroom May 9. Judge Patricia J. Boyle spoke with them briefly in an attempt to relax them for the time they would be called to testify.

During interviews with the children, Thompson emphasized the need to tell the truth and not to invent answers for the jury if they did not know something.

But the ordeal of testifying was nothing compared to the trauma after the slaying itself.

Most of the youngsters were so shaken that psychiatric services were offered and special counseling was made available. Miss McCaster's replacement, Emma Jean Tillman, has extensive training in handling youngsters with unusual problems.

GARY GILMORE

Gary Gilmore — in death, a hot property

By Vern Anderson
Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — Gary Gilmore was killed by a firing squad five months ago. But his life remains both a puzzle and a valuable commercial property.

Gilmore, 36, gained worldwide attention when he said he would rather die than spend his life in prison. His execution was stayed three times before it was carried out on the chilly morning of Jan. 17 — the nation's first execution in nearly 10 years.

At least three books and a play about Gilmore have been started. A movie is planned. And sales continue on T-shirts bearing his final comment to the warden, "Let's do it."

Two $1-million suits have been brought against Gilmore's estate by his victims' widows.

GILMORE, who twice tried suicide following unwanted stays of execution, is a puzzling presence in the memories of those close to him at his death.

His attorney, Ronald Stanger, says, "He did have a way about him, and if he wanted to be nice, he could. He was very bright."

Stanger, attorney Robert Moody, Gilmore's uncle Vern D'Amico and promoter Lawrence Schiller witnessed the execution at Gilmore's request. It was a duty Stanger says "shouldn't have been part of my watch." Moody says the experience "still just sickens me."

D'Amico says, "He was a completely mixed-up man. He wanted the same things you and I want — marriage, a home, a job and love — to live like an average American." D'Amico and his wife, Ida, took Gilmore into their home when he was paroled from prison in April 1976.

"WHAT he did was beyond me, and I think, beyond him," D'Amico said of the two murders his nephew admitted.

Gilmore was convicted of the July 20, 1976, killing of Bennie Bushnell, 25, a motel night clerk. He also admitted slaying Max Jensen, 24, a service station attendant. Both were shot in the head at close range during robberies.

Jensen's widow, Colleen, teaches art in Clearfield, Utah, where she lives with her 16-month-old daughter, her lawyer said, adding that she has refused to answer questions from reporters.

Relatives said Debra Bushnell is living in Los Angeles and gave birth to a daughter, her second child, within weeks after Gilmore was shot. The relatives refused to say where she could be reached. Her attorney said, "She doesn't even want to talk with me most of the time. It's been a very traumatic thing for her."

NICOLE Barrett, 21, Gilmore's former girlfriend who joined him in an unsuccessful suicide pact last November, was committed to the state mental hospital after the suicide attempt but was released shortly after the execution. Her mother, Kathryn Baker, said her daughter is working as a private nurse to a terminally ill couple, but she declined to say where she and her two children are living. "That's all I'm going to tell you. She (Nicole) is doing well and working. She's in a good frame of mind. She's happy."

Schiller, who paid $112,000 for the rights to Gilmore's life story, said he has conducted 116 interviews for the book that is to be completed in about two years by a writer he has yet to sign.

He said a two-character play based on "the concept of the inquisitor and prisoner" similar to a Gilmore interview that appeared this spring in Playboy magazine was being written by an author whose name he would not disclose.

HE SAID if successful, the play, book and movie — to be filmed after the book is published — could gross around $500,000.

Author Norman Mailer, contacted as he left an interview with D'Amico last week, said he was at work on a book about "violence in America," and that "Gary Gilmore will occupy a prominent chapter." He said the book would take a year or two to complete.

"I don't like to give interviews about the books I'm working on. I'm suspicious of writers who do that, and I'm also superstitious enough to believe it brings bad luck," Mailer said.

He said Schiller had provided "access to certain people." Asked if he had signed to write Gilmore's story, Mailer said, "not at this stage, but I don't know what might happen six months from now."

MEANWHILE, James K. Bozony, 23, of Amherst, Mass., marketing the T-shirt emblazoned "Let's Do It," said he has sold about 1,000 at $5.95 each.

"It's still going strong, believe it or not. I got my first orders from Sweden and England about two months ago," he said.

Warden Sam Smith, who oversaw the execution at Utah State Prison, said the warehouse where Gilmore was shot by a five-man firing squad is again a warehouse. The chair, bearing holes from the four bullets that passed through Gilmore's body, was immediately burned, he said.

At Gilmore's request, parts of his body were donated to medical research, and his cremated remains were spread over Utah County, site of his crimes and Mrs. Barrett's home.

DENNIS Boaz, who for a time was Gilmore's agent and attorney, said he is writing a novel based on his experiences.

He remembers Gilmore as "extremely calculating and with an iron will. At the same time, he was extremely cowardly in the sense of his insecurity with women." Boaz said he thinks Gilmore purposely did not take a lethal dose of drugs because he "wanted to wake up and read that she (Nicole) was gone."

Of his book, Boaz said, "It's not going to have a downer kind of ending . . . the execution is important, but it's not the key to the book. There are other people who go on living in my book. In Schiller's book, there's no way it could have a sequel unless it's going to be a book on reincarnation."

Trucker killed in collision with cow

LONE PINE (AP) — A 25-year-old truck driver was killed early Saturday when his trucktrailer rig struck a cow and went out of control, hitting two trees and bursting into flames, the Highway Patrol said.

Larry M. Hyde of Baker, Ore., was killed in the crash on U.S. 395 one mile south of here.

Carter challenged on 'human right to life'

CHICAGO (AP) — President Carter's commitment to human rights was challenged Saturday by leaders of an anti-abortion group who said he failed to support "the most basic human right of all — the right to life."

Dr. Carolyn Gerster, chairman of the board of the National Right to Life Committee, told reporters that "any claim for human rights that tolerates the destruction of over a million American lives lacks credibility." She said she was referring to the number of abortions performed annually.

Dr. Gerster, here for the committee's fifth annual convention, said participants represent "a divergent group that holds only one belief in common — that every human life is precious and cannot be sacrificed on the altar of utilitarianism."

DR. JILL Knight, member of the British House of Commons, said in a speech Saturday that Carter "had the guts to stand up and say we must have human rights." But, she said: "He's got to put his money where his mouth is on the abortion question in the United States.

"It's no use to advocate human rights in Russia and Africa unless we do it here."

The committee president, Dr. Mildred F. Jefferson, said a human rights stand that lacks protection for unborn children is "meaningless."

She said the right to life movement will seek support in Congress for a "human life amendment" to the Constitution to outlaw euthanasia and abortion except to save the life of a mother. Such an amendment, she predicted, could be ratified within three years.

The amendment is needed to prevent the United States from "becoming an exclusive reservation where only the perfect, the privileged or the planned have a right to live," Dr. Jefferson said.

THE THEME of the convention, highlighted by a rally attended by 4,000 persons Friday night and a downtown parade Saturday featuring floats and marching bands, has been a call to political action.

— Opposing the Equal Rights Amendment "until such time as wording is added to positively guarantee equal rights for all Americans, born and unborn."

— Petitioning the Girl Scouts of the United States of America and the National Congress of Parents and Teachers to drop what critics called promotion of abortion.

— Declaring that the International Women's Year Conference is "a disservice to the American family, a misuse of the taxpayers' money . . . and a fraud perpetuated by a vocal minority of American women."

U.S. bishop becomes saint

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI proclaims John Nepomucene Neumann as America's first male saint today before thousands of U.S. pilgrims, including two Pennsylvanians who believe they owe their lives to the intercession of Philadelphia's "little bishop."

Papal spokesmen said more than 20,000 Americans — including U.S. Vatican representative Henry Cabot Lodge, Philadelphia Mayor Frank Rizzo and eight American cardinals — are expected to jam St. Peter's Square to hear the Pope order Bishop Neumann "inscribed in the Catalogue of Saints."

Among those arriving Saturday were Michael Flanigan, 19, of Philadelphia and J. Kent Lenahan, 36, of Villanova, Pa., whose miraculous cures led to the 19th-Century bishop's canonization.

Vatican spokesmen said Flanigan developed terminal bone cancer at age 6, and doctors decided his case was hopeless. His parents took him to the bishop's shrine in Philadelphia to pray, and today his only reminder of the disease is a slight limp in his right leg.

"I REMEMBER going to the shrine, but there wasn't much commotion at the time over my cure," he told reporters.

Lenahan, a music teacher, was 19 years old when his head was nearly crushed against a utility pole while he was riding on a car running board. The comatose youth recovered after his parents touched him with a piece of the bishop's cassock.

"They couldn't explain what happened," Lenahan said in a recent interview. "So I guess it was the man upstairs."

The third "miracle cure" attributed by the Vatican to Bishop Neumann involved an 11-year-old Italian girl who recovered overnight from peritonitis, an inflammation of the abdominal lining, after a nun touched her with a picture of Bishop Neumann. Eva Benassi is now 65 and was also expected for the canonization, Vatican spokesmen said.

Previous Americans canonized are two women — Mother Cabrini, declared a saint in 1946, and Mother Seton, canonized in 1975.

In 1921, Pope Benedict XV declared Bishop Neumann "venerable" — the first degree of sanctity — because of "the simplicity of his works," his service to the poor, and his promotion of the parochial school system in the United States. He was beatified in 1963.

THE BISHOP WAS born in 1811 in the village of Prachatitz in what is now Czechoslovakia. After considering careers in medicine and law, he decided on the priesthood and at age 25 immigrated to the United States in search of a bishop to ordain him.

Bishop John Dubois of New York, eager for German-speaking priests, welcomed the young man and assigned him to a 9,000-square-mile parish in western New York state.

Within four years, the pace of work in the huge frontier parish brought Father Neumann, frail and barely 5 feet tall, to the point of physical collapse. He joined the Redemptorist Order and began a career of service to German-speaking immigrants in New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

In Baltimore, Father Neumann became a U.S. citizen and helped save an order of black nuns, the Oblate Sisters of Providence, from extinction. There he also became the private confessor of Archbishop James Patrick Henrick, who had transferred from Philadelphia.

The archbishop recommended Father Neumann as his successor in Philadelphia, and despite his own reservations, he was consecrated bishop of what was then America's largest diocese on his 41st birthday.

The three previous bishops had all been Irish, and there was resentment over appointment of a bishop who spoke English with a thick German accent.

"The Rev. Neumann does not speak English well, and I fear his election would find very little favor with the American people," warned Bishop Michael O'Connor of Pittsburgh.

Although his simple dress and unpretentious style were scorned by the city's urbane rich, Bishop Neumann won the loyalty of the common people and the poor, who dubbed him "the little bishop" because of his short stature.

The bishop focused his energies on religious education, increasing parochial school enrollment from 500 to 9,000 in two years, and laying the foundation for a Catholic school system that today boasts 200,000 students in 269 elementary and 30 high schools.

To staff the schools, he encouraged religious groups to settle in the area and founded a new order, the Sisters of the Third Order of St. Francis, which today has more than 1,500 nuns.

His death on Jan. 15, 1860, came just three weeks before his 49th birthday.

Hughes' estate heirs 'settle'

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Heirs of industrialist Howard Hughes have agreed to a division of his estate in an out-of-court settlement, a Montgomery newspaper reported today.

Alabama Journal reporter Virginia Gibson wrote in a copyrighted story appearing in a joint edition with the Montgomery Advertiser that the agreement was signed last weekend at a Destin, Fla., resort.

The settlement, subject to court challenge because of suits filed in several states over the authenticity of a number of purported Hughes wills, was reached "to prevent years of litigation," according to attorneys for the heirs, the Journal said.

Under the agreement, the largest share of the estate — 23 5/6 per cent — would go to Hughes' aunt, Annette Gano Lummis of Houston, the newspaper said. Mrs. Lummis' son, William, is chairman of the board of Hughes' multimillion-dollar conglomerate, the Summa Corp.

The rest of the estate, according to the Journal's account, would be divided in this manner:

—Each of three granddaughters of Hughes' uncle, the late playwright and movie producer Rupert Hughes, would receive 6⅓ per cent. They are Barbara Hughes Cameron of Los Angeles and Elspeth Hughes Depould and Agnes Hughes Roberts, both of Cleveland.

—Nine and one-half per cent would be divided equally between Avis Hughes McIntyre of Montgomery and Rush Hughes of California, stepchildren of Rupert Hughes.

—Sixteen maternal first cousins would share the remaining 47 per cent, with none to receive more than 4 1/6 per cent.

The maternal first cousins are Annette Gano Lummis Neff of Boston; William Rice Lummis and Richard C. Gano Jr. of Los Angeles; William Kent Gano, Doris Gano Wallace, Annette Gano Gragg and Howard Hughes Gano, all of Texas; Arlene Lummis Russell, Frederick Rice Lummis Jr., John McIntosh Houstoun, Margo Fleming Houstoun, James Wilkin Houstoun and Richard Alexander Houstoun, all of Houston; Janet Houstoun Davis, Sara Houstoun Lindsey and the estate of James Patrick Houstoun Jr.

Trial is scheduled Aug. 15 in Las Vegas on a petition by Annette Lummis seeking to invalidate the so-called "Mormon will" purportedly written by Hughes.

THE DOCUMENT mysteriously appeared in the headquarters of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Salt Lake City. It leaves the Hughes estate to the Mormon Church, orphanages, the Boy Scouts of America, Inc., and a service station attendant. Melvin Dummar, who says he picked up Hughes as a hitchhiker in Nevada in 1968.

The "Mormon will" leaves one-sixteenth of the estate to Dummar.

Officials have said the document is a forgery, and Dummar's fingerprint was identified on the envelope in which the will was found. Dummar has admitted delivering the document but denied that he wrote it.

The Howard Hughes Medical Institute has filed suit in Las Vegas, claiming a will made by Hughes in 1938 leaves the estate solely to the institute.

Estimates of the value of the Hughes estate have ranged from a $168 million appraisal last March by Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, Inc., of New York, to $2.5 billion by other sources.

Minorities turning Cal. into 'Third World' state

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Minorities are increasing so fast in California that it will soon be the first "Third World state," says Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally.

Dymally, a black born in Trinidad, released a report Saturday which said minorities have risen from 20.4 per cent of California's total population in 1970 to 34.7 per cent this year.

"If the present trend continues, by 1990, California minorities will comprise a staggering 60.7 per cent of the total population," said the report prepared by interns sponsored by Dymally's office.

Dymally said the report was conservative.

"Most ethnic leaders believe that the population is anywhere from 38 to 41 per cent, and I find myself in this category," Dymally said.

"Neither the media, the government, nor private interests are preparing for this emerging phenomenon and will consequently be unprepared to meet the challenge," he said.

The report listed the principal minorities in California as Mexican-Americans 4.2 million, black 1.6 million, Japanese 350,000, Puerto Ricans 350,000, Portuguese 350,000, Chinese 300,000, Filipinos 300,000, American Indians 239,000, and Koreans 150,000.

In addition, the report said, there are 80,000 Cubans, 80,000 Vietnamese, 78,000 Caribbeans, 50,000 Samoans, 40,000 Guatemalans, 30,000 Indians from India, 30,000 Guamanians and 25,000 Panamanians.

The total is 8.3 million minority members in a total population of 24 million, according to the report.

In addition, the report estimated there are 1.2 million undocumented Mexican workers in the state, which would boost the total population to 25.2 million, with 9.5 million or 37.8 per cent minorities.

CHP officer shot making traffic check

BARSTOW (AP) — A California Highway Patrol officer shot Saturday morning during a routine traffic stop was listed in critical condition at Loma Linda University Hospital, authorities said.

John A. Lopez, 26, of Barstow, was shot three times in the back and once in the arm at 7:50 a.m. when he stopped a car containing two men about 30 miles north of here.

Authorities said one of the two men later was shot simultaneously by a San Bernardino County sheriff's deputy and CHP officers and was listed in critical condition. He was identified as Nick Cardiel, 21, of La Puente.

The other man was identified as Ronald Torres, 19, of Pasadena. Both have been charged with assault on a peace officer, assault with intent to commit murder, kidnap, armed robbery and grand theft auto.

Abuses by MDs, pharmacies cited

U.S. finds 537 Medicaid frauds

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A continuing federal audit of Medicaid payments to doctors and pharmacies has turned up 537 cases of apparent fraud or abuse, Joseph Califano, secretary of health, education and welfare, said Saturday.

That figure includes 222 physicians and 315 pharmacies whose claims were found by computer checks to be "validated" instances falling within the standards for fraud or abuse, he said.

In addition, the secretary told a news conference, the audit is turning up thousands of cases that appear solely from computer data to involve irregularities, though they have yet to be checked further. In California alone, some 2,000 cases fall into that category, he said.

The apparent violations were found in a massive screening — called Project Integrity — that as of June 9 had checked some 252 million Medicaid transactions involving 231,000 physicians and 44,000 pharmacies.

The secretary, here to address the American Medical Association today and presumably discuss administration proposals to contain the upward march of hospital costs, emphasized that most health-care providers are honest. Prosecution of those suspected of fraud, he said, will in most cases be carried out by the states in which the doctors live.

"We have been receiving excellent cooperation from all the states we have been to," Califano said.

The secretary defended his wide-ranging information-gathering campaign on national health insurance (NHI) proposals, even though the subject has been researched for many years.

"There are a lot of well-developed bills," he said, "but none of them have brought national health insurance to reality."

He said that in addition to working with an advisory committee on NHI, he is writing all congressmen, all governors, a large number of mayors, organizations and individuals to help in forming the administration's position on the issue.

Califano also presented a $1,000 award to an HEW employe whose suggestion for lowering the temperature of laundry water in hospitals could "save $300 million a year in bills for American patients," he said.

Calif. wilds visited by 'new mood' of Andrus

By Gladwin Hill
New York Times Service

A young man who had trudged eight miles into the redwood wilderness last week, seeking solitude, was jolted when he came upon a group of 30 people hanging on the words of a tall, thin man who used to plug Idaho potatoes on television.

The thin man was Secretary of the Interior Cecil D. Andrus. He had flown by helicopter into a remote clearing in the Northern California forest, with lumber executives and conservationists, to get a first-hand look at the dimensions of the long-ranging controversy over enlarging Redwood National Park.

THE forest trek was just one item in five crowded days that the 54-year-old former governor of Idaho devoted to investigating resource problems in California, a state he said presented a spectrum of "virtually all the problems the nation will face in the years ahead."

The unusual expedition, the longest such Cabinet visit anyone could recall, was partly educational, partly political. Traveling in helicopters, planes and cars, Andrus covered several thousand miles, looking at forests, farmlands, dams, lakes, parks, canals, flood plains and offshore oil operations.

On a whirlwind 18-hour-day schedule, Andrus also talked with citizens, businessmen and public officials, greeted a gathering of San Francisco Democrats and plugged President Carter's energy program to a convention of public utility commissioners. In addition, he conferred with Gov. Brown, whose state, which has the biggest bloc of electoral votes, voted against Carter last November, and who personally is both a past and potential challenger of the President.

THE laundry list of issues and problems that California had to offer was long. Those that preempted attention were:

—Redwood National Park: Should it be substantially enlarged at the cost of diminished commercial logging and consequent unemployment?

—Auburn Dam: A billion-dollar Bureau of Reclamation project on the American River that is on Carter's list of questionable water projects.

—Westlands Water District: A 750-square-mile irrigation project in the San Joaquin Valley where federal benefits to big landowners have been challenged as illegal.

—Lake Tahoe: Years of quarreling between California and Nevada about preservation of its natural beauties have crystallized proposals for federal intervention.

—Offshore oil: California has led the states in opposition to stepped-up federal leasing of drilling rights, pending more comprehensive guarantees on economic and environmental impact. The Interior Department is also involved in a dispute between the state and the Exxon Corp. over the latter's plan to operate a floating offshore oil processing plant.

ANDRUS' main themes throughout his tour were that the Carter administration was deeply committed to reconciling resource development and environmental values, and that there was "a new mood" of open-mindedness in Interior, in which the department intended to weigh all viewpoints on issues and collaborate closely with states rather than "riding roughshod" in pursuit of unilateral programs.

"I sat in a governor's chair myself," Andrus told group after group, "and I know how the Feds' barging in can drive you right up the wall."

After spending a day among the redwoods, he agreed with conservationists that the federal government should acquire buffer tracts by condemnation, if necessary, to protect some choice national park groves from the effects of adjacent logging such as erosion.

He told community leaders and union officials that if sequestration of redwood tracts caused unemployment, which has been projected at anywhere from 600 to 2,000 jobs, the administration stood ready to cushion the impact through public works employment and retraining and relocation of workers if necessary.

After flying over the site of Auburn Dam, now 18 per cent completed and a major element in California's water-resource program, Andrus observed that, unlike most other projects on the Carter "hit list," the dam had been approved as to economic feasibility and general environmental effects, and had only to pass the safety hurdle, now under study. The dam was designed to withstand an earthquake of moderate intensity, about 5.5. on the Richter scale, but there is evidence that a bigger quake might occur in the area.

Andrus said he was reluctant to "stick the federal nose" into the interstate wrangling over proliferating gambling casinos and other intrusive works of man at Lake Tahoe, but he said: "If it develops that that's the only way the problem can be resolved, we're not all that bashful." The lake lies half in California and half in Nevada.

The Westlands controversy revolves around charges that large corporate farming interests have contrived to circumvent a statutory limitation of 160 acres per owner on federally-irrigated lands. Announcing formation of a federal-state panel to study the issues, Andrus said: "We will enforce the 160-acre limitation."

Thursday afternoon he helicoptered over the ocean to Union Oil's Platform A, where the great Santa Barbara well blowout of 1969 occurred. He donned a hardhat to clamber up and down its four decks while being briefed on offshore production and spill-prevention technology.

Cal. congressmen hit for blocking consumer agency

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — California Congressmen Leo Ryan and Paul McCloskey were criticized Saturday by Public Advocates for failing to support President Carter's proposed Agency for Consumer Protection.

"Right now the legislation is short a dozen or so votes," said San Francisco Dist. Atty. Joseph Freitas Jr.

"The Bay Area congressional delegation is overwhelmingly in favor of the consumer agency. The two notable holdouts are Leo Ryan and Pete McCloskey," he said. "Consumers desperately need to have public agencies to watch the massive bureaucracy that affects their lives. I would hope these two Bay Area congressmen would change their minds."

McCloskey is a Republican from Palo Alto, and Ryan a Democrat from San Mateo.

Ralph Nader, head of Public Advocates, had been scheduled to join labor and consumer leaders at the news conference but missed a flight from Los Angeles.

standards, tax incentives for weatherizing homes, and restructuring utility rates to reward energy consumers who cut down, Mondale said.

Metzenbaum said the "administration's own plan estimates that energy demand will increase nationally by 25 per cent from 1976 to 1985, a figure only 4 per cent less than if no energy plan is enacted at all."

He said Congress should consider mandatory measures such as minimum gas-mileage standards for every new car, not just fleet averages; strict enforcement of the 55 mile-per-hour speed limit; mandatory industrial conversion to coal, mandatory home insulation, and elimination of unnecessary fuel use such as stove pilot lights.

Safeguards against profit gouging by the oil companies are a part of Carter's program, Mondale said, noting that it exempts home heating-oil and gas from the effects of any new taxes.

HE SAID the program seeks to protect the consumer in its current fight against the oil lobby to keep price controls on energy. He added, however, that "we offer substantial incentives for new production . . . but we don't believe the oil and gas companies should reap billions in windfall profits at the expense of the American people for energy from wells that have already been drilled and producing at a substantial profit for years."

"The President and I are deeply disappointed" by a House subcommittee vote to take controls off the price of natural gas, Mondale said. "That single action, if it's not overturned, will cost the American people $71 billion in added fuel costs by 1985."

"Substantial incentives? (That) masterfully understates the obvious," said Metzenbaum.

IN 1972, before the OPEC price increase, when the average price for a barrel of U.S. crude oil was $3.39, Metzenbaum said, Exxon's producing operation earned a 71 per cent pre-tax rate of return on net investment, Mobil 49 per cent, Amoco 43.9 per cent and Gulf 44.7 per cent.

He said the average price is now $8.50 and the administration wants to raise it to the OPEC cartel price of $13.50.

"The administration's proposal also provides a special bonus to producers of Alaskan oil without any justifiable reason. Only last month (Federal Energy Administrator Jack) Mr. O'Leary acknowledged that these revenues will amount to a windfall for the oil companies — more than $2 billion for British Petroleum, Arco and Sohio," the senator said.

He blasted the administration's setting of a price of $1.75 per million cubic-feet of natural gas in the face of a 1976 study of a major Gulf Oil natural gas field by the Price Waterhouse accounting firm showing that Gulf's average total exploration and production cost over its 20-year contract will be 24 cents per million cubic-feet.

Metzenbaum indicated his support for a legal prohibition against ownership of competing types of energy. He said 24 oil and gas companies control about 44 per cent of leased coal reserves and "only eight actually are producing coal ... in general, coal production has declined or failed to increase significantly when a previously independent coal company is acquired by an oil company."

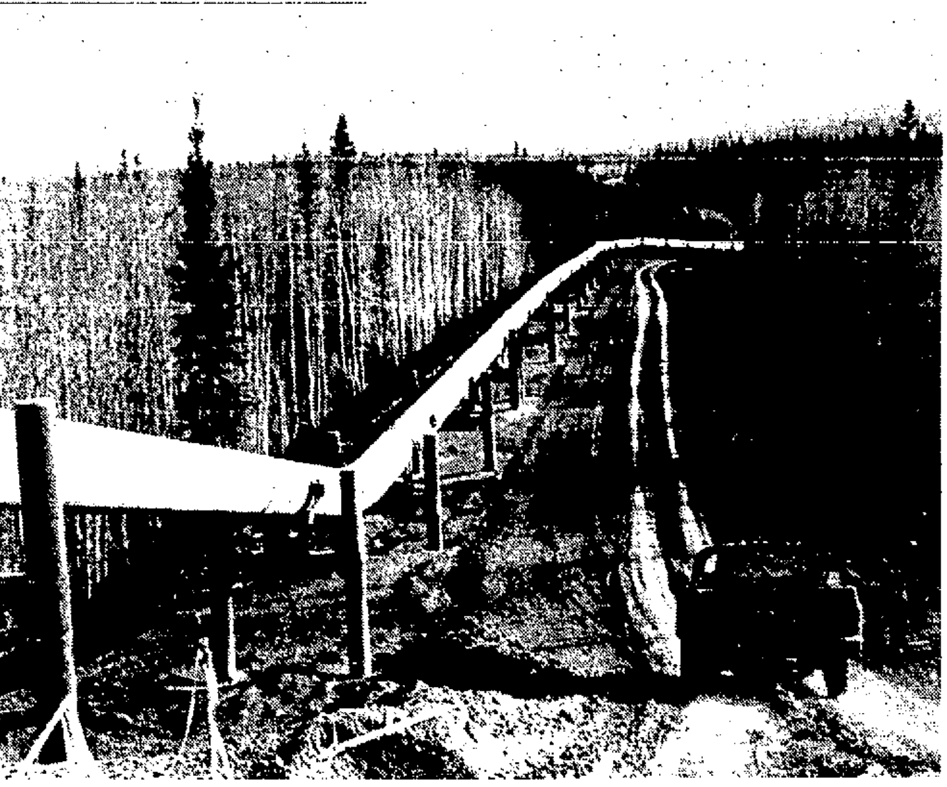
surveillance down to approving a $5 expenditure to take out an ACLU membership in a fictitious name.

Hoover authorized a "confidential undercover inquiry" involving a search of files in the ACLU's New York headquarters because he had heard the ACLU had published a pamphlet describing white slave and narcotic violations as "minor offenses," the paper said. No pamphlet was found.

DURING the 23-year period of FBI surveillance, Hoover repeatedly denied to ACLU founder Roger N. Baldwin that the organization was being investigated, the paper said.

And although the ACLU was described in FBI files as "nothing more than a front for the Communists," Hoover also denied to Baldwin that the ACLU was suspected of being subversive, it said.

Baldwin, 93, was quoted in the article as saying: "I think it is a terrible waste of effort and government funds to spy on an organization as open as the ACLU. It just illustrates the stupidity of a police agency that operates on the grounds of suspicion instead of facts."



INSPECTION TOUR of Alaska pipeline takes trucker over work road through vast birch and spruce forest. Pipeline is scheduled to start moving oil Monday.

Alaska pipeline making the change from dream to reality

own the oil and built the line to get it out to the refineries.

This Prudhoe Bay oil field draws its name from a dimple in the shoreline of the greatest oil strike ever made in North America. About 8,100 feet below the frozen mud surface of that barren plain there begins a sandstone formation that is 1,500 feet thick and holds oil and gas over an area of 200 square miles.

Twenty or 30 billion barrels of oil permeate the spaces between the grains of sand in that sandstone. Engineers estimate that 9.7 billion barrels may be recovered before the field is abandoned two or three decades from now. There are also 25.4 trillion cubic feet of natural gas in the formation.

Despite the immensity of the oil strike, which was made in 1968 by Atlantic Richfield and Exxon, the oil pipeline has been delayed. The production and transit problems created by working on a fragile surface of frozen mud were intensified by the national concern over damage to the environment.

Spokesmen for the owners put the cost of the project at $7.7 billion. (The first transcontinental railroad in 1869 cost $886.7 million in 1977 dollars.) The oil companies spent $3.57 billion more to build the camps, drill the wells in the producing field and set up the systems for extracting sand and water from the petroleum.

THEY HAVE also built an expensive plant to reinject the natural gas that comes out of the wellhead suspended in the oil. It will be stored until a way to market it is worked out.

Eighteen months after the oil strike, the National Environmental Policy Act was passed to become effective Jan. 1, 1970. What had been a discussion of how best to finance and engineer an oil pipeline became a political and legal question.

Suits were filed by environmentalists in 1970 that blocked the pipeline's construction until Congress, under the urging of former President Nixon's administration, passed the Trans-Alaska Pipeline Authorization Act in November 1973.

In the autumn of 1973, world oil prices jumped dramatically as the Arab nations cut back their production and announced price increases.

BUT AS early as March 1973 Rogers C. B. Morton, Nixon's secretary of the interior, asked the Supreme Court and Congress as "a matter of the highest national importance" to "remove the obstacles to prompt construction."

Under the pricing policies of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, the world price of oil has climbed to the point where West Coast refineries pay $13.50 a barrel for Saudi Arabian oil similar in quality to that from Prudhoe Bay.

The pipeline owner companies have estimated their interest costs on construction loans to be $1.1 billion. As the line opens, they find themselves in a dispute with national and state governments. The disagreement is over the tariffs the owners propose to levy to move the oil. The state of Alaska, which will own one-eighth of the oil as its royalties, wants low tariffs and has opened a campaign against the companies' announced tariff of $6.04 to $6.44 a barrel.

THE OWNERS insist that they are entitled to recover their investment and interest on construction loans as well as an investment return. The state counters with the assertion that millions of dollars were wasted by inefficient management during construction and that the owners are not entitled to recover or to earn on that money.

The Interstate Commerce Commission will decide the issue

The pipeline construction is one of the most important economic events in Alaska since the Gold Rush. Population was 322,000 in 1972 and is estimated at 422,500 in 1977. The pipeline payrolls strengthened the economy in Fairbanks and here.

The pipeline will enable the state to begin receiving huge sums of royalties and severance taxes on production. State spending has soared in anticipation of oil revenues, which will soon top $1 billion.

However, many thoughtful people here are worried. Last year, the voters approved a constitutional amendment that requires the State Department of Finance to put no less than 25 per cent of state oil revenues into income-earning investments. This is called the Permanent Fund.

Anita's job plugging orange juice periled

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Anita Bryant's success as a crusader against homosexual rights may cost her the $100,000-a-year job of plugging Florida orange juice in television ads, state officials say.

"The whole Anita thing is a mess," says Arthur Darling, director of publicity for the Florida Department of Citrus. "No matter what we decide, we're only going to lose. I wish she would just resign."

Department officials say the filming of this fall's television campaign has been suspended until they receive the results of a survey studying her "market effectiveness."

Part of the problem is that the singer has become more recognized for her outspoken religious opposition to homosexual rights than as a spokesman for the citrus industry.

"You can't be a commercial star and an evangelist at the same time," says Douglas Hoffer, the department's marketing director.

Hoffer said the survey will measure whether consumers have come to identify Bryant with the homosexual issue more than with oranges.

When Miss Bryant helped form Save Our Children Inc., the group that led the successful campaign for the repeal of Dade County's homosexual rights campaign, Darling said he hoped the furor over her stand would die down after the election.

But in the week following the county referendum which repealed the law, personal appearances by the former beauty queen in Dallas, New Orleans and Chicago have touched off demonstrations for and against her position.

Darling says the department has received a stack of "Anita hate mail," mostly from California homosexuals vowing to boycott Florida citrus products.

"We're concerned that she is making herself such a national figure on this issue," says Dan Richardson, chairman of the state citrus commission.

The commission will have the final say on whether Miss Bryant's contract will be renewed.

Officials say if the survey shows Miss Bryant, who has been selling orange juice for 10 years, is no longer an effective salesman, the DOC already has filmed backup commercials using Olympic skating star Dorothy Hamill and Boston Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler.

Harbor official asked to resign

Los Angeles Harbor Commissioner George Izumi has been asked to resign by Mayor Tom Bradley, but he says he will resist any move to force him off the powerful commission.

"I haven't resigned and I have no intention of doing so," said Izumi, adding that he has "a pretty good idea of what is behind this" but refused to elaborate.

Izumi, 56, whose five-year term expires in 1980, said the actual resignation request came from Dep. Mayor Grace Davis in a telephone call.

Ring of flames chars Southwest

Associated Press

Nearly 2,000 fire fighters battled weekend blazes that burned over an estimated 7,000 acres in the Southwest. One fire was spreading Saturday into a technical area of the Los Alamos, N.M., Scientific Laboratory where scientists developed the first U.S. atomic bomb.

Explosives are machined and tested at the lab.

The fire barely missed major archaeological sites in Bandelier National Monument, charring 3,000 acres in the Santa Fe National Forest after breaking out Thursday, Forest Service officials said.

Juan G. "Johnny" Aldaz, 51, a National Park Service employe, was working on the fire line when he collapsed and died of an apparent heart attack. Two other fire fighters were reported injured and taken to a Los Alamos hospital.

MORE THAN 500 fire fighters, aided by aerial bombers and helicopter support crews, made a desperate effort to stop the blaze at a paved road separating the burning forest from "S Site" at the Los Alamos laboratory.

Off-duty fire fighters, laboratory security guards and federal Energy Research and Development Administration pumper trucks were summoned to the area, but the fire jumped the road and moved toward the lab.

Indian Pueblo ruins and cliff dwellings built in 1200 to 1500 by the ancestors of the Rio Grande Valley Pueblo Indians had been threatened earlier, but most of the sites swept by the blaze were unexcavated.

Archaeologists accompanied bulldozers working on fire lines to minimize damage caused by heavy equipment. Another Forest Service spokesman, Eric Johanson, said fire fighters expressed concern Friday that Stone Lion Shrine was endangered, but crews managed to turn the blaze away from it on Saturday.

In southern New Mexico, fire fighters worked to contain a blaze that burned more than 300 acres of Bureau of Land Management land in the Organ Mountains about 15 miles east of Las Cruces. In the northeast section of the state, 200 fire fighters were mobilized against a fire that charred more than 200 acres of the Barker Wildlife area near the Philmont Scout Ranch. That fire, northwest of Cimarron was spreading eastward, away from the ranch.

In Arizona, 1,250 fire fighters battled blazes covering more than 5,300 acres in the northern part of the state.

Hundreds of families were evacuated from four subdivisions near Flagstaff as a fire on Mt. Elden northeast of the city swept over more than 4,000 acres.

The evacuees were housed temporarily at a local high school and at a National Guard armory but were permitted to return to their homes Saturday evening.

Winds of up to 40 miles an hour were hampering the efforts of some 600 fire fighters from Arizona, California, Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Utah. Six aerial bombers, three helicopters, 12 ground tankers and six bulldozers were brought to the scene.

The Mt. Elden fire lookout tower was destroyed, along with a radio electronics site which knocked out radio communications for the Arizona Department of Public Safety, Coconino County and the National Forest Service.

"The thing is still burning out of control, and there's no estimate of a time for containment or control," said Forest Service spokesman Jack Darnall

Michael A. Kerrick, Coconino National Forest supervisor, closed the forest to the public, except for permanent residents.

FOUR youngsters who allegedly had a campfire burning in the area were taken into custody at the Coconino County juvenile center.

Three other fires still burned in Arizona on Saturday, including two others in the Coconino National Forest. One, just southwest of Clint's Well, consumed an estimated 1,100 acres. Another, northeast of Ashurst Lake, blackened 400 acres of pinyon pine and juniper.

About 550 fire fighters expected to have both blazes under control by Saturday night.

Cargo container crushes worker

A 19-year-old Torrance man was crushed to death early Saturday at Los Angeles International Airport when a 10,000-pound cargo container fell on him while he was unloading a truck, police said.

Terry Kertes, of 2540 Maricopa St., was pronounced dead at the scene at 3 a.m. The Flying Tiger Line employe was putting the container on a tow cart when it rolled off and pinned him to a steel pole.

Wilkes-Barre scars linger — after The Flood

Five years later, the town is still rebuilding

When Hurricane Agnes struck the Northeast on June 22, 1972, one of the hardest hit towns was Wilkes-Barre, Pa., where flood waters reached the second stories of many houses. A reporter revisiting Wyoming Valley finds that the effects of the disaster linger.

By Julie Fredericksе
Associated Press

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. — Even five years after Hurricane Agnes, people in this town divide their era into "before the flood" and "after the flood."

The flood left the city of 65,000 with more than $1 billion in damages, with physical and mental scars that still are readily apparent.

"IT'LL never be over," says Donna Miles, a department store sales manager. "We've rearranged our house so our valuable furniture is stored on the second floor. The minute the river rises, it all moves up to the attic or out of the valley to friends."

"You could see the long-term effects in Eloise," says contractor Tom Bell, referring to a 1975 hurricane — three years after Agnes — that brought heavy rains but no flooding in the Wyoming Valley, thanks to reinforced, higher dikes on the Susquehanna River. "I never saw so many rented trucks. People were packing up and getting out."

In the '72 calamity, about 100,000 persons were left homeless in the Susquehanna flood. Most were housed in trailers and campers provided by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Only three families live in the trailers today, but there are plenty of other reminders.

"THE flood has become an historical date," says psychiatric social worker J. Warren Yarnal. "You can hardly go a day in this town without hearing someone talk about 'before the flood' or 'after the flood.' "

A temporary bridge still spans the Susquehanna. Rubble-filled lots and condemned buildings dot the town. Several streets remain closed to traffic. Elementary school children attend classes in a temporary quonset hut-like structure. The Wilkes-Barre public square is torn up, and the central business district is being rebuilt.

In Chamber of Commerce terminology, all of the flood-related repair is called "redevelopment." While larger chain stores are pleased with the modernization that will allow the central city to compete with suburb shopping malls, many small businessmen say the effort has not meant progress for them.

"I DON'T know what's been worse for this area — the flood or redevelopment," says lawyer George Ritchie, who, like many downtown workers, must detour around various construction sites to get to his office overlooking the public square. "Redevelopment is killing the little guy."

"Between redevelopment and SBA, they put me out of business," says printer Jake Sirotkin.

Of the $800 million the federal Small Business Administration spent on flood-related reconstruction in Pennsylvania, nearly $500 million went to Wilkes-Barre. Like more than half of the city's homeowners and small businessmen, Sirotkin was able to get a loan from the SBA to rebuild his home and business. But the Wilkes-Barre Redevelopment Agency tore down the block where his print shop was and erected a new building, charging four times the previous rent. Sirotkin's business failed. He suffered a heart attack. Now he's put a "For Sale" sign in front of the totally rebuilt house where his four children grew up.

While flood victims expressed gratitude for the favorable terms of their special SBA disaster loans — 1 per cent interest and a $5,000 "forgiveness" — many question the wisdom of the federal policy that encouraged renovation rather than relocation. Federal disaster loans were responsible for the reconstruction of so many homes in the hardest-hit south Wilkes-Barre area that the neighborhood is referred to as a "government reservation."

"Too many people were forced into massive indebtedness, to reconstruct devastated buildings that shouldn't have been rebuilt, in areas where they would have preferred not to remain," said Fred Anderson, a regional coordinator for HUD in the disaster relief and redevelopment effort during 1972-74. "I feel that the growth of this area would have been much longer-lived had there been more judicious decisions about re-use of the flood plain."

Residents had to prove that a building had severe structural damage before the government would buy a property at pre-flood value and move it to higher ground. Many residents and merchants felt they had no choice but to rebuild their heavily-damaged homes and businesses.

Now deeply in debt to the SBA, they resent the election-year influx of urban renewal grant money funneled largely into the business district. A recent study showed the effect of the heavy federal and state business subsidies, leaving over 40 per cent of the city's property tax free.

The Flood Victims Action Council, which claims more than 2,000 members in Pennsylvania and New York, lobbied for legislation to preclude forced rebuilding in the flood plain and provide better long-range flood protection.

"All redevelopment did was to pour a lot of money into a lot of pockets in the center city," complained one member. "The government's free ride for big business has only increased our tax burden. Our industry hasn't picked up, and the lot of the average citizen hasn't improved."

Despite all the complaints, Wyoming Valley's residents point with pride to what they consider one positive effect of the disaster: The strong family and community support that helped them survive.

"I was amazed at the resilience of the people," said social worker Yarnal.

Psychologist Carl Nitsche, who studied the psychological effects of the 1972 flooding, found relatively few psychic problems, most relating to the disruption of the environment in the flood-damaged communities.

"The support network in some of the hardest-hit communities is so strong that the few who were fortunate enough to escape serious flooding practically feel like pariahs," Dr. Nitsche says.

Residents still debate whether a similar disaster could happen again.

"We're still living in a flood plain," says Anderson, the former disaster relief official. "While people are growing more confident that the river will never flood that way again, because we now have a couple more feet of dike, I'm still worried."

Texas-made Lowenbrau brews storm

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — A complaint and a lawsuit have been filed in connection with the marketing of a domestic version of the beer that made Munich famous.

With no fanfare, Miller Brewing Co. began brewing Lowenbrau Beer here about a year ago under what brewery spokesmen said is a 1974 agreement with Lowenbrau Munchen Aktiengesellschaft, the West German producer.

The spokesmen said Miller's had no intent to mislead consumers in marketing the domestic Lowenbrau. There is no difference between the Fort Worth and the West German suds except for a slight mention of the Texas brewery on the label.

Dallas stockbroker John Landrum filed a complaint with the state attorney general's consumer fraud division, and Chicago industrial engineer John Christoffel filed a Cook County Circuit Court suit accusing Miller's of misleading labeling and deceptive marketing.

Landrum, who cited alleged deceptions in the sale of domestic Lowenbrau in 12 test markets, including Dallas-Fort Worth, San Diego, San Francisco and Chicago, said he filed his complaint after buying what he thought was German Lowenbrau in a Dallas store. He realized later that the beer was brewed just 27 miles away in Fort Worth.

"I WAS JUST fooled, and I couldn't take it back," he said. "The retailer wouldn't do anything. So I complained to the distributor, then the brewery in Fort Worth, then the regional sales manager and finally Miller's headquarters in Milwaukee."

The brewery said it is operating under approval of the federal Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms division and has no control over prices set by retailers. It also said retailers have the right to display the beer wherever they want — including next to imported brews.

Landrum said the price of a six-pack varies widely. Some Fort Worth stores sell domestic Lowenbrau for $2.50 a six-pack, but others sell the same six-pack for as much as $3.25

Miller's spokesmen said imported Lowenbrau sells for about $3.75 a six-pack and that the domestic version is a good seller. They declined to comment on Landrum's or Christoffel's actions.

U.S. study lauds no-fault car insuring

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new federal survey of no-fault automobile insurance plans in 16 states concludes that no-fault provides quicker and more equitable benefits than the traditional liability system.

"No-fault automobile insurance works," said the Department of Transportation.

The report said the 16 states with full-fledged no-fault insurance plans "would appear to confirm the basic soundness of the theory and the feasibility of the theory's implementation."

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, released the DOT study. He said he will use it in hearings beginning June 27 on his proposal for federal no-fault minimum standards.

"The DOT study confirms that good no-fault laws are working efficiently and effectively to compensate auto accident victims," Magnuson said. "Perhaps now we can enact a uniform, sensible statute and stop this foot-dragging."

Compensation for injuries or damage in auto accidents traditionally is funded by liability insurance. Under that system, blame has to be fixed on one or more parties, whose insurance then compensates the victim. All parties often have to hire attorneys and wage long, expensive legal battles before any benefits are paid out.

The delay in payments, inequitable benefit awards and a large buildup of court cases led to a movement to substitute no-fault for the liability insurance system. Massachusetts in 1970 was the first state to pass a no-fault plan. 15 other states have enacted comprehensive no-fault plans and other states have adopted parts of the no-fault concept.

In the 16 states studied by the DOT, no-fault insurance had three common features: Mandatory economic loss benefits were available to all victims regardless of fault; these benefits replaced liability insurance for compensating the same loss, and victims were restricted in their right to sue for damages for such intangibles as "pain and suffering."

The states studied are Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Kansas, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Pennsylvania and Utah.

The report concluded that:

—No-fault plans provide more adequate and equitable benefits than the liability system, especially for seriously injured accident victims and for victims of single-car accidents where no second person could be blamed.

For example, a Colorado bicyclist who ran a stop sign and was hit by a car covered by liability insurance so far has run up $8,201 in medical bills. None of those bills would have been covered by liability insurance because the bicylist could not have successfully sued the car's driver, who was not at fault.

Under no-fault, the bicyclist's bills are covered because the system pays her medical costs regardless of fault.

Connecticut estimates that 25 per cent more accident victims recover for economic losses under no-fault insurance than under fault. Kentucky said that of the 53.8 per cent increase in the losses incurred in its first year of no-fault insurance, about 16 per cent were persons who would not have gotten benefits under the tort system.

—Payments are paid promptly for economic losses under no-fault insurance, a marked improvement over other plans, the DOT said.

Michigan said almost all auto accident claims are settled within 30 days. Colorado said 59 per cent of its no-fault claims are settled within three months and 91 per cent within six months. Massachusetts said 83.3 per cent of its no-fault claims are paid within 90 days, compared to only 40.5 per cent for traditional liability claims.

—Insurance premiums can be lowered when no-fault benefits are coordinated with benefits from other sources.

Brzezinski tells Toth of U.S. concern over quizzing

WASHINGTON (AP) — National security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski called Robert Toth in London Saturday to express his pleasure at Toth's release and the administration's concern over his treatment by the Russians, a spokesman for the National Security Council said.

Toth, a Los Angeles Times correspondent, arrived in London Friday night from Moscow where he had been interrogated by Soviet secret police about articles he had written and his contacts with Soviet dissidents.

Brzezinski told Toth the administration had been very concerned about his and his family's welfare.

"We were also concerned because your treatment raises certain fundamental principles — the free flow of information, free access and freedom of the press," he said. "I regret this. It was counterproductive for U.S.-Soviet relations."

The spokesman said Toth replied that his experience had been "a little rough, particularly on the family end."

Toth was questioned more than 12 hours over several days in Moscow's Lefortovo prison.

"Although I realized I was something of a symbol, I couldn't help but take this somewhat personally," Toth said.

He thanked the administration for the "strong words that must have gone into the official protest."

Toth expressed concern about the implications of his treatment for the treatment of Soviet dissidents, especially Anatoly Shcharansky.

Yonkers police halt 'sick-out'; talks slated

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — The Patrolmen's Benevolent Association agreed Saturday to end a "sick-out" that had left New York's fourth largest city without regular police protection for four days.

The agreement by the 400-member PBA came after police were assured in daylong negotiations that money was available for raises, a problem for officials in Yonkers, which has been on the verge of bankruptcy for two years.

Money was the key in the dispute, which began Wednesday when patrolmen, sergeants and lieutenants began reporting ill in a "blue flu" epidemic.

Although no emergency was declared, there was looting in the downtown area Thursday night, with several television stores and other shops hit by groups of teen-agers.

The sergeants and lieutenants agreed to go back to work Friday night. Mayor Angelo Martinelli said they did a "very adequate" job, with Friday night "better than usual."

Officials close to the negotiations said a key factor in the settlement was agreement by Deputy State Comptroller John Feeney to drop his opposition to the city's selling up to $7 million in bonds.

The money is needed to help pay the cost of rehiring 350 laid off teachers, whom the courts ordered reinstated with back pay. They were let go during the fiscal crisis that for two years has plagued this community of 240,000 bordering on the northern edge of New York City.

PRINCESS UNVEILS QUEEN as Britain's Princess Anne does the honors for statue of her royal ancestor Saturday in Centreville, Md. Crowd of 4,000 lined streets of small town for ceremonies. —AP Wirephoto

Statue of Queen Anne is unveiled by Princess Anne

CENTREVILLE, Md (AP) — Britain's Princess Anne was cheered by a crowd which doubled the population of this small, rural county seat Saturday as she unveiled a statue of her royal ancestor, for whom Queen Annes County is named.

"It is here in Queen Annes County that you have found a happy medium which allows you to fit efficiently in this energetic country and still keep enough of the traditions of the first settlers in that you still have time for each other," the princess said.

"Who in the world would have thought that a princess would journey to a small rural community to dedicate a statue," said Leonard M. Smith, president of the county commissioners, beaming at the shirt-sleeve crowd of 4,000 lining the streets and packing roofs, balconies and windows of nearby homes to greet the royal visitor.

Acting Gov. Blair Lee III welcomed the princess to Maryland's Eastern Shore, saying, "This is a place where roots go deep and many of those roots go back to the British Isles. Her Royal Highness is very much among her own people here."

Following the brief welcoming ceremony at the courthouse square, the princess walked to the slightly larger-than-life-sized statue of Queen Anne and pulled a drape to reveal the sculpture of the seated monarch holding the charter which established the county in 1706.

Princess Anne walked around the statue with its sculptress, Elisabeth Gordon Chandler of Old Lyme, Conn., and then got into a waiting limousine for the short drive to the county high school.

In an informal ceremony there, state and county officials presented the princess with a series of gifts, including a key to the city of Centreville and honorary Maryland citizenship for herself and her husband, Capt. Mark Phillips. In return, the princess presented officials with an engraved silver plate.

1st polar flight celebrated

MOSCOW (AP) — Dual celebrations Saturday on the outskirts of Moscow and in Vancouver, Wash., marked the 40th anniversary of the first transpolar flight by three Soviet airmen.

About 8,000 spectators and a military honor guard were at the village of Chkalovskaya, 20 miles from Moscow, to dedicate a replica of the red-winged ANT25 monoplane that flew from Moscow to Vancouver's Pearson military airfield in 63 hours, 25 minutes.

In Vancouver, a Soviet delegation led by a former air force lieutenant general joined in celebrations there to commemorate the 1937 flight.

A Vancouver monument to the feat, which the Soviets often speak of as a symbol of U.S.-Soviet friendship and cooperation, was dedicated in 1975.

The ANT25 was piloted by Valery Chkalov, who died in 1938 while testing a new plane. Co-pilot Georgy Baidukov and navigator Alexander Belyakov attended the Chkalovskaya ceremonies.

"We went through cyclones, icing, oxygen shortages and magnetic storms," Belyakov said, recalling the flight. "Our wings and propellers were covered with ice."

The 5,200-mile route over the North Pole would take a modern jetliner less than 11 hours to cover.

The Soviet flight came 10 years after Charles Lindbergh's 33½-hour, 3,600-mile flight from New York to Paris. But the excitement of pioneering flights was still strong in the United States and thousands of people crowded the runways at the Soviets' intended destination of Portland, Ore.

Because of the crowds, the Soviet airmen landed instead on a grass runway at Pearson field with visibility of only 500 feet.

The flight was guided by a combined Soviet, American and Canadian radio network.

Homes, cars swept away in Kansas flooding

OGDEN, Kan. (AP) — The Kansas National Guard patroled the streets of Ogden Saturday night in the aftermath of a furious rainstorm that dropped up to seven inches of rain in north-central Kansas.

The storm caused flash-flooding in the north-central Kansas farming community, washing away a half-dozen mobile homes and nearly as many automobiles. No one was injured.

Mayor Ben Gieber estimated damage to Ogden alone at nearly $1 million, and Riley County police declared a 7 p.m. curfew in an effort to prevent looting.

Rain began pelting Ogden, about 135 miles west of Kansas City, and surrounding communities late Friday night and numerous creeks in the rugged countryside were out of their banks before it stopped.

About 200 families had to be evacuated in Ogden when Seven Mile Creek flooded, sending as much as six feet of water raging through a mobile-home park. The water was waist-deep before some residents were able to flee.

Mass transit — urban ride to the poorhouse

Nationwide deficit climbs past $1.8-billion

By Robert Lindsey
New York Times Service

In Los Angeles, where the automobile seems as ubiquitous as the sun, mass transit has recently been enjoying a modest resurgence. Since 1972, largely because of reduced fares and expanded service, the number of daily bus riders has increased 40 per cent.

But on July 1, the city will abandon some of these new-found riders by raising fares and reducing service.

While patronage has increased, the cost of providing service has risen almost 250 per cent and the amount of tax dollars spent to subsidize it has soared by more than 400 per cent to more than $140 million a year. There are about 850,000 daily riders now but the system still serves less than 7 per cent of urban travelers on any given day.

"We're in a crunch, and we're going to do some serious belt tightening," Jack Gilstrap, general manager of the Southern California Rapid Transit District, said of the decision to reduce service.

LOS Angeles is not alone. At a time when the Carter administration is urging Americans to reduce gasoline consumption and switch to mass transit, many transit systems are in financial trouble despite the enactment three years ago of federal operating subsidies.

Between 1971 and 1977 the collective deficit for the country's urban transit systems rose from $300 million to more than $1.8 billion while the number of riders went up only 3.2 per cent, according to statistics compiled by the American Public Transit Association.

The result of this pattern has been a steep decline in taxpayer willingness to pay for transit systems, rarely used by the majority of the people and resisted in some cities as a disguised subsidy for the poor.

"There is virtually a taxpayers' revolt," asserted Emily Lloyd, transportation adviser to Mayor Kevin White of Boston, where the losses of the Metropolitan Boston Transportation Authority have jumped 65 per cent since 1973 to $180 million this year. Subsidies to recoup those losses come primarily from property taxes in 79 area communities.

BESIDES general inflation, two fundamental forces appear to account for the rising costs: rapid increases in transit workers' wages, which typically make up about 80 per cent of most transit budgets, and a politicalization of urban mass transit systems resulting from public takeovers of formerly private bus lines.

"The unions took dead aim at these tax dollars, and as soon as it was available, there was a rash of strikes: transit workers have gotten wage increases far in excess of the cost-of-living increase and of anyone else in local government," Gilstrap asserted. A study by his staff concluded that salaries for bus drivers and mechanics in Los Angeles had increased almost twice as fast as the consumer price index.

The political volatility of transit fares and the difficulty of raising them to meet operating costs have long been recognized in New York City. Leaders elsewhere are learning the same thing.

FARES are not the only factor influenced by politics. Transit leaders such as Gilstrap say service is being required on many routes that have little or no chance of paying for themselves simply because of political pressures from the communities concerned. Social considerations such as offering lower fares for the elderly also add to deficits.

The current situation is rooted in a fundamental change that occured in urban transportation in the early 1970s. Largely because private bus companies could not compete with the automobile, cities and regional agencies took over the failing services and began to operate them more or less as public utilities.

Only in New Orleans, in the region in northern New Jersey served by Public Transport of New Jersey, and in parts of New York City served by private express bus lines, are private transit lines serving metropolitan areas.

Through public takeovers, service has been kept alive, expanded and improved, largely through federal aid. The improved service has frequently brought new riders and, in some cases, middle-income commuters have been lured out of their automobiles. But in order to attract the riders, the fares have been kept too low to pay the costs.

These examples illustrate the pattern:

—In Minneapolis and St. Paul, a local agency took over the Twin Cities Lines in 1971, improved service and, in its first year had a $1.7-million deficit. This year, the deficit is expected to be about $33 million.

—In Houston, the transit subsidy has increased from $1 million in 1974 to $10.5 million this year, and a loss of $13.5 million is projected for next year.

—In Atlanta, where a 15 cent fare is in force, the subsidy has more than tripled in four years to $35.7 million.

—In San Francisco, the municipal bus and railway system's subsidy has gone up in four years from approximately $18 million to $51 million.

Until a few years ago, only a few large cities, notably New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago, had significant transit deficits, mostly from decades-old rail transit systems. Now, nearly every city is experiencing a financial squeeze from operating transit lines. And, in relative terms, New York, which has reduced its operating budget and cut employment under the city's austerity program, is doing a better job of making its transit system self-supporting than many others.

Los Angeles officials are attempting to deal with the financial squeeze by laying off about 13 per cent of transit employees, reducing service by 8 per cent and raising the basic fare to 40 cents from 35 cents, with long-haul fares going up by larger amounts.

The transit industry says its long-term hope is for more riders, but its spokesmen acknowledge that no surge appears imminent. Without that surge, many say they expect more help from Washington.

"With the energy crisis," says Leonard Ronis, general manager of the Cleveland Regional Transit Authority, "we're going to see more automobile users begin riding the buses, particularly to work. And I think we'll need additional federal subsidies. I see a tremendous need for additional funding, and it's something that must be done to save our country."

Book has teacher 'exiled'

By Harry Atkins
Associated Press

DETROIT — A book which characterizes school administrators as inept and schools as chaotic has become an underground classic of sorts with teachers across the country.

But Detroit school officials, fictionalized in the account, don't think it's accurate, and publishers apparently don't view it as saleable.

THE author of "New Africa High" is Dr. Evan Keliher, 45, who was head of social studies at Detroit Mackenzie High until last February, when he began to promote the book on Detroit-area talk shows.

The day after his first appearance on a local radio program, Keliher was transferred to an integrated high school, where he teaches three English courses.

School administrators told the bearded, soft-spoken Keliher, a teacher for 21 years, that he was being transferred from all-black Mackenzie for his "personal safety."

"Actually, I'm in exile," says Keliher, who is white and classifies himself as a "gadfly."

In the 172-page book which he wrote and paid to have published, Keliher uses literary exaggeration to describe the problems he sees in public high schools. He sees the problems as ranging from inept administrators to violence in the halls to just plain poor education.

"I WANTED to say something about our schools," Keliher says. "To be candid, our schools aren't worth a damn. They're just a total shambles."

Things are especially bad in Detroit, he says, where reading and math achievement scores — well below the national average for years — continue to decline.

But Keliher says the problems he describes in "New Africa High" are common in every large city school.

"You could lift the whole staff of Mackenzie and drop them into a Chicago school and they'd never know they had left the block," he says.

Last year Keliher paid the printer of a weekly newspaper $2.25 apiece for the first 550 copies of "New Africa High." He now has sold more than 1,000 copies, mostly by mail, to teachers in places as far away as West Virginia and California.

HE STILL hopes to find a New York publisher, but even now, in its third printing, he can't entice an agent to handle the book.

For $3, the reader of "New Africa High" can glean Keliher's views on:

—School board members: "All candidates for the post should be required to pass a sanity test — if they manage to get by the literacy test."

—Incorrigible students: "We must recognize there are a few students (40,000 or so) who are truly incorrigible and should not be allowed to attend school with real kids."

—Sex: "I would urge we pay more attention to sex in public schools, but the kids really don't seem to need any encouragement."

—Parent-teacher groups: "These people should not be permitted on school property — even as visitors."

—Truancy: "Pay every kid $10 a day to come to school."

—Grades: "Personally, I pass every kid who doesn't hit me."

"I don't have many solutions in the book," Keliher says. "But I didn't intend to. I was just trying to call attention to the problem. Something should be done about it. But as long as school administrators go around saying things are fine, nothing's going to be done about it."

Keliher believes administrators must become cops and regain control of schools for the safety of both students and teachers.

"The main topic of conversation among teachers, with at least nine years in, is retirement," he says. "You know, 'When do you get the hell out of here; how long have you got to go?' It's like convicts in the pen."

Bruce Carr, a teacher at Mackenzie, describes Keliher as "competent, popular among students" and says his transfer "has become a joke at school."

It's no joke with Helen Moore. Mrs. Moore is head of Black Parents for a Quality Education, and her group wants Keliher fired.

Mrs. Moore despises the street dialect and speech patterns Keliher attributes to black students in "New Africa High."

"Every child that speaks in his book is put down because of the way he says they talk," Mrs. Moore says, "and they do not talk that way."

The students, however, had a different reaction.

"I read the book," says Kenny Loman, a 12th grader. "I think what it says is true. Most of the people in this community don't know what's happening at Mackenzie."

Willie Coleman, an 11th grader, also read the book. He says Keliher is "a good teacher and I don't think he should have been transferred because he wrote a book telling what Mackenzie's like."

Dan Wallace, a ninth grader who was sent to Keliher once for discipline, thinks "he's a cool dude."

Wallace adds: "It seems that every time we get a good teacher who's trying to do something for us, the school's administration tries to get rid of him."

Come hell or low water, Arizona booms on

By Mike McCloy
Associated Press

Over the past year, Arizona has received a lot of national attention of the sort its Chamber of Commerce could hardly have welcomed. But its time of troubles notwithstanding, there's something about Arizona that's kept its magnetism for outsiders undiminished.

PHOENIX — No matter that water bills soar as water tables plunge . .

No matter that investors have been bilked of half a billion dollars in the last decade by crooked land developers . . .

No matter that a task force of investigative reporters recently wrote at length about organized crime and corruption in Arizona in a series of articles carried around the nation

No matter

The Arizona boom goes booming along. This is the fastest growing state in the union. It has topped 2.2 million people, and the figure mounts like a pocket calculator with the multiplication button stuck.

From the lush green lawns of Phoenix to the red rock monuments of Sedona and Oak Creek, from the forested summer resort of Pine Top to the high chaparral of the Tucson desert, tourists and new residents are flocking in.

"I don't care what they said about you," one letter writer confided after the state's latest wave of bad publicity, "we're coming to Arizona."

"Out in Arizona where the bad men are . . ." began the old ragtime tune, but the gunslingers are gone now. Former Mafia chieftains live on the ranches around Tucson, coming here as more ordinary folk have, to share the Arizona life style, to make money off the land and to generally enjoy a kind of comfortable pioneering.

A 23-part series by Investigative Reporters and Editors, Inc., on corruption in the state dealt mostly with associations of politicians and underworld characters. The investigation stemmed from the bombing death of reporter Don Bolles of the Arizona Republic.

Nevertheless, Arizona has grown by 25 per cent since 1970, and "we're not expecting any tapering off," says Brent Brown, director of the state Office of Economic Planning and Development.

Certainly the bad publicity has had little or no effect on the Californians and Midwesterners who visit or keep second homes in Arizona

"We've just had a record tourist season," says Ted Sprague, head of the Valley of the Sun Convention and Visitor's Bureau.

"There will be times, especially when there are large conventions, that it will be hard to get a room."

Arizona's attraction for conventioneers includes plenty of golf for the men and shopping for the women, besides tennis and horseback riding. Then, too, Phoenix is an easy ride from Las Vegas to the north and Palm Springs to the west, and Tucson is a gateway to old Mexico

The heart of the Arizona boom is not the tourist but the would-be settler who comes to Arizona to live and work

Frank Naylor, research manager of the state's Department of Economic Security, says his office still gets some 50 inquiries a week, mostly from people looking for work in construction and education.

But in Arizona's construction industry, job seekers outnumber workers, and the state's unemployment rate is a shade above the national average. Except in nursing, management and engineering, prospects are dim

The state warns prospective Arizonans that they should come financially prepared to endure three to five months of unemployment.

They come, their hopes undimmed. Almost all say they want to enjoy the "life style," though one inquirer asked whether Gila monsters are dangerous.

Gila monsters are no threat. But the state has an abiding problem with water.

In Tucson, where water is pumped from underground pools that have sunk 100 feet in the past 28 years, the average monthly residential water bill this summer will be $22.

Several City Council members were recalled for raising the rates, but their successors quickly abandoned promises to roll back the rates when faced with the reality that $14 million will be needed to buy farmland and underground water rights through 1983.

An Arizona Supreme Court decision affirmed longstanding state policy that water rights remain with the land that the water flows over or under. The decision also reversed sentiment of many Tucsonans against the $1.6 billion Central Arizona Project, which will carry 2.8 million acre-feet of water to Phoenix and Tucson in the mid 1980s.

In April, the legislature passed a law allowing cities to buy land, retire it from agriculture and "mine" underlying water for use elsewhere. Court challenges are expected, however.

Meanwhile, Prescott, in western Arizona, awaits the outcome of litigation by neighboring ranchers over water use, and Flagstaff, to the north, faces perennial problems with barely adequate reservoirs.

While some "no-growth" candidates capitalized on the water crisis in 1976 elections, no conclusion can be drawn, says Tom Clark, deputy director of the Arizona Water Commission.

"Tucson is using about five times as much water as is being replenished," Clark says. "If we cut out agriculture in the area entirely, they would still be using twice as much water as is being replaced."

There will have to be a lid on growth, "but you can't really tell where the lid comes down," he adds.

Arizona booming despite problems

Combine the cost of an automobile, home, clothing, medical bills and food, and a family of four can live more cheaply in Dallas, Los Angeles, San Diego, Cincinnati, Kansas City, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Houston or Atlanta than here. But it is cheaper to live here than in Honolulu, Boston, New York, Milwaukee, San Francisco, Buffalo, Washington, Pittsburgh, Minneapolis, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Seattle or Baltimore, according to the First National Bank of Arizona.

The Arizona real estate market slowed along with the national economy two years ago, but it started recovering in the last half of last year and now is at its highest level in history.

One of the best known developers in the state is Del E. Webb Corp. With a population of 40,000, Webb's 17-year-old Sun City retirement community was host to 300,000 visitors last year.

Eight hundred housing units were sold in Sun City in February, says Webb President John W. Meeker, compared with 882 in all of 1976. Production was raised to 50 units a day, and sales totaled 742 in March and 545 in April.

"With thousands of people retiring early on substantial pensions and other income sources, we see a continuing positive trend," he added, announcing plans to expand Sun City's population to 64,000 by building on an additional 12,000 acres of desert.

BUT ALL is not bright. McCulloch Oil Corp. announced in November that it would finish developing Lake Havasu City, with its transplanted London Bridge on the Colorado River, and the Fountain Hills community near Phoenix. But after that it will go out of the land development business.

Lake Havasu City shares the same desert that has seen dozens of subdivisions spring up and die in the past decade. Most notable was Cochise College Park, which bilked 10,000 investors of $40 million before it collapsed in 1972.

Six persons connected with Cochise College Park were convicted of fraud on May 23, and 11 more are awaiting trial. Ned Warren, self-proclaimed "godfather" of Arizona land schemes, who was mentioned in company correspondence as a director of the firm, was not indicted in this case. However, on May 27, from a hospital bed where he had been confined since February with a heart ailment, he pleaded guilty to state land fraud and bribery charges which had been filed in Maricopa County Superior Court in Phoenix. He also withdrew his appeal of a 1975 federal extortion conviction. He is under guard at his Phoenix home awaiting sentencing in state court.

THE COLLAPSE of Cochise College Park and several other fraud-ridden Arizona developments, along with convictions of several land promoters and stiffer laws, have brought a virtual standstill to remote subdivision developments, state officials say.

Clark says a new law requiring developers to disclose the availability of water also has helped. "We don't stop them from selling, because people will go ahead and buy," he says. "But the law has really cut down on the number of new subdivisions that are proposed."

Atty. Gen. Bruce Babbitt and former U.S. Atty. William Smitherman, who now heads a joint legislative task force on organized crime, say the state is gaining control.

Arizona's first statewide grand jury indicted 40 persons last year, and the state has not lost a case, Babbitt noted.

Among notables named in true bills was Robert H. Fendler, founder of U.S. and Lincoln Thrift Associations in Phoenix and Tucson. Some 20,000 investors deposited $52 million before the firms were shut down by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and federal court in 1975. Investors may get back 10 cents on the dollar when assets are distributed by court-appointed trustees, officials say.

Fendler is accused of stealing $1.5 million from the thrift firms to finance American Bank of Commerce in Phoenix.

Smitherman, who will use a $600,000 appropriation in an attempt to close loopholes in state regulations, concedes that "more fraud and conspiracy cases have been filed in this district than any district in the nation."

Armed with subpoena power, the task force will examine narcotics and pornography. "I'm going to see where the Mafia kinds of criminals are, what they're doing," says Smitherman.

"And I'm sure we're going to find deficiencies in the state's ability to regulate insurance, banking and real estate. Then there are things like the racing industry."

Businessmen have complained that over-regulation stifles them. But Smitherman says: "What possible advantage could these ripoffs be to Arizona? We don't need an army of crooks in business to grow."

However, pinpointing what is needed for orderly growth remains a problem. Much of the responsibility for balancing government services, water, land use and population falls on Brent Brown, the state planner.

"There's enough water in Arizona to handle a lot of growth," he says. "But it means you'll have to do away with a lot of agriculture or copper."

Arizona produced about 64 per cent of the nation's domestic copper last year, Brown says, adding, "I don't know if you want to put a lot more people in Sun City and do away with the copper.

"There's a very delicate balance here."

Being paid $100,000 to help achieve such balance is the Hudson Institute of New York. Headed by Herman Kahn, the institute has been retained by banking and business leaders to project the Arizona of 2012, after a century of statehood, and offer alternatives.

Kahn already has predicted that Arizona will be an example of America's first "post-industrial society," populated by "a lot of wealthy people who haven't worked recently," living amid "a very large amount of urban sprawl."

Holding onto conservative and traditional values, "they will be relatively square," Kahn said.

Whether Arizona is square doesn't matter, says Brown, adding, "People are going to come here, no matter what."

Ray's lawyer fights move to U.S. prison

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — James Earl Ray's attorney said Saturday he will oppose the transfer of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s assassin from a Tennessee prison to a federal institution.

Nashville lawyer Jack Kershaw said the transfer would violate Ray's constitutional rights because the prisoner "has a right to remain in Tennessee, where his counsel is located."

The lawyer said he could not frequently fly to an out-of-state federal prison to meet with Ray and U.S. House assassinations committee investigators who have been talking with Ray about the slaying of the civil rights leader.

Kershaw said he wants to meet with Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell to state his opposition to the transfer, proposed by Gov. Ray Blanton last Monday after Ray was recaptured by prison guards.

Ray had climbed over the wall of Brushy Mountain State Prison with six other inmates the previous Friday night. All of the escapees were returned to the prison by Tuesday.

Blanton, in asking Bell to take responsibility for Ray, estimated that since 1968 the state had spent $2 million on Ray for investigation, imprisonment and related matters.

A Justice Department spokesman said Bell will make a decision in the matter within a few days.

Ray pleaded guilty to the April 4, 1968, slaying of King and was sentenced to serve 99 years in prison. Since then Ray has claimed he is innocent of the crime.

HOPE LANGE

Earl Wilson

Hope's in bedroom with ex-husband (on stage)

NEW YORK — Hope Lange of Hollywood sneaked onto Broadway to do the bedroom comedy "Same Time, Next Year" with her ex-husband, Don Murray, who's remarried, and she isn't worried about the gossips making anything of that.

"I had my problems with columnists," blond, bubbly and funny Hope said the other day in her dressing room at the Brooks Atkinson Theater.

"The late Hedda Hopper once came to my table in Chasen's when I was having dinner with Don and said: 'What the hell are you doing here? I've got a headline in the paper that you've broken up with Don and are in San Francisco with Glenn Ford. How can you ruin my big exclusive?'

"I said to her, 'Where did you get your big exclusive?' She drew herself up proudly and said, 'From a very reliable source!' "

Hope laughed. "Hedda also crashed my wedding to Alan Pakula. I was very angry. She waited until the last minute when I was upstairs getting dressed and came in without me finding out. It was to have been a small party — only about 100. The ushers assumed she'd been invited."

MISS LANGE said Don Murray's wife, the former model Bettie Johnson, doesn't object to the make-believe lovemaking between them every performance:

"She's a terrific lady; she wanted me to do this part. Bettie and I have been friends for a long time. My former husband, Alan, hired her for a picture, and he also hired Don for a role. That's show business."

Don and she were married — "oh, about 120 years ago" — and it lasted four years. "Don says we spend more time in bed in the play than we did when we were married. I don't think I was ready for marriage when I married Don. I was very immature. When I married Alan, I was older and still immature."

With a son and daughter in college, Miss Lange found last fall that she could now move back to New York.

"It was my turn," she says. "I took a course in business, 'Women and Money,' in case I ever got any money, and an English course at Hunter, and I'm also taking singing. I took an unfurnished apartment. I rented my two houses in California."

"Two houses?"

"Yes, it was a very good investment idea."

SHE DIDN'T find it difficult being a replacement for Sandy Dennis, who'd also been a replacement. Ellen Burstyn, Loretta Swit and Joyce Van Patten were the other bed partners in this show about an attachment that continues for 25 years.

"Burton replaced Tony Perkins in 'Equus,' so why should I care?" she asked. "A good role in a good role."

Born in Redding, Conn., Hope grew up in New York, her mother eventually operating a restaurant, Minette of Washington Square, at 175 McDougal St.

"We had a lot of famous customers, some of whom didn't pay their bills," she says. She got into movies in "Bus Stop," playing a waitress in a cafe, and then was nominated for an Oscar for her second movie, "Peyton Place."

"That little Japanese girl in 'Sayonara' got it," she remembers.

It's her first Broadway show, although she was once on stage in Philadelphia as an understudy in "The Hot Corner."

"It was a very limited run — one night."

Miss Lange was wearing a rather revealing green blouse, black slacks and a Picasso sunburst. "It's a gift," she said. "from me."

WEEKEND WINDUP . . .

Petula Clark is flying pianist Frank Owen, now at the York River, to London for one night, July 4, to conduct for her. . . . William Devine, who plays the baseball manager in "The Bad News Bears Break Training," played baseball — and broke an ankle. . . . Pat Marand is up for a featured role in the musical "Twentieth Century."

Tony Martin will tour with his wife, Cyd Charisse, this summer in "Folies Bergere." . . . Bob Fitch of "Annie" will get an award from Dance Educators of America (Juy 10 at the Waldorf). . . . Peter Guber, who produced "The Deep," bought screen rights to another soggy sea saga, "Storm Warning." A small park near Lincoln Center will be named in honor of the late Met opera star Richard Tucker.

"The Jones Family" will be a feature of this year's Newport Jazz Festival: pianist Hank Jones and brothers Thad (trumpet) and Elvin (drums), all top jazz musicians; bassist Sam Jones, not a relative, will join them.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: The host of the Hartford Club in London teaches the staff how to deal with foreign visitors: "Americans, for example, will understand English perfectly if you speak slowly."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Elliot Welles says he belongs to the Weight Wishers. That's people who wish they were 20 pounds lighter.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "When you understand that you don't understand women, you've begun to understand women." — Marquis Guy de la Passardiere.

EARL'S PEARLS: Red Skelton notes his photography hobby can be very expensive — "especially," he adds, "if you develop the film."

JFK spent time in Hyannis Port, LBJ preferred Texas, Nixon liked Key Biscayne, Ford was often in Vail and Carter returns to Olains. The presidency is a great job, says Marty Ragaway, for someone who can't stand Washington.

A HOLLYWOOD STAR insists it's really easy to stay married: "All you need is an accountant to remind you you can't afford the alimony." . . . One of the local cafes has an unusual doorman. He can hold an umbrella over you, open a cab door and still have one hand left to hold out for a tip. . . . A youngster visiting an art museum described the paintings to a friend: "It's sort of like watching color TV." . . . The true test of generosity is to give the hatcheck girl a quarter without wondering whether 15 cents would have been enough. That's Earl, brother.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Monday

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: "Mind over matter" becomes your motto this year as creativity rises visibly, adventurous tendencies mesh with urges toward speculation, calculated risks. Relationships are rich, varied; some memorable episodes may pose problems in your career progress. Today's natives make their mark by doing things in a different manner than was customary before their time. Those born this year will be impulsive, positive business people with a flair for showmanship and sales.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You have a lot going for you that wasn't before. Rivals see the light of reason, cooperate. New starts all this week work best using well-known methods.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be flexible, hear others' alibis without anger, malice. Learn enough to make a better deal. Expect no thanks or quick results if you help with their problems.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): New or old jobs are influenced by contradictory pressures, unrealistic suggestions that you buy your way. For once procrastination serves a useful purpose.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): To get the show back on the road you have to cope with countless people, switch back and forth. Decisions either punch right through or stall a few days.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): New equipment doesn't do the proper job. Comparative shopping sets a criterion for sounder bargains. Quit a bit ahead of the crowd, go off on personal pleasures.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Doing things in a way that amuses you brings amazingly good results. A definite career push balloons into more than you can handle. Devise some pattern.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Follow up, see that what you lend or give goes for intended uses by people you want to benefit. So called coincidence jolts current development.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It's your last feasible chance on many matters. Organize the day around favorite projects. Meeting strangers is exciting, potentially very profitable.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Face reality as it is rather than the overly optimistic estimates, too-ready promises you'd like. An old dilemma revives, requires prompt decisions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A good deal is available without much effort. Don't let personal whims lead you astray or to hold onto inadequate tools and limited production methods.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Interest in final solutions is so strong you skip intermediate phases that take more money than you've got to invest. Gather working capital this week.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Keeping up with competitors and friends wear you down. Set up your own specialty, do things others can't or won't. Take initiateive, bypass troubled opportunity.

Chicago is not quite winded

By Peter J. Boyer
Associated Press

The life expectancy of most rock groups — even good ones — is about five years. After that they seem to either retire to some Southern California canyon or take work on the bowling alley lounge circuit.

But Chicago, a group whose identifying brassiness once seemed sure to make it a collective timepiece, has endured for more than a decade, and with a surprising amount of vitality.

The eight-man band's last album, "Chicago X," was double platinum, signifying more than 2 million units sold. Only a relative handful of groups ever had a double platinum album. Chicago has nine of them.

Chicago sells out concert halls as consistently now as it did in 1970, when the band was considered the hottest thing since Blood, Sweat & Tears.

Creedence Clearwater Revival, Grand Funk Railroad and Three Dog Night were among the 1970 Chicago contemporaries who have since fallen by the wayside. For that matter, whatever happened to Blood, Sweat & Tears?

With its customary regularity, the group has recently been at manager James Guercio's Caribou Ranch in Colorado, recording Chicago XI. Before they sequesterec themselves inhthe Rockies, the band members answered a few questions in Los Angeles, including: Why hasn't your music gone out of style?

"We just keep workin' at it," says drummer Danny Seraphine. "You try to become what the music scene is. You just try to keep at the forefront of the mainstream of music, you know? You've just got to keep ahead.

"That's our philosophy — look ahead, look ahead. Once you get complacent, it passes you by so fast, you're in trouble."

"There have been some lean moments," Seraphine adds. "But we always seem to pull out and hit another peak. It's a real strange kind of a thing."

"I think anybody hits lean moments," adds singer-trumpeter Lee Loughnane, "It's a matter of riding them out and keeping your confidence.

"Our music is diversified, so it keeps your interest up. We don't get stuck in a rut."

The original members of the group are still there - Seraphine, Loughnane, Rober Lamm (keyboards), Walter Parazaider (winds), James Pankow (trombone), Terry Kath (guitar) and Peter Cetcrea (bass). The only change has been the addition of Brazilian percussionist Laudier De Oliveira.

Success often does funny things to pop music makers, the most common being a sudden desire to leave the mother group and strike it rich solo. Another common cause of musical breakups is animosity on the part of two or more members of a group, as in the David Crosby-Neil Young rift that broke up Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young.

But not so with Chicago.

"I think we passed that ego thing a long time ago, didn't we, Lee?" Danny asks.

"Yeah, you know, we've always been able to sit down and yell at each other. In the end, coming clean with each other is the best way of going about it. We have helped each other."

The group had just finished a 50-day tour of Europe, which Seraphine described as "really a grind, but something we had to do. That's one of the necessary evils of our xusiness.

"We're a different sort of band," he explained. "Live performances are a very important part of our popularity."

A platinum album means a lot of money: 11 platinum albums means you can buy your own state. Why does Chicago keep on with the grind of recording studio to live concerts, then back to the studio? Couldn't they find a vancat canyon?

"How could you think of retiring," asks Saraphine, apparently shocked at the suggestion, "when the oldest guy in the band is 33 years old.?"

"We plan to continue the group," Loughnane says. "Obviously, it's not going to last forever. I think when it does end we will all go on in another capacity. We'll see when we get there. There's no sense in stopping now."

As the '70s roll along, Chicago keeps plugging away with its own special brand of soft rock, watching with amusement the parade of trends the decade has wrought — pop, glitter and punk.

Rossellini didn't need tricks

By Vincent Canby
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — In retrospect the entire career of director Roberto Rossellini, who died in Rome June 3 at 71, was a continuing process of discarding those tricks of hack moviemaking that package responses to a single work so effectively that no 2 million people will react very differently from any other 2 million.

Rossellini, an open, gregarious man in his private life, was so zealous in his pursuit of truth in films that he followed it right out of the commercial cinema onto the public television screen, for which in the last dozen years he produced a body of work that is unique, not simply for what he was doing but for how he was doing it. It is quite conceivable that when the history of cinema's first hundred years is recollected in tranquility — say in about 150 years — Rossellini's films will be seen as among the seminal works of what, for lack of any more definite term, can be called the New Movie.

More frequently this relentlessly dedicated director is associated with the neo-realist movement that surfaced with such force in Italy in the years after World War II. Having contributed two generally acknowledged neorealist classics, "Open City" and "Paisan," Rossellini went on to make "Germany Year Zero," another neorealist classic but one that focused on decay instead of heroism (and thus tended to put off the public and the critics alike), followed by a series of films with Ingrid Bergman (including "Stromboli" and "Europe 51") that outraged former admirers, Roman Catholics as well as Marxists, who had almost totally missed the point of what Rossellini had been up to earlier — and which he continued to be up to throughout his life.

The term "neorealism" had made the earlier Rossellini films easy to categorize, reflecting their social concerns and a popular (anti-Nazi) kind of political activism that appealed to the sentiments of the day. The little people are brave people, these films said. Freedom will triumph, and, by extension, all's right with the world.

When Rossellini turned his attention to the war's aftermath in, of all places, Berlin, to show not just physical but moral devastation (concluding with the suicide of a small boy), neorealism seemed to have been betrayed. All wasn't right with the world. His original admirers were convinced Rossellini had somehow turned effete when, in the films with Miss Bergman, he insisted on exploring the world of the well-heeled bourgeoisie. Good grief! Why make a movie about the problems of a handsome, wealthy woman at emotional loose ends when people are starving in India?

Rossellini, as he came to devote himself more and more to educational films — films that presented without comment and with hardly any dramatization the lives and ideas of the shakers and makers of history — eventually did away with most of the so-called grammar of film.

This, then, became the method of one of the grandest projects ever undertaken by a major filmmaker, which was nothing less than the history of the civilized world in a series of television films sponsored by the Italian and French government networks. By the time he died Rossellini had completed films on Augustine, Pascal, the apostles, the Industrial Revolution and Descartes, to name only a few. He described these films as "travelogues" rather than documentaries, since, he once told me, the term documentary implies that the director has a message.

"I have no message," he said. "I'm only interested in knowledge, but I don't want to interfere with it."

Lots of people find these films almost impossible to sit through. They are static, talky and, at first, a little like animated textbooks. Yet Rossellini's enthusiasm for knowledge, for catching up to where we are in the world today, is communicated in the discipline.

When I last saw him here six years ago, he had just finished shooting his film on Pascal.

"Pascal is so boring!" he said cheerfully. "He was a virgin, a theologian and a mathematician," but, he added with a shrug, "it was necessary for me to pass through him."

Secret Witness case summaries

The Independent, Press-Telegram's Secret Witness program has resulted in the arrest of 75 criminal suspects and fugitives from justice since the program was inaugurated on June 10, 1972, with rewards totaling $51,500 paid or committed on conviction of suspects waiting trial. Additional reward money available for informants is specified in the caselist below, one of the varying summaries of 10 Secret Witness cases printed in the Independent and Press-Telegram each Sunday and Thursday.

Rewards also will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects in any other major criminal cases, whether covered in these summaries or not, and for the apprehension of fugitives from justice. These rewards will vary in amount, depending on the seriousness of the offense.

Rewards in all cases, whether or not previously published, will remain in effect until such cases are closed or until notification in these pages that the reward has been withdrawn.

To ensure eligibility for rewards, informants must channel all information directly through Secret Witness — that is, to notify Secret Witness first — either by calling the special Secret Witness number or by writing to the I,P-T Secret Witness editor.

In cases in which outside organizations or individuals pledge an additional reward to that guaranteed by Secret Witness, the Independent, Press-Telegram assumes responsibility for payment only of that amount guaranteed by Secret Witness.

Today's summaries:

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killers of half-brothers Melecio Meza, 37; Santos Meza, 34, and Jose Naranjo, 30, gunned down execution-style as they were leaving their work in a Paramount machine shop at 7231 Rosecrans Ave. at 12:30 a.m. on Dec. 16, 1976.

—Rewards totaling 1,500, including $1,000 guaranteed by Secret Witness and $500 pledged by owner R.W. Weidemann, will be paid for information leading to the arrest and assault-robbery conviction of the man who shot and seriously wounded Mohammad I. Jattala, 46, manager of the Kentucky Fried Chicken outlet at Seventh Street and Walnut Avenue, during a holdup at 7:15 p.m. on April 12, 1977.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of 24-year-old Robert J. Rodriguez of Long Beach, found shot to death at L Street and Figueroa Place in Wilmington — just across the street from Harbor College — on the morning of Jan. 16, 1977.

—Rewards totaling $20,000 are offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Long Beach Police Officer Franke Neal Lewis, shot to death at 2:30 a.m. on Dec. 14, 1975, when he approached a car parked in the 6300 block on Cantel Street to investigate a disturbance. The rewards include $2,000 guaranteed by Secret Witness, $10,000 from state funds pledged by Gov. Brown and $8,000 pledged by the Long Beach Police Officers Association.

—Rewards totaling $7,000 — including $2,000 guaranteed by Secret Witness and $5,000 pledged by the victim's parents — will be paid for the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of 19-year-old Janet Stallcup of Garden Grove, whose body was found in her car in the parking lot of a Garden Grove apartment building at 13111 Yockey St. on the morning of Dec. 27, 1976. Her neck had been broken and she had been raped.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of 2-year-old Naeenah Smith of South Los Angeles, who was seized from the arms of her stepmother by two men in front of a South Los Angeles supermarket at 3:10 p.m. on Nov. 8, 1976, strangled, and dumped in a trash bin six blocks away. Police believe the case may be connected with a Long Beach crime since the stepmother, LaRonda Burton, was the mother of 5-year-old Andrea "Trecey" Logan, who was found strangled in an alley near their Long Beach home on May 7, 1974.

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of 16-year-old Freddie Jones and 17-year-old Roderick Williamson, both of Long Beach, found shot to death execution-style with hands bound behind them near the Terminal Island Freeway at Pacific Coast Highway on June 27, 1976.

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Refugio Chavez, 32, gunned down outside his home on McDonald Avenue in Wilmington at 2:20 a.m. June 13, 1976. Chavez had just arrived home and was attempting to quiet revelers at a noisy drinking party in the street when he was shot down.

—Rewards totaling $4,500 — including $2,000 guaranteed by Secret Witness and $2,500 pledged by family members and friends — will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Felix R. Porrazzo, 55-year-old flower shop owner who was savagely and fatally bludgeoned during a robbery at his shop at 3950 Atlantic Ave. in Long Beach at about 9 a.m. on Sunday, May 30, 1976.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of 16-year-old Wendy Blanchard of Santa Monica, whose partly nude and bludgeoned body was found on the morning of Jan. 7, 1975, on a sidewalk near 172 W. Colden Ave. in South Los Angeles. She was last seen alive at 11:25 p.m. on Jan. 6 at the Greyhound bus station in Long Beach, where she was talking with a tall, thin, young black man.

How to be a Secret Witness

Secret Witness seeks information from the public leading to the capture of fugitives and the arrest and conviction of criminals.

For this purpose a guaranteed fund of $100,000 has been established by the Independent, Press-Telegram to be used for rewards of varying amounts.

Identities of informants will be kept secret.

You will be paid a reward if the information you give Secret Witness results in the arrest and conviction of a criminal or the capture of a fugitive in cases publicized in this column. Rewards also will be paid for information given to Secret Witness resulting in arrests and convictions, or the capture of fugitives, in cases not published in Secret Witness.

To contact Secret Witness, telephone (213) 436-2526 from 8 a.m. to midnight on weekdays, or from 3 pm. to 11 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Do NOT give us your name. Or write to: Secret Witness, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90844.

Perfect gift no easy task

By Linda Zink
Staff Writer

Even if he really isn't, to many youngsters, Dad has all the appearances of the man who has everything. And each June, as Father's Day rolls around, his offspring beseechingly ask themselves, "what do we get him this year?"

In Long Beach, teen-agers have come up with their own cure for this annual dose of the summertime blues. Low on funds but high on enthusiasm, they've drawn up a list of Father's Day presents that are guaranteed to please even the pickiest papa.

Among their suggestions, which are illustrated in the accompanying photographs, are a work certificate that pledges two months of "assistance with a smile" with any chore Dad needs help on, a clean car for 30 days and preparation of Dad's favorite snack that he can nibble on during this afternoon's ballgame.

OTHER SUGGESTIONS, also guaranteed to be return-free, include:

— A certificate promising Dad an hour to himself each evening for the next 365 days. During that hour Dad gets to do whatever he wants to — read, watch television or just stare at the wallpaper — without interruption from the family.

An easy promise to make, it's more difficult to deliver. Anyone breaking it must do whatever chore Dad says for 30 days.

— Help with Dad's hobby. Youngsters promise to devote two weeks to helping Dad become better at whatever turns him on. If he's a golfer, youngsters can collect the golf balls he pitches and putts on the lawn. If tennis is his game, they can accompany him to the courts and let him practice his serve without worrying about where the balls go.

-- Helping Dad help out around the house is another welcome expense-free present. For three weeks, youngsters serve as Dad's right hand (holding tools, keeping track of nuts and bolts) while he plays Mr. Fixit.

— A year-long guarantee from forgetful daughters that Dad's borrowed razor will no longer be left in the shower. Equally valued, the teens agreed, is a pledge that the borrowed calculator will be returned to where they found it, turned off before the batteries are worn down.

DESPITE THE water shortage, Dad deserves a clean car. Above, Erika Schlarmann, 16, makes good her work certificate promising "a clean car for a month — and no wasted water."

FOR DAD, everything's coming up roses thanks to son Dennis Halverson's Father's Day gift of a work certificate pledging help with the yard work.

Staff photos by Kent Henderson

IN FOR more than he bargained for is Jim Chiboucas, 18, whose gift to Dad was a clean garage for a year.

COOKING up a surprise — Dad's favorite snack — is part of Erika Schlarmann's Father's Day gift.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is a reprint of Erma Bombeck's traditional Father's Day column. Her regular column appears on page L/S-4. Also, if you are a Bombeck fan, tune to CBS-TV, Channel 2, at 10 this evening. The entire Bombeck clan will be interviewed by Barbara Howar on "Who's Who."

By Erma Bombeck

When God Created Fathers …

When the good Lord was creating fathers He started with a tall frame.

And a female angel nearby said, "What kind of father is that? If You're going to make children so close to the ground, why have You put fathers up so high? He won't be able to shoot marbles without kneeling, tuck a child in bed without bending, or even kiss a child without a lot of stooping."

And God smiled and said, "Yes, but if I make him child-size, who would children have to look up to?"

And when God made a father's hands, they were large and sinewy.

And the angel shook her head sadly and said, "Do You know what You're doing? Large hands are clumsy. They can't manage diaper pins, small buttons, rubber bands on pony tails or even remove splinters caused by baseball bats."

And God smiled and said, "I know, but they're large enough to hold everything a small boy empties from his pockets at the end of a day … yet small enough to cup a child's face."

And then God molded long, slim legs and broad shoulders.

And the angel nearly had a heart attack. "Boy, this is the end of the week, all right," she clucked. "Do you realize You just made a Father without a lap? How is he going to pull a child close to him without the kid falling between his legs?"

AND GOD SMILED and said, "A mother needs a lap. A father needs strong shoulders to pull a sled, balance a boy on a bicycle or hold a sleepy head on the way home from the circus.

God was in the middle of creating two of the largest feet anyone had ever seen when the angel could contain herself no longer. "That's not fair. Do You honestly think those large boats are going to dig out of bed early in the morning when the baby cries? Or walk through a small birthday party without crushing at least three of the guests?"

And God smiled and said, "They'll work. You'll see. They'll support a small child who wants to 'ride a horse to Banbury Cross,' or scare off mice at the summer cabin, or display shoes that will be a challenge to fill."

God worked throughout the night, giving the father few words, but a firm authoritative voice; eyes that saw everything, but remained calm and tolerant.

Finally, almost as an afterthought, He added — tears. Then He turned to the angel and said, "Now, are you satisfied that he can love as much as a mother?'

The angel shutteth up.

ACTORS David Soul and Paul-Michael Glaser of TV series "Starsky and Hutch" — theirs is a close-friend relationship.

TENNIS pro Ilie Nastase — his six-figure income comes from sports-related activities, allows him to live in appropriate style.

ACTRESS Carolyn Jones — her retirement is not related to career.

Q: Is it true that Paul Michael Glaser doesn't get along with David Soul?

A: Starsky claims that Hutch is like a member of the family. "David's the brother I never had," says the 34-hear-old Glaser. "He understands me, and we care for each other very much. In any relationship I need to express love — but I can't express that in a relationship with a man."

The never-married actor, bwever, does say that his relationship with dark-haired Elizabeth Mayer is working now. Adding sardonically; "But I'm frightened enough to think that if I allow myself to believe it's going well, it might fall apart."

Q: How much money did Ilie Nastase make last year and where does he live?

A: Nastase, who can swear in six languages and often does, lives with wife Dominique, their two-year-old daughter Nathalie and her nannie in Bazoch-es-sur-le-Betz, 60 miles south of Paris. Their home is an early 16th-century stable which has been converted into a seven-bedroom house at one end of a thousand-acre parcel of land owned by Dominique's family. Last year, Nastase won about $400,000 and nearly doubled that with endorsements and exhibitions.

Q: Is it true that Gene Autry is one of Hollywood's richest stars? If so, how did he make his money — his movies were terrible!

A: From humble beginnings as a telegraph clerk in Texas, Autry, 69, rode through miles and miles of purple sage to multi-millionaire status. Today, his personal fortune is worth $40 million, including major shares in West Coast broadcasting properties, a hotel in Palm Springs, two ranches, four music publishing firms, and a collection of antique cars and locomotives. As the singin' cowboy once sang, he's "Back in the Saddle Again."

Q: I have a drawer full of old trading stamps and wonder how I can redeem them?

A: Send one stamp to the Trading Stamp Institute of America at 11 Broadway, New York, N.Y., 10004, for information about redeeming canceled trading stamps. Only about one in six supermarkets now give stamps, compared to nearly two-thirds when the stamp craze hit its peak in the 1960s.

Q: Please settle an argument. Out of the dozens of "how-to" sex books that which have been published in the past few years, which one is the most successful?

A: According to book industry figures, Joan Garrity's "The Sensuous Woman" has outstripped its heavy-breathing competitors with more than nine million copies in print. Financially, however, Dr. Alex Comfort's higher-priced "Joy of Sex" should bring him joy and comfort for the rest of his days — its gross of $33 million is more than double the "Sensuous Woman's" $16 million.

Q: I'm a Carolyn Jones fan and haven't heard anything about her in ages. Is she retired?

A: Only from marriage. After nearly 10 years of wedded bliss, Carolyn has filed for divorce from writer Herb Green, despite the fact that he threatened suicide if she went through with it. Interestingly enough, Green has never looked better. After a car careened into his protruding stomach and knocked him off a curb, he shed 100 pounds, which prompted him and Carolyn to co-author a book, "Diary of a Mad Eater." Carolyn is doing more writing and says she wants to return to acting.

Q: My pet peeve is popcorn munchers at the movies — is it really necessary to feed folks that foul-smelling stuff during films?

A: The concessionaires wouldn't have it any other way. A recent survey showed that people attending indoor theaters spend an average of 48.3 cents each. And apparently there's nothing like a breath of fresh air to help whet the appetite — outdoor theaters report spendings on food and drink of 87 cents per admission.

Q: I'm looking for a YOUNG millionaire to marry. How many are there?

A: Chances are you'll have to make a choice — millions and minors just don't mix. At the last count five years ago, 118,900 Americans over 35 were worth at least $1 million, and only 14,500 under 35.

THEN AND NOW — former cowboy star Gene Autrey as he appeared in movies, above, and today as a multi-faceted business executive.

AUTHORS, Dr. Alex Comfort, above, "Joy of Sex," and Joan Garrity, "The Sensuous Woman" — theirs are best-selling books on subject.

Theater-related books recommended reading

Collecting books for summer reading? Two vastly interesting women of the theater, Cheryl Crawford and Vivien Leigh, are the subjects for two worth considering. "One Naked Individual: My Fifty Years in the Theater" by Cheryl Crawford (Bobbs Merrill, $10.95) is one for the top of the pile.

It's the fascinating, informative and inspiring autobiography of one of Broadway's most distinguished female producers. Stack up her achievements end to end, and you'd reach the moon. The title comes from one of Ms. Crawford's childhood experiences. She missed the lesson on the Pledge of Allegiance. Consequently, when the rest of the class recited "one nation indivisible," Cheryl said "one naked individual."

How many times, reading a Playbill, have you asked yourself, "Just what does a producer DO?" Cheryl Crawford's simplified answer: "I find a good play or musical. I find the money required to give it the best physical form onstage. I find the right people to give it life. I find a theater and I try to fill it."

Producing is gambling to her, and after five decades of serious, calculated risks, her roulette wheel has turned out winners like "Porgy and Bess," "Brigadoon," "Paint Your Wagon," "One Touch of Venus" and such Tennessee Williams classics as "The Rose Tattoo" and "Sweet Bird of Youth." She has also been involved in the most important theater movements of this century: the Theater Guild, the Group Theater, and the Infamous Actors Studio.

"ONE NAKED Individual" is a lean and exciting book. Anyone who has ever been touched by the magic of the theater will find it impossible to put down. She describes the process of production — an exhilarating, sometimes heartbreaking process that starts with finding a script and ends (if luck holds) with opening night.

She also describes the discovering of John Garfield, Clifford Odets and James Dean, among others, the optimistic, wildly enthusiastic beginnings of the Group Theater and the Actors Studio, and the tragedy of their ultimate disintegration.

All is described with intelligence and accuracy, and charged from beginning to end with a passionate love of the theater. Cheryl Crawford is a businesswoman extraordinaire, but she is also probably the last living producer who still thinks the theater is an art and a privilege. Bless her.

Halfway through this book, I started to pick up on her key to success. It's her ability to take failure, abominable and devastating, squarely on the chin. When she left the Group Theater and first started producing plays on her own, she launched five flops in a row. Whatever her private feelings, she doesn't launch posthumous attacks on the unseen villains of her day. She blames only herself. Then there are the plays she could have produced but didn't: "The Member of the Wedding," "West Side Story," "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf," "Death of a Salesman."...read why, and weep along with her.

SHE IS CANDID about her failures, even telling us how she sat Carson McCullers down like a fond but strict den mother, explaining why she would not produce "The Member of the Wedding."

"Carson, dear," she writes, "No one doubts your writing ability. But the play's story is so slight, so small, I doubt a Broadway audience would be interested in a young tomboy full of fantasies. I'm sorry to say it, but I really think you'd be better off sticking to novels." She's still taking it on the chin for that one.

Cheryl CrAwford, now in her 70s, is still producing plays. Her last project was "Yentl,"and she's bringing out yet another new surprise next season. She has never, by the way, in her 50 years in the theater, despite the times she badly needed the income, done any work for Hollywood or TV. Failures aside, as a record of dedication, I'd say that's flawless.

In case you're worried that this isn't the kind of trashy, gossip-strewn autobiography you relish, fear not. There are juicy anecdotes about legendaries like Marilyn Monroe, Marlene Dietrich, Tallulah Bankhead and the young Paul Newman, but the anecdotes are neither sentimental nor self-glorifying. They are told to illuminate and entertain.

So often the enjoyment of anecdotes in similar books is hampered by a lingering suspicion that the tales might have been heavily embellished, if not totally fictitious. I never once felt that while reading "One Naked Individual," which is another gratifying reason I found it so enthralling. It seems Cheryl Crawford went about writing her autobiography the way she tackled each play in her enviable career — determined to make it truthful, good and, above all, a success. Her credentials are impeccable; so is her book.

"VIVIEN LEIGH: A Biography" by Anne Edwards (Simon and Schuster, $9.95) chronicles the ups and downs (mostly downs) of a woman of remarkable beauty and talent, with wit, charm and undying energy, Vivien Leigh portrayed two of the most famous characters in American film — Scarlett O'Hara and Blanche DuBois, winning Oscars for both performances.

As Laurence Olivier's mistress and later, as his wife, she formed half of one of the world's golden couples, along with the Windsors, the Fitzgeralds and the Lunts. Later in her life, Vivien fought against the gnawing symptoms of manic-depression, accompanied by fits of hostility, paranoia and hysteria. The bloom faded and she died in fear, sickness and self-contempt.

Although her life is interesting, Anne Edwards (who milked the last tears out of an earlier book about Judy Garland) has written a disappointing book. As a memoir, it is pointless. As a biography, it is well-researched though, alas, lifeless.

Vivien Leigh remains too far out of reach, like an elusive moth, throughout. It's as though she were still on the screen, playing out her roles forever in some kind of celluloid purgatory, locked in two dimensions instead of three.

'VIVIEN LEIGH: A Biography' by Anne Edwards chronicles the life of the Academy Award winning actress, but never lets the reader really get to know her.

Her childhood in an English convent school (where her pal Maureen O'Sullivan came in second to Vivien in the "Prettiest girl" election), her exposure to European society in her early teens, her first marriage to Leigh Holman in London, her presentation to the king and queen when she was a ravishing beauty of 19 — all is catalogued in an exaggerated, bloated style, much in the manner of the simpering movies that inspired her as a child.

THE AUTHOR seems as easily manipulated as her subject by fantasies and glorious aspirations. It thus comes as something of a surprise in the later passages of the book to learn that Vivien Leigh was extremely intelligent, and more ambitious for acclaim in serious stage roles than for the glamor of a movie star.

Even so, we are told about this intelligence and dedication to the theater without ever sensing it for ourselves, as if these qualities were troublesome appendages the author felt obliged to graft onto the real-life Scarlett O'Hara.

More at home with the characteristics Vivien Leigh projected on the screen, Edwards dwells on her beauty, her restlessness, her flashing green eyes, her demure Cheshire smile. By limiting herself this way, Edwards reduces much of the book — especially the early chapters — to the level of a fan magazine.

Writing the biography of a movie star presents a problem encountered in no other kind of writing. The image of a star, especially a matinee idol to millions of women, is so powerful and lasting that it leaves little room for imagination, which is what successful writing depends on. The writer must somehow get around the image to the human being behind it in order to bring both the person and the star to life. Anne Edwards has failed to introduce us to Vivien Leigh. We sniff the perfume, but never meet the woman wearing it.

At that moment

Friday, August 9, 1974

In the broad, marble foyer, the Marine Orchestra was playing an incongruously gay medley of show tunes from Oklahoma, South Pacific and other old favorites.

It is through this foyer that one enters the White House, past the portraits of John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson. Down the long, red-carpeted hall to the right is the elegant, crystal chandeliered State Dining Room, where a short prayer made by the First President to occupy the house remains carved in the fireplace mantel.

"I pray Heaven," said John Adams in 1800, "to bestow the best of blessings on this house and on all that shall hereafter inhabit it. May none but honest and wise men ever rule under this roof."

At the opposite end of the hall, past the portraits of Dwight Eisenhower and Harry Truman, past the grand staircase with its likenesses of Franklin Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson, is the simple gold and white beauty of the East Room.

It was here that Union troops bivouacked in Abe Lincoln's time, here that Presidents danced with their ladies, entertained kings and prime ministers and here that they lay in state.

And here that Richard M. Nixon, the first President in history to resign and leave in dishonor, came to say farewell to his cabinet and staff. The long tortured road of lies and manipulation that began two years before in Watergate ended this day in the East Room.

With his wife and family behind him, between the portraits of George Washington and Dolley Madison, the 37th President of the United States talked in a disjointed way and slid into bathos.

He talked about his father and he talked about his mother and he came to tears. "Nobody'll ever write a book about my mother . . . My mother was a saint."

He talked about the destructive quality of hate, he pointed out that no member of his administration had profited at the public expense, he quoted Theodore Roosevelt on the death of his young wife: "And when my heart dearest died, the life went from my life forever."

Richard Nixon, who was fond of quoting that President, did not mention that the same Roosevelt said: "No man is above the law and no man is below it; nor do we ask any man's permission when we require him to obey it."

Tips on getting yourself out of touchy situations

Dear Ms. Baldrige: I seem to be a magnet for the social faux pas and I never know how to get out of the situation once I'm in it. For example, what should I do in the following instances? (1) My boss' wife shows up at a party either wearing a wig or having dyed her hair and I don't recognize her right away (ignore her, in fact). (2) There is "water cooler" talk about one of the girls in the office with all of the men tearing down her reputation. I don't agree with them but I don't know whether to speak up or shut up. (3) A business acquaintance borrowed $25 and when he repayed me, the check bounced. What should I do now? — E.H., New Haven, Conn.

In the first case, relax. It happens all the time. It happens, too, when a person has had radical plastic surgery. Once you realize who it is and why you didn't recognize the person, make a point of speaking to them, commenting on the change (they possibly feel a shade insecure about public reaction to it and will welcome any encouragement).

"I was just about to ask Jim who the attractive blonde was when it dawned on me that I didn't need an introduction!" A statement like that doesn't really commit you to liking the change, but it does acknowledge the person and the new look.

WHEN SOMEONE you know is being discussed — especially when it's a member of the opposite sex — you should make your feelings known immediately. This often has the effect of ending malicious gossip. You don't have to use strong-arm tactics to make your point. Just say positively, "Look, I think you shoud know that Sally is a very good friend of ours. She went to school with my wife." Any man who continues with disparaging comments after that is pretty low on the scale of human behavior. Leave the water cooler.

The writer of the rubber check is aware of the fact that it boued and you won't do yourself any favor by setting your lawyer out to catch him! Your best course would be to write him a letter explaining that the check bounced (and that it happens to all of us who are not perfect accountants), and that you know he means to make good on his obligation.

Ask him if he would like you to put the check through again, or if he would rather issue you a new one. This is the kind of letter that can't get a "no" answer; he has to state which affirmative action he will follow.

It is often possible to solve these little problems yourself by putting yourself in the other person's place. Say you finally got the nerve to have a "nose job" and an acquaintance didn't recognize you immediately. You wouldn't want him to stay away forever and therefore you'd make it very easy for him once he did make the connection. We all make mistakes, but a show of good manners in how we straighten them out is what wipes the slate clean.

(Ms. Baldrige welcomes letters and will answer as many questions as possible in her column. Please address your letters to Ms. Tish Baldrige, Independent, Press-Telegram, P.O. Box 5028, F.D.R. Station, New York, N.Y. 10022.)

No blazers, just boots at cookout

MEMBERS OF the Committee of 300 traded their distinctive red blazers for overalls and blue jeans when they staged a western-style barbecue at Rancho Los Alamitos.

They took over the grounds of the former Bixby estate turned museum atop Bixby Hill for a "Western Hoedown" starring barbecued beef and all the trimmings.

Also starring were hospitality chaircowgirl, Della Sanford and her husband, Ron. They rounded up a posse of helpers and spouses such as Steve Cockriel and Kathy, Joan Swanson and Al and Sue Evans Williams and her bridegroom, Kelly.

Cowpersons for the evening included new Committee boss, Roger Jesme, and his wife, Bonnie. Foreman, or president-elect if you prefer, Hank Wadleigh, showed up in sheriff garb packing a pistol. His wife, Marcia, wasn't a bit scared of him.

Keith Foster, curator of the museum, was there to keep the crowd in order. Bill Williams, president of the Bixby Hill Homeowners Association, was also on hand.

Other costumed characters included docents of the museum, Long Beach Chamber of Commerce staffers, Councilcowboys Wallace Edgerton and Ernie Kell.

Monty Sharp and his about-to-become-a-mother wife Karen managed to make the party. Their brand-new son Bryan Wayne waited until two days after the party to make his arrival.

JUNE IS KNOWN as the month for weddings.

It is also graduation time.

Especially for 83 year old Ben Nicholas of Seal Beach Leisure World. He picked up his honorary associate of arts degree from Coastline College.

carolyn mcdowell

The graduation ceremonies took place in the amphitheater at Golden West College.

JUNE ALSO STARTS the class reunion phenomena. I'll list a few of those for you.

I don't usually write about reunions after the fact but, the exception makes the rule or something like that.

Anyhow Vance Thurston and his wife, Carole, organized a 30 year reunion for Wilson High's 1947 CIF baseball championship team.

Needless to say the guest list was very elite and somewhat limited.

Extra special guests were Cliff Meyers and his wife, Helen. Cliff, now retired, coached the team to the championship. All of his former players signed a baseball and presented it to him.

Bob (Rup) Hughes, the team's first coach in Legion ball was also there.

Host Vance was named player of the year in 1947. The reunion was also a celebration of his son, Ron, being named player of the year for the Moore league. Ron is following in dad's spikes at Wilson.

Dick Perry and his wife, Donna, were there. Dick is now athletic director at USC.

Other reunioners were John and Momi McKeown from Bakersfield. They call him Sheriff John because he really is — of Kern County.

Another of the class of '47 who stayed with athletics is Millikan High baseball coach, Artie Boyd, there with his wife, Jackie. Al Larson and his wife, Ingebord, also joined the reminiscing. Al "sort of" stayed with sports — he writes about them for these newspapers.

The patio of the Thurstons' new Ocean Boulevard home was decorated in red and yellow streamers — Wilson colors, naturally.

More grand old players were Gene and Barb Painter of Gardena, Marvin and Julie Galyan, Whitey and Donna Thompson, Bob and Janet Johnson (Janet celebrating her birthday), Morley Bockman, Bob (Lefty) Phillips and his wife, Joyce, and Bill Muntz with Ruth Redwine, Jim Russell and Jack and Barbara Randall.

EQUAL TIME for Jordan High School.

The class of 1957 is staging a 20 year reunion.

The place is the Golden Sails Inn. The date for dining and dancing is Aug. 6.

Advice to the Taxlorn

His question of marginal interest

DEAR MR. SMITH: Each month my broker charges interest on my margin account. Must I write him a check each time in order to get a deduction? — E.E.

That's one good way to be sure of the deduction, but not the only way. Periodically, the broker receives and retains funds that belong to you — for example, proceeds of securities sold, interest on bonds, dividends on stock, and, of course, any check of yours that you give him at any time. Whenever you receive such credits, they can be considered as payments of your interest charge.

DEAR MR. SMITH: I am remarried and pay $400 monthly as alimony to my former wife, as required by court decree. Everything is friendly and harmonious and we would like to keep it that way. I am embarrassed about her living arrangements but my ex says that her boy friend has financial problems and they need the money from the alimony payments. If she remarries, the alimony stops.

So far, I have always deducted the payments on Form 1040 and she reported them as income. Suppose my present wife and I wanted to continue the payments to my ex after she remarries; will everything be the same for income tax purposes? — J.D.R.

No, everything will be different! You can't deduct the payments and she doesn't report them once she remarries. The new payments will be gifts, too small for gift tax reporting, and not subject to income tax reporting.

Possibly, the payments should be reduced by the additional income tax you would have to pay. Or you could have your attorney draw a new, formal, enforceable agreement for the payment of alimony, so that the income tax reporting would continue exactly as now, whether your ex remarries or not. That would need a lot of thought and a lawyer, because you would be subject to the alimony courts for a long, long time.

DEAR MR. SMITH: I have seen several cases in which persons are being denied an Earned Income Credit by IRS due to the way the worksheet for this credit is set up. I would question that the law intended for such to happen.

To be specific, a young friend was farming in 1976 and he had a net loss of $9,266. During the year he also had wages of $4,558. He has dependent children and otherwise meets the Earned Income Credit requirements.

However, due to the fact the loss of $9,266 has to be included on line four of the Earned Income worksheet, it acts to wipe out the wage income and leaves a zero balance on line five, resulting in no credit at all. This appears grossly unfair and it is hard to believe the law was intended that way. — F.J.B.

I believe you are right. Neither the law as adopted, nor the explanations given by the legislative committees, say anything about reducing the credit on account of losses. The references are in the opposite direction: offset the burden of Social Security deductions and self-employment tax, get people off welfare and unemployment roles, reduce the credit by excessive income — those are the stated purposes.

The key words are "add, plus, net earnings, calculate merely by adding together." Those who write and explain our tax laws, have no difficulty saying "less, subtract, net loss, reduce," if that is what they mean.

On July 12, 1976, regulations were proposed by the Treasury Department which could perpetuate this error. Those who are affected should protest to Congress and the Treasury Department. For 1975 and 1976, if you had wages, and also a loss from a business or farm, and you had a dependent child in your household, you may be eligible for the special refund. Remember, you get the refund even if you paid no tax.

Women are asking

'My hair looks limp and lifeless. How can I find out what's going on with it?'

By Reba and Bonnie Churchill

Are you a hair detective? Studying your freshly shampooed hair, can you determine the type, texture and condition of the strands? Do you know what effect soap, permanent wave solutions or color has on it?

If this sounds like a scientific approach to hair care, it is. We interviewed Dr. David Cannell, technical consultant at Redkin Laboratories, and he filled us in on what the average girl can do to beautify her hair.

"Today, there is sophisticated testing equipment to analyze the hair. One method is Trichoanalysis, which makes use of a Trichoscope. The tests measure the strands' diameter, force and elongation.

"A polarized light shows up any defects, so an evaluation can be made if fibers are damaged. Also, how much shampoo, wave set, conditioner, color or spray will be absorbed by the strand.

"No one is surprised when a doctor asks for blood samples during a physical examination," Dr. Cannell explained. "A hair test will indicate the proper treatment for the individual's needs." He showed us the machines that do the work. Stylists at many local beauty salons (over 80,000 are members of the research testing group) will take at least four hair strands, one from each side of the head. A questionnaire "case history" is recorded, and either the salon with its own Trichoscope and Trichogram, or the laboratory will provide a "read out."

Some of the data will reveal the "above average keratin structure," meaning that the hair's protein structure is stronger than its diameter would predict. "Below average elongation" shows the hair would tend to be brittle. "Birefringence," the way light is refracted through the hair, is the pattern of colors seen under the microscope which relate to the compactness of hair fibers.

"The hair is a tattletale," Dr. Cannell summarized, "it not only reveals how you care for it, but what your eating habits are, the state of your health, and often nervous habits."

At Wit's End

His middle name is wallet

I have never considered George Washington the father of this country. Maybe I would have felt differently if he had had children.

Somehow, I've always associated this distinction with people like Tom Braden (author of "Eight Is Enough") or Jack Anderson or Harry Reasoner, who head large families.

You can get as sloppy as you want about a mother's love, a mother's tenderness, a mother's tear, but our kids would have been nothing without their father's checkbook.

It began at the birth of our first child. As she lay there in the crib her father said, "She's not only beautiful. She's absolutely perfect!"

"You really think so?" I said hesitantly. "She has an umbilical hernia."

"Can it be fixed?"

"Of course," I said. He got out his checkbook.

With the birth of our son, he said, "This one could whip the world with one hand tied behind his back."

"You really think so? Maybe someday, but for the moment, he needs minor surgery."

He whipped out the checkbook.

THE NEXT ONE toed in and not only needed braces at night, but orthopedic shoes during the day.

Then the fun really began. One had an overbite, the other an iron deficiency, then another was allergic to dust and mold.

They cracked their skulls open, broke bones, were allergic to bee stings, tore cartilage and required stitches.

They contracted rashes, astigmatisms, high fevers and stepped on rusty nails.

When their bodies were finally put together, he had to start supporting their basic psychological needs. "Daddy, I'm the only senior in North America who does not own a pair of earth shoes."

"Ride a bicycle to school! Are you still punishing me for being born Jan. 2 and blowing your $700 deduction for 1959?"

"I KNOW the class ring costs $75, but honest, Daddy, I'll wear it until the day I die."

"Do you expect me to go to a college that is eight hours from the ski slopes? What kind of a degree would that be!"

"If you want a Father's Day present, you'd better give me an allowance."

Sure, George Washington had to provide food and clothing for hundreds of needy troops at Valley Forge. He took office with a country with millions of dollars in debts which the Congress of the Articles of Confederation had been unable to pay. He worked from sunup to sundown managing his 8,000 acres at Mt. Vernon.

But next to today's fathers who have to deal with taffy in space maintainers and insurance on a 16-year-old male driver . . . that was a piece of cake.

Dear Abby

Divorces are not news in Minnesota

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me how a couple can obtain a divorce without having it published in the newspaper.

It is imperative that it not be published due to extenuating medical circumstances in my family.

My attorney doesn't seem to know anything about this. — MINNESOTAN

DEAR MINNESOTAN: A competent lawyer would have informed you that there is no law on the books in Minnesota indicating that divorces must be published. If the petitioner (or the defendant) asks that the names be withheld from publication when he (or she) files for divorce, it will be respected.

DEAR ABBY: I am having an argument with a friend of mine. He says roosters and hens have teeth. I say they do not. My friend insists that they MUST have teeth, even though they are not visible, or they would not be able to grind up their food to digest it.

Well, I don't know anything about how roosters and hens grind up their food, but I am almost certain they don't have teeth. Who is right? — NEW YORKER

DEAR NEW YORKER: You are, but don't crow about it. Birds and fowl do NOT have teeth. The food they eat is broken down (or ground up) after it reaches their gizzards.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 22-year-old liberated woman who is on the Pill. I've been paying for the pills myself, but I think my boyfriend should share half the cost. Problem is, I don't know him well enough to discuss money with him. Any advice? — SHY

DEAR SHY: Get to know him better. Then you'll be able to discuss anything with him.

DEAR ABBY: Nancy in San Clemente asks you to recommend that people have their pets neutered to keep them from running wild or being killed in the streets. She sounds like a typical neutering nut. I recommend keeping pets home where they belong. It will also prevent unwanted reproduction as well as annoyance to the neighborhood.

Neutering is unnecessary surgery. It is only for the convenience of lazy pet owners who don't care enough for their pets to properly supervise them. — AGAINST MUTILATION

DEAR AGAINST: Properly supervising pets often takes more time than most pet-owners can spare, so in the absence of such supervision, I view neutering as an act of kindness.

DEAR ABBY: Someone wrote that she had been approached often by people asking her "who she was mad at" because she never smiled. Then she went on to say that she had trouble smiling when there was nothing to smile about.

You told her that a smile was the universal language of friendliness and you encouarged her to make a conscious effort to smile more often.

I have just finished sketching a sampler whose message is: "If you see someone without a smile, give them one of yours." — HELEN V.

DEAR HELEN: Beautiful. Thanks for sharing.

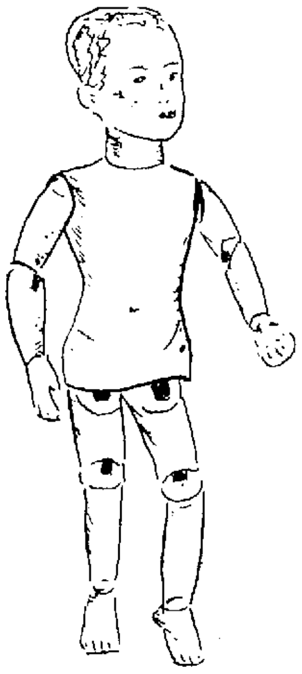
Flea Market Finds

Vintage dolls bring high prices

dan d'imperio

Q. "We found a boy doll in the attic from the Schoenhut firm marked 'Pat. Jan. 17, 1911'." — Mrs. F. S., Mobile, Ala.

A. The brilliant Philadelphia-based toymaker Albert Schoenhut, the man responsible for the Humpty Dumpty circus, entered the doll business in 1911 when he received a patent for his swivel spring-jointed dolls. These wooden dolls were referred to by their creator as "All-Wood Perfection Art Dolls."



Schoenhut doll, Jan. 17, 1911

Boy and girl dolls dressed in fashions of the period were sold with either molded hair or mohair wigs. They had hardwood feet with two holes in the soles, enabling them to stand or pose. His durable wooden dolls proved popular as Infant dolls appeared in 1912 followed in 1915 by the Doll Face line. Schoenhut dolls were still tempting buyers in doll catalogs as late as 1930. Value guide: boy, dressed, "Pat. 1911," 16 inches tall, $335.

Q. "Kindly assist me in evaluating some opaque glass animal covered dishes." — Evelyn, Chattanooga, Tenn.

A. Numerous American glass houses produced pressed glass animal covered dishes in the late 1890s with enough varied subject matter to fill a zoo. The opaque white types are the most familiar. However, they were made in other colors and in various color combinations. Value guide: camel, milk white, $70; duck, milk white, $68; fox, Atterbury, milk white, $120; hen, blue, $65; rooster, blue, $75; turkey, milk white, $115.

Q. "I'm curious about the glass objects called 'Witch Balls'." — Joan, Augusta, Ga.

A. Round glass balls measuring in size from that of a large marble up to 12 inches in diameter were strategically placed in homes during the 1700s and 1800s to ward off evil spirits. Thus the term witch ball. They usually had a hole in the center of the top and were blown in clear and colored glass.

Silvered types also scared off their share of flying witches in the 19th century. Actually many were made as covers for bowls or pitchers or as floaters for fishermen's nets. The variously colored Nailsea specimens with involved loopings were so lovely they probably attracted more witches than they repelled! Value guide: Cobalt blue, white loopings, 4 inches diameter, $65.

Q. "A price list on Moxie advertising items would be appreciated." — Ed, Springfield, Mass.

A: Nowadays the foxy flea market shopper is hoarding Moxie mementos before they stage a disappearing act. Value guide: ashtray, copper, $16; covered butter dish, ceramic, $235; fan, beautiful lady, $14; mug, $15; toy, tin, Moxiemobile, $275; tray, lady with violets, 6 inches diameter, $30; tumbler, glass $11.

Explore arts of Orient in two museum shows

By Elise Emery
Arts Editor

When Long Beach Museum of Art exhibited original Oriental art for two days in January, more than 1,500 viewers came to see the 500 pieces from Japan, China, India, Tibet, Nepal and Thailand.

In response to this interest, the museum will repeat the special exhibition and sale Saturday and next Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. The art to be shown is from the Marson Ltd. of Baltimore, Md., collection.

The oldest prints, dating to the 18th and 19th centuries, include Chinese woodcuts, Indian miniature paintings and manuscripts as well as master works by such artists as Hiroshige, Kunisada and Kuniyoshi. The modern pieces consist of a large group of original woodcuts, etchings, lithographs, serigraphs and mezzotints by contemporaries Azechi, Katsuda, Maki, Mori and Saito.

Prints will be shown in open portfolios, in an informal atmosphere. The public is invited to browse through the collection. The price range is wide to appeal to budgets of potential buyers. The museum is located at 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

STILL IN ORIENTAL theme is another exhibit, this one to be at California State Museum of Science and Industry from Saturday through May 1, 1978. The museum joined with the Consulate General of the Republic of China to arrange the show, "Chinese Culture in Focus."

Artifacts and reproductions of China's priceless and spectacular jade, ivory, ceramics, embroidery, bronze, paintings, and carvings in wood, bamboo, stone and horn will portray the many cultural aspects of the Chinese people. On the opening day from 2 to 5 p.m. a special ceremony will be sponsored by the museum and the Los Angeles Area Chinese-American Communities. This will include traditional Chinese cultural events, dragon, lion and serpent dances, classical and folk dances, folk songs, Chinese music, a Kung Fu demonstration and demonstrations of Chinese drawing and calligraphy.

Other special programs of dance, music, drama and literature are scheduled throughout the exhibition period.

When Kublai Khan, the Mongol emperor, conquered China in the 13th century, many Chinese scholars were discovered living as hermits while creating naturalistic landscape paintings. They were perpetuating a tradition of devotion to art that has characterized China for more than 10,000 years.

Much of the art in the Los Angeles exhibit reveals the history of China, tracing religious, philosophical and social changes from dynasty to dynasty. The largest painting in the show — it is 111 feet long — depicts the Great China Wall. The smallest object, an unbelievable one-fifth of an inch by one-eighth of an inch — is a grain of rice, intricately carved. Presumably, it will be displayed under a magnifier.

There are bone needles, discovered in neolithic cave dwellings, which suggest that the art of embroidery existed 10,000 years ago. Ceramics, traced back to 5,000 B.C. have been found along the Yellow River, birthplace of Chinese civilization. Photography joins other art forms as a modern expression of Chinese life and times.

The museum, at 700 State Drive in Exposition Park, Los Angeles, is open daily from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

POLAND is the subject of an exhibit at Norwalk Library, 12350 Imperial Highway, which will continue through July. Displays include salt from the mine in Wieliczka, pieces of coal and a replica of a miner's lantern from Katowice, the large, carved eagle from Rzeszow and crystal and cut glass from the Rzeszow area. The first factory which the Polish people built in Jamestown in 1608 was a glass factory.

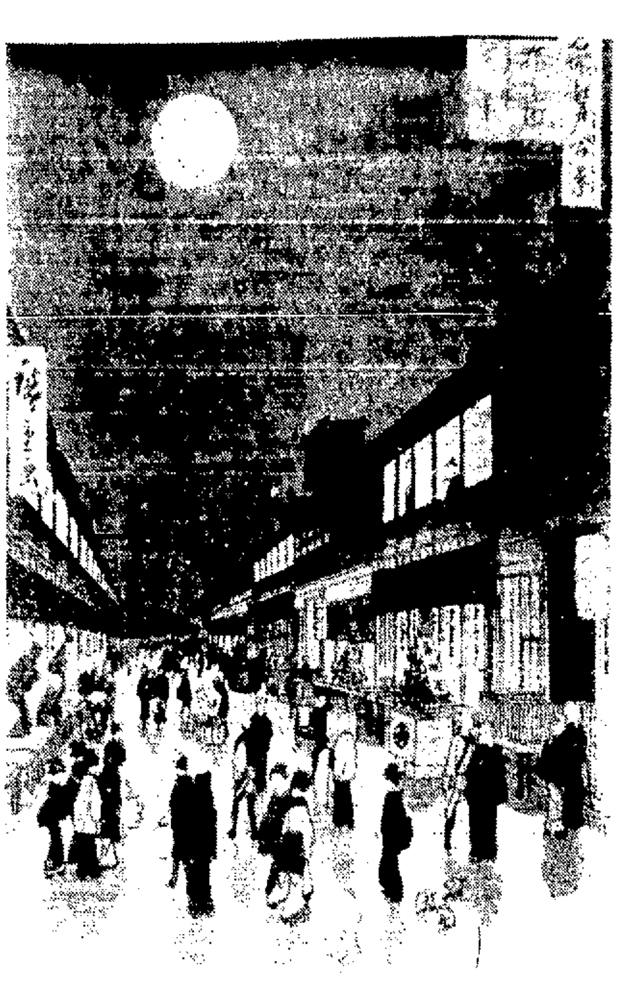
Other objects being shown are dolls carved from wood and dressed in authentic costumes of various regions in Poland; jewelry boxes, carved plates and mountaineers' walking canes from Zakopane in the Tatra Mountains adjoining Czechoslovakia, amber necklaces from Oliwa on the Baltic Sea, coins, stamps and other items.

Articles in the show are on loan from Mr. and Mrs. Chester Kilis and from the Polish National Catholic Church, the Guardian Angel Church, in Los Angeles.

THURSDAY, Ken Decker will paint a watercolor of a rural American scene at a meeting of Lakewood Artist Guild at 7:30 p.m. in Mayfair Park, Clark Avenue and South Street. The public is invited.

DON LAGERBERG chose these winners in Palos Verdes Community Arts Association's current show: Susan McNeill, $250; Teal Dennen, $150; and Pat Cox, $100. There also are 10 artists who won honorable mentions.

The show will hang through July 24 at Palos Verdes Community Arts Center, 5504 W. Crestridge Road, Rancho Palos Verdes. Of 233 entries, Lagerberg, professor of art at California State University, Fullerton, chose 73 for exhibit.



'NIGHTTIME in Saruwakacho,' right, is a color woodcut by Japanese artist Ando Hiroshige (1797-1858) whose work will be in Long Beach Museum of Art show.

THESE IVORY statuettes of the Eight Immortals of Taoism, below, carved about 1900 A.D., are part of 'Chinese Culture in Focus' exhibit which will open Saturday at California State Museum of Science and Industry.

Time near for Serenades

Long Beach Symphony will inaugurate its 1977 summer Starlight Serenades Wednesday, July 13. Each of the five programs in the series will begin at 8 p.m in Recreation Park, Seventh Street and Park Avenue; admission is free. Many concert-goers arrive early to enjoy picnic suppers before the outdoor programs.

The Starlight Serenades were started July 24, 1962, under sponsorship of the Long Beach Symphony Association and the Independent, Press-Telegram. Each program is attended by thousands of listeners who sit on benches, bring their own chairs or spread blankets on the lawn. It's an all-ages affair; families bring infants and toddlers, teen-agers come singly and in groups, and adults range from young to aged.

THE JULY 13 bill will feature Don Ray, one of Hollywood's best-known composer-conductors. He will direct the Long Beach Symphony in a program of dance music from around the world; Johnnie Carl will be piano soloist.

July 20, Larry Granger will conduct the Southeast Youth Symphony. Ray will return July 27 to conduct the Long Beach Symphony in music from Spain. The Valley Chamber Youth Orchestra, conducted by Thomas Osborn, will perform Aug. 3. The series will conclude with Ray again conducting the symphony in a program of Slavic music Aug. 10.

Hyer, Carlson to attend conference

John Hyer, manager of the Long Beach Symphony Orchestra, and Alberta Carlson, president of the Symphony Guild, will be among more than 1,000 representatives of orchestras who will attend the American Symphony Orchestra League's 32nd National Conference Monday through Friday at the Fairmont Hotel in New Orleans. Theme of the conference is "Symphony and All That Jazz."

Conductors, managers, officers, board members, women's guild members, and musicians from more than 420 orchestras are expected to attend as are music critics, publishers and other music industry leaders.

Summer sight reading orchestra now forming

Musicians are invited to join Long Beach City College's Summer Sight Reading Orchestra Mondays and Wednesdays at 7 p.m. from Monday through Aug. 12.

Dr. Michael Pappone will direct. Half of each class meeting will be spent preparing for a community concert the group will perform Sunday, Aug. 7; the other half will consist of sight reading new materials, including works of Bruckner, Elgar, Strauss, Debussy and others.

Registration information is available in the LBCC summer schedule of classes, available on LBCC campuses and in public libraries, or by calling the LBCC office of admissions and records.

DEL ALLEN
Everything from mussels to crab

MANY WIVES, bless their souls, admit candidly that they can't prepare seafoods they way they're broiled at the Seafood Broiler restaurant in Lakewood.

So that's why quite a few wives will help their husbands celebrate Father's Day today by taking them to dinner at the Broiler on Candlewood Street just east of Lakewood Boulevard. The Seafood Broiler will serve its big variety of seafood dinners from 11 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Those seafoods are so delectable and the place is so popular that the best times to visit on Sunday are from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. or after 4 p.m. when it's apt to be less thronged.

The Seafood Broiler is a large restaurant directly across Candlewood Street from Lakewood Center. Its owners are Del Allen and Steve Stiefel. Both are food and restaurant experts. Del has the most expertise with seafoods and it took him years to develop the Broiler's technique of cooking its seafoods over natural wood coals. The broilers are behind glass in the dining room, enabling the customers to watch the chefs as they cook red snapper, crab, shrimp, scallops, salmon and other varieties. The broiling is done swiftly, turning out delicacies that are moist, tender and scrumptious.

New on the menu are imported mussels, from Korea and France. These are shellfish which resemble small oysters and taste like chicken livers. They are broiled on skewers and are extremely popular, $2.50 for luncheon and $3.50 for dinner. The dinners offer your choice of three of the following: coleslaw or potatoes or cherry tomatoes or rice pilaf or corn cobbett. You also receive bread and butter, fresh lemon wedge and tartar sauce or red cocktail sauce.

Some of the Seafood Broiler's entrees are fresh, others are shipped frozen. Currently in season are fresh Dungeness crabs from Oregon. They are shipped packed in ice. Sweet and tender, the crabs are served cracked and chilled with red sauce. The serving, $4.95, is about 12 ounces. Manager Dave Christie reports that this season's crabs are particularly large and choice.

The Broiler serves luncheon Mondays through Saturdays, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Among the entrees: Pacific red snapper, $2.65 for luncheon and $3.75 for dinner; Atlantic whitefish, $2.65 and $3.85; sea bass, $2.95 and $3.95; oysters with bacon on a skewer, $2.75 and $3.95; eastern scallops with bacon on a skewer, $3.35 and $4.95; Chinook salmon, $3.75 and $5.50; halibut, $3.50 and $5.75. Also featured are clam chowder, seafood cocktails, smoked fish appetizers, seafood salads, wine and beer. The restaurant's fish market, open from 10 a.m. on, has many varieties of fresh fish.

IN THE NOT SO DISTANT PAST, women were reluctant to visit bars in the middle of the day, preferring to let the men take over.

But now things are different. An example is the Keona bar and dining room, 1115 E. Wardlow Road near Orange Avenue. At lunch time on week days its clientele is about evenly divided between men and women.

Women executives, working wives, salesladies and others like to drop in for luncheon and a cocktail. Many enjoy the combination of the Keona's huge shrimp cocktail with a fruit daiquiri. The Keona's shrimp cocktail has long been proclaimed the biggest and best in town for $1.25; it's all shrimp, no celery filler. Owner Chuck Heckel's daiquiris are works of art. Currently in season are fresh strawberry daiquiris. Before long, fresh peach daiquiris will be in season. Fresh banana daiquiris are served all year round.

Chuck and his wife Peggy (who will mark their 31st wedding anniversary July 4) have owned the Keona since the late 1950s. Peggy has unusual skill at decorating. Her ideas have transformed the separate dining room into an attractive, cheerful place. One corner of the room has a stone and steel grill broiler where the guests cook their own steaks. The dining room offers its special top sirloin steak for $2.95 day and night every day, including Sundays and holidays. Included are salad, baked potato bread and butter and a darned good, choice steak that weighs about eight ounces.

It takes only minutes to broil the steak on the grill over the open flames. Many husbands like to grill steaks for their wives, inviting them to relax from their cooking duties at home. Also featured are the bullseye steak, $3.75, and the Australian lobster tail (cooked by the Keona chef) for $5.75. The choice of salad dressings includes Peggy's special French dressing, extremely good.

Mondays through Fridays from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., the Keona has special luncheons which are delicious top values. On Mondays, the special for $1.95 is meaty prime rib bones. On Tuesdays the special is hamburger steak or perhaps sauteed chicken livers, $1.95. The popular special on Wednesdays is the open-face prime rib au jus sandwich, $2.75. On Thursdays the entree is the steak sandwich, $2.50. On Fridays, the choice may be meatloaf, pork tenderloin or pepper steak, $1.95. The entrees come with salad and choice of potatoes: baked, French fries or cottage fries.

In-sights

Young son's insecurity gives family fits

Dear Dr. Menninger.

I have a seven and a half year old son who has been driving me up the wall for the past few months.

If I go out of the house for the slightest thing — take the garbage out, put the dog out, check the mail — he thinks he should be with me. If I refuse to let him go, he will stand and watch me all the way.

If I don't come back as soon as he thinks I should, he begins to cry. When he leaves for school in the morning, he wants to know what I am going to do during the day and if I am going anyplace.

He will stay with a sitter, but if my husband and I are not back when he thinks we should be, he once again starts crying.

When he goes to bed at night, he will tell me good night a half a dozen times, saying, "I'll see you in the morning." If I don't answer him the same way, he gets upset. Then he gets up in the middle of the night and comes into my bedroom to make sure I am in bed.

We are a close family, just the three of us. My husband and I were married 15 years before our son was born. We have never left him alone. He usually goes anyplace we do, however he has never refused to stay with a sitter if it was necessary or if we wanted to go without him.

We had a death in the family (an aunt) a year ago. He didn't seem upset at the time. He also saw a car accident a few months ago where a person was hurt quite badly. Those are the only things I can think of that might have any bearing on him.

As I said at the beginning, he is driving me crazy the way he is acting. I can't be out of his sight. I would like to know what you think is our problem. And how could or should we handle it?

Thank you. —H.M.

DEAR H.M.:

Rarely will you find a parent who has not been worried at some time about the behavior of a child. Or been driven up the wall. A study found that most youngsters between five and eight have symptoms often associated with emotional disturbance, and some children have quite a few symptoms. Yet actually nothing may be seriously wrong.

I would assume that your son is anxious and upset about a separation from you because of thoughts or ideas about what that separation means to him. The challenge is to find out what is so upsetting to him.

Around this age, death or injury can be unsettling experiences. But he may be troubled by other unsettling thoughts or feelings. His need to restate his love and be reassured of your love may signal feelings of guilt or of being somehow a bad or unworthy boy in your eyes.

First, sit down with him and tell him you can't understand what is going on. Is he afraid you'll never come back? Why so? What kinds of thoughts does he have?

If he is unable to open up with you, perhaps he has with others. Ask the baby sitter and school teachers about their observations. Have they any ideas about what is upsetting him?

Also, when a child is unable to talk easily, you can often get a clue to the problem by observing his play. Sometimes he will make his conflict quite clear in the way he plays with his toys, or puppets, or friends.

Further, some people have been helped by books directed to parents, such as: Dr. Benjamin Spock's "Raising Children in a Difficult Time" (New York: W. W. Norton, 1974) of Haim Ginott's "Between Parent and Child" (New York: Macmillan, 1965).

If, after exploring these avenues, you are still stymied in understanding your child's struggle, then I would seek professional assistance from a child guidance service — such as a family and children's service, or a child psychiatrist or psychologist.

(Dr. Menninger invites your comments and questions. Write to him in care of the Independent, Press-Telegram. Because of the volume of mail, he cannot answer each individually but will handle questions of general interest in his column.)

Medicine and You

Doctor warns against silicone

ben zinser

The risks of liquid silicone injections for strictly cosmetic purposes far outweigh any possible benefits, says an editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Silicone has been used to smoothe facial wrinkles or to enlarge the female breast.

The serious medical problems of women who have had liquid silicone injected into their breasts is now well known. Even gross disfigurement has been reported.

But similar problems have arisen after silicone injections for cosmetic purposes into the face, hands and abdomen, says Dr. Charles A. Vinnik, Las Vegas, Nev., in the editorial.

Dr. Vinnik says the breast complications occur an average of five years after injection. The liquid migrates elsewhere in the body to cause serious medical problems. Facial problems for those who have had injections for wrinkles occur eight to 15 years after injection.

The doctor notes, however, that injectable silicone may outweigh the risks in correcting certain cases of disfiguring facial conditions from accident or disease.

Malaria report

Simple starvation may decrease the severity of malaria and other infections, says a research team at the University of Minnesota.

Inadequate amounts of vitamin E in particular can be beneficial in malaria patients, says John W. Eaton, Ph. D., in a report prepared for the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Explains Dr. Eaton:

Deficiency of the vitamin predisposes the malaria-infected cell to premature destruction. This releases the parasite in its immature form. Thus it is likely to be destroyed.

The incidence of the disease may suddenly rise in areas when an inadequate diet is supplemented with vitamins and calories, reports Modern Medicine, a periodical for doctors.

Hypnosis and pain

Hypnosis can be helpful in the control of chronic pain, says Dr. Harold J. Wain.

Dr. Wain, director of the psychiatric liaison service at the Forest Glen, Md., campus of Walter Reed Army Medical Center, says hypnosis has been used to treat pain such as that from tension and migraine headaches and the low back.

In some cases, results have been striking, the doctor reports.

In one instance, a child with severe headaches had been treated for four years by conventional medical means. Within a short time after hypnotherapy the child gained control over his pain and was playing with other children again.

The technique has even been used to control cancer pain, he says.

A detailed report of how Dr. Wain uses hypnosis to treat pain appears in U. S. Medicine, a newspaper for physicians.

Heroin use up

Heroin use is again growing steadily, according to the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

New surveys of drug use show new heroin use is greatest among persons 18 to 21 and is unlikely to occur before age 13 or after age 25.

About three years ago drug abuse officials said there had been an apparent drop in heroin use, according to Internist Reporter, a newspaper for doctors.

ira corn

on bridge

Dear Mr. Corn:

Is there such a bid as a close out? With these hands, if opener jumps to three no trump is this a jump shift or a close out? We made six no trump.

Opener	Resp.
♠ A Q 10 7	♠ 9 4 3
♥ K J	♥ A 6 5
♦ A K 8 6	♦ Q 9 4 3
♣ A 7 5	♣ K 3 2

Open.	Resp.
3NT	Pass

Missed It, Slidell, La

Answer: There are close out bids and in the situation you describe, three no trump is a close-out. Responder has limited his hand to 6 to 10 points and opener has jumped to game, showing a strong hand with little chance for slam.

The same principle applies when opener bids a descriptive and limited one or two no trump and responder jumps directly to game.

If you made six no trump, you took every trick that wasn't nailed down. Actually, I would not like to be in any slam although six diamonds is probably the best of a bad lot.

Dear Mr. Corn:

In duplicate bridge are any redeals permitted when a hand is passed out after it is first dealt? Several local life masters insist that this is O.K., but I was taught differently.

Two Swipes,
Indianapolis, Ind.

Answer: No redeals are authorized after no player has bid (law 22). Some modify the laws to suit local custom, however, the law has a purpose and I agree with no redeals. If redeals were permitted, hardly any group would ever pass out a hand since they would know that it had been played previously. This practice might not only distort the bidding, it might also delay progress of the game.

Dear Mr. Corn:

My partner opened four hearts and I tried for slam. She showed one ace and I stopped at five. How should these hands be bid?

Opener	Resp.
♠ K J 7	♠ A 8
♥ A K J 9 8 7 6 5 2	♥ Q
♦ 7	♦ A K 9 3
♣ —	♣ J 10 9 8 4 2

13 Tricks, Riverside, Calif.

Answer: The one bid I totally disagree with is the four heart opening. While no one really knows how to handle nine card suits, this hand is much too strong for a four heart preempt.

Accurate bidding requires the use of cue bids to pinpoint aces, kings and voids after the jump rebid establishes the trump suit. A possible sequence is:

Open.	Resp.
1♥	2♣
3♥	4♦
5♥	5♠ [illegible]
6♣ [illegible]	7♥

Dear Mr. Corn:

I opened a game demand bid of two diamonds with this hand. Was I too far off base.

♠ A K 8 5
♥ Q J 10 2
♦ A Q J 6 5

No Missed Games, Gloversville, N.Y.

Answer: Depends on whether or not you were caught stealing. In standard methods, the hand is too light for a game demand. However, if one does open only one diamond, partner might have a bad hand with a five card major that may produce an easy game.

International fashions to be shown in Carson

An international fashion show will take place Saturday in the Carson Mall community room, sponsored by the Sister City Committee of Carson.

In keeping with the theme of the 5 to 11 p.m. event, songs and dances of many nations will be featured, including belly dancing.

Tickets are $5 each and reservations may be made with Dr. Lucy Cabieles, 835-6602 or Lily Ines, 635-0509.

Sinait-Ilocos Sur, a coastal town in Luzon, the Philippines, is Carson's Sister City.

Student summer travel programs still open

By Herb Shannon
I-P-T Travel Editor

Two established programs of summer study in Europe are still open to enrollment by Southland high school, college and university students. Some junior high school programs are included in eight American Institute for Foregn Study (AIFS) tours, while free scholarships are available to full-time college students under the "Encounter Ireland," program co-sponsored by the Council on International Educational Exchange (CIEE), and the Union of Students in Ireland.

Don Karvelis, Long Beach area AIFS administrator, points out that all of the high school study programs beginning the last week of this month and the first week of July have room for a few more students. The application deadline for the college-level "Encounter Ireland" summer scholarships has been extended to July 8.

AIFS programs for senior high school students range from two to five weeks and encompass study at Cambridge and Aberdeen Universities in Britain, with travel throughout the European continent from the North Sea to the Greek Islands and touching distant shores of the Mediterranean at Egypt and Turkey.

FORMAL scholastics, including literature, music, debating, oceanography and geology, are on the light side, allowing ample time for learning through travel experiences. A special four-week junior high program, "Peoples of Europe," visiting Switzerland, France, Belgium, Holland and England, starts June 30 and runs through July 27.

"Heart of Bavaria," shortest of the AIFS tours at two weeks and also the first to depart, will include a Rhine cruise through Germany as well as visits to London, Amsterdam, Paris and Salzburg, starting June 27.

"Crossroads of Culture," a four-week high school level program starting June 28 combines visits to London and Stratford in England with a homestay in Holland, and a cruise on the upper Rhine and side trips to Austria, Italy and a stop in Paris on the return. "Traditional England," another four-week tour starting July 7, also includes visits to Paris and Rome on the continent.

FOUR AIFS programs of five weeks duration allow more scope for study as well as more extensive travel experiences. The first, "Living Scotland and Western Mediterranean," begins June 30 in Britain and continues to Aug. 3 with a cruise to the French and Italian Rivieras, Tunisia in North Africa, and the islands of Majorca, Malta, Sicily and Capri.

Three other five-week tours begin July 7. "Traditional England and the Greek Islands" includes the capitals of London, Paris, Rome, and Athens before sailing on to Dubrovnic on the Adriatic. "Classical Civilization" adds visits to London, Cairo, Pompeii and a cruise to Mykonos, Crete, Rhodes and Turkey to studies of ancient and current Greek culture. "Comparative Cultures" is primarily a land and air tour through England, Holland, France, Spain, and Italy.

All of the AIFS tours are accompanied by experienced escorts and counselors from Long Beach area and Orange County schools. Full information on the tours is available from Donald S. Korvelis, 3063 Kallin Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90808.

LAUNCHED last year, the CIEE "Encounter Ireland" program provides scholarships valued at more than $300 for study in Ireland to qualified full-time students of American colleges and universities.

Each scholarship includes a curriculum of study, discussion and living experiences in Ireland from July 14 to Aug. 12, with the final week free for travel throughout the Republic.

The extension of the deadline for scholarship applications to July 8 opens up the program to students traveling to Europe independently of the travel arrangements operated by the program sponsors. Those traveling to Britain or Europe by other means may now join the program from those destinations instead of flying directly from the U.S. to Ireland.

Guest lecturers for the study program in Dublin this year include Irish statesman Dr. Conor Cruise O'Brien, playwright Hugh Leonard and Ireland's foremost actor Niall Toibin. Focus of the studies will be Irish history, politics, music, literature and theater, with a special seminar on Brendan Behan. The contributions of Irish women also will be explored.

Scholarships provide students with the first three weeks' acommodations and meals with Irish families in Dublin, and the final week free for independent travel. Each participant will receive a three-week bus pass for use in Dublin and a rail pass good for unlimited travel throughout Ireland during the fourth week.

Each scholarship candidate is required to submit a 500-word essay about personal interrests and reasons for wanting to visit Ireland. Also necessary are two passport-sized photos, a reference from a college professor and an official application form. Deadline for submissions is July 8.

Application forms are available from CIEE, Encounter Ireland Program, 777 United Nations Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Catalina Cruises for summer

Catalina Cruise boats are now operating eight departures daily to Avalon from Long Beach and San Pedro under new schedules for the summer vacation season.

Long Beach-Catalina Cruise vessels leave five times daily from the pier at 330 Golden Shore Blvd. in downtown Long Beach. Departure times are 8 a.m., 9 a.m., 12:15 p.m., 1:45 p.m. and 5:15 p.m. On Fridays and Saturdays the 5:15 boat is moved to 7 p.m.

Catalina Island Cruises leave San Pedro three times daily from the terminal at Berth 86, under the Vincent Thomas Bridge approach. Departure times are 9 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

All cruises under the new schedules are aboard the same triple-deck, 700-passenger vessels used year around.

We have a Caribbean vacation leaving Los Angeles every Friday.

And we give you a choice of one week. Or two.

If you're looking for a one week vacation, we recommend Song of Norway. More Californians sail aboard Song of Norway than any other 7-day cruise ship in the Caribbean.

If you're planning on getting away for two weeks—we offer Sun Viking or Nordic Prince—the two most popular two week cruise ships in the Caribbean.

Last year alone more than 25,000 Californians vacationed with us. You probably know some of them. So talk to them.

They'll tell you about our ships, our service, our entertainment, our food. (Everyone loves to talk about our food!)

And, they'll tell you that we're one of the best vacation values going. Anywhere.

See your travel agent. He'll tell you the same thing.

Then join us. Aboard one of our Air/Sea Cruises soon. Who knows, you may run into one of your neighbors.

HOTELS AND HILLS OF SAN FRANCISCO

SAN FRANCISCO — "I see you know all the best places," said the famous war correspondent, an acquaintance who happened to be checking out of the Beresford Hotel as I was checking in.

I gave him my modest Muhammad Ali smile and speedily switched subjects. The truth was that I'd "found" the modest-priced Beresford ($20-$22 single, $24-$26 double) because I'd lost most of my alternatives.

jane morse

The problem is that you can leave your heart in San Francisco, but, on the whole, the hoteliers prefer money. And these days that generally means $35 to $40 for minimum-priced singles, $40 to $50 for minimum doubles, with maximums hitting as high as $75 and $90 at all of the tonier hotels and even a good many motels. So if your objective is to do well for less, what then?

If the woman at the airport information desk knew, she wasn't telling. She was prepared to give names, prices and locations, period. No suggestions, much less hot tips.

TWO SORE feet and some days later, I arrived at my own conclusions. Yes, it is possible to cut those hotel costs way back without feeling that you might as well be in Siberia, and there are even some "small" San Francisco hotels that, for the money, are pretty fair bargains

First, I should say I like luxury, but I'll settle for charm. Given funds enough for a splurge, I'd demand both and be right up there on Nob Hill at the Stanford Court, possibly taking telephone calls in a marble-lined, decorator's dream of a bathroom or writing notes on the Stanford Court's superb stationery.

My second choice would be that Rolls-Royce of hostelries, the Huntington, one of the least commercialized, most elegant hotels in the country. The Clift belongs in the same league by many people's standards, but to me the atmosphere is too stiff, too much. "The Prussians have come, the Prussians have come."

The hands-down winner in the charm-plus-value-for-money category has to be the $25 singles and $35 doubles (rates do go higher) at The Raphael near Union Square. The furnishings are "hotel," but several cuts above the ordinary, and they obviously get tender, loving care. The lobby is small but smart. Pam-Pam East, a dark, leathery, 24-hour coffee shop with bar, is just next door with an entrance from the hotel as well.

ANY HOTEL that keeps a stash of books, magazines and newspapers for guests to read in its lobby and its rooms can't be all bad, and The Cartwright verges on being all good. It's a well-located (Sutter and Powell) older hotel that demonstrates the magic you can manage with color. Its 120 guest rooms are still fresh from a recent facelift and thoroughly agreeable, $18-$20 for singles, $22-$26 for two, and family suites of two adjoining rooms at $40-$45.

Up the street is the Canterbury, a 225-room spot that ought to be better than it is, but still deserves thought for its minimum-priced rooms. At $22 for a minimu single, $28 for a double or twin, it offers air-conditioning, color TV, a garage, pleasant bar, coffee shop and The Greenhouse, a uniquely decorated restaurant that functions under a load of live plants. Furnishings above and below are comfortable, with extra touches like a sprinkling of antiques in the lobby and free coffee-makers in rooms.

NEARBY is the high-rise Barrett Motor Hotel, which is that uncommon thing: a new place (built in 1971) for motorists in the heart of downtown. Its minimum doubles at $36 a night (plus $2.50 a day for in-and-out parking) may not sound like "steals," but they are. The Kyoto Inn is even newer (September, 1975) and offers about the most quality-for-money in motels, with singles starting at $23, doubles at $29, free parking and no charge for children under 12.

Newest sleeper (pun intended) is another in-town inn. The Bed and Breakfast Inn has opened in a cul-de-sac near the Union Street shopping area in a gracious old gingerbread charmer of a house. There, at No. 4 Charlton Court, Marily and Bob Ravanaugh rent five generally flower-filled rooms that share three baths. There's a scattering of antiques around and the $25 to $35 price includes a coffee, juice, and croissant breakfast.

BUT WHAT can you do on still less money? Suffer to some degree or other, of course. I'd say singles would survive best at the Regent, the Yerba Buena (both in the Union Square area) and the Grand Central (in the Civic Center area), in that order. All three have had recent overhauls by people with taste, look fresh and clean and feature "European-style" rooms (bath down the hall, no air-conditioning or TV) for $8.50, $8-$9 and $9-$10, respectively — more, of course, for other types of rooms.

Considering the high cost of downtown San Francisco real estate and soaring utility rates, these will be bargain buys as long as these prices last. Even better, the rooms are not quite the assault on your senses that bare-bones budgeters generally find waiting for them. But like all San Francisco hotels, they expect to be full most of this summer, so you'd better start thinking about reservations now.

Macau in the good old days

stan delaplane

Macau (Portuguese China)

We used to come over from Hong Kong on the river steamer Tak Shing. Loaded with chattering coolies below. Whisky-sodas on the posh upper deck for the posh tourists. Headed for the opium dens and the gambling hells of Macau.

British officers in starched whites stood on the navigation bridge. The doors were double-barred. A curtain of barbed wire laced in front of the bridge. (Insurance against a sudden takeover by river pirates.)

Black soldiers from Portuguese Africa marched stiffly along the border entrance. On the other side, Red Chinese soldiers in sloppy grey uniforms stood guard belligerently.

We used to check in at the wicked old Central Hotel. Walk out of our rooms to the central lightwell. You could look down and see the feverish gambling of the fantan tables.

For us — the elite — they sent up wicker baskets. We put our bets in them. Lowered them to the tables five or six floors below.

THERE WAS opium. Prostitutes. Smuggling and guns and lanterned alleys.

We all looked like Errol Flynn. (At least we thought we did.)

As usual Hong Kong is hot, rainy and noisy. Caught a Cathay Pacific plane from Manila. Got picked up by an air-conditioned Rolls Royce from the grand old Peninsula Hotel.

"Pen" was to be torn down and replaced last year. But now they're going to keep it. Just bought a new fleet of eight Rolls to ferry guests from the airport.

"The Pen" has wonderful, high-ceilinged rooms. Including the bathrooms with six-feet high windows.

When William Holden was staying here — (making "The World of Suzie Wong") — he looked out the bathroom window one day. Discovered the opposite rooftop was lined with Chinese girl admirers. They'd found out his room number and were cheering him on.

WE BOOM over to Macau now in 70 minutes on a speedy hydrofoil. Alas, the wicked city has become classy.

The old Central, the wicker betting baskets, the chattery fantan games are gone. Now they have the Lisboa — 600 rooms. As vulgar-rich as any you'll find in Las Vegas.

Blackjack is the favorite. There are roulette tables and a three-dice game called High-Low.

Rooms run $16 to $25. A visa is $5. Hydrofoil ride, $7. Exit fee from Hong Kong, $1.60. Local money is the petaca. Par with HK dollars, now $4.50 HK for $1 U.S.

We picked up Jose De Aquino as a guide. (Turned out to be the brother-in-law of Iva Toguri d'Aquino "Tokyo Rose" recently pardoned by President Ford.)

"Actually the Chinese don't mind," said De Aquino. He was born in Japan. Macau gets a lot of Japanese tourists. He keeps busy. Pays a five per cent "refugee tax."

MACAU IS only 2½ miles long. Has 300,000 people. You sightsee it in an hour or so.

A couple of blocks from the border, a Levi Strauss factory makes blue jeans. Enough work to bring five or six "refugees" a day from Red China.

"Sometimes the Red guards fire a shot. But generally they don't care. These aren't political refugees. Just people looking for a job."

The blue jeans factory is at a creek called Duck Channel. In the old days — (with black soldiers stamping guard in British drill fashion) — droves of ducks crossed the border here.

They were driven in quacking flocks by farmer women. (Macau imports food from Red China.)

Occasionally, a black soldier grabbed a duck at random. Punched its stomach. And, if he bet right, the duck would lay a gold coin. Like laying an egg.

Gold was smuggled that way. Stuffed into live ducks.

But those were the good old days. When all of us were Errol Flynns. Oh, yes.

PEDICAB driver waits for sightseeing customers outside the ornate Oriental entrance to new Lisboa Hotel in Macau.

Eastern Canada excursions

The gateway cities of Montreal and Toronto are featured in a new series of Canadian tours offered by American Airlines, which has added direct Los Angeles-Montreal service to its Canadian routes.

The four-day Montreal tour includes hotel accommodations, sightseeing excursions and lunch or dinner in a choice of French restaurants for as low as $98 per person on a double occupancy basis, plus air fare.

A four-day Toronto tour is priced at $88 per person, double hotel accommodation, plus air fare, with sightseeing and dining features.

There also are economical seven-day fly/drive tours for both destinations. Details and brochures are available from American Airlines offices and local travel agents.

New free travel classes

"Travel Sense," a free six-week adult education course in vacation planning, will hold its first session Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the library of the Gahr High School, Cerritos.

Guest lecturers from transportation firms and field trips to cruise ships in port will be included. Full information is available from instructor Carole Beebe of Atlas Travel, Long Beach.

No free lunch on CN

Meals are not included in the price of sleeping-car tickets on Canadian National Railways transcontinental trains, as reported in a feature story in the I.P-T special Canada travel section June 12.

The inclusive meal fare was discontinued shortly after the material for the article was prepared. The railway story originally was scheduled for an earlier issue.

A choice of meals is available on CN's coast-to-coast "Super Continental" at the regular dining car rates, according to Gene Thompson, regional representative for the railroad.

Thompson said other information in the article pertaining to CN operations is correct, including supervised play periods with books and toys for children, adult games and free stopovers at points along the route between Vancouver and Montreal.

Further information on rail travel in Canada may be obtained by writing CNR, 1330 Broadway, Room 1017, Oakland, Calif. 94612.

Workshop

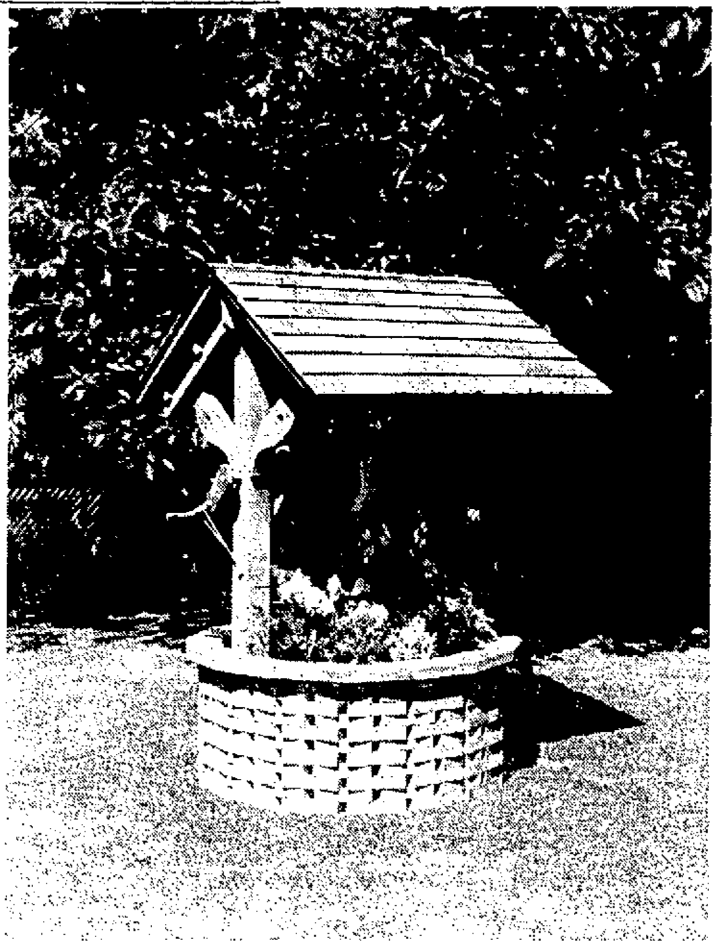
Even if you aren't an American history buff, you will appreciate the handsome wishing well shown here. In addition to its decorative and rustic charm, it can also be a practical garden center.

The old oaken bucket may be planted with flowers while attractive pots can line the ledges. The well also serves as a novel centerpiece for outdoor entertaining. When the bucket is used for ice, the ledge may be used for hors d'oeuvres, beverages and so forth.

The bricks for this easy project are cut from standard lumber sizes (available from all lumber and home centers) so there's no messy, tricky brick-laying necessary. Redwood or red cedar are recommended as either of these require practically no maintenance. The full-size pattern lists the necessary materials along with step-by-step instructions and photographs showing all the steps in building. This is truly an inexpensive project and something that will last a lifetime.

To obtain the Wishing Well pattern No. 371 (via first class mail), send $2.50. Or you can order our No. C-23 packet (9 different lawn and garden projects including the wishing well) for only $6.50. Send check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Independent Press-Telegram Pattern Dept., P.O. Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.

New! Our 100-page Patterns for Better Living project book featuring more than 500 woodworking and handicraft projects...$1.50 (includes postage and handling).



OLD-FASHIONED wishing well filled with flowers instead of water makes charming addition to back yard or patio.

Rid your home of carbon tet

The sale of carbon tetrachloride is banned for home use by the Food and Drug Administration. But somehow there appears to be some still in use. For example, I was doing a question-and-answer radio program in Kansas City a while ago, and one person called in to tell me what excellent results she had using it for removing spots.

How it gets into homes I don't know. Perhaps some family member works in a lab or industry and brings it home, or it could be a leftover supply. At any rate, GET RID OF IT IMMEDIATELY. It can be lethal, which is why it's banned.

Carbon tetrachloride is dangerous in that it is highly toxic by ingestion, inhalation and skin absorption and can cause liver damage and other serious complications. But even more serious than that is the fact that under certain conditions it can cause immediate death, especially to young children.

When carbon tetrachloride comes in contact with heat it produces phosgeue gas, the deadly poison gas of World War I. This gas is over five times the weight of air, and herein lies a great danger. There are many cases on record where carbon tet has been used for removing spots and then a hot iron was used to dry the area. In doing so, phosgeue gas was produced which then fell to the floor where children were playing, causing death.

So if uou have any carbon tetrachloride in your home — you may find it in labeled bottles or in those glass globe type fire extinguishers that hang on the wall — get rid of it. You could easily save a life.

L.B. officers' gunplay ended with death of I,P-T reporter

William B. Hunter, 35, award-winning reporter for the Independent, Press-Telegram, was shot accidentally and killed almost instantly at 12:05 a.m. today in the pressroom of the Long Beach Police Department.

The bullet was discharged from a revolver dropped, then quickly picked up by Det. Creighton Wiggins Jr., one of Hunter's close friends.

I P-T, April 23, 1964

BILL HUNTER

Two Long Beach police detectives have admitted playing a game of "cops and robbers" with loaded revolvers which ended in the death of Independent, Press-Telegram reporter William B. Hunter, Police Chief William Mooney said today.

The two detectives, he said, changed their original stories about the gunshot death of the 35-year-old reporter early Thursday while he sat quietly reading a novel at his desk in the police pressroom.

I P-T, April 24, 1964

By Larry LaRue
Staff Writer

It rained April 22, 1964, and Errol Greanleaf was feeling just lousy enough to call in sick. He didn't.

Midway through his shift, sitting in an unmarked police car with his partner, Det. Creighton Wiggins Jr., Greenleaf still felt bad. He talked about going home early. He didn't.

Instead, Long Beach Police Det. Errol Greenleaf, a nine-year veteran, sat through a rainy night with his partner simply because the two wanted to play cards with a friend.

The friend was Bill Hunter, the Independent Press-Telegram's police reporter. It was not unusual on slow nights for Greenleaf, Wiggins and Hunter to play pinochle in the station press room.

THE THREE were friends. The two officers had on occasion taken Hunter along on important arrests. Hunter had written several stories on cases Greenleaf and Wiggins had worked.

But tonight nothing was happening. Rainy nights keep criminals, like everyone else, off the street. The two had been partners nearly two years, seen a few nights like this. They'd made good busts. Had good times.

Wiggins was a second generation cop, his father an inspector with LBPD. He was 31, a seven-year-veteran with a reputation as a good officer who often seemed anxious to prove himself his father's equal on the force.

Greenleaf, 32, had seen that in Wiggins. There were times he was overzealous. Times he was tougher than necessary. But together the two earned more than a dozen police citations apiece.

They were a Mutt and Jeff pair, Greenleaf tall and thin, Wiggins inches shorter and stocky. As partners, they were loyal to each other, and though they rarely saw one another off duty, they had been a good team from the beginning. So good, in fact, that early in April when Greenleaf had requested a transfer, the personnel captain — Ralph Kortz — said no.

A LITTLE before midnight, Wiggins and Greenleaf entered the station, their raincoats dripping, and completed routine paperwork on the third floor.

That done, they walked to the elevator. As they waited, Wiggins bent over the drinking fountain and his tie fell under the flow of water.

On the elevator, heading for the second floor press room, Greenleaf looked at Wiggin's tie and broke up. Called him sloppy. Wiggins worked up a serious face and drew his .38 caliber revolver in a threatening gesture.

The two of them laughed. Wiggins put his gun away. The elevator doors opened.

In the hallway, Wiggins stopped briefly when Sgt. John Coleman asked if he was going down the hall to "further your press relations."

Greenleaf walked on alone, down an empty hallway, his 6-foot-7, thin frame still under the raincoat. He was thinking about a couple of quick hands of pinochle and then home to the wife and kids.

HE LOOKED back over his shoulder, saw Wiggins, now trailing him, fake a fast draw and come up empty handed, grinning like a Boy Scout. Greenleaf ducked into the press room.

Hunter, a stocky, bespectacled 35 years old, sat with his feet on his typewriter, leaning back in his chair, engrossed in "Stop This Man!", a mystery novel.

Greenleaf said hello, and Hunter flipped a page, said hello without looking up.

On impulse, Greenleaf pulled his own snub-nose .38 and without even looking down the hall, stuck the gun around the doorjam. He held it with his fingers touching just the butt, not the trigger, and he holstered it after just a quick show.

It was an old gag — like pretending to be spying on someone by sticking just your eyeglasses around a corner.

He walked to a desk in the back of the room and took off his raincoat. Errol Greenleaf's back was to the door when Creighton Wiggins walked in.

Wiggins had his gun in his hand, cocked. He was sneaking into the room to get the drop on his partner again. But he squeezed the trigger, and the room roared.

THE GUNSHOT scared the hell out of Greenleaf. He jerked around and knew immediately it was bad. He'd jumped at the sound of the shot. Bill Hunter, sitting less than 4 feet from where Wiggins stood, hadn't moved.

Wiggins was pale already, the .38 still in his hand. "Jesus, Bill, are you hit?"

Greenleaf started across the room, everything in slow motion. Wiggins was on his knees beside Hunter, his hands running over his arms, checking for a wound, finding nothing.

"Bill . . . Bill . . ." Wiggins was near tears, and still Hunter sat, the book in his hands unmoved.

Errol Greenleaf was sick with fright. Sick at the stillness in Hunter's body. He touched Bill's head, pushed it back so he could look into his face.

Lawsuit planned in Women's Year dispute

By Barbara Bradley
Staff Writer

A member of an Orange County-based anti-Equal Rights Amendment group says her organization plans to file a class action suit against the California International Women's Year Committee because of alleged irregular voting practices at this weekend's state IWY conference at USC.

Betty Fusilier, of Los Angeles, told the Independent, Press-Telegram Saturday she expects the Citizens Review Committee to file the suit "as soon as we can get things documented."

The Citizens Review Committee, based in Orange County but with members also in other areas, is headed by Billy Bowles and Mary Schmitz, wife of 1972 presidential candidate John Schmitz, who ran on the American Independent Party ticket.

Mrs. Fusilier also identified herself as a member of the IWY nominating committee which drew up the list of 101 names nominated as California delegates to the national convention to be held in Houston.

But she charged that she was excluded from the final meeting of the committee and was unable to add candidates who represent the anti-ERA philosophy. Her charges were supported by members of the Stop ERA group.

The chief complaint, aside from the delegates themselves, was the confusion over voting regulations and the tree-shaded alumnae park where the voting took place for the more than 5,000 conference participants.

"I would have suggested a two-day voting period inside under more supervision," said Mrs. Fusilier as she pointed to the wide open area. "I'm supposed to be a poll monitor, and yet they asked me to stay outside the area. But look at the people walk around in there."

Evelyn Boswell of Anaheim said she was unhappy because no anti-ERA people had been allowed into the ballot area to help oversee the process.

She also expressed dissatisfaction with the noon Saturday cutoff of registration, which participants had to meet to have voting privileges, as well as the presence of large numbers of pro-ERA women

Factor in high costs

Housing red tape scored

By Dick Howland
Staff Writer

A popular trade joke in the housing industry is that it takes four years to obtain the necessary construction permits, four months to build a house and four days to sell it.

But the joke is not far from the truth and helps explain why the average purchase price of a home is soaring, a real estate leader said Saturday during a city-sponsored, day-long housing fair at Long Beach City College.

DON WIEDMANN

Don Wiedmann, first vice president of the California Association of Realtors, said builders are so hampered by the permit process that they can't keep up with the demand for new homes, and the lack of supply forces up prices for both new and existing homes.

He said several factors have contributed to an unprecedented demand for housing in California, including:

—The number of people entering the housing market is larger than ever because young men and women born during the post-World War II baby boom are now in the home-buying age bracket.

—Available land is scarce due to "slow-growth" regulations imposed by local governments.

—A slump in construction was caused by the recent recession.

—The high divorce rate in California, where one of two marriages breaks up, generates a need for more housing because divorcees often require two homes instead of one.

—The demand is high, but the supply is low because it takes so long to get all of the required permits from various city, county and state agencies.

"We need to reduce the red tape involved in construction and let the free enterprise system work," Wiedmann said. "Only then will the supply of homes meet the demand, with reasonable prices."

Another housing problem is the deterioration of existing dwellings

Sohio's Alaskan plans hit

Senator says transport inadequate

By Mark Gladstone
Staff Writer

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, criticized oil companies Saturday for constructing the now-completed trans-Alaskan oil pipeline but not making adequate plans for bringing the petroleum to the lower 48 states.

He was particularly critical of Standard Oil of Ohio (Sohio), which has proposed a $60-million oil tanker terminal for Long Beach and a 1,025-mile pipeline to bring the oil to Texas and other parts of the country.

"Either they had to be stupid or they were planning to export the oil," Metzenbaum said in an interview at the National Energy Dialogue, a forum at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Beverly Hills sponsored by the National Democratic Forum.

He said he could not comment on the specific merits of the Sohio proposal for Long Beach but that he would favor such a terminal "if the environmental concerns can be worked out," either on the California coast or along the coast of Washington.

Earlier this month the Southern California Air Quality Management District voted to issue air-quality permits to Sohio if it agreed to meet specific air standards and trade-offs. Sohio controls 54 per cent of the Alaskan oil field. The company has discussed the possibility of exchanging oil with Japan.

Metzenbaum, a member of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, was one of several speakers at the forum who expressed strong criticisms of

Kids tell how to dog the energy crisis

Barking dogs might help the nation ease the current energy shortage. At least that's the belief of one school child who wrote Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

Speaking Saturday at an energy forum in Beverly Hills, Cranston listed several suggestions he's received from youngsters. Among them:

—Barking dogs would be taught to yelp whenever their masters drove faster than 55 miles per hour.

—Travelers to oil-rich countries should bring back a bottle of oil.

—People should help out in gas stations so employes would have more time to look for oil.

Cranston's favorite: "Find out if oil is called anything else but oil and look for it under that name."

People Talk

F.C. Anderson

HE'S CONSIDERED average — just another number on insurance policies, Social Security records and census forms. He's grist fed into payroll computers, magazine subscription lists and the statistical agencies that govern our lives.

He's known variously as Dad, Pop or the Old Man, and except for one day of the year he is uncelebrated and taken for granted. No one quotes him, no one pays much attention to his average build, his average job, his average house and car, his average family or his average plodding to cope and make ends meet.

Even those who love him tend to take him for granted. Perhaps there's a twinge of conscience at work in the gifts he receives on Father's Day. Maybe there's a more profound message than we realize in the presentation of ties, handkerchiefs and socks to the average American father.

He'll wear the new tie with his six-year-old suit, wear the new socks with his resoled shoes. And maybe, when the givers are out of sight, he'll use the new handkerchief to blot away a tear in the corner of his eye.

He's not used to such attention. He's more used to punching a clock five days a week, "mistering" the boss at his office, tramping over hard concrete with heavy sample cases. He's more used to ringing doorbells in search of buyers, lugging lumber, pounding nails, rigging steel, sweating out accounts.

He's more used to providing than being provided for, more used to giving than receiving. He gives a lot, much of it going unnoticed, or when noticed unappreciated. No matter, he still gives.

When his children are very young he's an oracle, the man who can do everything, the man who knows everything. Later, he's just an old-fashioned stick-in-the-mud, a relic of the past who's simply not with it any more.

He tries to be with it. He's a Little League coach, a Cubmaster, a school carnival volunteer, a ticket buyer for football games, theaters, chauffeur for picnics and excursions to the seashore.

He fixes faucet leaks, replaces broken glass, cements loose bricks, mows lawns, rigs speakers for stereo music he can't abide, waits up late for sons and daughters, shows up for school open houses, finances motorcycles and graduation suits.

He tires more easily now, dozes of a Sunday afternoon. But sometimes he lies awake at night, trying to squeeze a college year, a new set of tires and needed dentistry out of his savings account.

He wonders about his retirement, hopes he'll live to see it. And if he can't make it all the way, what's to become of his wife? Can he outlive the mortgage, can he survive automation?

He remembers his own father, another average man who was forced to give up on his own dreams in the hope they might be fulfilled by his children. Some of the dreams were fulfilled, the others will have to wait for another generation. Fathers come to accept such facts of life.

It's funny about fathers, the things children remember aren't parental spankings and scoldings but images. The image that sticks with me is my father kneeling at the Communion rail on a Sunday morning, with holes the size of 50-cent pieces showing in his shoes. The reason I remember is that I was wearing new shoes. That morning at the Communion rail I learned the cost of my new shoes.

Years later I related that image to my father. The occasion was the last time I saw him. I'm glad I had the opportunity, but looking back I'm sorry I didn't tell him so much more. If I had known how late it was for him, I would have told him more than I did.

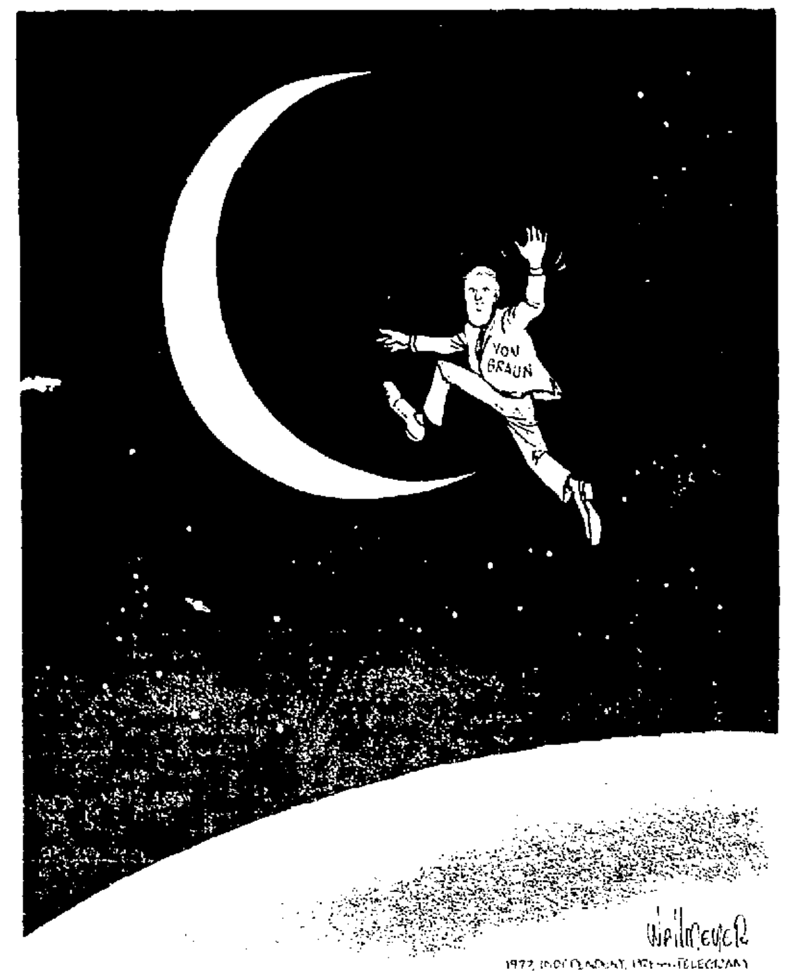
That's a recurrent theme in conversations at funerals. Sons and daughters just never get around to telling their parents how much they love them. This doesn't have to happen to you. And you can start the telling on Father's Day.

OVERHEARD: The boy waiting in line at the Sav-on Drug ice cream counter on Pine Avenue was maybe 6 or 7, and after a struggle he managed to untie the coins from a handkerchief much worse for wear. He ordered a double dip rocky road.

"That's a big cone for a guy your size," said the man next in line.

"It's not for me," said the lad. "It's a Father's Day present for my dad."

Good luck to him. The temperature outside was in the mid-70s. Maybe it was the "thawed" that counted with dear old Dad.



Dymally's ethnic report

Impedes efforts to end racism

SACRAMENTO — Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally has released a report on what he calls California's "Third World" population.

The report states that at present "34.7 per cent of California's total population are members of minority groups," and predicts that "if the present trend continues, by 1990, California's minorities will comprise a staggering 60.7 per cent of the total population."

The report is a sort of follow-up to remarks Dymally made early in May at a conference on the quality of life in California, sponsored by the San Jose Mercury News. The changing statistics are important, he said, because of the "nature of racism in society."

"Neither the media, the government, nor private interests are preparing for this emerging phenomena and will consequently be unprepared to meet the challenge," the lieutenant governor said when he released the report.

WHAT THAT "challenge" will be, neither Dymally nor the report specifies, but the very use of the word signifies an "us against them" response to an arbitrarily selected column of numbers.

Philosopher John Stuart Mill is referred to briefly in the report. He is said to have written, more than a century ago, that a society must utilize new ideas to correct past deficiencies because that is the only way a society could progress.

He would no doubt agree, the report predicts, that "the need to accurately assess the composition of a society is a superior idea because it is intrinsic to meeting the progressive needs of its citizenry."

It is suggested here that John Stuart Mill was correct when he said that new ideas are necessary if past deficiences are to be corrected by society. That, however, suggests the need to discard some of the old ideas.

One of those old ideas which might properly be discarded is "the need to accurately assess the composition of a society"

Bob Schmidt

View From Our State Bureau

if, by "composition," ethnic categorization is meant.

The report contains a population table, with the state's estimated present population of 24 million people broken down into the following 18 categories, in descending order of size:

White, Mexican-American, Black, Japanese, Chinese, Filipino, American Indian, Portuguese, Puerto Rican, Cuban, Korean, East Indian, Guatemalan, Panamanian, Vietnamese, Samoan, Guamanian and Caribbean.

No attempt is made to define "white," or "black," or to define the difference, if any, between "black" and "Cuban" or "Panamanian." It is not explained in what category a child born of one white parent and one black parent is placed, and why.

Maybe what John Stuart Mill might say today is, "Why don't you just forget the whole idea of ethnic separation?"

In the April issue of California Journal, a monthly magazine dealing primarily with government and politics, a former assemblyman and college professor named Ray Gonzales raises an interesting point which Dymally and his report writers might have done well to contemplate.

Gonzales writes that the overwhelming defeat of the Cesar Chavez-backed Proposition 14 in 1976 may eventually be a boon to the great majority of Chicanos in the state.

Most non-Chicano Californians, Gonzales points out, automatically associate the word "Chicano" with the phrase "farm workers," and use the two interchangeably.

In fact, he says, 86 percent of California's Chicanos live in cities, and have no more knowledge of agriculture than any other city dwellers.

SIMILARLY, blacks who have become doctors, lawyers, engineers, merchants, i.e., "successful," have no more in common with the black high-school dropout standing on a street corner waiting for an old lady to mug than a white librarian has with a white Hell's Angel.

The keeping of statistics is a livelihood for statisticians, and the categorizing of people is a livelihood for demographers, and so in the striving for full employment perhaps there is value in the keeping of statistics about the number of Californians of Portuguese extraction.

But as a society painfully works its way toward that Utopian time when such labels have no relevance, one wonders why such leaders as Mervyn Dymally delay the arrival of that time by giving those amorphous labels a value they should not have.

Editorials

Irony of Toth arrest

It is ironic, but not surprising, that just as diplomats of 35 nations were about to open the planning phase of a conference to review how their countries have complied with human rights provisions of the 1975 Helsinki Agreement, the Soviet Union arrested Los Angeles news correspondent Robert C. Toth.

Toth was accused of collecting "secret information of a political and military character." Russia first said he would not be permitted to leave the country, as he had planned to do, but later gave permission.

EVERYTHING ABOUT the incident pointed to a frameup. A scientist telephoned Toth, saying he wanted to give the reporter some information. The scientist insisted they meet on a public street. He handed Toth a document, and immediately the secret police drove up and arrested the reporter.

The "secret information" reportedly was a study of the applications of parapsychology — hardly a document that threatened the security of the Soviet Union.

The White House, in a formal protest to the Soviet Union, said Toth's arrest "introduces a new and even more disturbing element into what seems to be a persistent effort by Soviet authorities to harass and intimidate American correspondents in the exercise of their profession."

The protest also said the arrest was "inconsistent" with Soviet pledges in the 1975 Helsinki Agreement.

It may be inconsistent with Soviet pledges, but it is not inconsistent with their actions. As we editorialized back in January, the Communists let it be known almost immediately after signing the agreement that they would not be bound by its provisions and then proceeded to ignore them in subsequent months.

The arrest of Toth was just the latest in a continuing series of violations by the Russians of both the spirit and letter of the Helsinki Agreement.

It is hard to avoid the conclusion that Toth's arrest was a gesture of defiance by the Soviet Union toward President Carter's criticism of its suppression of human rights.

THE HELSINKI Agreement changed nothing as far as human rights for individual Russian citizens are concerned. It means as little to Russian citizens as the Soviet constitution, which "guarantees" all manner of individual liberties — and which the government and the secret police continue to ignore.

The United States should maintain its efforts for peace and cooperation with the Soviet Union, but the Toth arrest reminds us that the Russians always are looking out for their own interests. We should give nothing for which we don't get full value.

Life with father

Clarence Day's father, entertainingly depicted in his book, "Life with Father," wouldn't have been found dead in an apron. Today, however, a lot of fathers are taking a far more active role in the raising of their children.

The whole "male mystique" about men not caring as much or not wanting to be with their children is being proven completely false. Divorced fathers, for example, who for years accepted the idea that women were better at caring for the children, are now, increasingly, demanding custody — and sometimes getting it.

Douglas M. Davis, editor of Newsweek, recently won exclusive custody of his two daughters after an eight-year legal battle.

"Yes, it was terrifying to think of raising them alone, because as men we're not raised to think we can do it," Davis said in an interview. "But I found delight and joy in being a single parent."

Still the legal and social bias toward maternal custody remains strong. It is estimated that more than 11 million children now live in single-parent homes, but only about 900,000 live with their fathers.

In an article in the June issue of Human Behavior magazine, Rita T. Gasser and Claribel M. Taylor of Ohio State University reported on interviews with 15 widowers and 25 divorced men who were raising children under 18 years on their own.

Despite lack of experience with housework, the researchers found, the fathers generally got along by sharing chores with the children. For the most part, they managed without a great deal of outside help from relatives or babysitters.

So, on Fathers Day 1977, we'd like to give a special nod of recognition to fathers who, for whatever reason, are raising children in a single-parent home. It's a tremendous challenge, but it can be rewarding beyond belief.

Bill to make French Quebec's official tongue called vengeful

By Stanley M. Cohen
Editorial Research Reports

MONTREAL — Many French Quebecers are preparing to celebrate St. Jean Baptiste Day, the province's traditional June 24 holiday honoring its patron saint, with an unprecedented air of heady nationalism.

Inspired by the upset victory of the separatist Parti Quebecois in last November's election, they see this year's fete symbolizing the realization of a dream.

Although their conclusion for now is unwarranted — opinion polls indicate that Premier Rene Levesque could not win a majority in a referendum to remove Quebec from Canada politically — there are ardent nationalists who are convinced Quebec is well on its way to sovereign statehood.

And some of the province's non-French-speaking residents are hesitant to disagree. English and other minority language groups make up more than one million of Quebec's six million people.

They are deeply troubled by a language bill introduced on April 27 in the National Assembly, the provincial legislature. Known as Bill 1, this charter of the French language in Quebec would, through coercive provisions, ensure that French became the dominant language in the province — not only in everyday conversation, but in government, education, public institutions, public signs and private businesses. Other languages would be permitted on a restricted basis.

Editor's Note: Cohen is associate editor of the Montreal Star.

Bill 1 would impose penalties on violators, including heavy fines, loss of business permits, denial of contracts and refusal of professional licenses. The bill is currently before a committee of the National Assembly for public hearings.

Although the federal government in Ottawa has the power to disallow provincial acts, it has not used this power in more than 40 years. And observers say it would be politically inopportune for Ottawa to do so in this case. However, the federal government might join in a court challenge to one or more sections of the proposed Quebec act.

LANGUAGE legislation is not new in Quebec. The previous administration, under Liberal Premier Robert Bourassa, passed the Official Language Act amid protest, particularly from outside the French community. Some provisions of the current bill are similar, but far stronger in their demands, their restrictions and their penalties for non-compliance.

Criticism of the measure has not been confined to the non-French. Recently, 325 French-speaking business leaders, in a letter to Levesque and the bill's author, Dr. Camille Laurin, printed June 4 in the Montreal Star, expressed fear it would drive business away and trample on individual rights. Dr. Laurin, a Montreal psychiatrist and Quebec's minister for cultural development, accused them of being "loyal to the English establishment."

THERE IS LITTLE question, regardless of what party is in power, that French will become increasingly the language of government and business in Quebec. Many non-French Quebecers do not oppose that objective. Moreover, they accept the principle that a Quebec government has an obligation to protect and enhance the language of the province's French-speaking majority.

What does concern many people — French as well as English — is what they regard as the coercive and vengeful spirit of the proposed law. They are disturbed, too, that Quebec is making it difficult for non-French-speaking persons to settle here and uncomfortable for those who already live here.

Thus far, despite a plethora of home "for sale" signs, the exodus has been a trickle. There remains a "wait and see" attitude and a hope, albeit faint, that the government might amend the bill significantly.

Why wasn't Mrs. Carter given diplomatic status?

By Virginia Weldon Kelly

If the First Lady of a foreign country were to come without diplomatic credentials to the United States, and if she discussed matters of substance with our President, Americans would regard the situation as curious and intrusive.

President Nixon gave his wife ambassadorial status when she made her historic journey to Africa.

Many believe that President Carter should have made his wife a special ambassador before her recent trip to Jamaica, Central and South America.

In the face of his endorsing equal opportunities for women, it seems odd that Mr. Carter, of all people, should not have given the First Lady the professional status of an ambassador. By not doing so, however, he avoided making her accountable to the State Department, the Congress, and the people. By going as the First Lady, she could report only to her husband without having Congress and the public "prying" into every aspect of her trip.

It is generally believed that this trip is only the first that Mrs. Carter will undertake. For the protection of the President and First Lady, and for orderly diplomatic procedure, she should have the rank of envoy. This would mean that she would have to be judged objectively by the country on her diplomatic competence. First Ladies have nearly always enjoyed an immunity from criticism. Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Mrs. John F. Kennedy were criticized by the public and the press.

Mrs. Roosevelt never undertook discussions with foreign heads of state. Her trips in this country and elsewhere were fact finding missions for her husband, because his responsibilities, including the state of the economy and World War II plus his physical handicap, made it difficult for him to travel.

Before Mrs. Carter left the country, reporters were told that she did not have diplomatic rank. They could scarcely believe it. When they asked the State Department, they were told the White House would answer such queries. A call to the President's press office brought the answer, "Call Mrs. Carter's press office." A reporter who called Mrs. Carter's office was told, "Only one person has the authority to answer and she isn't around, but she will call you." The call was never returned.

Virginia Kelly

Before leaving, Mrs. Carter received 39 hours of briefings. In his column, former Senator Eugene J. McCarthy quipped that the President is a speed reader and that Mrs. Carter is a speed listener.

On her trip, Mrs. Carter received daily briefings of the sort that would be given ambassadors or other high ranking officials.

She was accompanied by Mrs. Cyrus Vance, wife of the Secretary of State, the Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs, and the U. S. Coordinator, Alliance for Progress, Terence A. Todman, a career foreign service officer; and by Mrs. Evan Dobelle, wife of the Chief of Protocol. There were 27 in the traveling party.

During her tour, Mrs. Carter carefully avoided controversy. In Brazil, she talked for several hours with President Ernesto Geisel about human rights. Diplomatically, Mrs. Carter said, "I think there have been misperceptions on the whole issue between our country and theirs." Later, she said, "I think we've narrowed those misperceptions."

'Letters to editor' provide an educational service

The Independent, Press-Telegram's "Letters to the Editor" column is the place where one man's lie is another man's truth, where readers cry "ouch" when our editorials step on the corns of their pet ideology, bias, conviction, etc., where friends come to praise us and foes gather to bury us.

And, believe it or not, our "Letters" column is an informational service as well. So says Joe Maher of Long Beach, resident of this city for 44 years and until June 12 unaware of the existence of Rancho Los Alamitos and Rancho Los Cerritos.

Joe Maher discovered the ranchos by way of a letter to the editor written by Lonie Bosserman, Los Alamitos docent. She expounded on the wonders of the ranchos in answer to another letter writer who had charged Long Beach has only one tourist attraction — the Queen Mary.

But back to Joe Maher:

"Boy, can you ever live and learn. I'm going to have to find out where in the hell they (the ranchos) are and go visit them. I wonder how many other Long Beach residents are like me?"

There are probably many readers like Joe Maher, just as there are thousands and thousands of New York City residents who exist without any knowledge of the Statue of Liberty or Grant's Tomb. The fortunate among them encounter such wonders for the first time through the medium of a newspaper, perhaps in story form, perhaps in a letter to the editor.

F. C. Anderson

A millenium from now archeologists may be sifting through the ruins of Long Beach to determine what kind of a people we were, the quality of our minds, the fears and hopes we held. If the archeologists are lucky, they may find Page B-3 of the Independent, Press-Telegram, the page most often occupied by our letters to the editor.

It's possible to read those letters over a period of days and come to some firm conclusions about the writers. And when you know something about the writers, you have to know something about the society in which they lived.

Yes, I'd have to say the letters column is an educational experience for Joe Maher and the rest of us. I wouldn't miss it. It's the best show in town.

Let's shift from praise for the I, P-T to criticism, as voiced by Everett E. Cook of Compton, who says:

"I read your editorials all the time. I notice that when something happens involving handguns there is a lot said and printed. Everyone who does not like firearms wants to disarm the owners of handguns.

"But when someone dies as a result of smoking in bed, you don't say 'let's stop smoking in bed.'

"In the I, P-T last week there was a story about a 79-year-old woman who died in a fire caused by a cigarette she was smoking in bed. But did the I, P-T advise its readers against such practice, did the newspaper say 'let's stop making cigarettes?' It did not.

"...If you were to make a check, you'd find more people die from cigarette smoking than from handguns."

I think reader Cook has his editorials mixed up with his news stories. This newspaper doesn't advocate cigarette smoking any more than it advocates the proliferation of handguns. But a news story is hardly the place in which to insert an antismoking or antihandgun commercial.

I smoke, but I wouldn't have a handgun in the house. There are nonsmokers who feel safer with handguns in their houses. I'm not about to reform them, and they certainly aren't going to stop me from smoking, short of at the point of a gun.

Cigarettes kill people. Handguns kill people. People kill people: with their bare hands, if they lack other means of dispatch. Are we to recommend the chopping off of hands after every strangulation? I think not.

Antismoking injunctions belong in editorials, in pertinent medical stories about the the American Heart Association and the American Cancer Society, in letters to the editor. The only trouble with editorials about handguns, pro or con, is that people can't read and shoot at the same time.

Whether more people die from cigarettes than from handguns, I don't know. I do know there are people who succumb to both at the same time. These are the people who stand before a firing squad and ask for and get a last cigarette.

Whims and caprices

The Long Beach Planning Commission is preparing several new elements of the city's general plan, including a land use element and a shoreline element. Judging from past experience, the Planning Commission can be expected to ignore the general plan unless the public is alert and constantly looking over the shoulders of the commissioners to see that the plan is being implemented faithfully.

The Planning Commission approved construction of a YMCA in Scherer Park in spite of the statement in the Environmental Impact Report that "the facility does not conform to either the general plan or correct zoning." Many other examples could be given of the Planning Commission approving projects that are in violation of the general plan.

I spoke to the Planning Commission on June 9 and requested the commissioners to adopt a policy of conforming to the general plan. I told the commissioners that past violations of the plan constituted a breach of faith with the citizenry. But the planning commissioners turned down my request. They told me that they reserve the right to bypass the requirements of the general plan whenever they see fit to do so.

Thus, the city's general plan constitutes little more than a worthless scrap of paper, subject to the whims and caprices of the Planning Commission. For example, in Scherer Park, the general plan was for all practical purposes amended without benefit of citizen knowledge or participation.

Citizens participating in preparation of the city's new general plan should listen to the tape recording of the Planning Commission meeting of June 9. They will learn that the Planning Commission is willing and able arbitrarily to emasculate the general plan without public notice - and in one day to cancel the results of a year of citizen participation in planning for the future of Long Beach.

Power boat races

Mr. Watson, in defense of using Marine Stadium for drag boat races and other noise producing events, attempts to justify his position by the use of several fallacious arguments.

All homeowners did not purchase their homes when the noise level was high. Many residents owned their property when the purpose of Marine Stadium was solely for canoeing and rowing. Late purchasers of property should not be precluded from voicing their displeasure at the noise levels, pollution, traffic congestion, and the not yet fully examined impact of these races on marine life.

It should be considered that we are dealing with a recreational activity. Too often we attempt to justify the impact of an activity on the environment in the name of recreation.

While the residents of Long Beach may pay taxes that support this particular leisure activity, not all who pay these taxes necessarily enjoy this particular pastime. The mere fact that this activity may generate some revenue is not justification for continuing a nuisance.

Mr. Watson and others who favor this type of recreation should direct their efforts toward establishing a race area which can accommodate both noise and traffic congestion. Such an area might possibly be created off downtown Long Beach. Since the races are normally held on weekends and holidays, parking, noise levels and traffic congestion would have an effect on fewer residents. Further, commercial services are more readily available in the downtown area.

Since the Recreation Department serves all of Long Beach, all residents must be considered when the recreational program is being planned.

For Social Security

My heart bleeds for Dennis Sale of Norwalk in his letter, "End Social Security" (June 9). His reasoning blows my mind. He must be a young person who has no vision of what his future would be when he is 35 and can't get a job.

In the middle class and poor class who can save for old age? It's a rich country, but only for the rich. I paid into Social Security from 1937 to 1972 when I retired, and believe me, I thank God there was this very thing to help me now. I was glad to pay into it and I just barely eked out a living in my day. For 35 years I paid in and only got five years' benefits, but it's keeping me alive.

Haven't you thought about some day when you will be old and need help and there wouldn't be any? What then? Don't think for a minute you can be independent forever or are you one of the rich now and can make such a statement? Social Security is not food stamps or welfare.

The remark about the occupation of the U.S. by our enemies and the information falling into their hands—what has that kind of information got to do with Social Security? Lastly, putting the numbers on an infant's feet with additional numbers later on as time goes by: how about the numbers on all the people of the country. I have a real good suggestion on where to put the numbers: same place they branded cows in the old days. By the time that certain place heals, maybe it would give you time to think about this more rationally.

Judge not

Reading the daily newspaper can be a frightening experience. Either Anita Bryant is picking on another minority, or scientists are telling us that they have found another suspected cause of cancer.

I find it extremely disconcerting to be aware of the ever increasing number of people who just don't seem to care about the world around them. We are not the only people who have to live here. We are responsible for what happens in the future. Let's stop judging people and start caring.

Regarding your Q & A with Cmdr. Garland Suggs on Monday, June 13, these comments:

Cmdr. Suggs' memory is dimmed by time. The submarine Squalus sank on May 23, 1939, not March, as so stated.

Many a sailorman, particularly submariners, shivered when they saw this name Momsen come out in the articles as Munson . . . Tch! Tch!

Quoting from Nat A. Barrows, "Blow All Ballast!", Dodd, Mead & Co., 1940, on Momsen (This report by Adm. Cous):

"Commander C. B. Momsen. As officer in charge of the Experimental Diving Unit, Commander Momsen reported with the men of his unit to the senior officer present at the scene of the Squalus disaster early in the morning of May 24, 1939. He was immediately made diving officer on the staff. From then until the end of the Squalus rescue and salvage operations, he handled with rare skill, initiative and good judgment all diving operations. This was a period of the greatest diving effort in the world's history. That in 640 dives, under the most severe conditions, there was not a single loss of life or a single personal injury speaks for the eternal vigilance, professional skill, technical knowledge and rare judgement and initiative of Commander Momsen. He is an outstanding officer."

Cruelty to animals

Planning directors and planning commissions of some South Bay cities and generally throughout the state are permitting acts of cruelty to be performed on helpless wild and domestic animals, and further permit unnatural acts by allowing the caging of and maintaining of wild creatures in narrow, confined spaces.

At Del Amo school they keep George the snake in a classroom. George is tied in knots by the kids.

In Carson, a panther was declawed, and defanged as a condition of keeping the animal in an apartment house. A P-A-N-T-H-E-R. In typical fashion, after the poor, hapless pet and its owner went through sympatheic pain and real pain, plus thousands of dollars in medical bills the officials changed their minds. I am told that the planning director and the Planning Commission of Torrance will welcome this travesty of a panther. How sad.

In Torrance, the planning director will allow iguanas, ocelots, alligators and snakes, but not contributing animals as chickens and ducks.

To take an animal from its wild habitat and confine it in most unnatural surroundings constitutes cruel and unusual punishment in the eyes of this writer, and to stipulate that an animal be made a mockery of what it once was by defanging and declawing is most heinous.

This writer strongly suggests that a board be made to pass on the keeping of animals, such board answerable to a state agency. Such a board to be comprised of a Humane Society member, a school trustee and five members of the general public who are interested in the welfare of animals and their keeping.

They are serving

In reference to a letter to the editor, "Show me I'm wrong," by John Northmore:

I thank John for his fine article and congratulate him on the excellent job he does with "Teen Post," but I must set the record straight regarding the support given by service clubs to the Boys' Club of Long Beach.

Most of the service clubs, including some auxiliary ladies' clubs, in Long Beach and Lakewood contribute to the Boys' Clubs and many are long-time supporters of our annual fund-raising Golden Boy Award Dinner and Auction, which is one of the highlights of the Long Beach social calendar.

Many service club members serve on our board of directors, as members of the staff and as volunteers in our four branches, so we at the Boys' Club are indeed greatly indebted to the very active service clubs in our area.

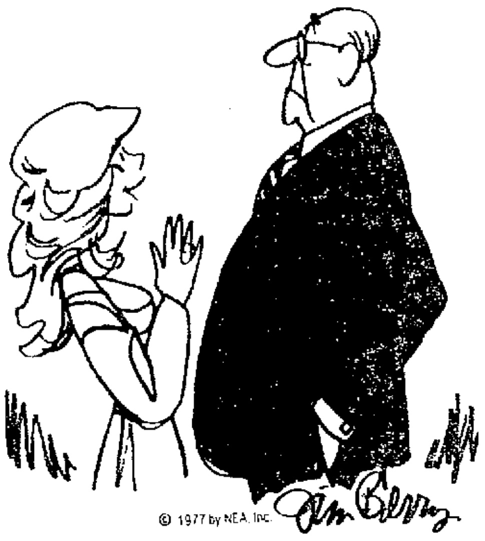
BERRY'S WORLD



"Oh, wow! Far out! I'M a human rights freak, too!"

A warming sight

I saw a curious sight Wednesday morning, June 8. As I walked down Pacific Avenue at the corner of fith or sixth street, I can't remember which, I noticed a frail, gray-haired old lady holding desperately onto a lamp post. Before I was able to walk across the street and lend some assistance, four or five persons had gathered around her, each trying to help. In what seemed a few short minutes, a huge fire truck pulled up. Out jumped several young, blue uniformed men racing toward her with willing arms and equipment. How strange the contrast. Energetic youth and stricken old age. Yet how satisifying it was to see a portrait of something good in the downtown area where oldsters haunt the sidewalks, lone shadows shuffling along decaying streets lined with dirty, out-of-business stores.

Rats on Riviera

We have endeavored on numerous occasions to get the Los Angeles County Health Department to do something about the rats and skunks that are a plague to the Riviera section of the City of Torrance.

The skunks are so bold they eat the food out of the plates set for the dogs and cats! At one house, they even beg and scratch at the door so the occupants will notice them and feed them. This at feeding time for their pets!

As for the rats! A sad commentary — rats in the Riviera! It seems rats are not respecters of wealth, status or economic position. They live in the ivy and ice plant which abounds here on the rolling hills. Can't they go elsewhere?

Please put a soft word into the ears of the Health Department.

Back to nature

I spent an hour in a beautiful corner of the world today -- a corner I hadn't realized existed.

The Altrusa Club of Long Beach has donated a wheelchair to be used by the guests of the Nature Center at El Dorado Park and I went with my niece to deliver it. I've lived in this area more years than I'd care to tell, and today was like taking a walk through a countryside I'd thought long gone.

When I came to Long Beach as a child, we didn't have to drive very far to be in the country, to watch ducks dipping their heads into ponds, to see wild animals popping into holes, to see and hear colorful birds all around us, to see and enjoy the lovely scent of wild sage and honeysuckle or just to walk along a tree-lined path through the woods. I did all these things again today.

The special use trail at El Dorado Park has a paved path which is very easy to navigate, provided by the Kiwanis Club, and the area has been aided in other ways by several other public service groups. There are benches on the trail where one can relax, as well as in other lovely areas in and around the center itself. Ranger Hal Boyle is a most enthusiastic person, and truly enjoys "selling his products."

A walk or ride around this special use trail at El Dorado should certainly be a must on everyone's list.

Know your medicine

In the Sunday, June 5, edition, Parade magazine carried an article entitled, "What You Don't Know about your Medicine Can Hurt You," by Nancy Chasen.

This was an excellent article and proved to be a great help to me. I have passed it on to many of my friends. Regardless of the great American Medical Association, I agree with Dr. Schmidt when he states, "The patient has an obligation to know what he is taking..."

Many thanks for this article.

A rare pleasure

A rare pleasure it is today to live in an inner-city community that keeps its heart open to the young therein.

The PTA of Robert Louis Stevenson Elementary School takes pleasure in telling the members of our unusual city that everyone who was informed of the sixth grade graduation party was delighted to contribute some special souvenir or memento. Our PTA representatives found only friendliness, warmth and encouragement in their contacts with the various businesses, associations, government and private organizations.

Our boys and girls and our PTA would like to say "thank you" to a city composed of such kind and thoughtful individuals.

Election dissension marks women's meeting

in both the audiences and on the workshop agendas.

"They've been bringing in busloads of people already preregistered and, even though they've said that it's been cut off, they've been taking them elsewhere to register them," Mrs. Boswell charged.

"Everything is very slanted, and I think this should be done again with more representation, more legality and more notification. Many churches, PTAs and women's groups were not notified of this conference."

Mrs. Boswell also voiced concern for the printed lists of specialized slates being carried into the voting area. Since the formal introduction of the delegates and 36 others nominated from the floor at the opening session Friday morning, numerous groups had devised lists of delegates as alternatives to the IWY list.

Flyers and placards appeared all over the USC campus urging conference participants to vote for IWY-nominated and write-in candidates sympathetic to such groups as the National Organization for Women, gays, Chicanas and Latinas, Blacks, Right to Life League and Native American Indians.

And although many people were drawn to the conference by the advance rumors that Stop ERA National President Phyllis Schlafly and members would disrupt the event, the group that most worried state IWY Chairwoman Sally Martinez was a small group of extremist Black feminists. (Mrs. Schlafly did not attend, although Mary Schmitz did.)

"They've made unreasonable demands, although we've tried to do everything they wanted," said Ms. Martinez. "They want 14 more black women members on the IWY Committee, and they want a black woman named chairwoman."

IWY presiding officer Carmela Lacayo, vice chairwoman of the Democratic National Committee, said she was concerned about the apparent deep divisions between ERA supporters and opponents at the conference.

"Every other conference across the United States has had trouble getting organized and getting out unified resolutions because of the tremendous divisions," she explained. "Unfortunately, I think that personality attacks are the cause of dissension on ERA and in the women's movement."

Members of several special interest groups were visible at the conference Saturday, but most were peaceful and orderly and content for the present to quietly observe the event and take notes for later actions. Only three picket signs were paraded — two chastising singer Anita Bryant for her anti-homosexual rights stand and one supporting the Right to Life League.

Earlier in the day at the opening workshops, a group of panelists painted a bleak picture of women's rights and progress for several thousand in the audience at the Shrine Auditorium.

Panelists Diane Russell and Dina Iguchi noted that an amendment to the HEW appropriations bill had been passed by Congress Friday, cutting off federal aid for women seeking abortions.

"Unfortunately, President Carter says he's for women's rights and yet he's one of the people taking away the poor women's rights by disallowing Medicaid funds for abortions," said Ms. Russell, an associate professor of sociology at Mills College.

"This means that poor women will not be able to get abortions but the rich woman will always be able to get abortions because money buys," said Ms. Iguchi, the panel moderator and a specialist on criminal justice systems.

Afternoon workshops dealing with politics featured, among others, Assemblywoman Teresa Hughes, D-Los Angeles; Maxine Waters and Marilyn Ryan, Rep. Yvonne Brathwaite Burke, D-Los Angeles, who had been scheduled to speak Friday, arrived at the Saturday session in time to walk the campus and talk with conference participants. She had been delayed in Washington Friday by the HEW bill vote.

The IWY conference concludes today with the results of the Houston delegation election and voting on resolutions to be taken to the national convention.

Udall, Nader speakers at energy parley

parts of President Carter's energy proposals.

He. Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., chairman of the House Interior Committee, and consumer advocate Ralph Nader said the plan should do more to create competition among oil and natural gas companies.

The senator also said Carter's proposal "provides a special bonus to producers of Alaskan oil without any justifiable reason." He said Federal Energy Administrator John O'Leary last month said those revenues would amount to "a windfall for the oil companies — more than $2 billion for Britsh Petroleum, Arco and Sohio."

Metzenbaum and Nader supported formation of a federal company to develop energy resources on government lands. Metzenbaum said such a company would be a "barometer for costs" in the industry. He said that last year there was such a bill by Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., but it has not been reintroduced.

NADER ASKED, "Do we want our resouces to be put up at auction at inadequate bids?" He answered that by saying oil, gas and other forms of energy on federal lands are an "annuity" for the people and as such should be developed by some kind of government firm.

He was also critical of the administration's plan for not stressing development of solar energy and conservation and for generally not having a "unifying view."

Both Metzenbaum and Nader said Carter's plan relies too heavily on increasing the price of oil to provide incentives to oil companies to search for oil.

SEN. HOWARD METZENBAUM

"A careful study of the costs associated with the production of oil and natural gas," the senator said in his formal remarks, "clearly demonstrates that while greatly increased prices have provided producers with record profits, the increased profits have not been accompanied by noticeable increases in production."

Udall echoed similar sentiments but didn't go quite as far in his own proposals.

He said he will begin hearings in Washington Tuesday on his Federal Resources Energy Act that would take effect in two years. Under it, oil and other energy-related leases on federal lands would only go to companies involved in one energy business. For instance, an oil lease could only be bid on by a firm involved in the petroleum business and not other energy fields such as coal or natural gas.

New Immigration chief visits Long Beach area

Leonel Castillo plans to spend a few hours with his family in Houston today.

Since being sworn in May 13 as the first Mexican-American to head the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, he hasn't had much of a chance to see his wife and two children. He says he's been working seven days a week.

President Carter prophesized this heavy work schedule when he told Castillo that heading INS is one of the toughest jobs in government, maybe even tougher than Carter's.

On Friday and Saturday, Castillo was working in the Long Beach area, meeting with employe groups, Mexian-American groups and speaking at the Harbor district IMAGE dinner at the Queensway Hilton in Long Beach.

CASTILLO, 38, moved easily among the crowd, chatting casually and asking for suggestions on how to improve his agency. He spoke quietly but firmly that he could make INS an efficient but still compassionate government agency.

He said his first task is to reduce the backlog of cases his agency has accumulated. He said the backlog in the Los Angeles office amounts to 8,600 cases and that many aliens legally in the U.S. have to spend the night waiting to be served at offices the next morning.

He thinks Carter will commit money and manpower to reduce this. Castillo also wants to computerize his agency's operations.

Growing up in Galveston, Tex., Castillo says he never really thought about being a high-level government official. He was born in Victoria, Tex.

His background includes a stint in the Peace Corps and, until his INS appointment, serving as treasurer of the Texas state Democratic Party and controller of the city of Houston.

While in the Long Beach area, Castillo was privately explaining Carter's forthcoming immigration proposals to Mexican-American groups. He was also meeting with INS employes. The IMAGE group to which he spoke Friday promotes employment of Spanish-surnamed persons in government.

LEONEL CASTILLO

One of the main features of that proposal probably will be some form of "amnesty" for aliens illegally in the U.S. prior to the early 1970s.

He spoke about one subject of particular concern to Southland counties — reimbursement for health care to illegal aliens. He said he recently testified in Congress in support of a bill that would provide such aid.

"My job is to bring the agency up to date and humanize the process," Castillo said.

Yet for him there is a price — being away from his home and family, except on rare occasions like today. Eventually, he hopes to move his family to Washington.

Housing red tape scored in L.B.

in older neighborhoods. Wiedmann said cities should change zoning laws to allow the conversion of apartments to condominiums, encouraging an influx of improvement-oriented owners rather than less-concerned renters, therby bringing more stability to the neighborhood.

Dick Major, chairman of the housing fair and housing director for Long Beach, said 9 per cent of the housing in Long Beach is debilitated.

Leanne Lachman, vice president of the Chicago-based Real Estate Research Corp., said blight evolves slowly in a neighborhood.

She noted that property values in such an area may be stable, but people are unsure what will happen to the neighborhood and are reluctant to spend money on repairs, painting or remodeling the kitchen when they may move in a year or two to a newer neighborhood.

Ms. Lachman said public works projects are very important in such a neighborhood. Streets must be resurfaced and swept clean regularly, and parks must be well-maintained.

Such action shows the city's commitment to the neighborhood and bolsters the residents' confidence, encouraging them to invest their own money in home improvements.

Abandoned, boarded-up buildings should be condemned and demolished because they have a strongly negative psychological effect on residents, she continued. Building and zoning codes should be strictly enforced to prevent deterioration.

"It's less expensive to deal with problems of blight early rather than waiting until later," she said. "In the past, federal funds for community redevelopment were devoted to total clearance and rebuilding. Now funds are available for rehabilitation."

Dwain Liggett, housing rehabilitation supervisor for Long Beach, explained the low interest loans available through the city with federal funds to bring dwellings up to the city's minimum housing code (including electrical, plumbing, heating and structural elements and yard conditions).

Homeowners in nine designated neighborhoods in Long Beach may borrow up to $17,400 at 3 per cent interest for a 20-year loan term or, for special income categories, up to $9,500 with no interest and deferred payment until the property is sold or transferred.

Liggett said the city expects to loan $1 million for neighborhood preservation during the 1977-78 fiscal year in areas near Webster School, Stephens School, Poly High, Burnett School, Lee School, Rose Park, Anaheim Street at Cherry Avenue, Seventh Street at Cherry and Santa Fe Avenue at Willow Street.

Those properties that have not been brought up to minimum compliance when the loan program is discontinued will be inspected by the city and owners will be required to make necessary improvements without the benefit of the loan program, which will continue as long as enough owners are participating in it.

Councilwoman Eunice Sato pointed out that publicly subsidized housing is available to everyone, not just low income families.

Scottish event expected to draw 20,000

The United Scottish Societies 45th Annual Highland Gathering & Games, scheduled for next Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium, is expected to draw some 20,000 tourists and contestants from throughout North America.

In the past the gathering, sponsored by the United Scottish Societies Inc., was hosted in Santa Monica.

This year the day-long pageant, starting at 8:30 a.m., will offer a panorama of Scottish history through a series of events taking place along the stadium field.

Competitions in piping, drumming, Highland dancing and athletics for children and adults are part of the traditional gathering.

All adult athletic competitors will be required to wear kilts, with the exception of contestants in the tug of war.

Booths will feature Scottish foods, kilts, bagpipes, records, books and other items.

The "Arizona Scottish Singers" of Tempe will perform the National Anthem at the welcoming ceremonies at 12:30 p.m.

SEVERAL championship tossers of cabers — a Gaelic pole — are expected to attend to continue a tradition that dates back to the 16th century.

Camping space for self-contained vehicles will be available on the parking lot next to the stadium, says Highland Games chieftain Art Roberts. The fee is $3 for one night and $5 for two nights, with public restrooms available.

Sometime past 4:30 p.m., near the end of the gathering, the Massed Pipe Bands will salute the presentation of the major competition awards.

Admission is $3, parking 50 cents.

Prior to the Saturday gathering, there will also be a special "piobaireachd" concert and competition, with amateur and professional pipers playing the classic music of the great Highland bagpipe dating from the 16th and 17th centuries. This will take place Friday at Long Beach City College's Liberal Arts Campus, in Studio C, at 7:30 p.m.

Detectives' gunplay ended in death of I-PT reporter

Blood gushed from his nose and mouth.

"Oh no, God no, no . . . no," Wiggins was on his feet. "Get help. Hurry . . . my God, Bill."

Greenleaf knew he was dead but didn't say a word. He ran to the hallway, sprinting, yelling, crying. It wasn't real. It wasn't real.

It was real. Bill Hunter was dead before anyone else reached the press room and found him, still in his chair, his head cradled by Wiggins.

A single shot struck him directly in the heart. He died instantly.

When Greenleaf returned, Wiggins was sitting on the floor outside the press room, his back against the wall.

"What happened?" Greenleaf asked.

"I dropped my gun." Wiggins was crying.

Greenleaf knew better. The gun couldn't fire without trigger pressure.

"It's not possible," he told Wiggins. The two men were less than 15 feet from where Hunter had died. Wiggins was sheet-white, his hands went to his face.

"I dropped my gun," he said, more to himself than Greenleaf.

Police officers escorted the two away to separate rooms then. The questioning began. Wiggins insisted he'd dropped the gun while taking off his raincoat. When he scooped it up, he said, it fired.

Greenleaf told the truth — as far as he went. He said he didn't see it happen. Didn't hear the gun fall.

HE SAID nothing about the gunplay.

He was shaken. Hunter was dead — his own partner had fired the shot that killed him. There could be absolutely no excuse now. Between the two of them, Wiggins and Greenleaf, there was 16 years experience.

Now that meant nothing. Greenleaf knew Wiggins was gone. No suspension for something like this. At best, he would be allowed to resign.

Greenleaf could say nothing to defend him. There was no defense. But for the next few crucial hours, Errol Greenleaf would not make it worse, for himself or his partner. The gunplay wasn't mentioned. No one else had seen it.

The next morning's Independent carried the story of Hunter's death, with the front page explanation of the dropped gun, and pictures of Hunter and Wiggins.

Shortly after the newspaper hit the streets, however — and 13 hours after the shooting, Errol Greenleaf told the truth.

"It's going to come out, anyway," he said. And he laid it out.

The delay in telling the complete story of what had happened threw the entire case into a different light. The immediate question asked by newsmen was whether the two policemen had told the truth about other aspects of the shooting — and whether the police department was initiating a coverup.

A CORONER'S inquest a week after the shooting stirred up more controversy. Though the horseplay had been made public, officers testifying said they saw nothing unusual transpire in the hallway moments before Hunter was killed.

Wiggins, seated with his attorney throughout the inquest, wept openly during testimony about the cause of death and during his own testimony.

Greenleaf did not have an attorney at the inquest.

Even when the coroner's jury ruled Hunter's death involuntary manslaughter, Greenleaf did not seek an attorney. Later, he would admit he never believed he needed one. He didn't think he was going to be charged with anything.

On May 4, Wiggins and Greenleaf were fired.

On May 5, they were arraigned on charges of involuntary manslaughter. At the suggestion of a police captain, Errol Greenleaf got an attorney, E. Fred Lightner.

On May 13, Wiggins asked that, for purposes of future employment, he be allowed to resign rather than face dismissal. He said he had no "aim or desire" to ever work as a police officer again. He cited his career record.

A DAY LATER, Greenleaf denied all charges in a letter appealing his dismisal from the force, saying, "I have not been guilty of any breach of duty or of misconduct sufficient to warrant my dismissal."

Wiggins, as Greenleaf had known from the moment of the shooting, was done as a policeman. Greenleaf wasn't willing to make that same judgment in his own case.

A long legal process began. In June, both officers plead not guilty to charges. Later, their cases would be severed, and in August Wiggins entered a plea of nolo contendere — no contest — and was soon after placed on three years' probation.

A probation officer said a self-inflicted "life sentence of guilt and self-recrimination" was enough. Other police officers embraced Wiggins as he left the courtroom crying.

The headlines the next day said "Wiggins escapes prison sentence."

Errol Greenleaf suffered what his doctor termed hypertension of the heart, and his trial was postponed.

On Jan. 4, 1965, Greenleaf — against the advice of his attorney, asked that his case be judged on testimony given at the preliminary hearing, avoiding a jury trial.

Four days later, he was found guilty. Like his partner, Greenleaf was given three years' probation on Jan. 20. Outside the courtroom he told his attorney, "I presume justice has been done."

More than 12 years later, E. Fred Lightner was called at home and asked if he'd talk about the case of Errol Greenleaf.

He was silent a moment. He said he hadn't seen Greenleaf since just after the trial. Then his voice cracked.

"There was never a man more innocent than Errol Greenleaf. I could've proved that. No jury in the world would have convicted him."

Then why didn't Greenleaf go to a jury trial?

Lightner sighed. "Part of my defense was to subpoena 20 Long Beach police officers and have them testify, under oath, to having participated or witnessed gunplay within the department in the six-month period before that shooting."

One of the officers, a captain, would have had to admit to firing his service revolver into the ceiling of his office three times while toying with it, Lightner said.

HORSEPLAY with guns, he said, was frequent and common among officers in 1964.

"Conviction for manslaughter requires that there be intent or criminal negligence present. There wasn't," he says flatly.

But Greenleaf vetoed that defense, Lightner says, insisting he would not involve anyone else from the department in his troubles.

"He would have been acquitted. No doubt in my mind. He was innocent."

At the end of the interview, Lightner pointed to a stack of papers attached to Greenleaf's case file. "You should have seen the hate mail," he said. "The threats he got. The pressure on him was tremendous. I never saw him break down."

Errol Greenleaf did, though. Once. May 4, 1964.

"A lieutenant walked over to me and asked for my badge. It was probably the toughest moment in my life. I sat down and cried. It just all came down on me."

Greenleaf smoked another cigarette. He is 45 now. A real estate salesman in Huntington Beach. He spent nearly 10 years working with Sears in security.

His weight ballooned from 225 to 275 pounds at one point, but now he's down to 210. He dragged on the cigarette again.

"I haven't seen Creighton in 10 years. I've only seen him twice since the trials, both times by accident. I don't even know where he lives."

He was asked about the jury trial — why hadn't he asked for one. Why hadn't he appealed the conviction?

"Part of it was the other guys. I couldn't see dragging them into it. They were catching so much heat already from the press. And part of it was my health. The heart thing was very real. And the case was damn near a year old.

"I WAS TIRED of the headlines. Of going to the supermarket and having people call me a killer or a murderer.

"To tell you the truth, I didn't appeal because I wasn't sure I could take anymore. I got telephone calls. Letters. People thought I didn't care . . ."

Greenleaf smiled faintly. "Bill Hunter was my friend."

He talked about real estate, about the market in houses. About his family.

"My wife supported us for a year after the conviction. I couldn't get a job because of the publicity the case got. About the time things got really bad, a couple police officers brought by an envelope full of money they'd collected at the station and left it at my house. It was $3,000.

"I loved being a police officer. I never worked a single day I wasn't glad to be one. It's all I ever wanted to be, and I was a damned good cop

"I still wish I was a policeman, yeah. I guess I think about all the time, in the back of my mind. And I think about what happened. I used to have dreams every night — nightmares."

GREENLEAF smiles again, very faintly. He says he asked for the transfer a week before the shooting because "I thought it was best . . ." and lets it go at that.

He says he often thinks about how close he came to calling in sick April 22.

"And I think about how useless, how stupid and useless the whole thing was. I've always felt morally guilty for what happened. I never felt criminally guilty."

He looked up suddenly. "You know, all through it, up to the moment they convicted me, I never thought it would happen. I never believed I'd lose my job."

Why did he lie about the gunplay during those crucial hours after the shooting?

"I was scared," he said simply. "I make no excuse for that. I was in a state of shock. I was scared out of my mind. Creighton was saying he'd dropped his

The Medical Newsline

A commercial journalism report researched from accredited sources

A new use of an age-old therapy

Allergies

For hundreds of years, men and women now lost in obscurity recognized the curative virtues of their own natural body fluids.

In Europe, Asia and Colonial America these natural fluids were freely used to treat physical ailments.

Today, there is a growing awareness that such methods were of great value. In fact, there is a large mass of recent scientific and clinical evidence that every person's own body holds substances capable of fighting diseases specific to that person.

These substances are as unique to each person as his or her fingerprints.

When an individual's own body substances are used to treat that individual's own illnesses, the method is called "auto-immunization."

* * * * * * *

Reports on the success of auto-immunization began appearing in Western medical literature during the 1800's. Then, in our own time, top scientists began to publish in European medical journals information on use of natural body fluids as immunization against allergic reactions. Among these scientists was Dr. Janos Plesch, Albert Einstein's personal physician and closest friend.

* * * * * * *

A few American physicians thus became aware of autogenous (self-producing) therapy for treatment of allergies and about 50 years ago began using (and improving) the techniques for their own patients.

* * * * * * *

The results were astounding. Thousands of case histories piled up. Records revealed a startling 85 per cent recovery rate spanning the whole range of allergic disorders, including asthma, eczema, hay fever, hives, intestinal disturbances, allergy-induced headaches, and reactions to foods.

The American physicians who pioneered auto-immunity for allergies were, and are, men of impeccable professional reputation. They are men who founded hospitals, who held research fellowships from the nation's top medical schools, and who were, indeed, scientists as well as practicing physicians.

* * * * * * *

Their detailed case histories revealed not one single instance of harm resulting from auto-immunization. There is, in fact, much research data already published on auto-immunization for allergies, and none of this information indicates a single major side effect connected to autogenous therapy.

* * * * * * *

The Allergy Care Medical Clinic of Lakewood administers an advanced auto-immunization technique, a method refined far beyond those employed by early investigators.

This therapy is a short-term, vaccination-like method which recycles immunizing agents believed by scientists to be naturally present in body fluids.

The body appears to use these agents as "a lock to a key" in building immunity to allergic disease.

Briggs 'drawing the line' on gays

State Sen. John V. Briggs, R-Fullerton, the first announced candidate for the GOP gubernatorial nomination, is a controversial legislator who has forthrightly condemned homosexuals, criminals and often Democrats. He is a graduate of Long Beach State University, elected first to the State Assembly in 1966 and to the Senate in 1976. He was interviewed by Independent, Press-Telegram reporter Janice Perry.

Q and A

Q. Senator Briggs, in late 1972, the Los Angeles Times reported that you were instrumental in securing a $7.1-million Medi-Cal contract for an unaccredited Orange County hospital with whom your insurance firm had financial dealings. Wasn't that a gross conflict of interest?

A. When was that?

Q. 1972.

A. Well, if you're going to conduct an interview on an old 1972 item that never appeared anywhere but the Los Angeles Times . . . that was a onetime news story that quickly faded. I think they (the Times) found they had been had on that particular story. Two years later they endorsed me for re-election.

Q. Were those allegations true?

A. I'm not going to discuss it. That was an old charge, and I am not interested in it.

(Los Angeles Times researchers were unable to find any retraction of its 1972 expose, and a spokesperson Saturday said, "In no way did the Times endorse the re-election of Sen. Briggs for State Assembly in 1974 or to the State Senate.")

Q. More recently, just before you gained your present Senate seat, in October 1976, the California Citizen Action group reported that you had the poorest attendance record in the Assembly, and it said that you had attended only 24.1 per cent of the votes in subcommittees and committees. Why?

A. Because, I made it very clear at the time, the speaker of the house — a liberal Democrat, from that cesspool over there, San Francisco — put me on committees where there were 11 Democrats and two Republicans and nine Democrats and I think two Republicans. And all the votes were decided before I went into committee. And I just was not going to waste my time filling up a room when the votes had all been determined prior to my entry. I took care of my constituents' problems and was going about doing something constructive.

Q. You don't think you were denying your constituents representation?

A. Not when all the votes . . . decisions were pre-made, rubber stamped. Do you understand me? It was 9 to 2. I mean it wasn't 5 to 4, or 6 to 5 where you have an opportunity to be influential.

Q. A controversial issue you're embroiled yourself in is that of gay rights. You recently said you were going to introduce a bill that would, in effect, allow school districts to openly discriminate against homosexual teachers. Why have you sponsored this legislation?

A. Did you hear me say I was going to put in a bill that was going to openly discriminate against homosexual teachers? Or is this something you read?

Q. This is what I have gathered.

A. Well, that isn't what I said at all.

Q. I have also read the bill and that's effectively what it would allow school districts to do.

A. Yes, but I don't use those words. What I call it is the California Save Our Children law.

Q. Discriminate is what in essence it actually does, doesn't it?

Angelic Farrah

. . . dons her halo

Farrah Fawcett-Majors, of Charlie's Angels" TV fame, shook her tawny mane in disgust at reports she was arrested for shoplifting seven years ago. She was simply acting as a "self-help consumer advocate," she explained, when she took items of clothing from two shops in Los Angeles which had refused to exchange "inferior" merchandise she bought. Page A-2.

Family life

. . . due some breaks?

The Father's Day interviewee stressed the importance of family life, said married working couples should get a tax break, and suggested removal of incentives for welfare fathers to desert their families. Maybe he'll do something about it. It was President Carter. Page A-4.

There's gold

. . . in them thar kills

Gary Gilmore, his uncle says, wanted the same things you and I want — marriage, a home, a job and love." Maybe because he didn't have them he became a cold-blooded killer. Typically, someone is always ready to cash in on such misfits. There are books, plays, movies, T-shirts — and, of course, love Of money. Page A-6.

Saints

. . . in all sizes

He was a little man, just 5 feet tall. And frail. But he has won a place in American history. Bishop John Nepomucene Neumann, who died more than a century ago, has become America's first male saint because of miracles attributed to him. Page A-7.

Just a game

. . .a reporter died

It was a tragic accident. The result of horse play, with guns, at the Long Beach police station. Some people saw sinister motives, afterwards. Most raised an outcry about irresponsible handling of firearms. But an I-PT reporter died. One of the officers involved recalls graphically the night Bill Hunter was killed. Page B-1.

Mondale in L.A. drive for energy

By Bob Houser
Political Editor

Vice President Mondale lobbied for the President's energy program in Los Angeles Saturday only hours after a Democratic senator blistered the administration program before the same forum as an astronomically priced dud with billions of windfall dollars for oil companies.

The critic, who agreed with Mondale and President Carter on the urgency of energy conservation, was Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio, a member of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee.

Mondale and Metzenbaum were speakers at an enegy conference sponsored by the National Democratic Forum, a Washington, D.C., based educational, non-profit organization, in the Beverly Hilton Hotel. About 500 people attended the day-long conference.

Mondale said the plan would encourage conversion to more abundant fuels by pricing scarce petroleum reserves "at their true replacement cost through a wellhead tax on crude oil."

THAT TAX, said Metzenbaum, will cost consumers $15.3 billion and will save only 25,000 barrels a day out of a total of 17 million barrels a day. "We could probably save this much if it rains during the July 4th weekend," he said.

While Mondale stressed "the potential for absolute catastrophe . . . if we don't act now" on the energy crisis, his detailing of elements of the administration plan accented persuasion and rewards. Metzenbaum hammered on "tough, mandatory conservation programs."

"We want to encourage the use of more efficient cars . . . we must insulate our homes better . . . design more efficient appliances, machinery and buildings," said Mondale.

Achievement would come through enacting fuel-efficiency

Headed for rocket launch into orbit in '80s

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Two astronauts tested flaps and the speed brake on the piggyback Space Shuttle "Enterprise" Saturday in the first manned airborne test of the space program's latest craft.

"Those speed brake tests looked good, and all the other tests look good so far," Johnson Space Center in Houston radioed to the craft halfway through the 54-minute flight above the desert.

"Okie doke," flight commander Fred W. Haise Jr. called back.

Haise, a civilian, flew in the shuttle with Air Force Lt. Col. Gordon Fullerton. The 150,000-pound shuttle, the size of a jetliner, was carried to 15,000 feet attached atop a modified Boeing 747 jumbo jet, which had its own crew of four.

The flight, originally scheduled for 42 minutes, lasted longer because the Houston control center had trouble receiving some data from the shuttle and ordered several tests rerun.

Haise was the first to leave the craft at 9:50 a.m. PDT, about 50 minutes after the shuttle and its partner jumbo jet touched down. Fullerton, the pilot, followed a few moments later.

The two astronauts were lowered 40 feet from the shuttle hatchway by an Air Force firetruck "cherry picker." The astronauts chatted a few minutes with space agency officials and then were driven away in a van to be debriefed.

The piggyback testing is designed to simulate the shuttle's eventual takeoff. The shuttle will go into space on a rocket in the 1980s, then will detach and fly by itself with crew and supplies to build space stations. It will be able to land again on earth to be reused as many as 100 times.

The shuttle and its jet partner flew at 209 miles an hour during most of the flight over the 154-mile racetrack-shaped oval at the Dryden Flight Research Center here.

The two astronauts conducted "flutter tests" of the flaps and the speed brake at the rear of the tail. The brake will slow the craft as it enters the earth's atmosphere from space. The tests were designed to show how much structural flutter developed during the flight at relatively low altitudes and slow speeds.

FBI spying history on ACLU told

CHICAGO (AP) — The FBI infiltrated the American Civil Liberties Union from 1920 to 1943 and kept dossiers on leading members such as Clarence Darrow, Helen Keller and Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, the Chicago Daily News reported Saturday.

The newspaper said in a copyright story that the infiltration was personally supervised by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI from 1924 until his death in 1972.

A spokesman for the FBI said the bureau would have no immediate comment on the report.

Frankfurter's file, according to the report, said that as a Harvard professor he was considered a "dangerous man by United States government employes." He was appointed to the high court in 1939.

Attorney Darrow's file said that, through his defense of John Scopes in the celebrated Tennessee "monkey trial," radical groups were "capitalizing . . . on evolution and gaining entree . . . to certain coveted circles."

MISS KELLER, the famed blind and deaf author and lecturer, was said to be a "writer on radical subjects."

Others on whom dossiers were kept, according to the account, included:

—William Allen White, nationally renowned author and journalist, described as "a member of the Foreign Policy Association, a radical organization affiliated with the American Civil Liberties Union."

—Nobel laureate Jane Addams, founder of Chicago's Hull House, who was viewed by the FBI as a "zealous and consistent supporter of radical and revolutionary movements."

The newspaper said it obtained FBI files containing this information as a result of a freedom of information suit filed in U.S. District Court in Washington, D.C.

It said the files showed that Hoover personally supervised the

Alaska pipeline: dream to reality

By Wallace Turner
New York Times Service

ANCHORAGE — The trans-Alaska pipeline system, built in one of the world's most hostile climates as a memorable national technical achievement, will go into service Monday after surviving attacks by environmentalists, congressional debates as to its fundamental worth and the financial hazards of billions of dollars of excess costs.

Conceived as a vehicle for the recovery and marketing of the continent's largest deposit of petroleum, the $7.7 billion installation will begin operation slowly as the oil flows at one mile an hour to fill the 789-mile pipe running from the shores of the Arctic Ocean to the ice-free waters of Prince William Sound.

When the pipe is filled by late July, the system will be tested with gradually expanding loads so that by autumn 1.2 million barrels a day will be delivered to a national market that in 1976 consumed 17.1 million barrels daily. That oil, drawn from wellheads on the tundra-covered plain where the land slumps down toward the Arctic Ocean from the Brooks Range, will supplement imported oil, which in 1976 amounted to 7.3 million barrels a day.

These first deliveries from the 9.7-billion-barrel reservoir at Prudhoe Bay will enter the national market at a time when the United States is edging toward basic revisions in national energy policy, a policy that for decades will count on the Arctic oil resources that will begin to flow toward market Monday when buttons are pushed at Pump Station 1 of the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co.

The temperature will probably be in the mid-30s. Perhaps the sun will be out; perhaps there will be fog, or perhaps it will snow.

The scene will be the North Slope, a bleak place that has come into the national consciousness along with remembered photos of men in hard hats, parkas and heavy gloves, surrounded by blowing snow. The pictures showed that ice formed on the men's beards while they tugged at wrenches used to assemble oil derricks in bitter cold. The captions usually said that the cold caused steel to become brittle and crack easily.

All this is true. The wells were drilled and the pipeline was built in weather conditions of terrible severity. But it is now almost summer, the time of constant daylight. Yet it will be cold Monday, perhaps just above freezing.

Alyeska is a corporation owned by eight of the major leaseholders on the Slope: Exxon, British Petroleum, Atlantic Richfield Co., Union Oil Co. of California, Standard Oil Co. (Ohio), Mobil Oil Corp., Phillips Petroleum Co. and Amerada Hess Corp. With eight lesser holders, these companies

Can't afford new home? Fix up the old one

Editor's Note: The American home is getting so expensive that the homeowner finds there is only one thing to do — put more money into the one you have. You can't afford anything else anyway. It's a boon to the home improvement trade and the local lumber yard.

By Andy Lang
Associated Press

Few people, it seems, are satisfied with that "home, sweet home" they broke their backs to buy.

The result is a cacophony of hammers, saws, drills and delivery trucks as Americans struggle to make the old homestead something it wasn't.

Americans spent more than $30 billion last year to improve their homes. It's a clear contrast to the housing industry's depressed state, but the home improvement market has been going up for more than a decade.

AFTER A STEADY increase of $1 billion a year until 1974, it then jumped from $18.5 billion to $21.1 billion — and last year leapt a clear $5 billion.

How is this money being spent? Kitchens, bathrooms, basements and attics are being remodeled. Porches are being enclosed, walls paneled and floor tiled. Wallpaper is being hung, paint spread and houses cooled. New siding is going up and carpets are going down.

Exhaust fans are being added and electrical circuits expanded. There is even a spurt in the sales of less essential items such as swimming pools, saunas, whirlpool baths, greenhouses and tennis courts.

And just to make sure they can enjoy these additions to the good life in comparative safety, people are buying record-breaking numbers of burglar alarms and smoke detectors.

The transition from a reasonable annual increase, caused partly by inflation, to a marked surge occurred when so many families began to be priced out of the housing market.

Randy Siefert, general counsel of the National Home Improvement Council, puts it this way:

"IF IT DIDN'T pay to sell the old house to buy a new one, partly because the profit on the former would be wiped out by the premium on the latter and partly because of the big difference in the mortgage interest rate, a family figured that it might as well make the old one a better place to live."

A family that paid $25,000 for a house 10 or 12 years ago might find that its present market value is $50,000.

If it purchases a new house for $50,000, thus avoiding a capital gains tax on the profit, it might have to settle for a smaller house without the improvements that had been made over the years.

Even more important, its new mortgage interest rate would be in the neighborhood of 9 per cent, compared with a rate several points less on the old mortgage, thus increasing the size of the monthly payments.

Also, those who choose to purchase what the real estate business calls "existing" houses — to distinguish them from new ones — in most cases immediately begin to remold them to suit their own tastes.

A FACET of human nature especially prevalent among home buyers is the desire to change the appearance of something that seemed perfectly satisfactory at the time of purchase.

Siefert says the home improvement sales figures began to move sharply upward when the median price of a new house reached $42,000. The Federal Home Loan Bank Board reported on Oct. 19th of last year that the average price of a new house had reached $50,500.

While you can get houses between $20,000 and $40,000 if you are willing to accept smaller lots and fewer square feet of habitable area, not many people seem so inclined.

The housing industry is learning what automobile manufacturers have known for several years — that the public is not yet ready to relinquish the good things it has been taught to enjoy.

Except in a few locations where population growth has created a demand that is difficult to meet, people are rejecting stripped-down "no frills" models in favor of houses that give them at least some of the amenities.

IT IS THIS public attitude that is making home improvement contractors and the manufacturers of the necessary materials so pleased with what is happening.

Nobody can really be sure how many familes are having the work done by professionals and how many are doing it themselves, simply because there is so much over lap in many of the projects.

But one educated estimate comes from a home improvement council executive vice president, John Hammond, who says:

"A few years ago we figured that about 10 per cent of the improvement work was being done by do-it-yourselfers. From the rough figures we have at hand, that percentage now is at least 50 per cent, and the chances are that it will go even higher in the next couple of years."

WHAT'S THE MOST popular home improvement? No argument there. Year after year, it's kitchen remodeling. That, unless you are talking about adding a room or building a garage, is about the most expensive type of remodeling there is.

Langslet gets merit award

C. Robert Langslet & Son, Inc., developer of several area housing tracts, has received a Gold Nugget Merit Award from the Pacific Coast Builders' Conference for the company's distinctive new headquarters at 296 Redondo Ave., Long Beach.

The attractive building, conceived by the architectural firm of Hugh Gibbs and Donald Gibbs, is set amid a sylvan atmosphere of heavily landscaped slopes, waterways, boulders and waterfalls.

The structure was applauded by the builders' conference and the Sales and Marketing Council of the Building Industry Association of Southern California in the "Best Commercial Development" category.

A spokesman for the company said the building was "created to project an image of quality and expertise for a builder whose reputation for excellence in building spans some 25 years."

The spokesman added that the response from employes, clients, suppliers, contractors and guests who attended a recent open house show that "the structure more than meets this goal."

To achieve "a larger than life" impression, the architect utilized a glass and beam structure that combines the elements of drama and simplicity, the spokesman said.

The glass walls require no corner frames, and the overlapping panels extend from floor to ceiling. Above, 75-foot-long beams define the ceiling.

The spokesman added that the "total vision" concept of the building includes the exterior landscaping, dramatic interior decor and flowing open lines for an eye-appealing — as well as functional — working environment.

The three individual offices contain acoustics for privacy while retaining individual views of the landscaped slopes, pools and waterfalls.

"The result," noted the spokesman, "is total privacy without a closed-in feeling.

"In addition, the dramatic interior design combines brilliant oranges and greens with deep black for emphasis. This striking decor lends impact and contrast to the natural exterior landscaping. The total effect is one of simplicity, but boldness of statement."

In conclusion, the spokesman commented:

"The new C. Robert Langslet & Son, Inc., building expresses a philosophy. We have combined natural beauty, enhanced by man's originality and creativity, for an exceptional use of land, structural concept and overall decor in a practical and unique commercial building."

The builder's most recent residential projects include Peppertree Villas in Long Beach and the under-construction Lakewood Shores development.

The 232-home Lakewood complex, located on Centralia Street just east of Bloomfield Avenue, will also feature a water-oriented atmosphere. Sales on the project are to begin this summer.

Newport Beach firm garners Gold Nuggets

Richardson Nagy Martin, a Newport Beach-based architectural and planning firm, has received two Gold Nugget awards during competition sponsored by the Pacific Coast Builders Conference and the Sales and Marketing Council of the Building Industry Association.

The firm captured the coveted awards for an Orange County hillside condominium and a San Diego hillside apartment complex.

The Gold Nugget awards, presented at the conference in San Francisco June 2, are designed to recognize the best residential, commercial, industrial and institutional projects in 13 Western states.

RICHARDSON NAGY MARTIN received its Gold Nuggets for The Hollyhock, an attached home constructed in the Turtle Rock Glen section of Irvine by Irvine Pacific Development Co., and Two Parks, an apartment complex developed in North San Diego's University City by Techbilt Construction Co.

A spokesman said the firm is one of the most consistently honored developers in the Gold Nugget Awards Competition, having received five awards in 1976, eight in 1974 and four in 1973.

Altogether, the firm has won 30 Gold Nugget awards and a total of 41 major architectural awards.

The spokesman said this year's awards included the Award of Merit in the single-family attached home category of structures over 1,800 square feet for The Hollyhock.

THE HOLLYHOCK, he added, is a three-bedroom downhill model with family room and den. It has an all-wood exterior of either cedar plank siding or cedar shingles.

THE SPOKESMAN said the firm's Two Parks development in San Diego won its award in the low-rise apartment category.

He said Two Parks is a 145-unit development, with apartments ranging in size from 875 to 1,637 square feet.

The apartment complex features contemporary design and spaciousness.

Walker & Lee sales hit $1 billion in 21 weeks

Walker & Lee, Inc., the Anaheim-based real estate services company, reached $1 billion in 1977 sales and services by the 21st week of the year, according to Dennis Gardner, senior vice president for finance and administration.

He added that the organization hit the $1 billion mark nearly three full months ahead of its world record-setting schedule of 1976.

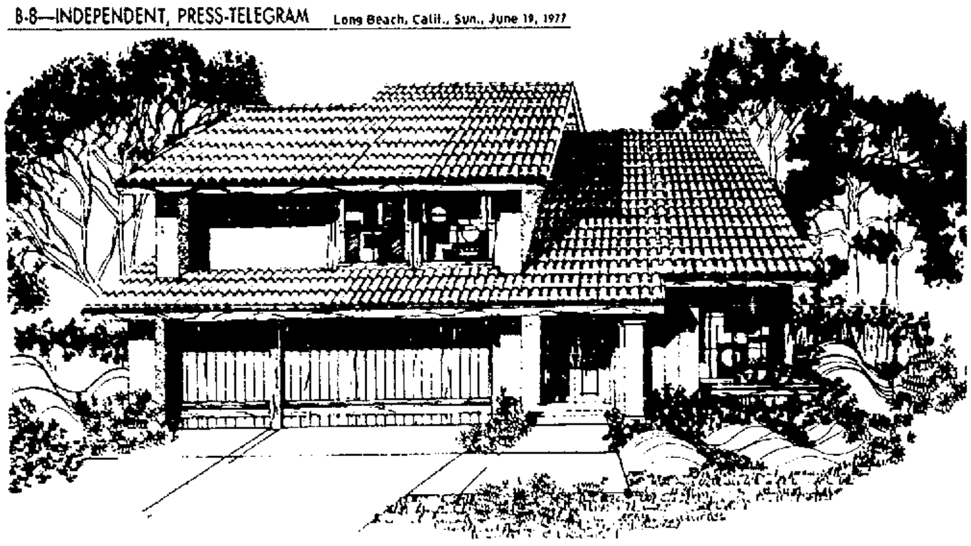
By the week ending May 29, the firm had reached a total volume of $1,030,581,000. That figure is $438 million ahead of last year's sales total for the same time period — a 74 per cent increase.

"Last year," said Gardner, "we decided to set a $1 billion goal, even though our total never had exceeded three-quarters of a billion in previous years. We passed that goal in late August, taking less than eight months to do it. This year we did it in only 21 weeks.

"Counting on a continuing strong real estate market, we doubled our goal to $2 billion in 1977. With the continuing strong efforts of our sales, administrative and support staffs, we should have no trouble realizing that goal by year-end."

The $1 billion total for this year includes $804 million in sales of new and existing homes, investment property, commercial and industrial property.

The remaining $226 million was accumulated in the value of services through three subsidiaries, Walker & Lee Mortgage Co., Summit Escrow Co. and Walker & Lee Insurance, Inc. as well as the firm's Marketing Services Department.



ARTIST'S CONCEPTION shows park-like setting of luxury Woodside/Cerritos homes now selling at 166th Street and Marquardt Avenue.

Parkside, single-family homes

Woodside/Cerritos open

A parkside setting highlights the large, fully air-conditioned family homes of Woodside/Cerritos, now selling at the northwest corner of 166th Street and Marquardt Avenue in Cerritos.

The single-family residential community was constructed by the J. M. Peters Co. of Newport Beach and designed by the architecture and land-planning firm of Bates-Basseman-Pekarek.

Jim Peters, president of the award winning home building firm, said the three to five bedroom houses feature up to 2,949-square-feet of interior living space and are designed to satisfy the need for separate zones for entertaining and privacy.

The one-story, two-story and split-level designs are priced from $93,990 to $127,990.

"The home is the central element in family living," Peters said. "Routine needs of preparing food, storage of clothing, personal grooming and sleeping are satisfied by architectural designs and features which focus on comfort and convenience.

"Soaring cathedral ceilings, clerestory windows, intimate corners and wide walls invite families to exhibit their individual treasures. Both indoors and outdoors, space is available for the pursuit of special hobbies and interests," Peters added.

The firm president said finishing touches on the homes include wood shake roofs, bronze tinted windows and exterior wood trim.

He added that the firm, noted for the use of quality materials with a variety of textres, has used ceramic tile or wood parquet for the formal entries, decorator-selected hardware for the double front doors and interior doors, interesting lighting fixtures and plush shag carpeting for the living room, dining room, family room, all bedrooms, closets, halls, master bath and dressing areas.

Each plan has a wood-burning fireplace with a convenient gas stub, up to three full baths and interior space from 1,831 to 2,949-square-feet.

Peters said the well-designed kitchens overlook garden areas and are complete with a full line of time-saving appliances. Hand-finished cabinets with raised panel designs, ceramic tile counter tops, refrigerator areas plumbed for an ice maker and luminous ceilings are also included.

In addition, all plans have built-in microwave ovens, self-cleaning electric ovens and gas cooktops. Double compartment sinks are equipped with a garbage disposal, and all plans have a large storage pantry and a dishwasher.

The deluxe baths include china basins, Corian marble counter tops and showers with ceramic tile wainscots and safety glass enclosures. Powder rooms have carpeting, and master baths have double basins and luminous ceilings.

Some plans have a choice of two or three-car garages, and all homes are fully insulated. Utility lines have been concealed underground.

The homes are located adjacent to Carmenita Park and close to the new 83-acre Cerritos Regional Park.

To reach the 20-acre Woodside/Cerritos community, take the Artesia Freeway (91) exit at Carmenita Avenue and drive north to 166th Street, then turn right to Marquardt Avenue.

Saws, drills set in motion during remodeling craze

Assuming an average number of changes, including such things as new cabinets, counters, sinks, major appliances and the like, the cost can run over $5,000. Savings of up to 40 per cent can be gained by doing the work yourself, depending on local labor costs.

Besides being the most popular home improvement, kitchen remodeling also tops the list of money projects, with $3.5 billion expected to be spent on it this year.

Adding an extra room, next on the popularity list, will get $3.1 billion of the home owners' money.

More than $1.5 billion will go for bathroom remodeling, $1.1 billion for finishing basements, $1.1 for enclosing porchs and breezeways and $1 billion for adding garages.

After that, come such projects as adding bathrooms, finishing attics, adding and enclosing carports, and interior and exterior painting. Close behind are the addition of new roofs and siding and air conditioning.

In non-essential improvements, residential swimming pools are three times as numerous as 10 years ago. The number, excluding the above-ground models, is now 1,400,000.

Home improvement loans are relatively easy to get. No wonder. They carry a high rate of interest, usually from 12 to 15 per cent.

What are known as Title 1 home improvement loans are insured up to 90 per cent of the amount, which can be as much as $10,000 for a one-family house, with a 12-year payment plan at 12 per cent interest.

THE BIG advantage to the lender is that no matter what happens, the government agency guarantees that he will get back at least 90 per cent of the loan.

The disadvantage is that the bank or lending institution cannot charge more than the 12 per cent rate, even though its regular rate for such loans may be one or two percentage points higher.

While most home improvements qualify for a Title 1 loans, some of the non-essential items, such as swimming pools, do not.

Some lenders call for repayment of the loans within five, six or seven years. Some have 15-year repayment programs. In nearly all cases, the exceptions being home owners with very high credit ratings, the borrower must put up collateral or furnish a lien on the house when the loan is over $7,500.

No matter whose money is being used, everyone is spending it to make a house a home.

Shoplifting? No—I was just helping myself, says Farrah

Combined News Services

Television star Farrah Fawcett-Majors was acting not as a shoplifter but as a "self-help consumer advocate" when she took items of clothing from two shops, her lawyer said Saturday.

Meanwhile, Miss Fawcett-Majors said Saturday in Paris she was "stunned" at a published report that she had been accused of shoplifting seven years ago. She said she didn't steal anything but just "took justice into my own hands."

The 30-year-old actress who skyrocketed to stardom in the private eye series "Charlie's Angels" said she took items of clothing from two California shops in 1970 as a protest against the shopkeepers' refusal to exchange unsatisfactory items she had purchased.

"I was making a demonstration, and at the time I felt it was the only thing I could do," she said.

Her comments came in response to a story in the New York Post that she was arrested and fined on two occasions for taking dresses and coats from a Los Angeles boutique and a San Fernando Valley shop.

"I'm stunned that anybody seven years later could take it seriously," Miss Fawcett-Majors said.

Her lawyer, Ronald S. Rosen, said that in both incidents the actress, who was a model at the time, "wanted to exchange the merchandise. In both cases, they refused, so she took like merchandise right in front of everyone and walked out.

"Shoplifters don't act in that manner," he said. "They are usually very secretive about things. She just did it openly in an argument."

Elliot Abelson, Miss Fawcett-Majors' lawyer at the time of the incidents, said the actress was charged with petty theft but pleaded guilty to the lesser charge of trespassing in both cases.

She was fined $125 in August 1970 for taking two dresses from Judy's Boutique in Los Angeles and was placed on 18 months probation and fined $265 in November 1970 for taking two coats from a San Fernando Valley shop, Abelson said.

The fine in the second case was suspended, he said, on condition that Miss Fawcett-Majors undergo psychiatric treatment. She did so for about six months.

The lawyer said Miss Fawcett-Majors "is not a thief and not a kleptomaniac. She did not take anything that did not belong to her. She never meant to misappropriate any items, and I consider her one of the first self-help consumer advocates.

"I think it's unfortunate that something as insignificant as this is being brought up now," he said. "There have been no incidences whatsoever since then, and she has no prior record."

Carter at play

President Carter went swimming Saturday and then did paper work, spending a quiet weekend at Camp David, Md., the presidential retreat.

He flew up to the camp in the Catoctin Mountains about 60 miles north of Washington with his wife Rosalynn and daughter Amy on Friday afternoon.

The President, who on his three previous visits to Camp David has attended different local churches, planned this morning to attend a private worship service at Camp David. An Army chaplain was invited to lead the service for the family.

The Carters planned to return to Washington this afternoon. Mrs. Carter is flying to Arizona tonight for a week-long series of meetings and speeches there and in California and Hawaii.

IRS probe

Albert E. Jenner Jr., Republican minority counsel in the impeachment hearings of President Nixon, is reportedly under investigation by the IRS for failing to file income tax returns.

The Chicago Sun-Times said today that Jenner, 69, conceded that his federal returns for 1973, 1974 and 1975 were not filed on time, explaining that he had been unable to assemble the necessary records because of outside activities, including the impeachment proceedings.

Jenner, who is one of the most prominent lawyers in Chicago, said that he had actually overpaid his taxes by $68,000 in the three years, making quarterly estimated payments to the IRS, The Sun-Times said.

His taxable income was said to have run in excess of $320,000 in each of the disputed years.

Not miffed

From her hospital bed in Antelope Valley, actress Tippi Hedren says she has no hard feelings for Tembo, the four-ton elephant.

The 9½-foot tall bull elephant was just trying to help when he wrapped his trunk around Miss Hedren's leg and crushed her ankle, she said.

"Tembo picks me up and puts me on his head. But I keep screaming and yelling and falling off. It's just acting, of course. But Tembo didn't understand," Miss Hedren explained.

The accident occurred Wednesday during the filming of "Roar" in Soledad Canyon.

Belafonte

Harry Belafonte, the singer-actor, is back in Cuba on a sightseeing tour, Radio Havana reports.

Belafonte arrived on the island Friday accompanied by his wife.

Liz goes rural

The people of the northwoods town of Woodruff, Wis. got a rare taste of Hollywood glamour Saturday as Elizabeth Taylor returned to the scene of her childhood summers to help dedicate a new hospital.

The actess was representing the family of her late uncle, Howard Young, who bequeathed $20 million to replace an old medical center with a new one bearing his name.

Also at the dedication were Miss Taylor's husband, John Warner, former secretary of the Navy, and Ralph Edwards, host of the "This Is Your Life" television show that in 1954 promoted a penny drive to help build the original hospital.

Ceremonies featured a ball for 1,000 people at the Holiday Inn Supper Club, film showings, including Miss Taylor's "National Velvet," and a symbolic pile of pennies.

The violence came Friday amid a national observance by blacks of the anniversary of protests last June against the white minority government in which 600 blacks were killed.

Arab boycott

CAIRO — The Arab League commission administering the economic boycott of Israel has decided that Arabs should not supply raw materials to companies dealing with the Jewish state, but the boycott chief refused Saturday to say whether oil was included on the raw materials list. He said the organization's decision "is a clear response" to antiboycott legislation passed by the U.S. Congress on June 10.

OAS gets strong rights resolution

ST. GEORGES, Grenada — The U.S. introduced a strong human rights resolution Saturday at the general assembly of the Organization of American States.

It calls for a strengthening of the inter-American human rights commission and an end to "torture, summary execution and prolonged detention."

Cosponsored by Venezuela, Costa Rica and the Dominican Republic, it also urges OAS members to provide the commission with documents on alleged human rights violations and to permit it to carry out investigations in all member countries.

Gas blasts hurt 9

MEXICO CITY — Three explosions followed by a raging fire in a gasoline storage tank destroyed part of a Pemex oil refinery here Saturday. The Red Cross said nine persons were injured. The large storage tank was being filled from a pipeline at the time.

Plea to Russia

WIESBADEN, West Germany — West Germany appealed Saturday to Moscow to let more of an estimated 2.4 million ethnic Germans in the Soviet Union emigrate to West Germany. The Soviets have reduced the flow of ethnic Germans to West Germany and jailed others who sought exit visas, a German spokesman said.

Regime turns right

MADRID — Premier Adolfo Suarez, whose center coalition failed to win a parliamentary majority in Spain's elections Wednesday, reportedly will turn to neo-Franco rightist groups rather than the second-place Socialists to form a new government. Sources said Saturday that Suarez was reluctant to seek socialist support because of economic differences.

Moluccans riot

CULEMBORG, The Netherlands — About 100 young South Moluccans smashed shop windows near the Moluccan district here early Saturday and then set up barricades around the quarter. Police fired warning shots after gunfire was heard coming from inside the barricades. One Moluccan was arrested and the crowd was dispersed without casualties.

Rhodesian 'invasion'

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania — Mozambican President Samora Machel accused Rhodesia Saturday of sending troops into Mozambique for the second time in three weeks. He called for an emergency meeting of the U.N. Security Council. Rhodesia denied the charge. In New York, a U.N. spokesman said the Security Council would meet Monday to consider Machel's request.

Bhutto abroad

KARACHI, Pakistan — Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, leaving domestic unrest behind, arrived Saturday in Saudi Arabia, the first stop on a surprise tour of the Middle East. "Down with Bhutto," "Death to Bhutto," crowds of several hundred shouted here as they celebrated the government's agreement to restage Pakistan's disputed March 7 election and the homecoming of opposition politicians released from arrest. Opposition leaders voiced suspicion of Bhutto's trip, announced while a government-opposition agreement on new elections was still being finalized.

ABOUT REAL ESTATE

"What's Your Problem?"

by Don G. Campbell

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

My annual salary is about $42,000. I have my wife and one child as dependents. I am foreign-born and plan to return to my native country in four or five years.

I presently live in an apartment with a monthly rent of $250. A house which we would like to buy will cost between $60,000 and $70,000. I can manage to pay about $12,000 to $15,000 as a down payment.

Considering my plan to go back home soon, is it advisable to buy a house or continue living in the apartment? — Mr. R.R. (Cincinnati, Ohio)

A. This is one of those situations where I could say "Stay right where you are — don't buy," and you could disregard me, buy it, and sell it in four years at a whopping profit. I doubt it, though.

Under normal circumstances, we might assume this house would appreciate in value at the compounded rate of about 8 per cent a year. In your case, it would almost HAVE to for you to come out ahead.

Remember that your principal and interest alone will cost you about $443 a month (assuming $15,000 down on a $70,000 house). That is about $193 more a month than you are now paying in rent.

On top of this, there are about $2,000 in move-in expenses, utilities (which now may or may not be included in your rent), maintenance, taxes and insurance. And then, when it comes time to resell, you've got a whopping real estate sales commission.

Would it pay? On the basis of raw figures it WOULD, but only if the house appreciates in value pretty sharply over the next four years. You COULD come out ahead but, as I said, I'm inclined to doubt it.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

In a recent column about five cousins who jointly inherited an undivided, 20-acre section of land, you said, "Why do people leave wills making life so much more complicated than it has to be?" I would like to know how my sister and I can avoid a similar situation.

"We are both in our late 50s and we inherited undivided property from our father many years ago. We now live on opposite sides of the country, and we both have children who are not too well acquainted.

Our property is on the edge of a commercial area and there are some legal difficulties which currently prevent us from selling the land, unless we choose to practically give it away.

The legal problems are not of our making, but they involve city and township rulings on that particular section. It would not be feasible to divide the property because it involves a corner section which is more valuable. — Mrs. J.E.C. (Hayward Calif.)

A. I admit you've got a situation that could be a headache to your four heirs if anything were to happen to you and your sister at the same time.

But I also think you're both too young to panic about this. Expedite the clearing of the cloud over the property as much as possible, of course, so that you can sell it as soon as possible and not burden your children with it.

However, weighing the advantages of waiting until the property can be disposed of at a fair price against the disadvantages of possibly leaving these four children a cumbersome estate problem but one that involves a valuable piece of property that is WORTH a little trouble — I would take the gamble of waiting.

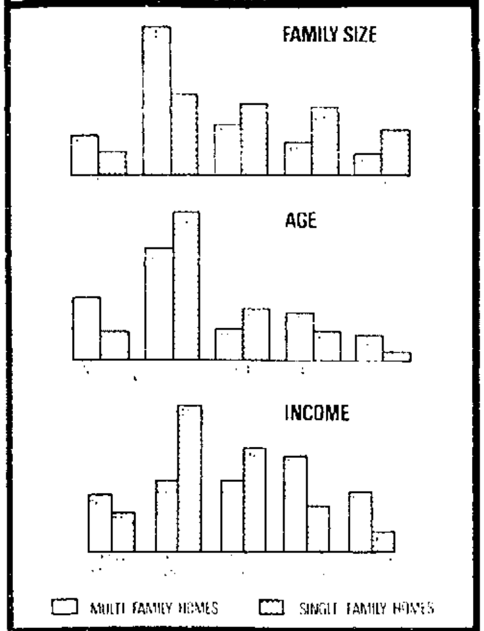
How Do YOU Compare With Today's Average Homeshoppers?



TO COMPARE YOURSELF to today's average home shopper, relate the total number of people in your family to the first graph, the age of the head of your household to the second graph and the total income of your family unit to the third graph. The chart represents a composite of more than 700 home buyers at 16 new Southland housing developments.

—Chart prepared by Walker & Lee

Shoppers' survey discovers change in home market

A recent survey of 700 shoppers at new home developments in Southern California disclosed some shifts in attitude from a year ago:

—Today it's the higher income buyers who are willing to spend more money, relative to their income, for a new home. Lower income home shoppers, who a year ago were willing to stretch for a higher priced home, have turned conservative.

—Fewer renters are among the shoppers. 22 per cent this year compared with 35 per cent a year ago.

—Only 10 per cent of the shoppers said they were buying a home that they would rent out rather than live in.

This year for the first time the survey asked prospective buyers if their family income included funds from more than one source: 60 per cent said it did.

The survey was conducted by Walker & Lee, an Anaheim-based residential real estate company.

The survey focused on age, family size, income and motivation.

AGE: Most of the buyers are young: 48 per cent are in the 26- to 35- year-old bracket. Another 15 per cent are even younger, under 25. The 36 to 45 and 46 to 55 age brackets each contained about 15 per cent of the shoppers queried.

Younger shoppers tended to be looking for single family homes; older persons, those over 45, were seeking attached housing by a ratio of more than two to one.

FAMILY SIZE: The average household size in the survey increased to 2.85 persons, compared to 2.7 a year ago. Still, two-person households account for 38 per cent of all shoppers. Singles represent 10 per cent of shoppers, and 8 per cent of the single family home hunters.

INCOME: Some 33 per cent of the shoppers questioned had a family income of $15,000 to $25,000. Other income categories represented the following percentage of the sample: less than $15,000, 13 per cent; $25,000 to $35,000, 26 per cent; $35,000 to $50,000, 18 per cent, and over $50,000, 10 per cent.

Overall, the amount an average family is willing to spend on a home remains 2.5 times its annual income. Last year, however, lower income buyers would go to 3.5 times their annual income; this year they dropped back to a willingness to spend 2.1 times annual income.

Higher income shoppers, who would only spend 1.7 times annual income a year ago, were willing to go 2.7 times annual income this year.

"More affluent families appear to stretch further because the equity they built up in their previous home enables them to buy a more expensive home without increasing their montly payments too much," an official of the surveying firm suggested.

MOTIVATION: Given a multiple choice of 11 possible reasons to want to buy a home, most shoppers chose "An investment to dwell in." A distant second was: "Need a larger home."

Pot bust

I understand the law which would allow a person to have his marijuana arrest record expunged has been appealed to the California Supreme Court. This was several months ago, and I would like to know if a decision has been handed down yet. P.H., Long Beach.

The case was heard by the high court April 6, and a decision is expected in the next few weeks, said California Deputy Atty. Gen. William R. Pounders of the agency's criminal division.

Under the marijuana decriminalization law of 1976, a person could petition the California Department of Justice to have his arrest record expunged. If the petition is approved, the attorney general's office would be ordered to destroy the records.

That office has, for the last three years, been automatically sealing misdemeanor and felony records of most persons who have been off parole or probation and have had no trouble with the law for at least seven years. But it has challenged the marijuana record law on the grounds that it violates constitutional provisions about separation of powers of the branches of government.

Pounders said requests for marijuana-record expungement currently are not even being processed or held. They are being returned to the sender with the explanation that such requests are not being considered until the State Supreme Court renders its decision in the case.

Travels with Fido

We are planning a trip to Mexico in a couple of months, and we have a puppy that we want to take with us. What are the regulations for taking pets into and out of that country? S.L., Long Beach.

Before taking your pet into Mexico, you must have the dog's rabies documents certified by the Mexican consulate general's office, 125 E. Sunset Blvd., Los Angeles. There is a $4 certification charge. If your puppy is not old enough to get a rabies inoculation, a health certificate from a veterinarian will be accepted by the Mexican consulate. Vets generally do not recommend rabies shots for puppies younger than 4 months.

To bring the pet back into the United States from Mexico, the U.S. government requires that you present a rabies certificate at the border. If the puppy has not been vaccinated because of its age, you must sign a statement at the border agreeing to keep the pet in quarantine at your home for 30 days after you re-enter the country.

Travel biz

Is a license required to own or operate a travel agency? Do any schools offer this type of training? B.S., Long Beach.

Other than a city business license, no other government license is required. But in order to sell airline tickets, a travel agency must be approved by two private airline trade associations. The domestic Air Traffic Conference (ATC), which is headquartered in Washinton, D.C., requires the manager of an agency to have at least two years full-time travel business experience, such as working for an airline ticketing office or a travel agency.

The International Air Transport Association (IATA), based in Montreal, certifies travel agencies to sell international airline tickets. IATA does not have a specific job-experience requirement for an agency's manager, but he must have what the association deems to be a sufficient background in the travel field.

The Long Beach Unified School District's School for Adults offers a nine-week "Travel Sense" course taught by a travel agent to provide vocational training for employment in a travel agency. The next course, which is free to any adult 18 years of age or older, will be held in the fall. Further information may be obtained by calling the school at 433-7446.

Long way to L.A. — by skateboard

CENTRALIA, Ill. (AP) — Jack Charlton is heading back home to Los Angeles on what may be the world's smallest four-wheel highway vehicle — a skateboard.

"I want to get a world's record," said Charlton, 22, as he rocked his way into Centralia on Friday afternoon. He said there is no known world record, so, he adds, his sojourn should become the record.

Charlton said he has averaged 40 miles per day since starting from the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia on May 10. He said he flew to Philadelphia to begin the trip because he'd never been there.

The skateboarder said he wants to promote skateboarding as a sport.

"If there are more people doing it, it will lose its reputation for being dangerous." He said he is sponsored by no skateboard manufacturer or any other firm.

Charlton rumbles along the traveled portion of the secondary highways of the nation — he chose Illinois 161 to enter Centralia — and moves onto the apron to give way to oncoming cars.

Only once has the law taken a dim view of his making the motorized vehicles share the road. He said police in Pennsylvania told him he could not skateboard for 35 miles because of traffic.

Charlton travels with a camper's pack on his back. "I can't have as much fun as if I had somebody following me," he said. Charlton travels alone.

He said he stayed two nights in hotels since May 10 "out of desperation from being tired and smelly." The traveler probably will not forget Greenville, Ohio.

He said he stopped for 40 minutes to take a shower at a private home.

The place was raided by narcotics officers during that time and one resident was arrested. Charlton was taken to the police station to make a statement, then was released.

Charlton intends to reach California by Labor Day — even with a week's vacation in Oklahoma.

He is also weighing the possibility of putting on a skateboarding marathon, traveling 150 to 200 miles non-stop.

Meteor streaks the West

A brilliant flash of blue light, caused by a burning meteor, lit the Western sky early Saturday, triggering hundreds of calls to police and sheriffs' departments from San Diego to Salt Lake City.

The meteor, streaking north, lasted about four seconds before fading away at 1:50 a.m.

"It was large enough to drop some debris over western states," said Kim Bussman of the Griffith Observatory in Los Angeles. So far, no fragments have been found.

Many persons who called authorities expressed the fear that a plane had crashed, including "six to eight" callers who contacted the Long Beach Police Department, said dispatcher Pat Reynolds.

One Long Beach resident, Randi Warner of 1718 E. Ocean Blvd., said she was traveling on the southbound San Gabriel River (605) Freeway when "the entire sky lit up, despite the overcast. It was rather scary."

A truck driver, who pulled over to the side of the road to watch, said the meteor's tail was "as bright as the sun. It lit up the whole sky."

In some parts of eastern California, residents reported hearing "what sounded like a sonic boom" several minutes after the flash.

Brad Bailey, an employe at Mt. Palomar Observatory near San Diego, said, "It was a very bright, bluish white light that looked like a flash cube going off."

Canoeist drowned

A 13-year-old Compton boy drowned Saturday when he and two companions capsized a rented canoe in a 16-acre lake at El Dorado Park, Long Beach police reported.

City lifeguard divers pulled the body of Robert Davis, 500 W. Almond St., from the bottom of 14-foot-deep Milton Arthur Lake, 300 yards north of Wardlow Road, at 5:02 p.m.

Police said Davis and two friends rented a canoe from a concessionaire earlier in the afternoon. The two boys swam safely ashore when the canoe turned over at 4:25 p.m., but Davis sank immediately, police said.

Elsewhere Saturday, the body of a 28-year-old Long Beach man, an apparent drowning victim, was found in the surf off Cherry Avenue, Long Beach police said.

The victim's name was withheld pending notification of next of kin. Investigators said his fully-clothed body was found floating in 5 feet of water at 3 p.m.

Bathers told police they didn't see the victim go into the water.

He was taken to St. Mary Medical Center and pronounced dead at 4 p.m., police added.

29 arrested in L.A. protest melee

Associated Press

Twenty-nine persons were arrested and others injured in Los Angeles Saturday after a downtown protest march turned into a stick-swinging free-for-all.

The melee broke out shortly after noon when officers tried to arrest one of the 75 demonstrators from the Progressive Labor Party for illegally using an electronic bullhorn.

Police said the other marchers then attacked police with the hardwood sticks of their protest placards.

The group had received repeated warnings about the bullhorn, police added.

Four officers and two demonstrators were injured in the fight. One officer suffered a fractured arm and required 30 stitches for a head wound.

Nine men were charged with assaulting a police officer and an additional 12 men and eight women were charged with inciting a riot.

Tortured L.A. woman rescued

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ten members of a drug ring beat a Los Angeles woman for three days in an extortion attempt before authorities rescued her Saturday, police said.

Betty Joyce Champagne, 27, her body covered with bruises, was found cowering in the bathroom of a five-room apartment.

The FBI said James Tippett, 28, of St. Louis, had been holding Miss Champagne for a week in an effort to obtain $25,000 from her family.

SINCE Wednesday, Tippett and nine other members of the drug ring beat Miss Champagne with their fists and with bats, pipes, shoes and "almost everything they could get their hands on," said officer Marvin Temple, one of the first two policemen into the apartment.

"I've been on this job eight years," Temple said. "I've seen some a little worse, but she was beaten pretty bad. She could hardly speak."

Temple said the woman's face was badly bruised, her eyes nearly swollen shut. Her hands, feet and arms were also heavily bruised. She was hospitalized in satisfactory condition.

Seven men and three women ranging in age from 18 to 28 were booked on suspicion of assault with intent to do great bodily harm, and drug possession. Two other persons were arrested in the raid and booked on drug possession. Tippett was booked on suspicion of kidnaping for ransom.

FBI spokesman Kevin Illia said Miss Champagne's mother, Lela Nicholson of Watts, was notified last Friday that her daughter had been kidnaped and would be tortured until $25,000 ransom was paid.

POLICE said Miss Champagne was involved in the drug ring and came to St. Louis about 30 days ago.

gun and I knew he couldn't have. I'd never been in trouble before."

Does he blame Wiggins?

"No. Maybe subconsciously. I don't want to put any guilt on Creighton. It was an accident. Some people don't believe that. If you do a story now, some people still won't believe it. They think I'm guilty and I can't change that. I've stopped trying.

"It's history."

Creighton Wiggins lives in Huntington Beach, unaware until contacted last week that Errol Greenleaf does too.

At first he agreed to an interview, but an hour later called back to say he'd changed his mind.

"I'm living my life now as best I can. I can't see the point in bringing it all back out.

"I'll tell you this: Long Beach lost two of the best cops it ever had."

Lomita redevelopment hearing set

A proposal recommending the formation of a community redevelopment agency to rehabilitate six sites in Lomita has been set for a public hearing at 6:30 p.m. July 27 by the Lomita City Council.

A feasibility study by Municipal Services, Inc., a Pasadena consulting firm, identified six sites located along the city's major arterial streets — Pacific Coast Highway, Lomita Boulevard, Narbonne Avenue and Eshelman Avenue — that could be redeveloped in accordance with state law.

MSI's study recommended "development of convenience shopping and mixed retail commercial uses; elderly housing; and, general office and medical office facilities" on the various sites.

In some cases older buildings would have to be cleared from the sites before they could be effectively marketed for new development; in other cases small lots would have to be repackaged into larger parcels to make them more marketable, according to the report.

All six sites combined make up less than 20 acres, a relatively small project compared to programs in other Los Angeles County cities which have, in some cases, put the entire city in a redevelopment project. The Lomita proposal involves less than one per cent of the city's total land area of 1.87 square miles.

MSI estimated the net cost of the six redevelopment projects at $2.8 million, which could be funded either by short term notes, tax increment bonds, advances from developers, or from the city's allocation of federal Housing and Community Development Act (HCDA) funds.

If the project is fully developed in accord with the MSI projections it would provide a net increase of $2,974,368 in Lomita's current assessed valuation of $45.3 million, which would represent more than enough bonding capacity to finance the project, according to the report.

The MSI report included letters from two developers expressing interest in undertaking the redevelopment of three of the six areas identified in the study.

The proposal recommended the development of an 80,000-square-foot shopping center, anchored by a major supermarket or drug chain store, in the vicinity of Pacific Coast Highway and Narbonne Avenue, and a 33,000-square-foot cluster of antique stores or other highway-commercial uses near Pacific Coast Highway and Eshelman Avenue.

A need for 100 to 150 residential units for elderly persons was identified in the community, with the recommended site being on Narbonne Avenue near the new Lomita City Hall.

Carter emphasizes family importance

By Ann Blackman

REPORTER ANN BLACKMAN INTERVIEWS PRESIDENT CARTER IN WHITE HOUSE

—AP Wirephoto

WASHINGTON — President Carter says the government ought to give married working couples the same tax benefits available to unmarried working people who live together.

He also says the government should remove from welfare programs the economic encouragement for fathers to desert their families.

The President, in a philosophical Father's Day interview, discussed the problems of the American family in 1977 and what the government might do to help

AWAY FROM his imposing antique desk in the Oval Office, he relaxed across the room in a salmon-colored wing chair. He talked of the problems his own success has created for those close to him — the aides who spend so much time at the White House that he's had to order them to see their families.

The President, dressed in blue pinstripes, sat with his legs crossed, as casually as he might in his favorite blue jeans.

The interview was scheduled to last 10 minutes, but the President stretched it to a half hour.

CARTER, husband for almost 31 years, father of four, spoke of his own family life as a child: of his joy at being a grandfather: of his support for working mothers, including his wife, Rosalynn. Sending her on a diplomatic mission to Latin America "proved to be one of the better things I've ever done," he said

Then he talked of his hopes for the American family.

In almost every program that his administration puts forward, he said, "the integrity of the family ought to be a factor." Then, pausing almost wistfully, he added, "I would be inclined to put it as a much greater factor, perhaps, than some others."

Even the tax laws discriminate against the most traditional family value: marriage. Federal income taxes total less for two working single people who live together than for a married working couple.

Congress has voted this year to reduce the difference, but it still exists

"AND I would like to eliminate the disparity altogether," Carter said.

The new standard deductions effective this year can total $1,200 more for two single working people living together than for a married working couple filing jointly. Under the old law, the unmarried couple could have a $2,000 advantage when each took the standard deduction. Married persons filing separate tax returns cannot get the same benefits available to unmarried persons.

The welfare laws, he said, "quite often benefit handsomely the divided family. If the husband works full-time at the minimum wage, he makes a certain income for his wife and children. But if he leaves home or pretends to leave home and continues to work, and his family draws welfare payments, their standard of living can be greatly enhanced."

THIS, Carter said, "is a divisive force that the government artifically imposes on the family system."

But what will he do if he finds it expensive to eliminate laws that make it financially beneficial for welfare families to break up?

Carter replied, "We're struggling with that question now. I don't think it would cost a whole lot more to keep families together."

The President declined to spell out proposals he might offer to change tax and welfare laws

Does he approve of mothers working when they have small children?

"I think it's good," the President replied, adding that his wife went to work before their oldest child was 2 years old.

Should the tax laws be revised to give working mothers a better deal in such areas as child-care tax credits and Social Security?

Carter said: "I don't want to presuppose the kinds of help we might want to give working mothers. But I think the day- care center concept and the tax laws, among other things, ought to be designed to let a parent be employed and also to prevent children from suffering.

"BUT WHAT form the tax laws should take, I'd rather not say, because we are now working on a comprehensive tax reform program."

Carter said the country's educational system could be used more efficiently. The President said schools haven't been adequately used after school hours. He said the after-school program for his 9-year-old daughter, Amy, "really appeals to me."

"They have what they call an expanded school program where kids can come to school at 7:30 a.m. and not leave until 6 p.m.," Carter said. "This gives both parents freedom to be employed, or, where there is only one parent, that person can do so."

Carter said Amy's fourth-grade after-school curriculum includes computer programming, Spanish and photography. He said there is no truth to a rumor that he plans to transfer her from District of Columbia public schools to a private school.

The reporter turned the discussion to homosexuality, a topic of discussion around the country after repeal of a Florida ordinance banning discrimination against homosexuals.

Q. Let me ask you a question that has become troublesome in the last few weeks in Florida and has become a national issue. I wonder if you think homosexuality is a threat to the family. Should they be able to adopt children and teach school? And marry?

A. I don't see homosexuality as a threat to the family. What has caused the highly publicized confrontations on homosexuality is the desire of homosexuals for the rest of society to approve and to add its acceptance of homosexuality as a normal sexual relationship. I don't feel that it's a normal interrelationship. But at the same time I don't feel that society, through its laws, ought to abuse or harass the homosexual. I think it's one of those things that is not accepted by most Americans as a normal sexual relationship. In my mind it's certainly not a substitute for the family life that I described to you.

Q. Do you think they should be able to adopt children or teach school? Would you be upset if you knew Amy were being taught by a homosexual?

A. That's something I'd rather not answer. I don't see the need to change laws to permit homosexuals to marry. I know that there are homosexuals who teach, and the children don't suffer. But this is a subject I don't particularly want to involve myself in. I've got enough problems without taking on another.

Carter said political life in the capital puts special strains on marriages: "I think in Washington there is a particular conflict between ambition and the desire to do a good job, which is legitimate, on one hand, and the obligations to hold your own families together and meet the needs of your spouse and children, on the other. I don't think the two are necessarily incompatible."

CARTER volunteered that when he has heard of a staffer's possible marriage problems, "Rosalynn and I have invited the family to come over and let the children play with Amy and let us show them that you can have an aggressive, dynamic, competitive political career and at the same time maintain your allegiances and your obligations to your own family duties."

Couples should take marriage vows seriously, Carter said. He added: "I'm not trying to be a prude. I'm not going to interfere with the right of people to make their own decisions under our laws."

The President was asked whether he would counsel a member of his staff to marry the person he or she is living with. Carter said: "I think I'd have to judge that on an individual basis. I have to admit that on a few occasions I have counseled with members of my staff about that subject. I've never tried to tell them what to do. I've never insinuated that they would be punished if they didn't."

CARTER has, on occasion, offered some advice on the subject. While visiting the Department of Housing and Urban Development in February, he told employes: "We need a stable family life to make us better servants of the people. So those of you who are living in sin, I hope you get married."

The President was asked in the interview whether he thinks a White House staffer living with someone out of wedlock would reflect on his administration.

"I don't want to equate it to the administration," he said. "I think it sets an example on a nationwide basis that is bad."

Carter said also that he has written memos to his key staff members and to his Cabinet secretaries instructing them to spend time with their families.

"THIS IS important to me," Carter said. "And I think it's good for my administration and good for the country, because what goes on in Washington, as reported to the rest of the world—the nation, at least—has a great impact on the sanctity of marriage and the need to hold the family together."

Resting his head on the back of his chair, Carter reminisced about ideas on marriage and family life when he was a child.

"I think there was a much greater sense of social pressure to hold the family together," he said. "It was a disgrace, at least where I grew up, for a family to be separated. Divorce was not accepted as part of life."

He continued: "And I think there was a much greater sense of religious commitment, that the marriage vow was sacred, and not only was the love of a partner an important part of it, but an obligation to be involved in honesty, integrity, truthfulness and faithfulness — in times of adversity and in times when the ardor of physical love waned. There was almost a sense of betrayal when one left a marriage partner."

President Carter, the parent, is now a grandfather. What does that mean to him this Fathers Day?

"It's almost as delightful to have a grandchild as it is to have one of your own children," he said. ". . . We are now experiencing the same delight in seeing Jason (age 22 months) and James (almost 4 months) develop without the constant responsibility for their care, and that ability to move in and out of the life of a grandchild and not have the constant responsibility for them is an additional element of the joy."

Byrd defers stand on Vietnam link

WASHINGTON (AP) — Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd says that while he was willing to prevent the Senate from placing the administration in a straitjacket in developing Cuban and South Korean policy, he might not play the same role on Vietnam.

Byrd offered an amendment Thursday that averted Senate repudiation of President Carter's plan to phase out U.S. ground troops in South Korea over four to five years. He also proposed an amendment that sidetracked a move by Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., to suggest tough preconditions for normalizing relations with Cuba.

But Byrd told reporters Saturday that if the Senate tried to take the lead in determining U.S. policy with Vietnam, he doesn't know how he would react.

"Nobody feels more strongly than I do that there should be no reparations. Nobody feels more strongly than I do that we should not pay what is called foreign aid, and I shall so vote until kingdom come if I'm here," the West Virginia senator said.

But normalizing relations is a different matter, and he would have to consider at the time whether it was in the best interests of the United States to do so with Vietnam, Byrd said.

"One has to deal with a subject in the light of changing events and changing interests," he said.

Byrd acknowledged that his actions were partisan "to a degree," but he said he was acting out of long-standing conviction.

"I felt the role that I played this week had to be played by the majority leader," he said. "I didn't want to see the President repudiated in his policy. But to a very much greater degree, my motive was substantive."

Both amendments, which were nonbinding, were added to a $1.6 billion State Department authorization bill.

The one on Korea expressed the sense of the Senate that any plan to withdraw troops from South Korea should be developed by joint decision of the President and Congress. It was adopted after it became apparent that language endorsing a phased troop withdrawal would be defeated.

Stormy Saturday in Boston

Nation-wide television audience had excellent view of flarcup between Yankee manager Billy Martin and slugger Reggie Jackson Saturday when Martin pulled Jackson out of the game in sixth inning at Fenway Park for apparent lack of hustle. Martin confronted Jackson (above), then had to be restrained by coaches Elston Howard and Yogi Berra in sequence at right when Jackson was out of camera range. Red Sox hammered Yanks for second day in a row, winning, 10-4. See story, Page S-4.

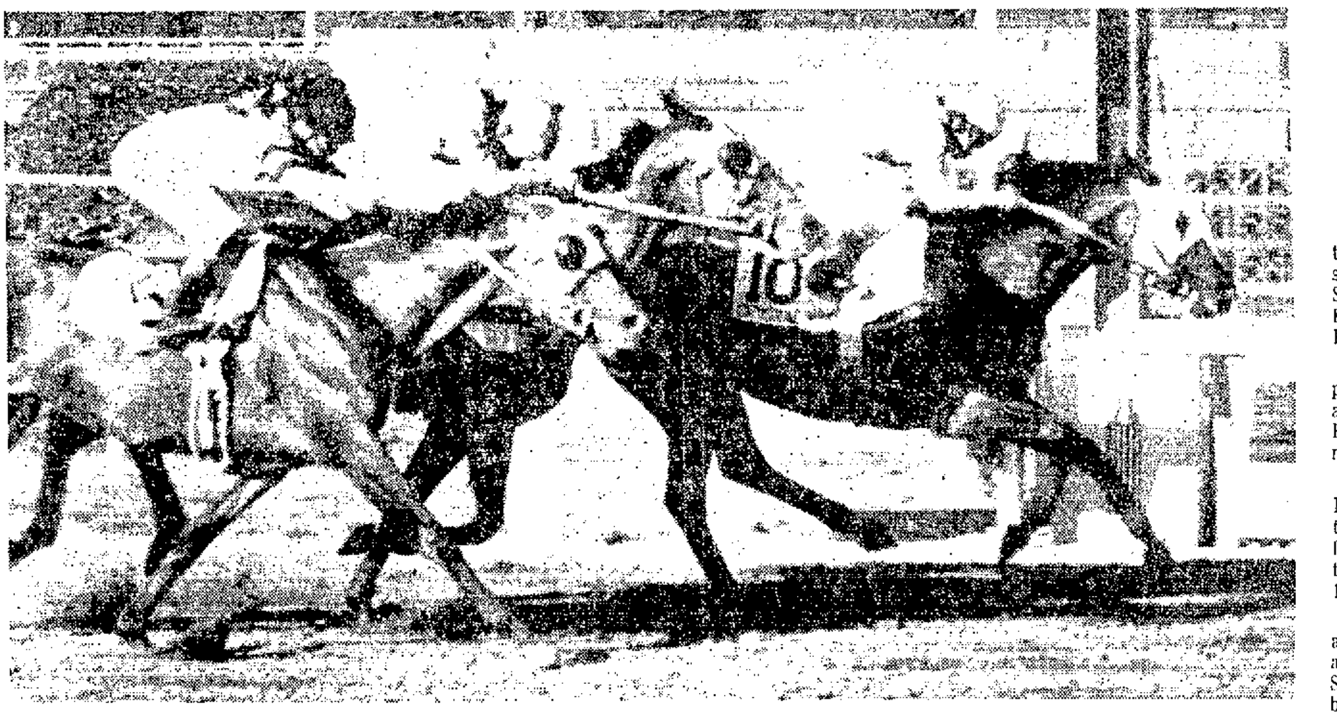
Gold Cup to Crystal Water



A Crystal clear winner

Crystal Water holds off a strong challenge in the stretch Saturday to win the $350,000 Hollywood Gold Cup at Hollywood Park. Crystal Water won by a neck over Cascapedia, the only filly in the race, in a rapid two minutes flat for the mile and one-quarter. Caucasus was third.

Issues a challenge to Forego

Hard-hitting Crystal Water, setting a sizzling pace, held off a strong challenge in the stretch Saturday and won the $350,000 Hollywood Gold Cup at Hollywood Park.

Moments later, his handlers proposed a challenge -- a race against the East's champion horse, Forego, and the Triple Crown winner, Seattle Slew.

It was announced at Hollywood Park over the public address system that Seattle Slew may possibly fly West from New York to run in the $200,000 Swaps Stakes July 3, a 1¼-mile race for 3-year-olds.

Vice president-general manager Robert Benoit said there was a "tentative promise" that Seattle Slew would run at Hollywood Park but a formal announcement remains to be made by the champion colt's co-owners, Karen and Mickey Taylor.

Winning his fourth sucessive major race, the four-year-old Crystal Water got under the wire a neck in front of Cascapedia, the lone filly in the rich event. A nose back in a thundering three-horse finish was Caucasus.

Brewers one-hit Angels

By Tracy Ringolsby
Staff Writer

MILWAUKEE — Gary Beare figures it's about time things started going his way.

The 24-year-old former Long Beach State performer has suffered through enough tragedies in his short baseball career to last a lifetime.

He hopes the one-hit, 4-2 win he registered over the Angels Saturday night inideatess things are starting to go his way.

"Baseball is a lot of luck," said Beare, who entered the game with an 8.44 earned run average.

He got plenty of breaks against the Angels, a team he held to two unearned runs in 7⅓ innings, his longest stint of the season.

All four of the Brewer runs came in the third, when Milwaukee managed to hit the ball just inches away from the reach of infielders and wound up with five hits off Gary Nolan, making his first start as an Angel.

"That was an awful funny inning," said manager Norm Sherry, stressing the word awful. "I really don't know what to say about it except it was the strangest thing I've ever seen."

Dodgers double up Cubs, 2-1

By Gordon Verrell
Staff Writer

As the Dodgers' Tommy John flattened the Cubs, 2-1, with his darting and diving sinkerball Saturday night and Ron Cey was exploding from a long home run slump, a Dodger Stadium throng of 45,655 was witnessing a lesson in "ceramics."

That's the way manager Tommy Lasorda described it, anyway, when John drew a warning for throwing a "knockdown" pitch and the Cubs' Bill Bonham got nothing for "brushing back" Cey after he belted his homer.

"There's a difference," insisted plate umpire Terry Tata who assessed John $50 for slipping one low and inside to Ivan DeJesus. But he said nothing to Bonham when he sailed one right at Cey's noggin.

"All those years I was throwing at guys I should have said I was just brushing 'em back," roared Lasorda, a man who was not at all bashful about pitching inside to enemy batters during his playing days.

"I thought it was a knockdown pitch. He (Tata) said it was a brushback. What the hell's the difference? It must be a matter of ceramics."

What did he say?

For all the harassment, John hurled a splendid game, recording all but three of his 27 putouts on the infield and benefiting from an incredible five — yes, five — double plays.

It was the Dodgers' first com-

Superlative Cincy debut for Seaver

Combined News Services

MONTREAL — Pity the poor National League.

Cincinnati discovered it not only acquired a kingpin pitcher in Tom Seaver, but a hitter too.

"We didn't need any more bats, but it looks like we got another one," said Reds manager Sparky Anderson after Seaver made his debut with a three-hit 6-0 victory over Montreal Saturday.

Seaver singled twice, one a bases-loaded liner that scored two runs to key a four-run eighth inning.

It was the seventh win in a row and 16th in 20 games for the surging Reds.

The 32-year-old right-hander said he paused a moment in the first inning to capture the memory of what he called "the start of the second part of my career."

'They have to come and catch me'

Green retains U.S. Open lead

TULSA (AP) — Hubert Green drifted off into philosophy after his two-over-par 72 was good enough to retain a one-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the United States Open Golf Championship.

"I'm still leading," he said after constantly fighting nerve-wracking, downhill putts throughout the hot and humid day.

"That means the rest of them have to come and get me. They have to catch me. They'll have to gamble to do it. This is the U.S. Open. When you gamble in the Open, you can make mistakes.

"You can book bogeys in the Open. They're going to happen.

"I'm not sure I can shoot another 72 and win the tournament," he said and grinned, "but I wouldn't mind it at all if I did."

Green, now only 18 holes away from the major title that so far has eluded him, composed a 54-hole total of 208, two under par on the Southern Hills Country Club course, 6,873 yards of gently-rolling hillsides that was scorched by 90-plus degree temperatures and opporessive humidity.

Big Andy Bean, the tour's most noted alligator-wrestler, was the only other man under par after three rounds of this 77th American national championship.

Bean, who, like Green, spent his boyhood summers in weather similiar to that which turned this event into an endurance contest, shot a 68 and was one under par at 209.

Green, who needs only a major title to confirm his status as one of the game's leading lights, grew up in Birmingham, Ala., and the 6-foot-4, 210-pound Bean learned to wrestle alligators in the swampland of southern Georgia.

They were followed by a grab-bag assortment at 210—even par—that included Tom Weiskopf, grimly-determined South African Gary Player, unawed outsiders Gary Jacobsen and Don Padgett, along with Terry Diehl and Tom Purtzer, one of those previously obscure young men who dominated the tour in the early seasgn.

Player, who needs this one to complete a career double sweep of the game's four major championships—the U.S. and British Opens, the Masters and PGA—finished birdie, birdie for a 71.

Purtzer shot the same score. Diehl, in the last twosome with Green, had a 73.

Weiskopf, apparently returned to the form that gained him the nickname Tom Terrific a couple of seasons ago, closed up with a 68 and said: "If I didn't think I could win, I wouldn't have entered the tournament.'

Jacobson, 24, a mini-tour player from Minnetonka, Minn., and Padgett, 28, who couldn't make it on the pro tour and now is a club pro in Carmel, Ind., were the surprises.

Jacobsen, who has been on a physical fitness kick that includes in its regimen weightlifting 40,000 pounds a week, 150 sit-ups and six miles of roadwork daily, shot a 67.

"I expected to have a good tournament and put no limits on how well I'd play," said Jacobsen. "My position is no surprise whatsoever."

'Not sensationalist,' says Briggs

A. Don't put words in my mouth. Don't say that I said I want to discriminate, because that's not my wording at all. That's some newspaper guy's wording. My law, the California Save Our Children law, would give the parents of a school district the right to petition the school board to remove a homosexual teacher.

Q. How does one prove that a teacher is homosexual?

A. There is a mechanism in the bill for a hearing by the school board. If you came in, for an example, with an accusation that a certain teacher is homosexual, the school board could have a hearing. If they have a hearing, they have to conclude within 30 days and if the teacher is a homosexual admitted, or a homosexual proved, through certain actions of yours, then (the teacher can be fired) . . . the actual act of homosexuality is defined as the act of sodomy or oral copulation.

Q. With a person of the same sex?

A. Yes, oh yes.

Q. How do you prove homosexuality if a person won't admit to it?

A. Well if they don't admit it — if someone is caught in a very indiscreet position, say, in a men's room or ladies room or car or in a park and it is known and acknowledged — then that's proof.

Q. But if a heterosexual teacher was caught in the same kinds of circumstances — fooling around in public — wouldn't it reflect on that teacher's judgment and ability to teach and wouldn't that teacher also be chastised?

A. Might even be dismissed. For moral turpitude.

Q. Why single out homosexuals?

A. Because they are a threat to family life. Even Vice President Mondale said our problem in this country is that our family life is going to hell. One out of two marriages are falling apart. He said we need to live in a society where . . . we promote family life. And how can you promote family life if you allow homosexuals to openly flaunt . . . living with another person of the same sex and not be able to propagate children, that's what this whole thing is about. Go forth and bear children — that's what God said. And that's what our nation is based on — the family unit.

Q. Do you think you're taking the wind out of (GOP gubernatorial nomination opponent) Ed Davis' sails with your strong action on the death penalty and coming out against homosexuals?

A. What I am attempting to do for the people of California is to provide leadership in many areas including education, property tax reform, law and order, family and spiritual life.

Q. Isn't it a sensationalistic campaign designed to help you attain name identification?

A. I don't have a campaign. Actually, all I have done is introduce legislation as would any other of the 191 legislators.

Q. It is senationalistic legislation, isn't it?

A. All I am attempting to do is repeal a law introduced in 1975 by Willie Brown that legalized homosexuality in California. I put in a bill immediately thereafter to repeal that one, but could not get it repealed. And I don't recall anybody ever complaining that his legislation that allows oral copulation and sodomy to be sensational. So I don't buy that I'm trying to sensationalize anything.

Q. Why did you wait until now to introduce this particular piece of anti-gay school teacher legislation? Was it because Anita Bryant created a political climate you felt you could cash in on?

A. Yes, absolutely. She provided the leadership. That's why I went down there, to help her, to be sure that effort succeeded, and it did. I think that we are in what I consider to be the beginning of a sexual counterrevolution where society has drawn the line, (and said) "This far, no further."

The homosexuals in San Francisco are the fountainhead of all homosexual activity in this country. They came to Los Angeles, spread the blight, and then they went down and tried to establish a beachhead in Miami, and they were thrown back, and they are going to be thrown back even further because society is not going to tolerate the hand-holding and the kissing and the loving and the squeezing by two persons of the same sex in front of our children. We're just not going to allow it.

If they want to do it in their own private homes, that's fine. But when they try to bring it out into the public and into the schoolrooms, people are not going to tolerate it.

Q. Do you think the hand-holding, the squeezing and the kissing is going to go on in the classrooms?

A. If we don't draw the line. It will.

Q. Your name has also been in the news a great deal lately as a proponent of the death penalty. Why do you favor this form of punishment?

A. Because I believe it is a deterrent to crime.

Q. Why are you sponsoring a movement to defeat the override of Gov. Brown's veto of the Legislature's current death penalty bill?

A. Because I feel that the current law is a very weak law in the hands of a very weak governor. And if we let him throw it back to us, which he did, with the words that he wrote, "I do not want to live in a society where death is used as a punishment," he has absolutely no obligation — no obligation — to enforce it if we override his veto . . . (And with) a weak governor who has a department head (Mario Obledo) who has already told the news (media) . . . that he would resign before he'd give out the death penalty, then really you have no death penalty at all.

In addition to that, the bill is weak in that it covers only a very small group of people. If you kill a policeman, and are convicted, you can get the death penalty. But if you kill a newspaperwoman, or a taxicab driver . . . (you) could not get the death penalty unless there was another felony committed with it like a robbery, rape, assault, and I think that their lives are just as precious as a cop's life.

Q. Isn't it true that the majority of murders are committed between friends and family in moments of passion?

A. A lot of them are.

Q. It is the majority isn't it?

A. I don't know about the majority. I can't tell you, I don't know. You're asking me, and I'm telling you: I don't know. A lot of them are. But by the same token, a lot of murders were committed last year by the Zebra killers in San Francisco. Well, you can (kill someone) right now under this law and you could not get the death penalty — every Zebra killer gets one freebie and no death penalty . . . frankly, when husbands and wives find out that there is no death penalty for killing (each other), then maybe you're going to have a lot more husbands and wives killed. But in any event, you have mitigating circumstances . . . but what I'm talking about is where a guy premeditatedly figures out that he's going to, goes out and blows away a person, knowing full well unless they can also prove that he also committed another crime, that he cannot get the death penalty.

Q. Nevertheless, since you do believe that the death penalty is a deterrent to crime, don't you feel that you are depriving protection from people to create a political issue?

A. I do not, I do not. I'll tell you why. We've had one execution in California in 10 years. How long have we had the death penalty? Most of the time. 1963 was the last year we executed anybody. Since 1963, which is 14 years, we've had one person put to death. So we really haven't had a death penalty that's been really carried out . . . and we've only been without a death penalty law for about two years. In addition to that, the Supreme Court of the state of California is going to find it unconstitutional.

Q. Why will they find it unconstitutional?

A. It's too restrictive. You cannot write a law, in my opinion, and say it only covers policemen and guards, and doesn't cover all the other lives. My life is precious, too. Additionally, the California Supreme Court already has four anti-death penalty judges on it. Gov. Brown has appointed two more and he has one more going. It's well known that when it gets there it is going to be declared unconstitutional.

Q. You have consistently been a strong law-and-order legislator over the years. What are a few of the more prominent laws you have sponsored in the Legislature?

A. First of all, very few of them got through because the liberal Democrats have killed virtually every good bill that anybody ever puts in. I merged my death penalty in 1973 with Sen. Deukmejian. And I have put in numerous bills over the years that would strengthen law enforcement. One of them would have repealed the legislation of last year — that was just declared unconstitutional, fortunately — where all those in prison would get out early. Under Brown's legislation on July of this year, some 3,000 criminals were going to take a quick walk. I put in a repealer on that and it was killed. And, well, I can't remember. After 11 years and hundreds of bills later, you can't remember.

Q. A year ago, the Speaker of the Assembly, Leo McCarthy, asked his Democratic colleagues to refrain from voting on your "right to bear arms" constitutional amendment proposal. McCarthy told the press he and a number of other members of the Assembly were tired of your "show business" tactics. And an Associated Press story described you as "the Assembly's foremost exponent of parliamentary objections." Have you had trouble gaining support from fellow legislators? And if you have, wouldn't that impair you, were you to become governor?

A. Fellow legislators are just about as important as newspaper editors. What the editors like and what your fellow colleagues like isn't necessarily what the people like.

Nordee's 3 TDs spark Mustangs

Quarterback Tom Nordee threw three touchdown passes as the Long Beach Mustangs scored an 18-6 victory over the L.A. Norsemen in a controlled scrimmage at Veterans Stadium Saturday night.

Nordee connected with Fred Christian, Mark Stevens and Danny Marshall while the Norsemen's lone score came on a 40-yard TD pass from Larry Sanchez to Mike Daniels.

The Mustangs are scheduled to open their league season July 9 against San Diego at Veterans Stadium.

Yarborough hangs it on Johncock

CAMBRIDGE JUNCTION, Mich. (AP) — "I never won so much money so quick," Cale Yarborough beamed after beating Gordon Johncock by three seconds in the nationally televised $18,000 Camaro Challenge race.

Yarborough, the defending national champion of Grand National stock car racing, won $13,500 for less than 10 minutes of work. Johncock, the 1976 Indianapolis racing titlist, took home $4,500.

Because of their "champion" designations, they were paired in identically prepared Camaros for the 10-lap, 20-mile duel around the two-mile Michigan International Speedway oval. The payoff, from CAM2 Motor Oil and ABC-TV, was the richest per mile in auto racing history.

Lind also teamed with former Olympian John Van Blom to row to another two-length victory over Olympian Anita DeFrantz of Vesper and Jim Dietz of the New York Athletic Club.

DODGERS TOP CUBS—

plete game in their last 24 starts, since John went the distance against Pittsburgh on May 21.

The win kept the Dodgers 6½ games in front of the sizzling Cincinnati Reds in the National League West while the Cubs, despite only their second loss in their last nine games, retain their six-game lead in the East.

The Dodgers trailed, 1-0, and still hadn't managed a hit off former UCLA star Bonham when Bill Russell, who wound up with three of Los Angeles' six hits, tripled with one out in the fourth.

One out later Cey drilled one of Bonham's change-ups into the rightfield pavilion.

It was his 15th home run of the season, but his first since June 4 and only his second since May 17.

Dodgers of the Day

TOMMY JOHN hurled seven-hitter and RON CEY slugged two-run homer in 2-1 victory over Cubs.

The two RBIs also regained the club lead from Steve Garvey. Cey now has 54 RBIs, Garvey 53.

When Cey made his first appearance after hitting the home run, the Dodgers had runners at first and third. But Bonham let fly anyway, firing a fastball high and inside. Cey fell back, then hurled his bat and helmet to the side in anger.

"Yes," said Cey. "I was a little surprised he threw at me in that situation. It was totally uncalled for, as far as I'm concerned."

Lasorda complained then to Tata, demanding that Bonham be drawn and quartered or locked up or fined or, at the very least, warned.

"He was not deliberately throwing at him," Tata explained. "Anyway, the ball wasn't AT him, it was just inside."

Way inside, that is.

Cey then grounded out to end the inning and DeJesus, the former Dodger, was first to face John. T.J.'s first pitch was inside, got past catcher John Oates and struck Tata on the arm.

That's when John found himself $50 lighter.

"Maybe Tata thought I was throwing at him," guessed John. "But an umpire is the last guy I'm going to throw at."

Tata said, no, that he fined John for "intentionally throwing at DeJesus."

Retorted John:

"Now, what in the world do I want to throw at him for?"

John scattered seven Chicago hits but escaped time after time, thanks to an alert infield that turned over the five doubleplays, two short of the major league record.

The biggest twin killing was in the eighth when the Cubs had runners at first and third on two infield singles and John's throwing error. There was one out when Gene Clines, who drove in Chicago's only run in the third, shot a liner toward left-center. But Russell, who figured in four of the doubleplays, leaped to spear the drive and then doubled DeJesus off first.

The game ended on a doubleplay when John fanned Jerry Morales and Oates gunned out Bobby Murcer who was running on the play.

DODGER DOPE: Tommy Lasorda gathered his troops for a brief meeting before Saturday evening's game. It seems several players have been tardy getting to the ballpark and, as a result, have been late for batting practice. Is that why the team batting average dropped from .293 to .274 in a month? . . Reggie Smith, still with a pulled stomach muscle, started in rightfield. "The stomach doesn't feel any better sitting on the bench," he reasoned. . . Dave Lopes says he doesn't know when he'll be ready to return to the lineup. He missed his seventh game in a row Saturday night because of the muscle pull in his side. Lasorda is hopeful Lopes will play Monday night.

How they scored

CUB THIRD

Mitterwald doubled. Bonham singled. DeJesus grounded out. Clines hit a line drive that John deflected toward Russell who failed to handle the ball for an error, Mitterwald scoring. Buckner grounded into a double play. One run (earned), two hits, one error, one left.

DODGER FOURTH

With one out, Russell tripled. Smith grounded out, Russell holding. Cey homered to right, his 15th. Garvey walked. Monday singled. Baker walked, loading the bases. Oates forced Baker. Two runs, three hits, three left.

ANGELS LOSE—

It all started when catcher Charlie Moore hit a drive at Nolan, who deflected the ball, which rolled through second baseman Orlando Ramirez's legs for a single.

Then Robin Yount slashed a single to right, advancing Moore to third. Up came Don Money, who hit a pop foul down the first base line, which neither Ramirez nor first baseman Tony Solaita could reach.

Money grounded out, sending shortstop Mario Guerrero deep in the hole to make the play and sending Moore home with the first run and Yount to second.

Sixto Lezcano followed up with a grounder, which Guerrero knocked down but couldn't pick up quick enough to throw to Solaita. After Sal Bando and Cecil Cooper rapped successive singles, Von Joshua hit a potential double play ball to Ramirez. The native of Columbia, filling in for the injured Jerry Remy, had trouble getting the ball to Guerrero, covering second. The Angels settled for one out while the fourth Brewer run was scoring.

Angel of the day

WAYNE SIMPSON pitched four one-hit innings in 4-2 loss to Milwaukee.

"They got some hits but they got a lot of luck too," said Sherry.

Nolan finished his initial effort for the Angels by retiring the Brewers in the fourth before Wayne Simpson came on to pitch four scoreless innings of relief.

Meanwhile, Beare, whose earned run average had reached 10.12 at one point last month, was holding the Angels, who were no-hit by Cleveland's Dennis Eckersley earlier in the year, to Joe Rudi's first-inning double.

The Angels, who had picked up 69 hits in the five previous games, did receive 11 walks from Beare and his two successors as well as a hit batter but were unable to cash in, stranding 11 runners.

In fact, relievers Sammy Hinds and Bill Castro, the victim of the Angels' 7-5 win in 10 innings on Friday, walked the bases loaded with one out in the ninth before pinchhitter Gil Flores grounded into a game-ending double play.

"Most of the time I was just throwing the ball so poorly they could not hit it hard," said Beare, who struck out four before giving way to Hinds with two outs and runners on first and second in the eighth.

"I have been on the verge of being sent down (to the minor leagues) several times in the past month so I this was something I really needed," said Beare. "I have a lot of friends in the Southern California area so I was up for this game. I wanted to show them I really should be in the big leagues."

Actually, Beare is lucky to be pitching at all. During his days at San Diego Mesa Junior College he suffered an arm injury, which caused numbness in the ring and little fingers of his right hand. Doctors had to transplant a nerve.

That was mild compared to the first day of spring training in 1976, when he was returning from the Brewer ballpark in Sun City, Ariz., and his van was hit by a train.

And when training camp started this year, he missed the first few weeks with a case of pneumonia.

ANGEL ANGLES — The Angels complete a three-game series against the Brewers today with Frank Tanana (10-3) going against Moose Haas (4-3) . . Sherry and general manager Harry Dalton were upset with a story saying pitching coach Billy Muffet was on the verge of being fired. "It is an irresponsible story," said Dalton. "I don't know how that could be written without the writer coming to either myself or Norm and asking us." There may be more truth to the story than the Angels care to admit, but any changes now appear to be postponed if not halted. The Angels feel they have a good chance of winning the American League West and do not want anything to disrupt the unity on the team. . To make room for Nolan, the Angels have placed lefthanded reliever Mickey Scott on the 10-day designated list, which gives them until June 28 to place Scott either with another major league team or minor league squad. Scott appeared in 12 games with a 5.62 earned run average and 0-2 record.

Child witnesses to murder react to ordeal in court

DETROIT (AP) — Eight-year-old Regina Robinson cried when she got home from testifying in court last week. The next day she was afraid to go to school alone.

Regina was one of 10 child witnesses called to the stand at a murder trial in a rare prosecution move. But she was too scared to do more than glance at the man she had seen shoot her teacher in the head five times in the classroom last Nov. 10.

Another witness, Pamela Ann Burnett, saw her mother crying in the audience, left the stand and began sobbing herself. She said later she was frightened by the defendant's "yellow eyes."

But 8-year-old Fred Mrozek, who had been so upset at the time of the slaying that he was reluctant to go outdoors for several months, confidently pointed to defendant Al Lewis as the gunman.

His testimony and that of two other pupils helped persuade a jury to convict Lewis of second-degree murder Friday. Lewis, who was teacher Bettye McCaster's estranged husband, will be sentenced Friday.

Regina's mother, Gloria Robinson, says the experience was so traumatic that her daughter wept uncontrollably afterward and begged her to accompany her to school for the final day of classes.

"She's just upset from the whole ordeal," Mrs. Robinson said. ". . . If I had it to do over again, she never would have gone down there to relive all that."

John L. Thompson, assistant Wayne County prosecutor, defends the decision to call the children as witnesses.

"People don't seem to understand," he said. "We have a legal duty. The eyewitnesses have to be produced. They have to testify. If we did not produce them, the jury can infer that the witnesses would be able to testify against us."

Thompson said he interviewed all 29 of the children who witnessed the killing months ago "and none of them exhibited any sort of traumatic behavior."

THE 10 WHO TESTIFIED were selected by Thompson on "sort of an intuitive judgment, based on how I thought they would react on the stand."

Thompson said some parents "did indicate a reluctance to let their children testify," but none asked specifically that their children not be put through the ordeal.

The children underwent preparation for testifying with a trip to the courtroom May 4. Judge Patricia J. Boyle spoke with them briefly in an attempt to relax them for the time they would be called to testify.

During interviews with the children, Thompson emphasized the need to tell the truth and not to invent answers for the jury if they did not know something.

But the ordeal of testifying was nothing compared to the trauma after the slaying itself.

Most of the youngsters were so shaken that psychiatric services were offered and special counseling was made available. Miss McCaster's replacement, Emma Jean Tullman, has extensive training in handling youngsters with unusual problems.

GARY GILMORE
"Let's do it.

JAMES BOZONY, graduate student at University of Massachusetts, and wife, Kathy, model their Gary Gilmore T-shirts.

Gary Gilmore — in death, a hot property

By Vern Anderson
Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — Gary Gilmore was killed by a firing squad five months ago. But his life remains both a puzzle and a valuable commercial property.

Gilmore, 36, gained worldwide attention when he said he would rather die than spend his life in prison. His execution was stayed three times before it was carried out on the chilly morning of Jan. 17 — the nation's first execution in nearly 10 years.

At least three books and a play about Gilmore have been started. A movie is planned. And sales continue on T-shirts bearing his final comment to the warden, "Let's do it."

Two $1-million suits have been brought against Gilmore's estate by his victims' widows.

GILMORE, who twice tried suicide following unwanted stays of execution, is a puzzling presence in the memories of those close to him at his death.

His attorney, Ronald Stanger, says, "He did have a way about him, and if he wanted to be nice, he could. He was very bright."

Stanger, attorney Robert Moody, Gilmore's uncle Vern D'Amico and promoter Lawrence Schiller witnessed the execution at Gilmore's request. It was a duty Stanger says "shouldn't have been part of my watch." Moody says the experience "still just sickens me."

D'Amico says, "He was a completely mixed-up man. He wanted the same things you and I want — marriage, a home, a job and love — to live like an average American." D'Amico and his wife, Ida, took Gilmore into their home when he was paroled from prison in April 1976.

"WHAT he did was beyond me, and I think, beyond him," D'Amico said of the two murders his nephew admitted.

Gilmore was convicted of the July 20, 1976, killing of Bennie Bushnell, 25, a motel night clerk. He also admitted slaying Max Jensen, 24, a service station attendant. Both were shot in the head at close range during robberies.

Jensen's widow, Colleen, teaches art in Clearfield, Utah, where she lives with her 16-month-old daughter, her lawyer said, adding that she has refused to answer questions from reporters.

Relatives said Debra Bushnell is living in Los Angeles and gave birth to a daughter, her second child, within weeks after Gilmore was shot. The relatives refused to say where she could be reached. Her attorney said, "She doesn't even want to talk with me most of the time. It's been a very traumatic thing for her."

NICOLE Barrett, 21, Gilmore's former girlfriend who joined him in an unsuccessful suicide pact last November, was committed to the state mental hospital after the suicide attempt but was released shortly after the execution. Her mother, Kathryn Baker, said her daughter is working as a private nurse to a terminally ill couple, but she declined to say where she and her two children are living. "That's all I'm going to tell you. She (Nicole) is doing well and working. She's in a good frame of mind. She's happy."

Schiller, who paid $112,000 for the rights to Gilmore's life story, said he has conducted 116 interviews for the book that is to be completed in about two years by a writer he has yet to sign.

He said a two-character play based on "the concept of the inquisitor and prisoner" similar to a Gilmore interview that appeared this spring in Playboy magazine was being written by an author whose name he would not disclose.

HE SAID if successful, the play, book and movie — to be filmed after the book is published — could gross around $500,000.

Author Norman Mailer, contacted as he left an interview with D'Amico last week, said he was at work on a book about "violence in America," and that "Gary Gilmore will occupy a prominent chapter." He said the book would take a year or two to complete.

"I don't like to give interviews about the books I'm working on. I'm suspicious of writers who do that, and I'm also superstitious enough to believe it brings bad luck," Mailer said.

He said Schiller had provided "access to certain people." Asked if he had signed to write Gilmore's story, Mailer said, "not at this stage, but I don't know what might happen six months from now."

MEANWHILE, James K. Bozony, 23, of Amherst, Mass., marketing the T-shirt emblazoned "Let's Do It," said he has sold about 1,000 at $5.95 each.

"It's still going strong, believe it or not. I got my first orders from Sweden and England about two months ago," he said.

Warden Sam Smith, who oversaw the execution at Utah State Prison, said the warehouse where Gilmore was shot by a five-man firing squad is again a warehouse. The chair, bearing holes from the four bullets that passed through Gilmore's body, was immediately burned, he said.

At Gilmore's request, parts of his body were donated to medical research, and his cremated remains were spread over Utah County, site of his crimes and Mrs. Barrett's home.

DENNIS Boaz, who for a time was Gilmore's agent and attorney, said he is writing a novel based on his experiences.

He remembers Gilmore as "extremely calculating and with an iron will. At the same time, he was extremely cowardly in the sense of his insecurity with women." Boaz said he thinks Gilmore purposely did not take a lethal dose of drugs because he "wanted to wake up and read that she (Nicole) was gone."

Of his book, Boaz said, "It's not going to have a downer kind of ending . . . the execution is important, but it's not the key to the book. There are other people who go on living in my book. In Schiller's book, there's no way it could have a sequel unless it's going to be a book on reincarnation."

Carter challenged on 'human right to life'

CHICAGO (AP) — President Carter's commitment to human rights was challenged Saturday by leaders of an anti-abortion group who said he failed to support "the most basic human right of all — the right to life."

Dr. Carolyn Gerster, chairman of the board of the National Right to Life Committee, told reporters that "any claim for human rights that tolerates the destruction of over a million American lives lacks credibility." She said she was referring to the number of abortions performed annually.

Dr. Gerster, here for the committee's fifth annual convention, said participants represent "a divergent group that holds only one belief in common — that every human life is precious and cannot be sacrificed on the altar of utilitarianism."

DR. JILL Knight, member of the British House of Commons, said in a speech Saturday that Carter "had the guts to stand up and say we must have human rights." But, she said: "He's got to put his money where his mouth is on the abortion question in the United States.

"It's no use to advocate human rights in Russia and Africa unless we do it here."

The committee president, Dr. Mildred F. Jefferson, said a human rights stand that lacks protection for unborn children is "meaningless."

She said the right to life movement will seek support in Congress for a "human life amendment" to the Constitution to outlaw euthanasia and abortion except to save the life of a mother. Such an amendment, she predicted, could be ratified within three years.

The amendment is needed to prevent the United States from "becoming an exclusive reservation where only the perfect, the privileged or the planned have a right to live," Dr. Jefferson said.

THE THEME of the convention, highlighted by a rally attended by 4,000 persons Friday night and a downtown parade Saturday featuring floats and marching bands, has been a call to political action.

— Opposing the Equal Rights Amendment "until such time as wording is added to positively guarantee equal rights for all Americans, born and unborn."

— Petitioning the Girl Scouts of the United States of America and the National Congress of Parents and Teachers to drop what critics called promotion of abortion.

— Declaring that the International Women's Year Conference is "a disservice to the American family, a misuse of the taxpayers' money . . . and a fraud perpetuated by a vocal minority of American women."

Palomino a knockout in London

The World Boxing Council's welterweight champion has resided the last several years in the Orange County community of Westminster, although Long Beach retains a proprietary interest because he is an alumnus of its highest institution of learning.

His hometown of Luis B. Sanchez, a Mexican village on the Arizona border, also claims him as one of its own, but the crowning phenomenon may be that one of England's most popular fighters of the day has come to be this Mexican-American named Carlos Palomino.

"They received me well last time," he says, "but this time was more than I expected. They're just great people."

Palomino won his title in London a year ago, knocking out John Stracey in the ninth round. The past week he returned to defend it against Dave Green, who had beaten Stracey since. Green fell in 11.

IT MIGHT be stretching the point to state that the English loved it, but Palomino's success did not go unappreciated.

Jackie McCoy, his co-manager with Noe Cruz, said, "He'd still be there if he had tried to sign all the autographs people wanted."

The crowd at Wembley Empire Pool was somewhat different in character than, say, a Thursday night gathering at the Olympic Auditorium.

"Oh, yes," Palomino says with a chuckle, "very different. The fans are more, uh, respectful. They even stuck around after the fight and they applauded me at the beginning."

McCoy described it as "a standing ovation."

"They've been good to me," Carlos says. "I can't complain."

Promoter Mickey Duff says that Palomino is now so popular in England that he could bring in another outside fighter against him and still draw well. Carlos would be the hometown guy.

"He's very low key," McCoy says of his fighter, "a gentleman. They like that over there."

THE ENGLISH press spared few adjectives in describing Carlos' second defense.

"A lot of English reporters were saying it was the best fight they'd seen in 30 years," McCoy said. "This guy (Green) had really been hot. He'd never lost, had beaten Stracey and had been popular a long time before that, winning a lot of amateur fights.

"But one guy wrote, 'When he (Palomino) defeated Stracey, we thought he might be a good champion. Now he might be a great one.' "

The audience was most impressed by the left hook that finished Green.

"One of the best punches anybody's thrown in a long time," McCoy says. "One writer said it lifted Green off the floor. I thought it had killed him. Forty-five minutes later he was still asking what happened."

BUT PALOMINO needed more time than he had anticipated to set it up.

"He was a little tougher than we had expected. We saw the film of him against Stracey when we got there. The way he looked in that fight, we figured he wouldn't go more than six or seven rounds. He was throwing punches wide open, and his chin was wide open.

> "As it landed I could tell it was a good shot, and when he went down I knew there was no way he was gonna get up."

"I felt I would be able to catch him, but he's very strong and very tough and a very determined guy. He throws wide punches as he rushes in and keeps throwing them from all angles, so you don't have time to get set and plan an offense. You have to stay on defense.

"Most of the night I was trying to hit him with the hook because as he'd throw the overhand right, he'd come in with the head first.

"But early in the fight he had his head down, so the hook was going off the top of his head. As the fight went on, though, and he started tiring, he did come in and exposed the chin—and he walked right into the hook.

"I took a little short step back and threw the hook at the same time, and he just went right into it. I was just hoping it would land on the money, but as it landed I could tell it was a good shot. I had my body and shoulder and everything behind it, and when he went down I knew there was no way he was gonna get up."

THE RESULT of the blow momentarily frightened Palomino himself.

"His head snapped back and bounced off the canvas. I walked over to see him and Mickey Duff said, 'He's okay.' He didn't let me get close to him. It took awhile for them to bring him around."

Palomino has stopped his opponent in each of his three title fights, although Armando Muniz was on his feet when referee John Thomas rescued him in the 15th.

Palomino isn't sure whether the same punch would have dropped Muniz.

"I hit Mando with some very good left hooks," he says.

As against Muniz, Palomino led on points at the end, although McCoy thought the last one was being scored "closer than I figured."

AT 27, PALOMINO seems destined for a long reign. He is a nice size for the division at 5 feet, 9 inches and can make the weight of 147 pounds without trouble, so he goes into each fight at full strength.

"I was eating really good," he says. "I got up about 9 o'clock the day of the fight, checked my weight at about 11 and was a quarter-pound over. The weigh-in was at 1, so I didn't do anything, and by 1 I was 147. At my age, I don't think I'm going to be growing anymore."

His only problems were three cuts over his eyes from Green's head butts, requiring 12 stitches, and a bruised left hand.

"We were warned that this guy's like a billy goat," McCoy said.

The hand was X-rayed when Palomino returned home.

"About the fifth round I felt some pain in it," he says. "It's sore right now, but it's not fractured."

A chipped knuckle on his right hand forced a postponement of the Muniz fight.

"I hope maybe within four months I can have another fight," Carlos says.

MONDAY MORNING he will put his degree in recreation to work as a summer counselor's aide at Golden West College.

"I'm going to get some experience and break the monotony. I've been laying around since I graduated in December, and it got kind of boring."

"Laying around" meant training, which is more than many fighters can handle. Palomino doesn't exactly enjoy it, but it's a small price to pay for what he has. He plans to be champion a long time.

"I feel very confident," he says. "The first two title defenses were against the No. 1 guys. There isn't much more they can throw at me."

McShane readying for second chance in pro football

By Gary Ellis
Staff Writer

The career of Charlie McShane is clouded:

IF:

- The World Football League hadn't folded.
- The National Football League hadn't cut squad sizes.
- A linebacker was hurt.
- Anyone but Dallas had drafted him.
- He had experience.

If any, or all, of the above combinations had occurred, McShane would have held a job as an NFL linebacker last year.

But as everyone knows, you don't eat ifs.

ABOUT THE same time it was announced that Ricky Bell had signed a multi-million dollar contract, or Tony Dorsett was a high-round draftee, Charlie McShane signed a free-agent contract with the Seattle Seahawks.

Bell's signing was front page; McShane's signing was not even carried in this newspaper in six-point (agate) type.

"It must be nice to be a running back," he laughed. "I've never been a big name but at least I have an opportunity to prove I can play in the NFL."

McShane graduated from Millikan High in 1972, attended Long Beach City College where he banged up his knee, and graduated from Cal Lutheran, a small college powerhouse.

Despite his size, 6-2, 211, Dallas drafted him on the 12th round. But instead of being drafted as a down defensive lineman—his experienced position—the Cowboys wanted to convert him to linebacker.

For several weeks, McShane toiled in Thousand Oaks (the home of Cal Lutheran), learning the complicated "flex defense," a Dallas trademark.

"I had an opportunity to make the team," McShane remembered. "If they (NFL) hadn't cut squad sizes from 45 to 43; if Lee Roy Jordan had retired one year earlier, or if a linebacker was hurt in training camp I would have made the team. But football is a business and I think Dallas wanted me around in case anyone did get hurt. I knew after the last week, I would have made the team if the squad size wasn't reduced."

McSHANE'S departure was also listed in six-point. But he was cut with a couple of former notables—running backs Ron Johnson and Duane Thomas.

"There wasn't a knock at my door," remembered McShane. "It was a telephone call. One of the coaches said, 'Coach Landry wants to talk to you.' I was really hurt emotionally. I knew I had to come back to Los Angeles and of all the places in the world, that was the one city I didn't want to come back to."

CHARLIE McSHANE
Millikan grad

Being converted to a linebacker was difficult—unexplainably difficult.

"When the quarterback drops back, you have to go the other way," McShane laughed. "I was used to chasing quarterbacks, now I had to get back. The Dallas system was mindboggling."

McShane was asked to analyze the "flex." "I don't know," McShane laughed. "You have to ask Landry.

"Seriously, though, if you see a ballcarrier coming in your direction, you want to get him. In the flex, you have to take care of your area—your zone—you can't always chase the ballcarrier."

The off-season was a work season for McShane. "I went to Atlanta to work on my legs. I play a lot of basketball. A linebacker needs strong legs."

McSHANE has been in Seattle for several weeks, working out with friends, readying for the July 17 training camp struggle.

"It was a compliment that Dallas drafted me, thinking I was athletic enough to play for them. Now I hope to get a two-month head start with Seattle. They are setting up their defenses right now. I hope not to get trampled too much—mentally or physically. That's why I'm in Seattle—to learn."

Seattle officials are high on McShane. The Seahawks traded their middle linebacker after the season. "The job is open. We wouldn't have made the trade unless we felt he could help," said a Seattle spokesman.

Vying with McShane will be Greg Collins, a former Notre Dame all-America, and Kent Hutcherson, who was on the Seattle injured reserve list last year.

With a little luck, McShane will become a professional—enjoying a six-month work-year, laying in the sun and collecting salary.

"Not yet. I'm still a rookie," he laughed. "I'm working 12 months a year, not six months. The older and wiser you get, the less physical you have to be. But you have to be smarter."

Ricky Bell, the reluctant rich guy

Ricky Bell is the only millionaire I've ever known who was embarrassed about his riches.

You see, there was a time when Ol '42 didn't have a pot to spit in or a window to throw it out of.

Like two months ago.

Then came that wondrous instrument called the National Football League draft.

Bell was embraced by Tampa Bay, which had qualified for the first selection in the draft by failing to win a game as a newcomer to the league in 1976.

According to Bell's agent, Mike Trope, the Buccaneers threw a million-two at the USC running back for the honor of his signature on a contract.

Bear in mind that Trope's record for addition and subtraction does not warrant a citation for accuracy.

Trope once said he had negotiated an airtight contract for Anthony Davis with Sam Battistone and the Southern California Sun of the World Football League, an agreement that was supposed to yield a million-five or so.

When the Sun and the WFL collapsed, they vied for balloon-breaking honors with Davis's airtight contract.

BUT BELL really doesn't care what figures are bandied about on his Tampa contract.

He cares not whether he's the highest paid rookie in professional football.

"I'm completely satisfied with what I'm getting and I'm anxious to start earning it," says the Trojan tailback, who was chosen ahead of Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett in the draft.

Bell admits to trepidation about his initiation into the pro game.

"Remember when I gave you a ride in my '66 Chevy before the 1975 season and how I told you I was scared about trying to follow in the footsteps of such great Trojan tailbacks as O.J. Simpson, Mike Garrett, Jon Arnett, Clarence Davis and Anthony Davis?" Bell asked. "Well, I feel the same way now. You can use the same quotes."

But the situation varies in certain respects. For instance, Bell no longer is driving a '66 Chevy.

"You would have to bring that up," he groans.

What are you driving now?

"Do I have to say?" Bell asks.

Well, no one is going to try to twist your arm, considering your physical dimensions. But readers probably would be interested.

BELL SQUIRMS, leans forward and whispers, "A Mercedes."

A nice little family car, but what do you drive when you're going out among 'em?

"Hey," says Bell, "will you knock off that stuff if I promise to buy you that lunch you've been begging for?"

That's a deal.

Actually, Bell is not the kind to squander for a free lunch. He's had his head screwed on tightly for several years, and fame and fortune are'nt likely to change him.

He's blown a few bucks — the Mercedes, a few clothes, a gourmet dinner and necklaces for some of his former USC teammates and a new home for his mother.

But Ricky Bell isn't the kind to wind up his career broke.

"The Mercedes is more like an investment," he says. "If I ever decide to sell it, I'll get my money out of it. The dinner for my teammates was something I planned a long time ago. And you know how grateful I am for all my mother has done for me."

Bells says he feels like "just another rookie."

But it's not likely he'll be treated that way when he joins his former USC coach, John McKay, at Tampa Bay.

BELL HAS made two visits to Florida for discussions with McKay.

"He's not sure how he'll use Anthony Davis and me in the same backfield," says Bell, who was a blocking fullback for A.D. at USC in 1974. "But he said he's going to use the I-formation some and a split-back formation the rest of the time.

"I don't really care. I'll block for A.D. when they want me to and run with the ball when they want me to. I just want to play.

"One thing I understand is that we won't have the blocking in the line that we had at USC. But who does?"

McKay was the first to spot Bell's potential as a tailback. Although he had such promising tailbacks as Lynn Cain, Dwight Ford, Paul Rice and Rod Connors available in the spring of '75, McKay decided to experiment with Bell at the position.

Within a week, McKay had decided the move would be permanent.

Bell responded with 1,957 yards rushing in the fall of '75 and 1,433 yards in '76, when he played with injuries most of the season. He established a Pacific-8 and USC single-game record with 347 yards in 51 carries against Washington State.

"The move to tailback was mainly God's will," says Bell. "He's been with me 100 per cent all the way."

For sure, somebody up there likes Ricky Bell. But so does everyone else.

U.S. bishop becomes saint

Bishop John Neumann

—AP Wirephoto

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI proclaims John Nepomucene Neumann as America's first male saint today before thousands of U.S. pilgrims, including two Pennsylvanians who believe they owe their lives to the intercession of Philadelphia's "little bishop."

Papal spokesmen said more than 20,000 Americans — including U.S. Vatican representative Henry Cabot Lodge, Philadelphia Mayor Frank Rizzo and eight American cardinals — are expected to jam St. Peter's Square to hear the Pope order Bishop Neumann "inscribed in the Catalogue of Saints."

Among those arriving Saturday were Michael Flanigan, 19, of Philadelphia and J. Kent Lenahan, 46, of Villanova, Pa., whose miraculous cures led to the 19th-Century bishop's canonization.

Vatican spokesmen said Flanigan developed terminal bone cancer at age 6, and doctors decided his case was hopeless. His parents took him to the bishop's shrine in Philadelphia to pray, and today his only reminder of the disease is a slight limp in his right leg.

"I REMEMBER going to the shrine, but there wasn't much commotion at the time over my cure," he told reporters.

Lenahan, a music teacher, was 19 years old when his head was nearly crushed against a utility pole while he was riding on a car running board. The comatose youth recovered after his parents touched him with a piece of the bishop's cassock.

"They couldn't explain what happened," Lenahan said in a recent interview. "So I guess it was the man upstairs."

The third "miracle cure" attributed by the Vatican to Bishop Neumann involved an 11-year-old Italian girl who recovered overnight from peritonitis, an inflammation of the abdominal lining, after a nun touched her with a picture of Bishop Neumann. Eva Benassi is now 65 and was also expected for the canonization, Vatican spokesmen said.

Previous Americans canonized are two women — Mother Cabrini, declared a saint in 1946, and Mother Seton, canonized in 1975.

In 1921, Pope Benedict XV declared Bishop Neumann "venerable" — the first degree of sanctity — because of "the simplicity of his works," his service to the poor, and his promotion of the parochial school system in the United States. He was beatified in 1963.

THE BISHOP WAS born in 1811 in the village of Prachatitz in what is now Czechoslovakia. After considering careers in medicine and law, he decided on the priesthood and at age 25 immigrated to the United States in search of a bishop to ordain him.

Bishop John Dubois of New York, eager for German-speaking priests, welcomed the young man and assigned him to a 9,000-square-mile parish in western New York state.

Within four years, the pace of work in the huge frontier parish brought Father Neumann, frail and barely 5 feet tall, to the point of physical collapse. He joined the Redemptorist Order and began a career of service to German-speaking immigrants in New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

In Baltimore, Father Neumann became a U.S. citizen and helped save an order of black nuns, the Oblate Sisters of Providence, from extinction. There he also became the private confessor of Archbishop James Patrick Henrick, who had transferred from Philadelphia.

The archbishop recommended Father Neumann as his successor in Philadelphia, and despite his own reservations, he was consecrated bishop of what was then America's largest diocese on his 41st birthday.

The three previous bishops had all been Irish, and there was resentment over appointment of a bishop who spoke English with a thick German accent.

"The Rev. Neumann does not speak English well, and I fear his election would find very little favor with the American people," warned Bishop Michael O'Connor of Pittsburgh.

Although his simple dress and unpretentious style were scorned by the city's urbane rich, Bishop Neumann won the loyalty of the common people and the poor, who dubbed him "the little bishop" because of his short stature.

The bishop focused his energies on religious education, increasing parochial school enrollment from 500 to 9,000 in two years, and laying the foundation for a Catholic school system that today boasts 200,000 students in 269 elementary and 30 high schools.

To staff the schools, he encouraged religious groups to settle in the area and founded a new order, the Sisters of the Third Order of St. Francis, which today has more than 1,500 nuns.

His death on Jan. 15, 1860, came just three weeks before his 49th birthday.

Hughes' estate heirs 'settle'

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Heirs of industrialist Howard Hughes have agreed to a division of his estate in an out-of-court settlement, a Montgomery newspaper reported today.

Alabama Journal reporter Virginia Gibson wrote in a copyrighted story appearing in a joint edition with the Montgomery Advertiser that the agreement was signed last weekend at a Destin, Fla., resort.

The settlement, subject to court challenge because of suits filed in several states over the authenticity of a number of purported Hughes wills, was reached "to prevent years of litigation," according to attorneys for the heirs, the Journal said.

Under the agreement, the largest share of the estate — 23 5/6 per cent — would go to Hughes' aunt, Annette Gano Lummis of Houston, the newspaper said. Mrs. Lummis' son, William, is chairman of the board of Hughes' multimillion-dollar conglomerate, the Summa Corp.

The rest of the estate, according to the Journal's account, would be divided in this manner:

—Each of three grand-daughters of Hughes' uncle, the late playwright and movie producer Rupert Hughes, would receive 6⅓ per cent. They are Barbara Hughes Cameron of Los Angeles and Elspeth Hughes Depould and Agnes Hughes Roberts, both of Cleveland.

—Nine and one-half per cent would be divided equally between Avis Hughes McIntyre of Montgomery and Rush Hughes of California, stepchildren of Rupert Hughes.

—Sixteen maternal first cousins would share the remaining 47 per cent, with none to receive more than 1 1/6 per cent.

The maternal first cousins are Annette Gano Lummis Neff of Boston; William Rice Lummis and Richard C. Gano Jr. of Los Angeles; William Kent Gano, Doris Gano Wallace, Annette Gano Grage and Howard Hughes Gano, all of Texas; Arlene Lummis Russell, Frederick Rice Lummis Jr., John McIntosh Houstoun, Margo Fleming Houstoun, James Wilkin Houstoun and Richard Alexander Houstoun, all of Houston; Janet Houstoun Davis, Sara Houstoun Lindsey and the estate of James Patrick Houstoun Jr.

Trial is scheduled Aug. 15 in Las Vegas on a petition by Annette Lummis seeking to invalidate the so-called "Mormon will" purportedly written by Hughes.

THE DOCUMENT mysteriously appeared in the headquarters of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Salt Lake City. It leaves the Hughes estate to the Mormon Church, orphanages, the Boy Scouts of America, Inc., and a service station attendant, Melvin Dummar, who says he picked up Hughes as a hitchhiker in Nevada in 1968.

The "Mormon will" leaves one-sixteenth of the estate to Dummar.

Officials have said the document is a forgery, and Dummar's fingerprint was identified on the envelope in which the will was found. Dummar has admitted delivering the document but denied that he wrote it.

The Howard Hughes Medical Institute has filed suit in Las Vegas, claiming a will made by Hughes in 1938 leaves the estate solely to the institute.

Estimates of the value of the Hughes estate have ranged from a $168 million appraisal last March by Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, Inc., of New York, to $2.5 billion by other sources.

Angel pitcher may rewrite record book

Bonds: Tanana will get better

By Tracy Ringolsby
Staff Writer

MILWAUKEE — When Frank Tanana joined the Angels late in the 1973 season he wanted to wear 25. Rich Hand had that number already.

"They picked No. 40 out of the pile and said, 'Here kid, go out and see it you can pitch,' " said Tanana.

Hand is no longer in baseball, but Tanana is still with the Angels and he has proven he can pitch.

"He is one of the four best pitchers in baseball," said Boston manager Don Zimmer. "He is right there with Tom Seaver, Catfish Hunter and Andy Messersmith."

Angel rightfielder Bobby Bonds agrees but feels Tanana may have more potential than any of them.

"It is hard to compare Frankie with any of them because he is only 23," said Bonds. "He is in the superstar class and he is going to get better. If he stays healthy he will rewrite the record books."

This year, Tanana may begin some of the rewriting. He already has won 10 games, with only three losses, and his 1.94 earned run average is the lowest among starters in the American League. All of which comes as no surprise to Tanana.

TANANA...no shrinking violet

"EXCEPT for my first (full) year in the big leagues I never lost at any level, so naturally I always figured I was going to tear them (the major leagues) up," said Tanana. "Nothing has happened to change my belief."

Tanana admitted the first half of the 1974 season had him wondering a bit. By the midway point he was 4-13 but he finished with a 14-19 record, a 3.11 earned run average and renewed confidence.

"Once the season was over I knew I had the stuff to win in the big leagues," he said. "There is no way in the world a guy should be 14-19 with a 3.11 earned run average. I knew that and knew I had pitched well enough."

The last two seasons have merely served to boost the confidence of the cocky 23-year-old from Detroit. He has a combined 35-13 record with a 2.53 earned run average for a team that has not been over .500 since 1970.

"He is as good a young pitcher as I've ever seen," said catcher Andy Etchebarren, who caught some of the best in his days with Baltimore. "He throws three pitches and has so much confidence in them he will throw any of them at any time. Not many guys, young or old, can do that."

It didn't take Tanana's major league credentials to prove to Angel coach Bob Clear that Tanana had the mental toughness to be a superstar. He knew that from the day the Angels' first-round pick of the June, 1971 draft showed up at Idaho Falls, where Clear was the manager.

THE ONLY question Clear ever had was whether Tanana would be able to throw the ball. The youngster, you see, showed up for the rookie team with such a sore back he did not throw a pitch that summer nor did he throw during instructional play in the winter.

"Everyone was a little concerned because he never threw a ball," said Clear. "That was at a time when a lot of teams were having problems with their first-round picks. There were about four pitchers that year who never made it."

Despite the injury, Tanana stayed around. Having signed for a sizeable bonus while most of his teammates did not even get enough money to buy a pair of shoes, he took plenty of ribbing but never let it bother him.

"A lot of guys in his situation would have wanted to go home because they couldn't throw, but Frank stayed around and learned as much as he could about the game," said Clear.

"It had to be tough on Frank mentally but he ever showed it," said Clear, who used Tanana as a pinchrunner once. "He played pepper for hours at a time. Hey, he was the best pepper player I've ever seen. He would have been an all-star if they picked pepper players."

They didn't have any spots on minor league all-star teams for pepper players so Tanana didn't make the team. But in the big leagues they have room for pitchers on their all-star teams and for the second year in a row, Tanana is a virtual shoo-in for the American League team.

BUT THAT is not Tanana's main concern.

"Hey, I'd be lying if I said I wouldn't like to be on the team," said the man, who ranks second to teammate Nolan Ryan in strikeouts with 109 and has walked only 33 in 125⅓ innings. "But of much more importance to me is that this team wins. I would like to be with this team in a championship series."

While personal goals may play a minor part in Tanana's effort, he does have a chance this year to become the first 30-game winner since Detroit's Denny McLain won 31 in 1968, when the Tigers won the American League crown.

"All that means to me is that it is not impossible because it has been done, but it is no challenge" said Tanana. "It takes every break in the world, but it can be done."

Tanana was a 15-year-old youngster in Detroit when McLain pulled off the feat but has only a few recollections about that season.

"All I remember was one day Baltimore was in town and had two runners on with Boog Powell up," said Tanana. "Powell hit a liner, which McLain caught and turned into a triple play. That was a sign of how good he was going. A guy hits a rocket and he turns it into a triple play."

CLEVELAND pitcher Pat Dobson was a youngster on that Tiger team and remembers McLain's efforts, but says the 30 wins were secondary.

"We never really thought about it that much until right at the end when he had won 25 games and we knew he had a shot at it," said Dobson. "Actually, winning 30 doesn't mean that much unless you win the pennant.

"If Tanana wins 30 and they take the gas and have to watch the playoffs on television it doesn't mean much," said Dobson.

Tanana agrees.

"I got caught up in the Tigers that year but only because they won it," said Tanana. "That is the big thing."

The biggest thing to come out of baseball so far for the son of a Detroit policeman is his contract, which calls for him to make $250,000 over each of the next five years but could gross as much as $4 million if all the bonuses are paid.

"Money doesn't mean that much to me right now," he said. "I play the game because I love it and I want to be the best at it. I make a lot of money, but that is only because they are passing it around."

As much money as Tanana may have, he has even more confidence. There is no doubt in his mind that he is one of the best pitchers around.

"I'd have to put myself right up there with the best," he said. "You know, the Seavers, the Palmers, the Hunters. Guys that do it year in and year out.

"If all things were equal — I mean both pitchers were going with the same lineup and the same defense — I'd take my chances against anybody in the game."

WHAT IS more, Tanana's abilities are not limited to baseball. During his high school days he was one of the top basketball players in Michigan and was offered scholarships to virtually all the Big Ten school as well as Notre Dame, which he turned down.

"It was fine I could get a college education but that was not what I wanted to do," said Tanana. "I always had a desire, as a kid growing up, to play baseball and when the opportunity presented itself and the money was good enough I took it."

And nobody has had any complaints—except the opposing hitters in the American League.

Jackson loafs, so Martin blows fuse

Combined News Services

A national television audience Saturday saw the altercation of the year as well as the game of the week, in which the first-place Boston Red Sox thumped the New York Yankees, 10-4.

Reggie Jackson, the Yankees' millionaire slugger, and Billy Martin, his volatile manager, engaged in a shouting match and nearly came to blows in the dugout after Martin lifted the right fielder for failing to hustle after a bloop double by Jim Rice in the sixth inning.

"I can't say anything until I talk to Billy and Reggie. I'll wait until they cool off and talk to them later tonight or tomorrow," said Yankee general manager Gabe Paul, who viewed the confrontation from a seat adjacent to the dugout.

Rice's instigating hit prompted Martin to lift starter Mike Torrez. After the skipper returned to the dugout, he sent Paul Blair to right to replace Jackson, who appeared bewildered upon seeing his substitute.

When he reached the visitors' alcove, Jackson confronted Martin. Then the shouting began.

JACKSON kept his cool, but Martin had to be restrained by coaches Elston Howard and Yogi Berra, among others.

"Words were exchanged that I didn't like," said Martin, whose multi-city career, like that of Jackson's, has been filled with wins— and controversy.

The player was unavailable for comment but Martin had more to say.

"As a manager, I ask only one thing of a player—hustle. If a player doesn't hustle, it shows up the club and I show the player up. Hustle is the only thing I really demand. It doesn't take any ability to hustle."

Paul spoke briefly to Martin approximately 10 minutes after the fireworks had subsided and Jackson had gone to the locker room. Paul then left his seat.

"I just went for a walk," the executive said. "No, I didn't go into the clubhouse."

Jackson's massive ego has caused several brouhahas since he departed the free agent market and joined the Yankees by signing a $2.9 million, five-year contract last November.

The former Oakland A and Baltimore Oriole criticized captain Thurman Munson's leadership qualities in a national magazine story. Later in the season, Jackson refused to shake hands with teammates after he hit a home run.

The New York team's morale can't be plummeting any faster than their deficit in the East Division standings. The Red Sox win, their second in 24 hours over the Bronx Bombers, gave them a one and a half game edge.

AMERICAN

Boston beat the defending American League champions, who were supposed to be untouchable with the addition of Jackson and Don Gullett, with a pair of homers each from veteran Carl Yastrzemski and Bernie Carbo and a long-distance blast from Geroge Scott, his 17th.

New York took a 2-0 lead in the first, but Boston assumed command for keeps in the bottom of the frame when Yastrzemski homered into the center field seats with two mates aboard.

BILL Campbell, the Red Sox' prize free agent catch, pitched three and two-thirds innings of scoreless relief for his 13th save. Reggie Cleveland got credit for his sixth win in nine tries.

The Baltimore Orioles moved into second place with the Yankees as their ace pitcher, Jim Palmer, threw his best game in several starts, a 4-2 decision over Toronto.

In stopping a three-game losing streak, Palmer (9-7) became the Orioles' all-time winningest pitcher with a 182-99 mark. He had been tied with the retired Dave McNally.

Palmer also snapped Ron Fairly's 13-game hitting streak.

Ken Kravec struck out 11 Oakland A's before tiring in the eighth inning as the Chicago White Sox prevailed 2-0. Lerrin LaGrow relieved and earned his tenth save.

The win moved the White Sox within one and a half games of first-place Minnesota in the West.

Minnesota fell, 2-1, in Kansas City as the Royals' scored both their runs in the second inning. Joe Zdeb's gounder scored one run, then Fred Patek stole home to give winner Jim Colborn, who tossed a four-hitter, the deciding run.

Eighth-inning RBI singles by Duane Kuiper and Jim Norris produced Cleveland's 4-3 victory over Detroit.

Seattle exploded for five runs in the tenth inning, the first two scoring on Ruppert Jones' double, to torpedo Texas, 6-1. Jones had scored the tying run in the ninth on Carlos Lopez' ground out.

Ciuffetelli, Woyjeck pace Peterson win

Aldo Ciuffetelli's three-hit pitching and a 2-for-3 batting performance by Joe Woyjeck were enough for Peterson to defeat the Retail Clerks Saturday in American Legion action at Blair Field.

Ciuffetelli yielded only a seventh-inning run and Woyjeck knocked in the first run of the game when he singled home Mark Hayworth.

In other action, catcher Bob Billinger went 3-for-4 in support of his batterymate Chris Kaesman as Motor Patrol conquered San Pedro 5-3 while the Lakewood pitching quartet of Mark Thomson, Kevin Mckenna, Tom Tereschuk and Ken Hironimus hurled a five-hitter at Atlantis Realty, 7-0.

Ron Trott of the Shua Rams tossed a four-hitter to down Alamitos Bay, 7-0. He struck out six.

Seaver stops Expos on three-hitter, 6-0

"It was a beautiful experience," said Seaver, the former Mets ace who joined the Reds this week in one of baseball's biggest trades.

"I made a point to look around and remember what I saw," said Seaver, who registered his 43rd career shutout.

Seaver's performance left Expos slugger Tony Perez shaking his head in awe of the collection of talent now assembled bi Cincinnati.

"With Seaver, they will catch the Dodgers easy. I would be surprised if he loses another game," said Perez.

"My feeling," said Seaver, "is even if I didn't come here, Cincinnati was going to catch them anyway."

The Reds were down 13 games three weeks ago, but now have cut the Dodgers' lead to 6½ lengths.

Seaver said he shook off a case of nerves, then found the groove in the second inning. "I was just trying to get through it without getting hurt. I didn't expect anything like that. I was nervous."

He retired the first seven batters before yielding a hit to Larry Parrish with one out in the third. He faced only 30 batters, three over the minimum, striking out eight while walking none.

NATIONAL

"He was a little excited," said catcher Johnny Bench in a masterpiece of understatement. "He's been psyching himself up for three days."

"I learned a lesson today. The true professional is not bothered by anything," said Anderson, who later predicted the four-time 20-game winner would win between "13 to 15 games" for the Reds.

The Reds staked Seaver to a 1-0 lead in the first before adding their second run in the fourth on George Foster's 18th home run of the season.

Pete Rose led off the Reds' first with a walk, advanced to third on a single to right by Ken Griffey and scored on Joe Morgan's scacrifce fly.

Foster smashed a 1-1 pitch from loser Santo Alcala (2-4) over the right field wall with one out in the fourth.

Anderson said he leaned back and watched the show with amazement.

Giants 7, Pirates 5

SAN FRANCISCO — Gary Thomasson's two-run homer with one out in the 12th inning Saturday sent Pittsburgh down to its fifth loss in a row and ninth in the last 12 games.

Both teams hd scored in the 11th.

The Pirates went ahead in the top of the inning on Dave Parker's wind-blown double, a bunt single by Al Oliver and Wille Stargell's sacrifice fly.

Jack Clark's second pinch-hit homer of the season in the bottom of the inning made it 5-5.

Phillies 8, Braves 5

PHILADELPHIA — Ollie (Downtown) Brown, the one-time Poly High product, slammed a three-run homer with two out in the 12th inning to give the Phillies a come-from-behind victory over Atlanta.

Brown's first home run of the season came off Frank LaCorte after a walk and a single by Terry Harmon.

Tug McGraw, just activated after two months on the disabled list, picked up his first victory of the year, working one scoreless inning.

Jay Johnstone's two-run, two-out bases-loaded single, the only hit in the Phillies' three-run ninth-inning rally, tied the game 5-5 and sent it into extra innings.

Atlanta starter Phil Niekro, breezing along with nine strikeouts and a five-hitter, walked three batters to load the bases with one out in the ninth.

Astros 4, Mets 3

NEW YORK — Jose Cruz' two-run double was the big blow of a three-run sixth as Houston beat Jerry Koosman.

Koosman, now 5-7, held a 3-0 lead going into the sixth with the help of home runs by John Milner and Ed Kranepool.

But Cesar Cedeno worked a walk off the left-hander to lead off the sixth and went to second on a single by Enos Cabell. The runners moved up on a double steal and both came home on Cruz' line drive double against the right field fence. After Joe Ferguson struck out, Bob Watson got Houston's tying run home with a single.

Padres 4, Cards 1

SAN DIEGO — Two-run homers by Gene Richards and George Hendricks lifted the Padres.

Tom Griffin (5-4) got the win, but failed to become only the second Padres pitcher in 68 games to go the route, Dave Tomlin having to finish up.

Minorities turning Cal. into 'Third World' state

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Minorities are increasing so fast in California that it will soon be the first "Third World state," says Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally.

Dymally, a black born in Trinidad, released a report Saturday which said minorities have risen from 20.4 per cent of California's total population in 1970 to 34.7 per cent this year.

"If the present trend continues, by 1990, California minorities will comprise a staggering 60.7 per cent of the total population," said the report prepared by interns sponsored by Dymally's office.

Dymally said the report was conservative.

"Most ethnic leaders believe that the population is anywhere from 38 to 41 per cent, and I find myself in this category," Dymally said.

"Neither the media, the government, nor private interests are preparing for this emerging phenomenon and will consequently be unprepared to meet the challenge," he said.

The report listed the principal minorities in California as Mexican-Americans 4.2 million, black 1.6 million, Japanese 350,000, Puerto Ricans 350,000, Portuguese 350,000, Chinese 300,000, Filipinos 300,000, American Indians 239,000, and Koreans 150,000.

In addition, the report said, there are 80,000 Cubans, 80,000 Vietnamese, 78,000 Caribbeans, 50,000 Samoans, 40,000 Guatemalans, 30,000 Indians from India, 30,000 Guamanians and 25,000 Panamanians.

The total is 8.3 million minority members in a total population of 24 million, according to the report.

In addition, the report estimated there are 1.2 million undocumented Mexican workers in the state, which would boost the total population to 25.2 million, with 9.5 million or 37.8 per cent minorities.

CHP officer shot making traffic check

BARSTOW (AP) — A California Highway Patrol officer shot Saturday morning during a routine traffic stop was listed in critical condition at Loma Linda University Hospital, authorities said.

John A. Lopez, 26, of Barstow, was shot three times in the back and once in the arm at 7:50 a.m. when he stopped a car containing two men about 30 miles north of here.

Authorities said one of the two men later was shot simultaneously by a San Bernardino County sheriff's deputy and CHP officers and was listed in critical condition. He was identified as Nick Cardiel, 21, of La Puente.

The other man was identified as Ronald Torres, 19, of Pasadena. Both have been charged with assault on a peace officer, assault with intent to commit murder, kidnap, armed robbery and grand theft auto.

Abuses by MDs, pharmacies cited

U.S. finds 537 Medicaid frauds

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A continuing federal audit of Medicaid payments to doctors and pharmacies has turned up 537 cases of apparent fraud or abuse, Joseph Califano, secretary of health, education and welfare, said Saturday.

That figure includes 222 physicians and 315 pharmacies whose claims were found by computer checks to be "validated" instances falling within the standards for fraud or abuse, he said.

In addition, the secretary told a news conference, the audit is turning up thousands of cases that appear solely from computer data to involve irregularities, though they have yet to be checked further. In California alone, some 2,000 cases fall into that category, he said.

The apparent violations were found in a massive screening — called Project Integrity — that as of June 9 had checked some 252 million Medicaid transactions involving 231,000 physicians and 44,000 pharmacies.

The secretary, here to address the American Medical Association today and presumably discuss administration proposals to contain the upward march of hospital costs, emphasized that most health-care providers are honest. Prosecution of those suspected of fraud, he said, will in most cases be carried out by the states in which the doctors live.

"We have been receiving excellent cooperation from all the states we have been to," Califano said.

The secretary defended his wide-ranging information-gathering campaign on national health insurance (NHI) proposals, even though the subject has been researched for many years.

"There are a lot of well-developed bills," he said, "but none of them have brought national health insurance to reality."

He said that in addition to working with an advisory committee on NHI, he is writing all congressmen, all governors, a large number of mayors, organizations and individuals to help in forming the administration's position on the issue.

Califano also presented a $1,000 award to an HEW employe whose suggestion for lowering the temperature of laundry water in hospitals could "save $300 million a year in bills for American patients," he said.

GREEN CLINGS TO LEAD—

Asked his biggest title so far, he replied: "the Minnesota state junior."

Padgett, son of the national president of the PGA, lost his card after two years of tour activity but unsheathed a magic putter that produced eight one-putts on the glass-slick greens and propelled him to a four-under-par 66, the best round of the tournament.

The quartet at 211, one over par but only three strokes off the pace, was made up of former Open champion Lou Graham, Wally Armstrong, Jay Haas and 44-year-old veteran Rod Funseth, who once had a share of the top spot but fell back and finished with a 72.

Graham, who has played extremely well in recent weeks, shot a 68, Armstrong 70 and Haas 71.

Jack Nicklaus, seeking a record-matching fourth American national championship, was frustrated and disappointed after a 71 that left him at 213, five strokes back.

Nicklaus, who normally goes bare-headed, went to a sun visor against the glaring light. But it didn't help his putting. He missed birdies from 10 and 12 feet on the 16th and 17th holes, then three-putted for bogey on the double-tough 18th.

"I had a chance to move into position and then just gave it away at the end," Nicklaus said. "I feel I'm ready to shoot a good round, but I'm not sure I've got one in my bag."

Johnny Miller had a 70-214. Arnold Palmer was 73-215. Al Geiberger, author of that landmark, record-setting 59 last weekend, made triple bogey seven on the final hole for a 75 and a 216 total that apparently took him out of contention.

Ben Crenshaw, Lee Trevino and Masters champion Tom Watson were bunched at 217. Trevino shot a 73, Crenshaw 72, Watson 71. Hale Irwin was 77-221. Jerry Pate, the 1976 winner, failed by one stroke to qualify for the final two rounds.

Most ofthe round ws played under a severe thunderstorm watch and the heat and humidity were definite factors.

"It just drains you, makes concentration very difficult, said Weiskopf.

More than four dozen spectators in the gallery of 20,000 were stricken by heat prostration and attended by first aid personnel. The caddy for pro Bob E. Smith collapsed on the 10th hole and was carried from the course. Smith's bag was picked up by a friend who was in the gallery.

"The nice thing about leading is that it's gonna force the other players to come to me," said Green, who really hasn't received the recognition due his 11 tour titles.

"And in the Open, when they start to gamble, they make mistakes."

Asked if he were surprised his over-par round enabled him to retain the lead, he replied:

"This is the U.S. Open. The USGA are professionals at putting the pins where you're putting downhill all day. And that's what I was doing. No, I'm not surprised."

Everyone else was backing up at the same time after Green posted his second consecutive bogey on holes two and three.

Green was talking, gesturing, smiling almost constantly on routine pars for the next few holes, but had to make a 12-footer to save par on the sixth.

He bogeyed the 12th after missing the green with a six iron, went to three over par for the day but still had a jaunty wave for the gallery when he walked off the green.

His only birdie came on a 15-footer on the 15th.

"I was putting downhill all day," he said, "trying to let the ball die in the hole. I'd rather have an eight-foot uphill putt than a four-foot downhill putt on greens this fast.

Bean's round was built on his first two holes.

He birdied them both, with putts of 10 and 18 feet.

There were some adventures after that, a bogey, another birdie, three saves, but the two that opened the round were the key.

As for today's final round for the most coveted title in golf, the 24-year-old Bean, winner of the Doral Open earlier this year, said:

"I'd just like to go out and play as well as I did today and see what happens."

Green, who wants so desperately to win this one, was asked about the pressure.

Green laughed.

"I heard all that talk about Tom Watson choking at the Masters. Well, if he choked, I can really choke.

"It's always been a private goal of mine to win this tournament."

Laura trails by 2 strokes

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Battling fatigue from high humidity and temperatures in the 80s, Judy Rankin fired a par-72 Saturday to earn a one-stroke lead after two rounds in a Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

Sandra Spuzich, playing before many of her hometown fans from Indianapolis, was one stroke back at three-under par 141 on the 6,044-yard Harbor Trees golf course. She shares the runner-up position with South African Sally Little.

Laura Baugh and Donna Caponi Young, who missed two putts of less than two feet on the back nine, were next at 142.

"I got woozy, maybe a little tired," said the 32-year-old Mrs. Rankin, who will try for her 23rd tour victory in today's final round.

"I never perspired and my legs were going like I've never seen them before. I was glad to see the back nine finish," said Mrs. Rankin, of Midland, Tex.

Jane Blalock and Kathy Farrer are at 143 and LPGA Hall of Famer Mickey Wright is next at 145.

Bunched together at 146 are Amy Alcott, Chako Higuchi, who had an eagle. They are tied with Jan Stephenson, Beth Stone, Marlene Floyd, Alexandra Reinhardt and Kathy Cornelius.

Jocelyne Bourassa had one of the more unusual rounds of the tournament, finishing with a 74. She had seven birdies, but picked up six penalty strokes.

Calif. wilds visited by 'new mood' of Andrus

By Gladwin Hill
New York Times Service

A young man who had trudged eight miles into the redwood wilderness last week, seeking solitude, was jolted when he came upon a group of 30 people hanging on the words of a tall, thin man who used to plug Idaho potatoes on television.

The thin man was Secretary of the Interior Cecil D. Andrus. He had flown by helicopter into a remote clearing in the Northern California forest, with lumber executives and conservationists, to get a first-hand look at the dimensions of the long-ranging controversy over enlarging Redwood National Park.

THE forest trek was just one item in five crowded days that the 54-year-old former governor of Idaho devoted to investigating resource problems in California, a state he said presented a spectrum of "virtually all the problems the nation will face in the years ahead."

The unusual expedition, the longest such Cabinet visit anyone could recall, was partly educational, partly political. Traveling in helicopters, planes and cars, Andrus covered several thousand miles, looking at forests, farmlands, dams, lakes, parks, canals, flood plains and offshore oil operations.

On a whirlwind 18-hour-day schedule, Andrus also talked with citizens, businessmen and public officials, greeted a gathering of San Francisco Democrats and plugged President Carter's energy program to a convention of public utility commissioners. In addition, he conferred with Gov. Brown, whose state, which has the biggest bloc of electoral votes, voted against Carter last November, and who personally is both a past and potential challenger of the President.

THE laundry list of issues and problems that California had to offer was long. Those that preempted attention were:

—Redwood National Park: Should it be substantially enlarged at the cost of diminished commercial logging and consequent unemployment?

—Auburn Dam: A billion-dollar Bureau of Reclamation project on the American River that is on Carter's list of questionable water projects.

—Westlands Water District: A 750-square-mile irrigation project in the San Joaquin Valley where federal benefits to big landowners have been challenged as illegal.

—Lake Tahoe: Years of quarreling between California and Nevada about preservation of its natural beauties have crystallized proposals for federal intervention.

—Offshore oil: California has led the states in opposition to stepped-up federal leasing of drilling rights, pending more comprehensive guarantees on economic and environmental impact. The Interior Department is also involved in a dispute between the state and the Exxon Corp. over the latter's plan to operate a floating offshore oil processing plant.

ANDRUS' main themes throughout his tour were that the Carter administration was deeply committed to reconciling resource development and environmental values, and that there was "a new mood" of open-mindedness in Interior, in which the department intended to weigh all viewpoints on issues and collaborate closely with states rather than "riding roughshod" in pursuit of unilateral programs.

"I sat in a governor's chair myself," Andrus told group after group, "and I know how the Feds' barging in can drive you right up the wall."

After spending a day among the redwoods, he agreed with conservationists that the federal government should acquire buffer tracts by condemnation, if necessary, to protect some choice national park groves from the effects of adjacent logging such as erosion.

He told community leaders and union officials that if sequestration of redwood tracts caused unemployment, which has been projected at anywhere from 600 to 2,000 jobs, the administration stood ready to cushion the impact through public works employment and retraining and relocation of workers if necessary.

After flying over the site of Auburn Dam, now 18 per cent completed and a major element in California's water-resource program, Andrus observed that, unlike most other projects on the Carter "hit list," the dam had been approved as to economic feasibility and general environmental effects, and had only to pass the safety hurdle, now under study. The dam was designed to withstand an earthquake of moderate intensity, about 5.5 on the Richter scale, but there is evidence that a bigger quake might occur in the area.

Andrus said he was reluctant to "stick the federal nose" into the interstate wrangling over proliferating gambling casinos and other intrusive works of man at Lake Tahoe, but he said: "If it develops that that's the only way the problem can be resolved, we're not all that bashful." The lake lies half in California and half in Nevada.

The Westlands controversy revolves around charges that large corporate farming interests have contrived to circumvent a statutory limitation of 160 acres per owner on federally-irrigated lands. Announcing formation of a federal-state panel to study the issues, Andrus said: "We will enforce the 160-acre limitation."

Thursday afternoon he helicoptered over the ocean to Union Oil's Platform A, where the great Santa Barbara well blowout of 1969 occurred. He donned a hardhat to clamber up and down its four decks while being briefed on offshore production and spill-prevention technology.

Cal. congressmen hit for blocking consumer agency

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — California Congressmen Leo Ryan and Paul McCloskey were criticized Saturday by Public Advocates for failing to support President Carter's proposed Agency for Consumer Protection.

"Right now the legislation is short a dozen or so votes," said San Francisco Dist. Atty. Joseph Freitas Jr.

"The Bay Area congressional delegation is overwhelmingly in favor of the consumer agency. The two notable holdouts are Leo Ryan and Pete McCloskey," he said. "Consumers desperately need to have public agencies to watch the massive bureaucracy that affects their lives. I would hope these two Bay Area congressmen would change their minds."

McCloskey is a Republican from Palo Alto, and Ryan a Democrat from San Mateo.

Ralph Nader, head of Public Advocates, had been scheduled to join labor and consumer leaders at the news conference but missed a flight from Los Angeles.

Galindez retains WBA crown

ROME (AP) — Victor Galindez of Argentina survived a sixth-round cut and clearly outpointed challenger Richie Kates of Bridgeton, N.J. to retain his World Boxing Association light heavyweight crown Saturday night.

The 28-year-old Argentine dominated the 15-round bout with superior power and speed.

The bout was almost a repetition of the controversial, bloody title fight the two boxers staged in Johannesburg 13 months ago.

On May 22, 1976, Galindez suffered a third round cut, but doctors said he could continue after a 10-minute interruption. The Argentine suffered a deep cut over his right eye in a sixth round clinch Saturday night, but it was his head that hit the American's during one of his lightning fast attacks.

Galindez had charged that Kates was butting with his head during the first match and he said the American could only beat him in Rome by hitting him with his head.

The cut did not slow down Galindez who kept on waiting for Kates to score with his left hook and right uppercut.

The 24-year old Kates kept up a steady pace but lacked the power to shake Galindez and cause visible damage to the Argentine. The American, however, showed his ability in finishing the match on his feet, despite severe punishment, mainly in the 11th, 12th and 14th rounds.

It was the sixth title defense for Galindez who carried his record to 44 wins, two draws, two no contests and seven defeats, winning his last 33 bouts in a row.

Free parking lot for S.D. anglers

DONNELL CULPEPPER

At a time when parking fees are going up and up, the City of San Diego is doing its best to make visitors happy with free parking almost everywhere, particularly around its famous Mission Bay, Shelter Island and just recently, the huge parking lot that will serve the overflow of anglers' vehicles at the three main sportfishing landings—Fisherman's Landing, Point Loma and H & M.

The parking around those landings always has been free, but there was an overflow to the streets. Now the Port of San Diego is landscaping the lots for those landings. Workers are putting in islands and planting trees and shrubs. That will involve the elimination of precious parking spaces now in use.

Port authorities, looking toward the albacore, yellowfin tuna and marlin seasons, have taken over a large lot situated on Shelter Island Drive, just off Rosecrans and only four blocks from the sportfishing landings. Parking there will be free. Port officials are cooperating with the landings and a shuttle bus with trailer will be working between the lot and the landings.

Fishermen may park at the lot, lock their cars and board the bus, putting their tackle and other gear on the trailer. The bus will stop at each landing. It will be a continuous service prior to departures of boats for the fishing banks. The shuttle bus will be available in the afternoon or whatever time the boats return to port.

FISHERMAN'S LANDING, one of the three on the San Diego Municipal Pier, has established a special parking area near its office for handicapped persons. There also are some 20-minute zones around the landing and officials of Fisherman's Landing say that police are very diligent about those zones.

While we are on the subject of San Diego landings, it might be well to tell you about the changes at H & M Landing. The Miller family, which sold the landing to Ken Golden in 1972, has regained possession of the facility and is making numerous changes in boat operation. While Golden operated the landing, the Miller family kept the Mascot V to keep up a tradition of always having a "Mascot" in operation.

Ralph Miller, son of the Miller who started the landing in 1935, met his wife while working as a deckhand on the Mascot III. Ralph is now general manager of the landing, and one of his sons, Bob is the supervisor. He also has earned his skipper's license and is capable of alternating with Kirby Kersey on the Mascot VI. Another son, Mark, now 16, is working at the counter in the landing, sells tickets, rents rods and reels and repairs rental fishing outfits.

The Miller daughters, Mary, Catherine and Anne, are away at college, but Catherine probably will be doing some work at the landing through the summer.

The Mascot VI is a refurbished model of the H & M Salado 85 and Kersey will remain as the main skipper.

BACK TO THE PARKING fee subject: Parking fees irritate some people to such an extent that they will deliberately leave the lot or a zone where fees are charged. When H. Werner Buck, noted show producer, shifted his Los Angeles Sportsmen's Show to the Los Angeles Sports Arena this year, he subsidized the adjacent lots and gave patrons free parking. He made more friends doing that than he would have had he lowered the admission price $1.50.

There is much static being generated in Long Beach about the proposed beach parking fees of $1 on weekdays and $2 on weekends and holidays. One of the lots affected is the one adjacent to Belmont Pier. I have heard from several oldtimers who fish on the pier and whose main income comes from Social Security. One angler came to my house the other day to protest. He said that all of the elderly fishermen were "plenty mad about the proposed fees."

That lot has to serve Belmont Pier as well as the Plaza swimming pool area and the beach.

There will be free parking at Queen's Wharf Sportfishing, but spaces there are for people who buy tickets and fish from sportfishing boats. Operators of Belmont Pier are not happy about the proposed fees because they, too, have boat patrons who must have parking spaces. The proposed fee will force them to pay an extra dollar or two to fish aboard the Queen of the Sea.

THE LONG BEACH PARKING fees for the beach and the beach lots have not gone into effect yet, and it is my understanding that the City Council will have a final reading on July 22. If the Council approves, the plan must go before the Coastal Commission where it could be approved or disapproved.

The plan as presented by the City Manager would earmark the fees for the months of May, June, July, September and October.

Although no provision has been made for exemptions for anybody from the beach parking fees, it is understood that persons who use the beach or fish much of the time from Belmont Pier or in the surf will be able to buy season passes for $15, provided the proposed fees become effective.

NOW FOR a quick glance at fresh-water fishing prospects for the coming week:

Irvine Lake's seven-day-a-week schedule continues and so does the weekly plant of 3,000 pound of rainbow trout. While some other lakes are being drawn down, Irvine is going up. In fact, says Mrs. Alice Carlson, lake manager, the level of the lake should rise another four or five feet vertically. The Irvine Company is accepting water in the reservoir. That water will be used later for agricultural irrigation.

Trout plants have been halted in Lake Skinner, but Russ Cleary, who has the concession there as well as the one at Irvine Lake, says that there are many holdover trout that are surviving. Action has been good around the spillway. Catfish and crappie are making anglers happy.

Billie Jean, Chris spark U.S.

EASTBOURNE, England (AP) — Chris Evert and Billie Jean King scored singles victories Saturday to give the United States a 2-1 victory over Australia and retention of the women's Federation Lawn Tennis Cup.

Miss Evert, although playing below form, won the clincher in the best-of-five series by beating Kerry Reid 7-5, 6-3 in the second singles match to give the Americans the $40,000 first prize.

Earlier, Billie Jean King downed Dianne Fromholtz 6-1, 2-6, 6-2. In the meaningless doubles, Mrs. Reid and Wendy Turnbull defeated Miss Evert and Rosemary Casals 6-3, 6-3.

It was sixth victory in 10 Federation Cup appearances for the United States.

Ms. King showed much of her old power to make sure the Americans got off to a solid start. In an outstanding match of twisting fortunes she beat the 20-year-old Miss Fromholtz in 75 minutes.

Miss Evert was not hardpressed to win because the 29-year-old Mrs. Reid failed to match the form she showed helping the Aussies eliminate Britain Friday night.

By contrast, King's opening match with Fromholtz was full of sparkling tennis. The 33-year-od Long Beach product, six times Wimbledon champion, turned on much of her old magic in a devastating first set.

After such a beating it seemed impossible that Fromholtz could come back. But she transformed the match in the second set by taking on Billie Jean at her own brilliant volleying game, breaking her service twice, in the third and seventh games.

But at the finish it was Billie Jean's vast experience which subdued the young southpaw.

standards, tax incentives for weatherizing homes, and restructuring utility rates to reward energy consumers who cut down, Mondale said.

Metzenbaum said the "administration's own plan estimates that energy demand will increase nationally by 25 per cent from 1976 to 1985, a figure only 4 per cent less than if no energy plan is enacted at all."

He said Congress should consider mandatory measures such as minimum gas-mileage standards for every new car, not just fleet averages; strict enforcement of the 55 mile-per-hour speed limit; mandatory industrial conversion to coal; mandatory home insulation, and elimination of unnecessary fuel use such as stove pilot lights.

Safeguards against profit gouging by the oil companies are a part of Carter's program, Mondale said, noting that it exempts home heating oil and gas from the effects of its new taxes.

HE SAID the program seeks to protect the consumer in its current fight against the oil lobby to keep price controls on energy. He added, however, that "we offer substantial incentives for new production ... but we don't believe the oil and gas companies should reap billions in windfall profits at the expense of the American people for energy from wells that have already been drilled and producing at a substantial profit for years."

"The President and I are keenly disappointed" by a House subcommittee vote to take controls off the price of natural gas, Mondale said. "That single action, if it's not overturned, will cost the American people $71 billion in added fuel costs by 1985."

"Substantial incentives? (That) masterfully understates the obvious," said Metzenbaum.

IN 1972, before the OPEC price increase, when the average price for a barrel of U.S. crude oil was [illegible] Metzenbaum said, Exxon's producing operation earned a 71 per cent pre-tax rate of return on net investment, Mobil 44 per cent, Amoco 43.4 per cent and Gulf 43.7 per cent.

He said the average price is [illegible] and the administration wants to raise it to the OPEC cartel price of $13.50.

The administration's proposal also provides a special bonus to producers of Alaskan oil without any justifiable reason. Only last month, Federal Energy Administrator [illegible] O'Leary acknowledged that these revenues will amount to a windfall for the oil companies — more than $2 billion for British Petroleum, Arco and Sohio, the senator said.

He blasted the administration's setting of a price of $1.75 per million cubic feet of natural gas in the face of a 1976 study of a major Gulf natural gas field by the Price Waterhouse accounting firm showing that Gulf's average total exploration and production cost over the [illegible]-year contract will be 24 cents per million cubic feet.

Metzenbaum indicated his support for a legal prohibition against ownership of competing types of energy. He said 24 oil and gas companies control about 44 per cent of leased coal reserves and [illegible] per cent actually are producing [illegible] "In general coal production has declined or failed to increase significantly when a previously independent coal company is acquired by an oil company."

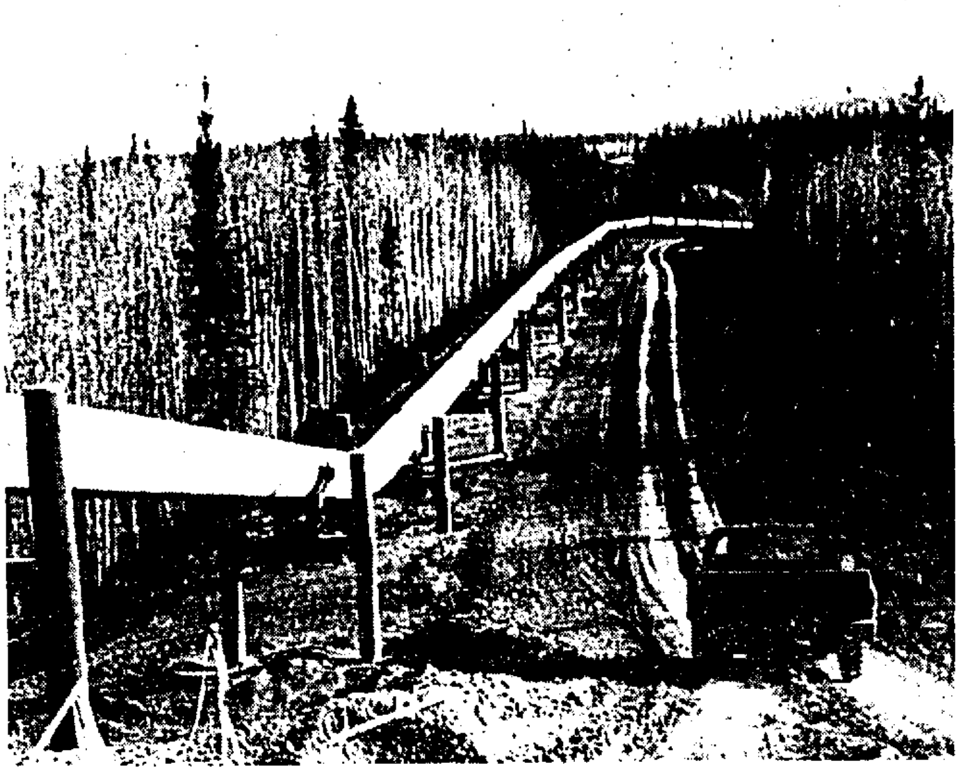
[illegible] approving a [illegible] to [illegible] an ACLU [illegible] in a [illegible] name.

Hoover authorized a "confidential [illegible] inquiry" involving [illegible] of files in the ACLU's New York headquarters because he had heard the ACLU had published a pamphlet describing white slave and narcotic violators as "minor offenses," the paper said. No pamphlet was found.

DURING the 25-year period of FBI surveillance, Hoover repeatedly denied to ACLU founder Roger N. Baldwin that the organization was being investigated, the paper said.

And although the ACLU was described in FBI files as "nothing more than a front for the Communists," Hoover also denied to Baldwin that the ACLU was suspected of being subversive, it said.

Baldwin, 93, was quoted in the article as saying: "I think it is a terrible waste of effort and government funds to spy on an organization as open as the ACLU. It just illustrates the stupidity of a police agency that operates on the grounds of suspicion instead of facts."



INSPECTION TOUR of Alaska pipeline takes trucker over work road through vast birch and spruce forest. Pipeline is scheduled to start moving oil Monday.

Alaska pipeline making the change from dream to reality

own the oil and built the line to get it out to the refineries.

This Prudhoe Bay oil field draws its name from a dimple in the shoreline of the greatest oil strike ever made in North America. About 8,100 feet below the frozen mud surface of that barren plain there begins a sandstone formation that is 1,500 feet thick and holds oil and gas over an area of [illegible] square miles.

Twenty or 30 billion barrels of oil permeate the spaces between the grains of sand in that sandstone. Engineers estimate that [illegible] billion barrels may be recovered before the field is abandoned two or three decades from now. There are also 25.4 trillion cubic feet of natural gas in the formation.

Despite the immensity of the oil strike, which was made in 1968 by Atlantic Richfield and Exxon, the oil pipeline has been delayed. The production and transit problems created by working on a fragile surface of frozen mud were intensified by the national concern over damage to the environment.

Spokesmen for the owners put the cost of the project at $7.7 billion. (The first transcontinental railroad in 1869 cost $[illegible] million in 1977 dollars.) The oil companies spent $1.57 billion more to build the camps, drill the wells in the producing field and set up the systems for extracting sand and water from the petroleum.

THEY HAVE also built an expensive plant to reinject the natural gas that comes out of the wellhead suspended in the oil. It will be stored until a way to market it is worked out.

Eighteen months after the oil strike, the National Environmental Policy Act was passed to become effective Jan. 1, 1970. What had been a discussion of how best to finance and engineer an oil pipeline became a political and legal question.

Suits were filed by environmentalists in 1970 that blocked the pipeline's construction until Congress, under the urging of former President Nixon's administration, passed the Trans-Alaska Pipeline Authorization Act in November 1973.

In the autumn of 1973, world oil prices jumped dramatically as the Arab nations cut back their production and announced price increases.

BUT AS early as March 1973 Rogers C. B. Morton, Nixon's secretary of the interior, asked the Supreme Court and Congress as "a matter of the highest national importance" to "remove the obstacles to prompt construction."

Under the pricing policies of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, the world price of oil has climbed to the point where West Coast refineries pay $13.50 a barrel for Saudi Arabian oil similar in quality to that from Prudhoe Bay.

The pipeline owner companies have estimated their interest costs on construction loans to be $1.1 billion. As the line opens, they find themselves in a dispute with national and state governments. The disagreement is over the tariffs the owners propose to levy to move the oil. The state of Alaska, which will own one-eighth of the oil as its royalties, wants low tariffs and has opened a campaign against the companies' announced tariff of $[illegible] to $[illegible] a barrel.

THE OWNERS insist that they are entitled to recover their investment and interest on construction loans as well as an investment return. The state counters with the assertion that millions of dollars were wasted by inefficient management during construction and that the owners are not entitled to recover or to earn on that money.

The Interstate Commerce Commission will decide the issue.

The pipeline construction is one of the most important economic events in Alaska since the Gold Rush. Population was 322,000 in 1972 and is estimated at 422,500 in 1977. The pipeline payrolls strengthened the economy in Fairbanks and here.

The pipeline will enable the state to begin receiving huge sums of royalties and severance taxes on production. State spending has soared in anticipation of oil revenues, which will soon top $1 billion.

However, many thoughtful people here are worried. Last year, the voters approved a constitutional amendment that requires the State Department of Finance to put no less than 25 per cent of state oil revenues into income-earning investments. This is called the Permanent Fund.

Anita's job plugging orange juice periled

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Anita Bryant's success as a crusader against homosexual rights may cost her the $100,000-a-year job of plugging Florida orange juice in television ads, state officials say.

"The whole Anita thing is a mess," says Arthur Darling, director of publicity for the Florida Department of Citrus. "No matter what we decide, we're only going to lose. I wish she would just resign."

Department officials say the filming of this fall's television campaign has been suspended until they receive the results of a survey studying her "market effectiveness."

Part of the problem is that the singer has become more recognized for her outspoken religious opposition to homosexual rights than as a spokesman for the citrus industry.

"You can't be a commercial star and an evangelist at the same time," says Douglas Hoffer, the department's marketing director.

Hoffer said the survey will measure whether consumers have come to identify Bryant with the homosexual issue more than with oranges.

When Miss Bryant helped form Save Our Children Inc., the group that led the successful campaign for the repeal of Dade County's homosexual rights campaign, Darling said he hoped the furor over her stand would die down after the election.

But in the week following the county referendum which repealed the law, personal appearances by the former beauty queen in Dallas, New Orleans and Chicago have touched off demonstrations for and against her position.

Darling says the department has received a stack of "Anita hate mail" mostly from California homosexuals vowing to boycott Florida citrus products.

"We're concerned that she is making herself such a national figure on this issue," says Dan Richardson, chairman of the state citrus commission.

The commission will have the final say on whether Miss Bryant's contract will be renewed.

Officials say if the survey shows Miss Bryant, who has been selling orange juice for 10 years, is no longer an effective salesman, the DOC already has filmed backup commercials using Olympic skating star Dorothy Hamill and Boston Pops Conductor Arthur Fiedler.

Harbor official asked to resign

Los Angeles Harbor Commissioner George Izumi has been asked to resign by Mayor Tom Bradley, but he says he will resist any move to force him off the powerful commission.

"I haven't resigned and I have no intention of doing so," said Izumi, adding that he has "a pretty good idea of what is behind this" but refused to elaborate.

Izumi, 56, whose five-year term expires in 1980, said the actual resignation request came from Dep. Mayor Grace Davis in a telephone call.

Ring of flames chars Southwest

Associated Press

Nearly 2,000 fire fighters battled weekend blazes that burned over an estimated 7,000 acres in the Southwest. One fire was spreading Saturday into a technical area of the Los Alamos, N.M., Scientific Laboratory where scientists developed the first U.S. atomic bomb.

Explosives are machined and tested at the lab.

The fire barely missed major archaeological sites in Bandelier National Monument, charring 3,000 acres in the Santa Fe National Forest after breaking out Thursday, Forest Service officials said.

Juan G. "Johnny" Aldaz, 51, a National Park Service employe, was working on the fire line when he collapsed and died of an apparent heart attack. Two other fire fighters were reported injured and taken to a Los Alamos hospital.

MORE THAN 500 fire fighters, aided by aerial bombers and helicopter support crews, made a desperate effort to stop the blaze at a paved road separating the burning forest from "S Site" at the Los Alamos laboratory.

Off-duty fire fighters, laboratory security guards and federal Energy Research and Development Administration pumper trucks were summoned to the area, but the fire jumped the road and moved toward the lab.

Indian Pueblo ruins and cliff dwellings built in 1200 to 1500 by the ancestors of the Rio Grande Valley Pueblo Indians had been threatened earlier, but most of the sites swept by the blaze were unexcavated.

Archaeologists accompanied bulldozers working on fire lines to minimize damage caused by heavy equipment. Another Forest Service spokesman, Eric Johanson, said fire fighters expressed concern Friday that Stone Lion Shrine was endangered, but crews managed to turn the blaze away from it on Saturday.

In southern New Mexico, fire fighters worked to contain a blaze that burned more than 300 acres of Bureau of Land Management land in the Organ Mountains about 15 miles east of Las Cruces. In the northeast section of the state, 200 fire fighters were mobilized against a fire that charred more than 200 acres of the Barker Wildlife area near the Philmont Scout Ranch. That fire, northwest of Cimarron, was spreading eastward, away from the ranch.

In Arizona, 1,250 fire fighters battled blazes covering more than 5,300 acres in the northern part of the state.

Hundreds of families were evacuated from four subdivisions near Flagstaff as a fire on Mt. Elden northeast of the city swept over more than 4,000 acres.

The evacuees were housed temporarily at a local high school and at a National Guard armory but were permitted to return to their homes Saturday evening.

Winds of up to 40 miles an hour were hampering the efforts of some 600 fire fighters from Arizona, California, Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Utah. Six aerial bombers, three helicopters, 12 ground tankers and six bulldozers were brought to the scene.

The Mt. Elden fire lookout tower was destroyed, along with a radio electronics site which knocked out radio communications for the Arizona Department of Public Safety, Coconino County and the National Forest Service.

"The thing is still burning out of control, and there's no estimate of a time for containment or control," said Forest Service spokesman Jack Darnall.

Michael A. Kerrick, Coconino National Forest supervisor, closed the forest to the public, except for permanent residents.

FOUR youngsters who allegedly had a campfire burning in the area were taken into custody at the Coconino County juvenile center.

Three other fires still burned in Arizona on Saturday, including two others in the Coconino National Forest. One, just southwest of Clint's Well, consumed an estimated 1,100 acres. Another, northeast of Ashurst Lake, blackened 400 acres of pinyon pine and juniper.

About 550 fire fighters expected to have both blazes under control by Saturday night.

Cargo container crushes worker

A 19-year-old Torrance man was crushed to death early Saturday at Los Angeles International Airport when a 10,000-pound cargo container fell on him while he was unloading a truck, police said.

Terry Kertes, of 2540 Maricopa St., was pronounced dead at the scene at 3 a.m. The Flying Tiger Line employe was putting the container on a tow cart when it rolled off and pinned him to a steel pole.

Wilkes-Barre scars linger — after The Flood

Five years later, the town is still rebuilding

When Hurricane Agnes struck the Northeast on June 22, 1972, one of the hardest hit towns was Wilkes-Barre, Pa., where flood waters reached the second stories of many houses. A reporter revisiting Wyoming Valley finds that the effects of the disaster linger.

By Julie Fredericks
Associated Press

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. — Even five years after Hurricane Agnes, people in this town divide their era into "before the flood" and "after the flood."

The flood left the city of 65,000 with more than $1 billion in damages, with physical and mental scars that still are readily apparent.

"IT'LL never be over," says Donna Miles, a department store sales manager. "We've rearranged our house so our valuable furniture is stored on the second floor. The minute the river rises, it all moves up to the attic or out of the valley to friends."

"You could see the long-term effects in Eloise," says contractor Tom Bell, referring to a 1975 hurricane — three years after Agnes — that brought heavy rains but no flooding in the Wyoming Valley, thanks to reinforced, higher dikes on the Susquehanna River. "I never saw so many rented trucks. People were packing up and getting out."

In the '72 calamity, about 100,000 persons were left homeless in the Susquehanna flood. Most were housed in trailers and campers provided by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Only three families live in the trailers today, but there are plenty of other reminders.

"THE flood has become an historical date," says psychiatric social worker J. Warren Yarnal. "You can hardly go a day in this town without hearing someone talk about 'before the flood' or 'after the flood.' "

A temporary bridge still spans the Susquehanna. Rubble-filled lots and condemned buildings dot the town. Several streets remain closed to traffic. Elementary school children attend classes in a temporary quonset hut-like structure. The Wilkes-Barre public square is torn up, and the central business district is being rebuilt.

In Chamber of Commerce terminology, all of the flood-related repair is called "redevelopment." While larger chain stores are pleased with the modernization that will allow the central city to compete with suburb shopping malls, many small businessmen say the effort has not meant progress for them.

"I DON'T know what's been worse for this area — the flood or redevelopment," says lawyer George Ritchie, who, like many downtown workers, must detour around various construction sites to get to his office overlooking the public square. "Redevelopment is killing the little guy."

"Between redevelopment and SBA, they put me out of business," says printer Jake Sirotkin.

Of the $800 million the federal Small Business Administration spent on flood-related reconstruction in Pennsylvania, nearly $500 million went to Wilkes-Barre. Like more than half of the city's homeowners and small businessmen, Sirotkin was able to get a loan from the SBA to rebuild his home and business. But the Wilkes-Barre Redevelopment Agency tore down the block where his print shop was and erected a new building, charging four times the previous rent. Sirotkin's business failed. He suffered a heart attack. Now he's put a "For Sale" sign in front of the totally rebuilt house where his four children grew up.

While flood victims expressed gratitude for the favorable terms of their special SBA disaster loans — 1 per cent interest and a $5,000 "forgiveness" — many question the wisdom of the federal policy that encouraged renovation rather than relocation. Federal disaster loans were responsible for the reconstruction of so many homes in the hardest-hit south Wilkes-Barre area that the neighborhood is referred to as a "government reservation."

"Too many people were forced into massive indebtedness, to reconstruct devastated buildings that shouldn't have been rebuilt, in areas where they would have preferred not to remain," said Fred Anderson, a regional coordinator for HUD in the disaster relief and redevelopment effort during 1972-74. "I feel that the growth of this area would have been much longer-lived had there been more judicious decisions about re-use of the flood plain."

Residents had to prove that a building had severe structural damage before the government would buy a property at pre-flood value and move it to higher ground. Many residents and merchants felt they had no choice but to rebuild their heavily-damaged homes and businesses.

Now deeply in debt to the SBA, they resent the election-year influx of urban renewal grant money funneled largely into the business district. A recent study showed the effect of the heavy federal and state business subsidies, leaving over 40 per cent of the city's property tax free.

The Flood Victims Action Council, which claims more than 2,000 members in Pennsylvania and New York, lobbied for legislation to preclude forced rebuilding in the flood plain and provide better long-range flood protection.

"All redevelopment did was to pour a lot of money into a lot of pockets in the center city," complained one member. "The government's free ride for big business has only increased our tax burden. Our industry hasn't picked up, and the lot of the average citizen hasn't improved."

Despite all the complaints, Wyoming Valley's residents point with pride to what they consider one positive effect of the disaster: The strong family and community support that helped them survive.

"I was amazed at the resilience of the people," said social worker Yarnal.

Psychologist Carl Nitsche, who studied the psychological effects of the 1972 flooding, found relatively few psychic problems, most relating to the disruption of the environment in the flood-damaged communities.

"The support network in some of the hardest-hit communities is so strong that the few who were fortunate enough to escape serious flooding practically feel like pariahs," Dr. Nitsche says.

Residents still debate whether a similar disaster could happen again.

"We're still living in a flood plain," says Anderson, the former disaster relief official. "While people are growing more confident that the river will never flood that way again, because we now have a couple more feet of dike. I'm still worried."

Crystal Water the winner

Carrying high weight of 129 pounds, the California-bred Crystal Water was timed in two minutes flat over the 1¼-mile main track after early fractions of 22⅖, 45⅕, 1:09 and 1:33⅕.

Crystal Water, given an artistic ride by his regular pilot, Laffit Pincay, collected $210,000 for his owner-breeder, Mrs. Connie M. Ring of Beaumont, who is known as the grand dame of racing in the state.

"He is some kinda horse," said Pincay. "What more can I say?"

Favored by a crowd of 38,875, Crystal Water returned $6.80, $4 and $2.60. Cascapedia, who had won four in a row at Hollywood Park this year, carried 116 pounds, including Donald Pierce, and paid $5 and $3.60. Caucasus, 124, with Fernando Toro up, returned $4.60.

After being slammed hard at the break, Crystal Water moved up to press longshot Austin Mittler for the early lead, and carried a comfortable lead into the far turn.

"At the top of the stretch, I thought I still had some horse left, but Crystal Water wasn't really putting out," said Pincay. "Then the filly (Cascapedia) came to us and actually got out in front. My horse had never really responded from the whip too well in the past, but I felt I had to try something, so I hit him and he took off."

Ancient Title, who won the Hollywood Gold Cup in 1975 and has won $1,082,716 in his lengthy career, finished fourth in the field of 12 contenders.

Crystal Water's total earnings have stretched to $723,770. He has won seven of his 16 starts, with three seconds and two thirds.

Trailing behind the top four in order were: Rajab, Mark's Place, Balmerino, Legendario III, Festive Mood, Pay Tribute, Austin Mittler and Taras Bulba.

The purse money included $60,000 for second, $40,000 for third, $25,000 for fourth, $10,000 for fifth and $5,000 for sixth in what was billed as the richest thoroughbred race in the nation and the richest in Hollywood Park history.

DOWN THE STRETCH—Laffit Pincay's Gold Cup victory was his second win of the afternoon and with Sandy Hawley drawing a blank, the Hollypark jockey standings find both competitors tied with 76...10 distaffers will go postward today in the $50,000 added Wilshire Handicap, at a mile and one-eighth on the turf course...$26,000 will definitely be given away today to the person or persons selecting the most consecutive winners, beginning with the first race, in the Sunday Sweep contest.

Arizona St. wins NCAA title, 2-1

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Chris Bando cracked a seventh-inning go-ahead home run and Jerry Vasquez checked South Carolina on five hits Saturday night to lift Arizona State to a 2-1 victory in the championship game of the 31st College World Series.

Top rated Arizona State (57-12) earned its fourth series crown—but first since 1969—in a pitchers' battle before a capacity crowd of 11,876.

Vasquez, a junior right-hander who won two series games, struck out three and retired the last nine men in order after Steve King deadlocked the game with a leadoff home run in the seventh.

In the bottom of the inning, Bando, younger brother of major leaguer Sal Bando, lined an 0-1 pitch over the right field fence to give the Sun Devils the lead again.

Arizona State took a 1-0 lead in the third inning on a two-out single by Rick Peters, a stolen base and a single by Mike Henderson. Peters scored when Henderson was trapped in a run-down after rounding first base.

CRYSTAL WATER was bumped at the break then showed speed nearing the first turn to share the lead, discouraged AUSTIN MITTLER to be clearly in front after settling into the stretch under light coaxing, disposed of MARK'S PLACE approaching the quarter pole to take his biggest lead, responded in the final furlong to meet the challenge of CASCAPEDIA and narrowly held. CASCAPEDIA rallied steadily along the outside at the three furlong pole, was carried out by MARK'S PLACE before reaching the winner, gamely made her bid in midstretch and hung in the final strides. CAUCASUS fell far back and lagged to the half mile pole, found an opening between horses nearing the quarter pole, had clear path then in the middle of the track through the stretch and came with a rush in the final seventy yards finishing strongest. ANCIENT TITLE was always within striking distance of the leaders and hung in the drive. RAJAB was without a closing kick in the final furlong. MARK'S PLACE forced the pace then went to bearing out and fell back. BALMERINO was no factor. FESTIVE MOOD came inward at the start then showed speed in between horses to help prompt the early pace then faltered. PAY TRIBUTE raced in traffic to the far turn and tired. AUSTIN MITTLER stopped. TARAS BULBA was outrun.

Texas-made Lowenbrau brews storm

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — A complaint and a lawsuit have been filed in connection with the marketing of a domestic version of the beer that made Munich famous.

With no fanfare, Miller Brewing Co. began brewing Lowenbrau Beer here about a year ago under what brewery spokesmen said is a 1974 agreement with Lowenbrau Munchen Aktiengesellschaft, the West German producer.

The spokesmen said Miller's had no intent to mislead consumers in marketing the domestic Lowenbrau. There is no difference between the Fort Worth and the West German suds except for a slight mention of the Texas brewery on the label.

Dallas stockbroker John Landrum filed a complaint with the state attorney general's consumer fraud division, and Chicago industrial engineer John Christoffel filed a Cook County Circuit Court suit accusing Miller's of misleading labeling and deceptive marketing.

Landrum, who cited alleged deceptions in the sale of domestic Lowenbrau in 12 test markets, including Dallas-Fort Worth, San Diego, San Francisco and Chicago, said he filed his complaint after buying what he thought was German Lowenbrau in a Dallas store. He realized later that the beer was brewed just 27 miles away in Fort Worth.

"I WAS JUST fooled, and I couldn't take it back," he said. "The retailer wouldn't do anything. So I complained to the distributor, then the brewery in Fort Worth, then the regional sales manager and finally Miller's headquarters in Milwaukee."

The brewery said it is operating under approval of the federal Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms division and has no control over prices set by retailers. It also said retailers have the right to display the beer wherever they want — including next to imported brews.

Landrum said the price of a six-pack varies widely. Some Fort Worth stores sell domestic Lowenbrau for $2.50 a six-pack, but others sell the same six-pack for as much as $3.25.

Miller's spokesmen said imported Lowenbrau sells for about $3.75 a six-pack and that the domestic version is a good seller. They declined to comment on Landrum's or Christoffel's actions.

U.S. study lauds no-fault car insuring

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new federal survey of no-fault automobile insurance plans in 16 states concludes that no-fault provides quicker and more equitable benefits than the traditional liability system.

"No-fault automobile insurance works," said the Department of Transportation.

The report said the 16 states with full-fledged no-fault insurance plans "would appear to confirm the basic soundness of the theory and the feasibility of the theory's implementation."

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, released the DOT study. He said he will use it in hearings beginning June 27 on his proposal for federal no-fault minimum standards.

"The DOT study confirms that good no-fault laws are working efficiently and effectively to compensate auto accident victims," Magnuson said. "Perhaps now we can enact a uniform, sensible statute and stop this foot-dragging."

Compensation for injuries or damage in auto accidents traditionally is funded by liability insurance. Under that system, blame has to be fixed on one or more parties, whose insurance then compensates the victim. All parties often have to hire attorneys and wage long, expensive legal battles before any benefits are paid out.

The delay in payments, inequitable benefit awards and a large buildup of court cases led to a movement to substitute no-fault for the liability insurance system. Massachusetts in 1970 was the first state to pass a no-fault plan, 15 other states have enacted comprehensive no-fault plans and other states have adopted parts of the no-fault concept.

In the 16 states studied by the DOT, no-fault insurance had three common features: Mandatory economic loss benefits were available to all victims regardless of fault; these benefits replaced liability insurance for compensating the same loss, and victims were restricted in their right to sue for damages for such intangibles as "pain and suffering."

The states studied are Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Kansas, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Pennsylvania and Utah.

The report concluded that:

—No-fault plans provide more adequate and equitable benefits than the liability system, especially for seriously injured accident victims and for victims of single-car accidents where no second person could be blamed.

For example, a Colorado bicyclist who ran a stop sign and was hit by a car covered by liability insurance so far has run up $8,201 in medical bills. None of those bills would have been covered by liability insurance because the bicylist could not have successfully sued the car's driver, who was not at fault.

Under no-fault, the bicyclist's bills are covered because the system pays her medical costs regardless of fault.

Connecticut estimates that 25 per cent more accident victims recover for economic losses under no-fault insurance than under fault. Kentucky said that of the 53.8 per cent increase in the losses incurred in its first year of no-fault insurance, about 16 per cent were persons who would not have gotten benefits under the tort system.

—Payments are paid promptly for economic losses under no-fault insurance, a marked improvement over other plans, the DOT said.

Michigan said almost all auto accident claims are settled within 30 days. Colorado said 59 per cent of its no-fault claims are settled within three months and 91 per cent within six months. Massachusetts said 63.3 per cent of its no-fault claims are paid within 90 days, compared to only 40.5 per cent for traditional liability claims.

—Insurance premiums can be lowered when no-fault benefits are coordinated with benefits from other sources.

Brzezinski tells Toth of U.S. concern over quizzing

WASHINGTON (AP) — National security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski called Robert Toth in London Saturday to express his pleasure at Toth's release and the administration's concern over his treatment by the Russians, a spokesman for the National Security Council said.

Toth, a Los Angeles Times correspondent, arrived in London Friday night from Moscow where he had been interrogated by Soviet secret police about articles he had written and his contacts with Soviet dissidents.

Brzezinski told Toth the administration had been very concerned about his and his family's welfare.

"We were also concerned because your treatment raises certain fundamental principles — the free flow of information, free access and freedom of the press," he said. "I regret this. It was counterproductive for U.S.-Soviet relations."

The spokesman said Toth replied that his experience had been "a little [illegible], particularly on the family end."

Toth was questioned more than 12 hours over several days in Moscow's Lefortovo prison.

"Although I realized I was something of a symbol, I couldn't help but take this somewhat personally," Toth said.

He thanked the administration for the "strong words that must have gone into the official protest."

Toth expressed concern about the implications of his treatment for the treatment of Soviet dissidents, especially Anatoly Shcharansky.

Yonkers police halt 'sick-out'; talks slated

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — The Patrolmen's Benevolent Association agreed Saturday to end a "sick-out" that had left New York's fourth largest city without regular police protection for four days.

The agreement by the 400-member PBA came after police were assured in daylong negotiations that money was available for raises, a problem for officials in Yonkers, which has been on the verge of bankruptcy for two years.

Money was the key in the dispute, which began Wednesday when patrolmen, sergeants and lieutenants began reporting ill in a "blue flu" epidemic.

Although no emergency was declared, there was looting in the downtown area Thursday night, with several television stores and other shops hit by groups of teen-agers.

The sergeants and lieutenants agreed to go back to work Friday night. Mayor Angelo Martinelli said they did a "very adequate" job, with Friday night "better than usual."

Officials close to the negotiations said a key factor in the settlement was agreement by Deputy State Comptroller John Feeney to drop his opposition to the city's selling up to $7 million in bonds.

The money is needed to help pay the cost of rehiring 350 laid off teachers, whom the courts ordered reinstated with back pay. They were let go during the fiscal crisis that for two years has plagued this community of 240,000 bordering on the northern edge of New York City.

Stanford Jr. High's top athlete

Lisa Tribble: Girl for all seasons

By Elaine Risinger
Staff Writer

For the second time in the school's history a girl, Lisa Tribble, has been named outstanding athlete at Stanford Junior High School. Not outstanding girl athlete. Outstanding athlete, period.

Lisa helped her team to a first-place victory in the All-City Basketball playday, is a member of the girls volleyball team and plays third base for the Uncolas in the Los Altos Bobby Sox League.

Lisa keeps in shape riding her skateboard and 10-speed bike. When her skateboard did not have the flexibility need for certain stunts, she designed and made one that did. Riding her bike 30 miles for a picnic is all in a weekend's fun.

LISA TRIBBLE
She does it all

But Lisa is more than a super athlete. Early this year, before she turned 15, she submitted a drawing for the school annual cover. There were more than a hundred drawings submitted but Lisa's was chosen.

She has been winning art contests since fifth grade and has just completed a special class at Long Beach State. The art teacher has invited Lisa to attend a special class for gifted students and, additionally, she has received an invitation from the Long Beach School District to participate in an honor art class at Lakewood High this summer.

And, oh yes, Lisa plays clarinet in the Stanford school band. Of course, there are other things she has not yet mastered. Probably because she hasn't tried—yet.

Next year Lisa will attend Millikan High where she will try out for the girls basketball and volleyball teams.

INCREASED interest in athletics among young women doesn't stop with summer and the end of interscholastic competition. Most girls with an eye toward improved performance and, perhaps, a college scholarship use the three months to attend training camps and participate in summer league programs.

Long Beach State is helping to fill the instruction need by providing camp programs in six sports this year—volleyball, badminton, tennis, soccer, softball and field hockey. LBSU and visiting coaches, all with outstanding credentials, will be teaching.

The week-long sessions stress fundamentals, conditioning, strategy and performance. Athletes will be ability-grouped and receive individual as well as group instruction.

The time schedule for camps is 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily. The cost varies, but most are $35 with dormitory housing available for $45 a week extra.

Badminton and tennis will be presented beginning Monday. Girls interested should check with the Women's Physical Education office at LBSU about late registration.

The two coaches for badminton are Vicki Toutz and Judianne Kelly. Both have been members of UBER champion teams. Coach at Garden Grove High High School, Toutz also was the 1973 state singles and double champion.

Kelly, who coaches at Pacifica High School, was 1975 state and national singles champion and the 1974-76 national mixed doubles champion.

LBSU tennis coach Gloria Hendricks will head the tennis program. Hendricks, a member of the Long Beach Tennis Patrons, is a former California ranked junior. She will be assisted by Dorothy Bogdanoff, an LBSU tennis instructor, who was the collegiate national singles and doubles champion in 1973-74. She is also varsity coach at East L.A. College.

Soccer is on the agenda June 27-July 1 with Barbara Longstreth and Alan Hargreaves the instructors. Longstreet, LBSU field hockey and la crosse coach, has represented the U.S. in international competition in both sports as a player and coach.

Hargreaves, an assistant professor of physical education from Madeley College in England, has been a member of the British University first team and was on the All England College Cup finalist team.

WOMEN
IN SPORTS

The camp will include a seven-player-a-side tournament.

The focus will be on tactics and field strategy.

VOLLEYBALL and softball camps will open July 5. Daily times will be lengthened to make up for the shortened week.

Dixie Grimmet and Lu Ann Terheggan will head the volleyball session, and Johanna Moore and Sue Simms will teach softball.

Grimmet, who coached LBSU to a national championship in 1972, served as coach of the World University Games in 1977 and as a member of the USVBA coaching staff. She has been selected volleyball coach of the year.

Terheggan, coach at Golden West College, has been chosen as assistant coach of the U.S. women's team which will compete at the World University Games in Bulgaria in August. It will be her second trip to the Games. She played on the U.S. squad during the 1972 games in Moscow.

A three-time all America, Terheggan played with LBSU's 1972 AIAW collegiate championship team, with Wilt Chamberlain's "Little Dippers" and was on the 1971 U.S. Pan American Games team.

Moore and Simms, the softball coaches, will draw on their professional experience. Moore is former player, coach and owner of the Orange Lionettes. Simms, who plays third base for the San Diego Sandpipers, was a member of the Lionettes national championship team, and was selected to the 1972 all-America softball team at third base.

The final camp of the season, field hockey, will be combined with a coaching and officiating clinic. The session is co-sponsored by the L. A. Field Hockey Assn. Barbara Longstreth and Dr. Margaret Miller will be instructors. The cost will be $25.

Complete information concerning the camps may be obtained through the Women's Physical Educatione Dept. at Long Beach State.

PRINCESS UNVEILS QUEEN as Britain's Princess Anne does the honors for statue of her royal ancestor Saturday in Centreville, Md. Crowd of 4,000 lined streets of small town for ceremonies.

Statue of Queen Anne is unveiled by Princess Anne

CENTREVILLE, Md. (AP) — Britain's Princess Anne was cheered by a crowd which doubled the population of this small, rural county seat Saturday as she unveiled a statue of her royal ancestor, for whom Queen Annes County is named.

"It is here in Queen Annes County that you have found a happy medium which allows you to fit efficiently in this energetic country and still keep enough of the traditions of the first settlers in that you still have time for each other," the princess said.

"Who in the world would have thought that a princess would journey to a small rural community to dedicate a statue," said Leonard M. Smith, president of the county commissioners, beaming at the shirt-sleeve crowd of 4,000 lining the streets and packing roofs, balconies and windows of nearby homes to greet the royal visitor.

Acting Gov. Blair Lee III welcomed the princess to Maryland's Eastern Shore, saying, "This is a place where roots go deep and many of those roots go back to the British Isles. Her Royal Highness is very much among her own people here."

Following the brief welcoming ceremony at the courthouse square, the princess walked to the slightly larger-than-life-sized statue of Queen Anne and pulled a drape to reveal the sculpture of the seated monarch holding the charter which established the county in 1706.

Princess Anne walked around the statue with its sculptress, Elisabeth Gordon Chandler of Old Lyme, Conn., and then got into a waiting limousine for the short drive to the county high school.

In an informal ceremony there, state and county officials presented the princess with a series of gifts, including a key to the city of Centreville and honorary Maryland citizenship for herself and her husband, Capt. Mark Phillips. In return, the princess presented officials with an engraved silver plate.

1st polar flight celebrated

MOSCOW (AP) — Dual celebrations Saturday on the outskirts of Moscow and in Vancouver, Wash., marked the 40th anniversary of the first transpolar flight by three Soviet airmen.

About 8,000 spectators and a military honor guard were at the village of Chkalovskaya, 20 miles from Moscow, to dedicate a replica of the red-winged ANT25 monoplane that flew from Moscow to Vancouver's Pearson military airfield in 63 hours, 25 minutes.

In Vancouver, a Soviet delegation led by a former air force lieutenant general joined in celebrations there to commemorate the 1937 flight.

A Vancouver monument to the feat, which the Soviets often speak of as a symbol of U.S.-Soviet friendship and cooperation, was dedicated in 1975.

The ANT25 was piloted by Valery Chkalov, who died in 1938 while testing a new plane. Co-pilot Georgy Baidukov and navigator Alexander Belyakov attended the Chkalovskaya ceremonies.

"We went through cyclones, icing, oxygen shortages and magnetic storms," Belyakov said, recalling the flight. "Our wings and propellers were covered with ice."

The 5,200-mile route over the North Pole would take a modern jetliner less than 11 hours to cover.

The Soviet flight came 10 years after Charles Lindbergh's 33½-hour, 3,600-mile flight from New York to Paris. But the excitement of pioneering flights was still strong in the United States and thousands of people crowded the runways at the Soviets' intended destination of Portland, Ore.

Because of the crowds, the Soviet airmen landed instead on a grass runway at Pearson field with visibility of only 500 feet.

The flight was guided by a combined Soviet, American and Canadian radio network.

Homes, cars swept away in Kansas flooding

OGDEN, Kan. (AP) — The Kansas National Guard patroled the streets of Ogden Saturday night in the aftermath of a furious rainstorm that dropped up to seven inches of rain in north-central Kansas.

The storm caused flash-flooding in the north-central Kansas farming community, washing away a half-dozen mobile homes and nearly as many automobiles. No one was injured.

Mayor Ben Gieber estimated damage to Ogden alone at nearly $1 million, and Riley County police declared a 7 p.m. curfew in an effort to prevent looting.

Rain began pelting Ogden, about 135 miles west of Kansas City, and surrounding communities late Friday night and numerous creeks in the rugged countryside were out of their banks before it stopped.

About 200 families had to be evacuated in Ogden when Seven Mile Creek flooded, sending as much as six feet of water raging through a mobile-home park. The water was waist-deep before some residents were able to flee.

Mass transit — urban ride to the poorhouse

Nationwide deficit climbs past $1.8-billion

By Robert Lindsey
New York Times Service

In Los Angeles, where the automobile seems as ubiquitous as the sun, mass transit has recently been enjoying a modest resurgence. Since 1972, largely because of reduced fares and expanded service, the number of daily bus riders has increased 34 per cent.

But on July 1, the city will abandon some of these new-found riders by raising fares and reducing service.

While patronage has increased, the cost of providing service has risen almost 250 per cent and the amount of tax dollars spent to subsidize it has soared by more than [illegible] per cent to more than [illegible] million a year. There are about 850,000 daily riders now, but the system still serves less than 7 per cent of urban travelers on any given day.

"We're in a crunch, and we're going to do some serious belt-tightening," Jack Gilstrap, general manager of the Southern California Rapid Transit District, said of the decision to reduce service.

LOS Angeles is not alone. At a time when the Carter administration is urging Americans to reduce gasoline consumption and switch to mass transit, many transit systems are in financial trouble despite the enactment three years ago of federal operating subsidies.

Between 1971 and 1977 the collective deficit for the country's urban transit systems rose from $300 million to more than $1.8 billion while the number of riders went up only 3.2 per cent, according to statistics compiled by the American Public Transit Association.

The result of this pattern has been a steep decline in taxpayer willingness to pay for transit systems, rarely used by the majority of the people and resisted in some cities as a disguised subsidy for the poor.

"There is virtually a taxpayers' revolt," asserted Emily Lloyd, transportation adviser to Mayor Kevin White of Boston, where the losses of the Metropolitan Boston Transportation Authority have jumped 65 per cent since 1973 to $180 million this year. Subsidies to recoup those losses come primarily from property taxes in 79 area communities.

BESIDES general inflation, two fundamental forces appear to account for the rising costs: rapid increases in transit workers' wages, which typically make up about 80 per cent of most transit budgets, and a politicalization of urban mass transit systems resulting from public takeovers of formerly private bus lines.

"The unions took dead aim at these tax dollars, and as soon as it was available, there was a rash of strikes: transit workers have gotten wage increases far in excess of the cost-of-living increase and of anyone else in local government," Gilstrap asserted. A study by his staff concluded that salaries for bus drivers and mechanics in Los Angeles had increased almost twice as fast as the consumer price index.

The political volatility of transit fares and the difficulty of raising them to meet operating costs have long been recognized in New York City. Leaders elsewhere are learning the same thing.

FARES are not the only factor influenced by politics. Transit leaders such as Gilstrap say service is being required on many routes that have little or no chance of paying for themselves simply because of political pressures from the communities concerned. Social considerations such as offering lower fares for the elderly also add to deficits.

The current situation is rooted in a fundamental change that occured in urban transportation in the early 1970s. Largely because private bus companies could not compete with the automobile, cities and regional agencies took over the failing services and began to operate them more or less as public utilities.

Only in New Orleans, in the region in northern New Jersey served by Public Transport of New Jersey, and in parts of New York City served by private express bus lines, are private transit lines serving metropolitan areas.

Through public takeovers, service has been kept alive, expanded and improved, largely through federal aid. The improved service has frequently brought new riders and, in some cases, middle-income commuters have been lured out of their automobiles. But in order to attract the riders, the fares have been kept too low to pay the costs.

These examples illustrate the pattern:

—In Minneapolis and St. Paul, a local agency took over the Twin Cities Lines in 1971, improved service and, in its first year had a $1.7-million deficit. This year, the deficit is expected to be about $33 million.

—In Houston, the transit subsidy has increased from $1 million in 1974 to $10.5 million this year, and a loss of $13.5 million is projected for next year.

—In Atlanta, where a 15-cent fare is in force, the subsidy has more than tripled in four years to $35.7 million.

—In San Francisco, the municipal bus and railway system's subsidy has gone up in four years from approximately $18 million to $51 million.

Until a few years ago, only a few large cities, notably New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago, had significant transit deficits, mostly from decades-old rail transit systems. Now, nearly every city is experiencing a financial squeeze from operating transit lines. And, in relative terms, New York, which has reduced its operating budget and cut employment under the city's austerity program, is doing a better job of making its transit system self-supporting than many others.

Los Angeles officials are attempting to deal with the financial squeeze by laying off about 13 per cent of transit employees, reducing service by 8 per cent and raising the basic fare to 40 cents from 35 cents, with long-haul fares going up by larger amounts.

The transit industry says its long-term hope is for more riders, but its spokesmen acknowledge that no surge appears imminent. Without that surge, many say they expect more help from Washington.

"With the energy crisis," says Leonard Ronis, general manager of the Cleveland Regional Transit Authority, "we're going to see more automobile users begin riding the buses, particularly to work. And I think we'll need additional federal subsidies. I see a tremendous need for additional funding, and it's something that must be done to save our country."

Book has teacher 'exiled'

By Harry Atkins
Associated Press

DETROIT — A book which characterizes school administrators as inept and schools as chaotic has become an underground classic of sorts with teachers across the country.

But Detroit school officials, fictionalized in the account, don't think it's accurate, and publishers apparently don't view it as saleable.

THE author of "New Africa High" is Dr. Evan Keliher, 45, who was head of social studies at Detroit Mackenzie High until last February, when he began to promote the book on Detroit-area talk shows.

The day after his first appearance on a local radio program, Keliher was transferred to an integrated high school, where he teaches three English courses.

School administrators told the bearded, soft-spoken Keliher, a teacher for 21 years, that he was being transferred from all-black Mackenzie for his "personal safety."

"Actually, I'm in exile," says Keliher, who is white and classifies himself as a "gadfly."

In the 172-page book which he wrote and paid to have published, Keliher uses literary exaggeration to describe the problems he sees in public high schools. He sees the problems as ranging from inept administrators to violence in the halls to just plain poor education.

"I WANTED to say something about our schools," Keliher says. "To be candid, our schools aren't worth a damn. They're just a total shambles."

Things are especially bad in Detroit, he says, where reading and math achievement scores — well below the national average for years — continue to decline.

But Keliher says the problems he describes in "New Africa High" are common in every large city school.

"You could lift the whole staff of Mackenzie and drop them into a Chicago school and they'd never know they had left the block," he says.

Last year Keliher paid the printer of a weekly newspaper $2.25 apiece for the first 550 copies of "New Africa High." He now has sold more than 1,000 copies, mostly by mail, to teachers in places as far away as West Virginia and California.

HE STILL hopes to find a New York publisher, but even now, in its third printing, he can't entice an agent to handle the book.

For $3, the reader of "New Africa High" can glean Keliher's views on:

—School board members: "All candidates for the post should be required to pass a sanity test — if they manage to get by the literacy test."

—Incorrigible students: "We must recognize there are a few students (40,000 or so) who are truly incorrigible and should not be allowed to attend school with real kids."

—Sex: "I would urge we pay more attention to sex in public schools, but the kids really don't seem to need any encouragement."

—Parent-teacher groups: "These people should not be permitted on school property — even as visitors."

—Truancy: "Pay every kid $10 a day to come to school."

—Grades: "Personally, I pass every kid who doesn't hit me."

"I don't have many solutions in the book," Keliher says, "But I didn't intend to. I was just trying to call attention to the problem. Something should be done about it. But as long as school administrators go around saying things are fine, nothing's going to be done about it."

Keliher believes administrators must become cops and regain control of schools for the safety of both students and teachers.

"The main topic of conversation among teachers, with at least nine years in, is retirement," he says. "You know, 'When do you get the hell out of here; how long have you got to go?' It's like convicts in the pen."

Bruce Carr, a teacher at Mackenzie, describes Keliher as "competent, popular among students" and says his transfer "has become a joke at school."

It's no joke with Helen Moore. Mrs. Moore is head of Black Parents for a Quality Education, and her group wants Keliher fired.

Mrs. Moore despises the street dialect and speech patterns Keliher attributes to black students in "New Africa High."

"Every child that speaks in his book is put down because of the way he says they talk," Mrs. Moore says, "and they do not talk that way."

The students, however, had a different reaction.

"I read the book," says Kenny Loman, a 12th grader. "I think what it says is true. Most of the people in this community don't know what's happening at Mackenzie."

Willie Coleman, an 11th grader, also read the book. He says Keliher is "a good teacher and I don't think he should have been transferred because he wrote a book telling what Mackenzie's like."

Dan Wallace, a ninth grader who was sent to Keliher once for discipline, thinks "he's a cool dude."

Wallace adds: "It seems that every time we get a good teacher who's trying to do something for us, the school's administration tries to get rid of him."

Come hell or low water, Arizona booms on

By Mike McCloy
Associated Press

Over the past year, Arizona has received a lot of national attention of the sort its Chamber of Commerce could hardly have welcomed. But its time of troubles notwithstanding, there's something about Arizona that's kept its magnetism for outsiders undiminished.

PHOENIX — No matter that water bills soar as water tables plunge . . .

No matter that investors have been bilked of half a billion dollars in the last decade by crooked land developers . . .

No matter that a task force of investigative reporters recently wrote at length about organized crime and corruption in Arizona in a series of articles carried around the nation.

No matter.

The Arizona boom goes booming along. This is the fastest growing state in the union. It has topped 2.2 million people, and the figure mounts like a pocket calculator with the multiplication button stuck.

From the lush green lawns of Phoenix to the red rock monuments of Sedona and Oak Creek, from the forested summer resort of Pine Top to the high chaparral of the Tucson desert, tourists and new residents are flocking in.

"I don't care what they said about you," one letter writer confided after the state's latest wave of bad publicity, "we're coming to Arizona."

"Out in Arizona where the bad men are . . ." began the old ragtime tune, but the gunslingers are gone now. Former Mafia chieftains live on the ranches around Tucson, coming here as more ordinary folk have, to share the Arizona life style, to make money off the land and to generally enjoy a kind of comfortable pioneering.

A 23-part series by Investigative Reporters and Editors, Inc., on corruption in the state dealt mostly with associations of politicians and underworld characters. The investigation stemmed from the bombing death of reporter Don Bolles of the Arizona Republic.

Nevertheless, Arizona has grown by 25 per cent since 1970, and "we're not expecting any tapering off," says Brent Brown, director of the state Office of Economic Planning and Development.

Certainly the bad publicity has had little or no effect on the Californians and Midwesterners who visit or keep second homes in Arizona.

"We've just had a record tourist season," says Ted Sprague, head of the Valley of the Sun Convention and Visitor's Bureau.

"There will be times, especially when there are large conventions, that it will be hard to get a room."

Arizona's attraction for conventioneers includes plenty of golf for the men and shopping for the women, besides tennis and horseback riding. Then, too, Phoenix is an easy ride from Las Vegas to the north and Palm Springs to the west, and Tucson is a gateway to old Mexico.

The heart of the Arizona boom is not the tourist but the would-be settler who comes to Arizona to live and work.

Frank Naylor, research manager of the state's Department of Economic Security, says his office still gets some 50 inquiries a week, mostly from people looking for work in construction and education.

But in Arizona's construction industry, job seekers outnumber workers, and the state's unemployment rate is a shade above the national average. Except in nursing, management and engineering, prospects are dim.

The state warns prospective Arizonans that they should come financially prepared to endure three to five months of unemployment.

They come, their hopes undimmed. Almost all say they want to enjoy the "life style," though one inquirer asked whether Gila monsters are dangerous.

Gila monsters are no threat. But the state has an abiding problem with water.

In Tucson, where water is pumped from underground pools that have sunk 100 feet in the past 28 years, the average monthly residential water bill this summer will be $22.

Several City Council members were recalled for raising the rates, but their successors quickly abandoned promises to roll back the rates when faced with the reality that $14 million will be needed to buy farmland and underground water rights through 1983.

An Arizona Supreme Court decision affirmed longstanding state policy that water rights remain with the land that the water flows over or under. The decision also reversed sentiment of many Tucsonans against the $1.6 billion Central Arizona Project, which will carry 2.8 million acre-feet of water to Phoenix and Tucson in the mid 1980s.

In April, the legislature passed a law allowing cities to buy land, retire it from agriculture and "mine" underlying water for use elsewhere. Court challenges are expected, however.

Meanwhile, Prescott, in western Arizona, awaits the outcome of litigation by neighboring ranchers over water use, and Flagstaff, to the north, faces perennial problems with barely adequate reservoirs.

While some "no-growth" candidates capitalized on the water crisis in 1976 elections, no conclusion can be drawn, says Tom Clark, deputy director of the Arizona Water Commission.

"Tucson is using about five times as much water as is being replenished," Clark says. "If we cut out agriculture in the area entirely, they would still be using twice as much water as is being replaced."

There will have to be a lid on growth, "but you can't really tell where the lid comes down," he adds.

Arizona booming despite problems

Combine the cost of an automobile, home, clothing, medical bills and food, and a family of four can live more cheaply in Dallas, Los Angeles, San Diego, Cincinnati, Kansas City, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Houston or Atlanta than here. But it is cheaper to live here than in Honolulu, Boston, New York, Milwaukee, San Francisco, Buffalo, Washington, Pittsburgh, Minneapolis, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Seattle or Baltimore, according to the First National Bank of Arizona.

The Arizona real estate market slowed along with the national economy two years ago, but it started recovering in the last half of last year and now is at its highest level in history.

One of the best known developers in the state is Del E. Webb Corp. With a population of 40,000, Webb's 17-year-old Sun City retirement community was host to 300,000 visitors last year.

Eight hundred housing units were sold in Sun City in February, says Webb President John W. Meeker, compared with 882 in all of 1976. Production was raised to 50 units a day, and sales totaled 742 in March and 545 in April.

"With thousands of people retiring early on substantial pensions and other income sources, we see a continuing positive trend," he added, announcing plans to expand Sun City's population to 64,000 by building on an additional 12,000 acres of desert.

BUT ALL is not bright. McCulloch Oil Corp. announced in November that it would finish developing Lake Havasu City, with its transplanted London Bridge on the Colorado River, and the Fountain Hills community near Phoenix. But after that it will go out of the land development business.

Lake Havasu City shares the same desert that has seen dozens of subdivisions spring up and die in the past decade. Most notable was Cochise College Park, which bilked 10,000 investors of $40 million before it collapsed in 1972.

Six persons connected with Cochise College Park were convicted of fraud on May 23, and 11 more are awaiting trial. Ned Warren, self-proclaimed "godfather" of Arizona land schemes, who was mentioned in company correspondence as a director of the firm, was not indicted in this case. However, on May 27, from a hospital bed where he had been confined since February with a heart ailment, he pleaded guilty to state land fraud and bribery charges which had been filed in Maricopa County Superior Court in Phoenix. He also withdrew his appeal of a 1975 federal extortion conviction. He is under guard at his Phoenix home awaiting sentencing in state court.

THE COLLAPSE of Cochise College Park and several other fraud-ridden Arizona developments, along with convictions of several land promoters and stiffer laws, have brought a virtual standstill to remote subdivision developments, state officials say.

Clark says a new law requiring developers to disclose the availability of water also has helped. "We don't stop them from selling, because people will go ahead and buy," he says. "But the law has really cut down on the number of new subdivisions that are proposed."

Atty. Gen. Bruce Babbitt and former U.S. Atty. William Smitherman, who now heads a joint legislative task force on organized crime, say the state is gaining control.

Arizona's first statewide grand jury indicted 40 persons last year, and the state has not lost a case, Babbitt noted.

Among notables named in true bills was Robert H. Fendler, founder of U.S. and Lincoln Thrift Associations in Phoenix and Tucson. Some 20,000 investors deposited $52 million before the firms were shut down by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and federal court in 1975. Investors may get back 10 cents on the dollar when assets are distributed by court-appointed trustees, officials say.

Fendler is accused of stealing $1.5 million from the thrift firms to finance American Bank of Commerce in Phoenix.

Smitherman, who will use a $800,000 appropriation in an attempt to close loopholes in state regulations, concedes that "more fraud and conspiracy cases have been filed in this district than any district in the nation."

Armed with subpoena power, the task force will examine narcotics and pornography. "I'm going to see where the Mafia kinds of criminals are, what they're doing," says Smitherman.

"And I'm sure we're going to find deficiencies in the state's ability to regulate insurance, banking and real estate. Then there are things like the racing industry."

Businessmen have complained that over-regulation stifles them. But Smitherman says: "What possible advantage could these ripoffs be to Arizona? We don't need an army of crooks in business to grow."

However, pinpointing what is needed for orderly growth remains a problem. Much of the responsibility for balancing government services, water, land use and population falls on Brent Brown, the state planner.

"There's enough water in Arizona to handle a lot of growth," he says. "But it means you'll have to do away with a lot of agriculture or copper."

Arizona produced about 61 per cent of the nation's domestic copper last year, Brown says, adding, "I don't know if you want to put a lot more people in Sun City and do away with the copper.

"There's a very delicate balance here."

Being paid $100,000 to help achieve such balance is the Hudson Institute of New York. Headed by Herman Kahn, the institute has been retained by banking and business leaders to project the Arizona of 2012, after a century of statehood, and offer alternatives.

Kahn already has predicted that Arizona will be an example of America's first "post-industrial society," populated by "a lot of wealthy people who haven't worked recently," living amid "a very large amount of urban sprawl."

Holding onto conservative and traditional values, "they will be relatively square," Kahn said.

Whether Arizona is square doesn't matter, says Brown, adding, "People are going to come here, no matter what."

Ray's lawyer fights move to U.S. prison

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — James Earl Ray's attorney said Saturday he will oppose the transfer of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s assassin from a Tennessee prison to a federal institution.

Nashville lawyer Jack Kershaw said the transfer would violate Ray's constitutional rights because the prisoner "has a right to remain in Tennessee, where his counsel is located."

The lawyer said he could not frequently fly to an out-of-state federal prison to meet with Ray and U.S. House assassinations committee investigators who have been talking with Ray about the slaying of the civil rights leader.

Kershaw said he wants to meet with Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell to state his opposition to the transfer, proposed by Gov. Ray Blanton last Monday after Ray was recaptured by prison guards.

Ray had climbed over the wall of Brushy Mountain State Prison with six other inmates the previous Friday night. All of the escapees were returned to the prison by Tuesday.

Blanton, in asking Bell to take responsibility for Ray, estimated that since 1968 the state had spent $2 million on Ray for investigation, imprisonment and related matters.

A Justice Department spokesman said Bell will make a decision in the matter within a few days.

Ray pleaded guilty to the April 4, 1968, slaying of King and was sentenced to serve 99 years in prison. Since then Ray has claimed he is innocent of the crime.

Hope's in bedroom with ex-husband (on stage)

HOPE LANGE

NEW YORK — Hope Lange of Hollywood sneaked onto Broadway to do the bedroom comedy "Same Time, Next Year" with her ex-husband, Don Murray, who's remarried, and she isn't worried about the gossips making anything of that.

"I had my problems with columnists," blond, bubbly and funny Hope said the other day in her dressing room at the Brooks Atkinson Theater.

"The late Hedda Hopper once came to my table in Chasen's when I was having dinner with Don and said 'What the hell are you doing here? I've got a headline in the paper that you've broken up with Don and are in San Francisco with Glenn Ford. How can you ruin my big exclusive?'

"I said to her, 'Where did you get your big exclusive?' She drew herself up proudly and said, 'From a very reliable source!'"

Hope laughed: "Hedda also crashed my wedding to Alan Pakula. I was very angry. She waited until the last minute when I was upstairs getting dressed and came in without me finding out. It was to have been a small party — only about 100. The ushers assumed she'd been invited."

MISS LANGE said Don Murray's wife, the former model Bettie Johnson, doesn't object to the make-believe lovemaking between them every performance:

"She's a terrific lady; she wanted me to do this part. Bettie and I have been friends for a long time. My former husband, Alan, hired her for a picture, and he also hired Don for a role. That's show business."

Don and she were married — "oh, about 120 years ago" — and it lasted four years. "Don says we spend more time in bed in the play than we did when we were married. I don't think I was ready for marriage when I married Don. I was very immature. When I married Alan, I was older and still immature."

With a son and daughter in college, Miss Lange found last fall that she could now move back to New York.

"It was my turn," she says. "I took a course in business, 'Women and Money,' in case I ever got any money, and an English course at Hunter, and I'm also taking singing. I took an unfurnished apartment. I rented my two houses in California."

"Two houses?"

"Yes, it was a very good investment idea."

SHE DIDN'T find it difficult being a replacement for Sandy Dennis, who'd also been a replacement. Ellen Burstyn, Loretta Swit and Joyce Van Patten were the other bed partners in this show about an attachment that continues for 25 years.

"Burton replaced Tony Perkins in 'Equus,' so why should I care?" she asked. "A good role in a good role."

Born in Redding, Conn., Hope grew up in New York, her mother eventually operating a restaurant, Minette of Washington Square, at 175 McDougal St.

"We had a lot of famous customers, some of whom didn't pay their bills," she says. She got into movies in "Bus Stop," playing a waitress in a cafe, and then was nominated for an Oscar for her second movie, "Peyton Place."

"That little Japanese girl in 'Sayonara' got it," she remembers.

It's her first Broadway show, although she was once on stage in Philadelphia as an understudy in "The Hot Corner."

"It was a very limited run — one night."

Miss Lange was wearing a rather revealing green blouse, black slacks and a Picasso sunburst. "It's a gift," she said, "from me."

WEEKEND WINDUP . . .

Petula Clark is flying pianist Frank Owen, now at the York River, to London for one night, July 1, to conduct for her. . . . William Devine, who plays the baseball manager in "The Bad News Bears Break Training," played baseball — and broke an ankle. . . . Pat Marand is up for a featured role in the musical "Twentieth Century."

Tony Martin will tour with his wife, Cyd Charisse, this summer in "Folies Bergere." . . . Bob Fitch of "Annie" will get an award from Dance Educators of America July 10 at the Waldorf. . . . Peter Guber, who produced "The Deep," bought screen rights to another soggy sea saga, "Storm Warning." A small park near Lincoln Center will be named in honor of the late Met opera star Richard Tucker.

"The Jones Family" will be a feature of this year's Newport Jazz Festival: pianist Hank Jones and brothers Thad (trumpet) and Elvin (drums), all top jazz musicians; bassist Sam Jones, not a relative, will join them.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: The host of the Hartford Club in London teaches the staff how to deal with foreign visitors: "Americans, for example, will understand English perfectly if you speak slowly."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Elliot Welles says he belongs to the Weight Wishers. That's people who wish they were 20 pounds lighter.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "When you understand that you don't understand women, you've begun to understand women." — Marquis Guy de la Passardiere.

EARL'S PEARLS: Red Skelton notes his photography hobby can be very expensive — "especially," he adds, "if you develop the film."

JFK spent time in Hyannis Port, LBJ preferred Texas, Nixon liked Key Biscayne, Ford was often in Vail and Carter returns to Plains. The presidency is a great job, says Marty Ragaway, for someone who can't stand Washington.

A HOLLYWOOD STAR insists it's really easy to stay married: "All you need is an accountant to remind you you can't afford the alimony." . . . One of the local cafes has an unusual doorman. He can hold an umbrella over you, open a cab door and still have one hand left to hold out for a tip. . . . A youngster visiting an art museum described the paintings to a friend: "It's sort of like watching color TV." . . . The true test of generosity is to give the hatcheck girl a quarter without wondering whether 15 cents would have been enough. That's Earl, brother.

The good life

Ervin Rouse fiddles away the time on his front porch in Miami. Now 60, he wrote the bluegrass classic "Orange Blossom Special" at 16 and has been living off the royalties ever since.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Monday

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: "Mind over matter" becomes your motto this year as creativity rises visibly, adventurous tendencies mesh with urges toward speculation, calculated risks. Relationships are rich, varied; some memorable episodes may pose problems in your career progress. Today's natives make their mark by doing things in a different manner than was customary before their time. Those born this year will be impulsive, positive business people with a flair for showmanship and sales.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You have a lot going for you that wasn't before. Rivals see the light of reason, cooperate. New starts all this week work best using well-known methods.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be flexible, hear others' alibis without anger, malice. Learn enough to make a better deal. Expect no thanks or quick results if you help with their problems.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): New or old jobs are influenced by contradictory pressures, unrealistic suggestions that you buy your way. For once procrastination serves a useful purpose.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): To get the show back on the road you have to cope with countless people, switch back and forth. Decisions either punch right through or stall a few days.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): New equipment doesn't do the proper job. Comparative shopping sets a criterion for sounder bargains. Quit a bit ahead of the crowd, go off on personal pleasures.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Doing things in a way that amuses you brings amazingly good results. A definite career push balloons into more than you can handle. Devise some pattern.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Follow up, see that what you lend or give goes for intended uses by people you want to benefit. So-called coincidence jolts current development.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It's your last feasible chance on many matters. Organize the day around favorite projects. Meeting strangers is exciting, potentially very profitable.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Face reality as it is rather than the overly optimistic estimates, too-ready promises you'd like. An old dilemma revives, requires prompt decisions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A good deal is available without much effort. Don't let personal whims lead you astray or to hold onto inadequate tools and limited production methods.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Interest in final solutions is so strong you skip intermediate phases that take more money than you've got to invest. Gather working capital this week.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Keeping up with competitors and friends wear you down. Set up your own specialty, do things others can't or won't. Take initiative, bypass troubled opportunity.

Chicago is not quite winded

By Peter J. Boyer
Associated Press

The life expectancy of most rock groups — even good ones — is about five years. After that they seem to either retire to some Southern California canyon or take work on the bowling alley lounge circuit.

But Chicago, a group whose identifying brassiness once seemed sure to make it a collective timepiece, has endured for more than a decade, and with a surprising amount of vitality.

The eight-man band's last album, "Chicago X," was double platinum, signifying more than 2 million units sold. Only a relative handful of groups ever had a double platinum album. Chicago has nine of them.

Chicago sells out concert halls as consistently now as it did in 1970, when the band was considered the hottest thing since Blood, Sweat & Tears.

Creedence Clearwater Revival, Grand Funk Railroad and Three Dog Night were among the 1970 Chicago contemporaries who have since fallen by the wayside. For that matter, whatever happened to Blood, Sweat & Tears?

With its customary regularity, the group has recently been at manager James Guercio's Caribou Ranch in Colorado, recording Chicago XI. Before they sequesteree themselves inhthe Rockies, the band members answered a few questions in Los Angeles, including: Why hasn't your music gone out of style?

"We just keep workin' at it," says drummer Danny Seraphine. "You try to become what the music scene is. You just try to keep at the forefront of the mainstream of music, you know? You've just got to keep ahead.

"That's our philosophy — look ahead, look ahead. Once you get complacent, it passes you by so fast, you're in trouble."

"There have been some lean moments," Seraphine adds. "But we always seem to pull out and hit another peak. It's a real strange kind of a thing."

"I think anybody hits lean moments," adds singer-trumpeter Lee Loughnane. "It's a matter of riding them out and keeping your confidence.

"Our music is diversified, so it keeps your interest up. We don't get stuck in a rut."

The original members of the group are still there — Seraphine, Loughnane, Rober Lamm (keyboards), Walter Parazaider (winds), James Pankow (trombone), Terry Kath (guitar) and PeterCeterea (bass). The only change has been the addition of Brazilian percussionist Laudier De Oliveira.

Success often does funny things to pop music makers, the most common being a sudden desire to leave the mother group and strike it rich solo. Another common cause of musical breakups is animosity on the part of two or more members of a group, as in the David Crosby-Neil Young rift that broke up Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young.

But not so with Chicago.

"I think we passed that ego thing a long time ago, didn't we, Lee?" Danny asks.

"Yeah, you know, we've always been able to sit down and yell at each other. In the end, coming clean with each other is the best way of going about it. We have helped each other."

The group had just finished a 50-day tour of Europe, which Seraphine described as "really a grind, but something we had to do. That's one of the necessary evils of our xusiness.

"We're a different sort of band," he explained. "Live performances are a very important part of our popularity."

A platinum album means a lot of money: 11 platinum albums means you can buy your own state. Why does Chicago keep on with the grind of recording studio to live concerts, then back to the studio? Couldn't they find a vancat canyon?

"How could you think of retiring," asks Saraphine, apparently shocked at the suggestion, "when the oldest guy in the band is 33 years old?"

"We plan to continue the group," Loughnane says. "Obviously, it's not going to last forever. I think when it does end we will all go on in another capacity. We'll see when we get there. There's no sense in stopping now."

As the '70s roll along, Chicago keeps plugging away with its own special brand of soft rock, watching with amusement the parade of trends the decade has wrought — pop, glitter and punk.

Sales departments of the movie companies have long been a male bastion — until now.

United Artists announced appointment of its first woman branch manager. She is Juanita Dyksterhuis, who will take charge of the Milwaukee office.

Rossellini didn't need tricks

By Vincent Canby
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — In retrospect the entire career of director Roberto Rossellini, who died in Rome June 3 at 71, was a continuing process of discarding those tricks of hack moviemaking that package responses to a single work so effectively that no 2 million people will react very differently from any other 2 million.

Rossellini, an open, gregarious man in his private life, was so zealous in his pursuit of truth in films that he followed it right out of the commercial cinema onto the public television screen, for which in the last dozen years he produced a body of work that is unique, not simply for what he was doing but for how he was doing it. It is quite conceivable that when the history of cinema's first hundred years is recollected in tranquility — say in about 150 years — Rossellini's films will be seen as among the seminal works of what, for lack of any more definite term, can be called the New Movie.

More frequently this relentlessly dedicated director is associated with the neo-realist movement that surfaced with such force in Italy in the years after World War II. Having contributed two generally acknowledged neorealist classics, "Open City" and "Paisan," Rossellini went on to make "Germany Year Zero," another neo-realist classic but one that focused on decay instead of heroism (and thus tended to put off the public and the critics alike), followed by a series of films with Ingrid Bergman (including "Stromboli" and "Europe 51") that outraged former admirers, Roman Catholics as well as Marxists, who had almost totally missed the point of what Rossellini had been up to earlier — and which he continued to be up to throughout his life.

The term "neorealism" had made the earlier Rossellini films easy to categorize, reflecting their social concerns and a popular (anti-Nazi) kind of political activism that appealed to the sentiments of the day. The little people are brave people, these films said. Freedom will triumph, and, by extension, all's right with the world.

When Rossellini turned his attention to the war's aftermath in, of all places, Berlin, to show not just physical but moral devastation (concluding with the suicide of a small boy), neorealism seemed to have been betrayed. All wasn't right with the world. His original admirers were convinced Rossellini had somehow turned effete when, in the films with Miss Bergman, he insisted on exploring the world of the well-heeled bourgeoisie. Good grief! Why make a movie about the problems of a handsome, wealthy woman at emotional loose ends when people are starving in India?

Rossellini, as he came to devote himself more and more to educational films — films that presented without comment and with hardly any dramatization the lives and ideas of the shakers and makers of history — eventually did away with most of the so-called grammar of film.

This, then, became the method of one of the grandest projects ever undertaken by a major filmmaker, which was nothing less than the history of the civilized world in a series of television films sponsored by the Italian and French government networks. By the time he died Rossellini had completed films on Augustine, Pascal, the apostles, the Industrial Revolution and Descartes, to name only a few. He described these films as "travelogues" rather than documentaries, since, he once told me, the term documentary implies that the director has a message.

"I have no message," he said. "I'm only interested in knowledge, but I don't want to interfere with it."

Lots of people find these films almost impossible to sit through. They are static, talky and, at first, a little like animated textbooks. Yet Rossellini's enthusiasm for knowledge, for catching up to where we are in the world today, is communicated in the discipline.

When I last saw him here six years ago, he had just finished shooting his film on Pascal.

"Pascal is so boring!" he said cheerfully. "He was a virgin, a theologian and a mathematician," but, he added with a shrug, "it was necessary for me to pass through him."

Secret Witness case summaries

The Independent, Press-Telegram's Secret Witness program has resulted in the arrest of 75 criminal suspects and fugitives from justice since the program was inaugurated on June 10, 1972, with rewards totaling $51,500 paid or committed on conviction of suspects waiting trial. Additional reward money available for informants is specified in the caselist below, one of the varying summaries of 10 Secret Witness cases printed in the Independent and Press-Telegram each Sunday and Thursday.

Rewards also will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects in any other major criminal cases, whether covered in these summaries or not, and for the apprehension of fugitives from justice. These rewards will vary in amount, depending on the seriousness of the offense.

Rewards in all cases, whether or not previously published, will remain in effect until such cases are closed or until notification in these pages that the reward has been withdrawn.

To ensure eligibility for rewards, informants must channel all information directly through Secret Witness — that is, to notify Secret Witness first — either by calling the special Secret Witness number or by writing to the I.P-T Secret Witness editor.

In cases in which outside organizations or individuals pledge an additional reward to that guaranteed by Secret Witness, the Independent, Press-Telegram assumes responsibility for payment only of that amount guaranteed by Secret Witness.

Today's summaries:

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killers of half-brothers Melecio Meza, 37; Santos Meza, 34, and Jose Naranjo, 30, gunned down execution-style as they were leaving their work in a Paramount machine shop at 7231 Rosecrans Ave. at 12:30 a.m. on Dec. 16, 1976.

—Rewards totaling 1,500, including $1,000 guaranteed by Secret Witness and $500 pledged by owner R.W. Weidemann, will be paid for information leading to the arrest and assault-robbery conviction of the man who shot and seriously wounded Mohammad I. Jattala, 46, manager of the Kentucky Fried Chicken outlet at Seventh Street and Walnut Avenue, during a holdup at 7:15 p.m. on April 12, 1977.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of 24-year-old Robert J. Rodriguez of Long Beach, found shot to death at L Street and Figueroa Place in Wilmington — just across the street from Harbor College — on the morning of Jan. 16, 1977.

—Rewards totaling $20,000 are offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Long Beach Police Officer Franke Neal Lewis, shot to death at 2:30 a.m. on Dec. 14, 1975, when he approached a car parked in the 6300 block on Cantel Street to investigate a disturbance. The rewards include $2,000 guaranteed by Secret Witness, $10,000 from state funds pledged by Gov. Brown and $8,000 pledged by the Long Beach Police Officers Association.

—Rewards totaling $7,000 — including $2,000 guaranteed by Secret Witness and $5,000 pledged by the victim's parents — will be paid for the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of 19-year-old Janet Stallcup of Garden Grove, whose body was found in her car in the parking lot of a Garden Grove apartment building at 13111 Yockey St. on the morning of Dec. 27, 1976. Her neck had been broken and she had been raped.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of 2-year-old Naeenah Smith of South Los Angeles, who was seized from the arms of her stepmother by two men in front of a South Los Angeles supermarket at 3:10 p.m. on Nov. 8, 1976, strangled, and dumped in a trash bin six blocks away. Police believe the case may be connected with a Long Beach crime since the stepmother, LaRonda Burton, was the mother of 5-year-old Andrea "Treecy" Logan, who was found strangled in an alley near their Long Beach home on May 7, 1974.

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of 16-year-old Freddie Jones and 17-year-old Roderick Williamson, both of Long Beach, found shot to death execution-style with hands bound behind them near the Terminal Island Freeway at Pacific Coast Highway on June 27, 1976.

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Refugio Chavez, 32, gunned down outside his home on McDonald Avenue in Wilmington at 2:20 a.m. June 13, 1976. Chavez had just arrived home and was attempting to quiet revelers at a noisy drinking party in the street when he was shot down.

—Rewards totaling $4,500 — including $2,000 guaranteed by Secret Witness and $2,500 pledged by family members and friends — will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Felix R. Porrazzo, 55-year-old flower shop owner who was savagely and fatally bludgeoned during a robbery at his shop at 3950 Atlantic Ave. in Long Beach at about 9 a.m. on Sunday, May 30, 1976.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of 16-year-old Wendy Blanchard of Santa Monica, whose partly nude and bludgeoned body was found on the morning of Jan. 7, 1976, on a sidewalk near 172 W. Colden Ave. in South Los Angeles. She was last seen alive at 11:25 p.m. on Jan. 6 at the Greyhound bus station in Long Beach, where she was talking with a tall, thin, young black man.

How to be a Secret Witness

Secret Witness seeks information from the public leading to the capture of fugitives and the arrest and conviction of criminals.

For this purpose a guaranteed fund of $100,000 has been established by the Independent, Press-Telegram to be used for rewards of varying amounts.

Identities of informants will be kept secret.

You will be paid a reward if the information you give Secret Witness results in the arrest and conviction of a criminal or the capture of a fugitive in cases publicized in this column. Rewards also will be paid for information given to Secret Witness resulting in arrests and convictions, or the capture of fugitives, in cases not published in Secret Witness.

To contact Secret Witness, telephone (213) 436-2526 from 8 a.m. to midnight on weekdays, or from 3 pm. to 11 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Do NOT give us your name. Or write to: Secret Witness, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90844.

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA. SUNDAY, JUNE 19, 1977

Perfect gift no easy task

By Linda Zink
Staff Writer

Even if he really isn't, to many youngsters, Dad has all the appearances of the man who has everything. And each June, as Father's Day rolls around, his offspring beseechingly ask themselves, "what do we get him this year?"

In Long Beach, teen-agers have come up with their own cure for this annual dose of the summertime blues. Low on funds but high on enthusiasm, they've drawn up a list of Father's Day presents that are guaranteed to please even the pickiest papa.

Among their suggestions, which are illustrated in the accompanying photographs, are a work certificate that pledges two months of "assistance with a smile" with any chore Dad needs help on, a clean car for 30 days and preparation of Dad's favorite snack that he can nibble on during this afternoon's ballgame.

OTHER SUGGESTIONS, also guaranteed to be return-free, include:

— A certificate promising Dad an hour to himself each evening for the next 365 days. During that hour Dad gets to do whatever he wants to — read, watch television or just stare at the wallpaper — without interruption from the family.

An easy promise to make, it's more difficult to deliver. Anyone breaking it must do whatever chore Dad says for 30 days.

— Help with Dad's hobby. Youngsters promise to devote two weeks to helping Dad become better at whatever turns him on. If he's a golfer, youngsters can collect the golf balls he pitches and putts on the lawn. If tennis is his game, they can accompany him to the courts and let him practice his serve without worrying about where the balls go.

— Helping Dad help out around the house is another welcome expense-free present. For three weeks, youngsters serve as Dad's right hand (holding tools, keeping track of nuts and bolts) while he plays Mr. Fixit.

— A year-long guarantee from forgetful daughters that Dad's borrowed razor will no longer be left in the shower. Equally valued, the teens agreed, is a pledge that the borrowed calculator will be returned to where they found it, turned off before the batteries are worn down.

DESPITE THE water shortage, Dad deserves a clean car. Above, Erika Schlarmann, 16, makes good her work certificate promising "a clean car for a month — and no wasted water."

FOR DAD, everything's coming up roses thanks to son Dennis Halverson's Father's Day gift of a work certificate pledging help with the yard work.

Staff photos by Kent Henderson

IN FOR more than he bargained for is Jim Chiboucas, 18, whose gift to Dad was a clean garage for a year.

COOKING up a surprise — Dad's favorite snack — is part of Erika Schlarmann's Father's Day gift.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is a reprint of Erma Bombeck's traditional Father's Day column. Her regular column appears on page L/S-4. Also, if you are a Bombeck fan, tune to CBS-TV, Channel 2, at 10 this evening. The entire Bombeck clan will be interviewed by Barbara Howar on "Who's Who."

By Erma Bombeck

When God Created Fathers . . .

When the good Lord was creating fathers He started with a tall frame.

And a female angel nearby said, "What kind of father is that? If You're going to make children so close to the ground, why have You put fathers up so high? He won't be able to shoot marbles without kneeling, tuck a child in bed without bending, or even kiss a child without a lot of stooping."

And God smiled and said, "Yes, but if I make him child-size, who would children have to look up to?"

And when God made a father's hands, they were large and sinewy.

And the angel shook her head sadly and said, "Do You know what You're doing? Large hands are clumsy. They can't manage diaper pins, small buttons, rubber bands on pony tails or even remove splinters caused by baseball bats."

And God smiled and said, "I know, but they're large enough to hold everything a small boy empties from his pockets at the end of a day . . . yet small enough to cup a child's face."

And then God molded long, slim legs and broad shoulders.

And the angel nearly had a heart attack. "Boy, this is the end of the week, all right," she clucked. "Do you realize You just made a Father without a lap? How is he going to pull a child close to him without the kid falling between his legs?"

AND GOD SMILED and said, "A mother needs a lap. A father needs strong shoulders to pull a sled, balance a boy on a bicycle or hold a sleepy head on the way home from the circus.

God was in the middle of creating two of the largest feet anyone had ever seen when the angel could contain herself no longer. "That's not fair. Do You honestly think those large boats are going to dig out of bed early in the morning when the baby cries? Or walk through a small birthday party without crushing at least three of the guests?"

And God smiled and said, "They'll work. You'll see. They'll support a small child who wants to 'ride a horse to Banbury Cross,' or scare off mice at the summer cabin, or display shoes that will be a challenge to fill."

God worked throughout the night, giving the father few words, but a firm authoritative voice; eyes that saw everything, but remained calm and tolerant.

Finally, almost as an afterthought, He added — tears. Then He turned to the angel and said, "Now, are you satisfied that he can love as much as a mother?"

The angel shutteth up.

ACTORS David Soul and Paul-Michael Glaser of TV series "Starsky and Hutch" — theirs is a close-friend relationship.

TENNIS pro Ilie Nastase — his six-figure income comes from sports-related activities, allows him to live in appropriate style.

ACTRESS Carolyn Jones — her retirement is not related to career.

Q: Is it true that Paul Michael Glaser doesn't get along with David Soul?

A: Starsky claims that Hutch is like a member of the family. "David's the brother I never had," says the 34-hear-old Glaser. "He understands me, and we care for each other very much. In any relationship I need to express love — but I can't express that in a relationship with a man."

The never-married actor, hwever, does say that his relationship with dark-haired Elizabeth Mayer is working now. Adding sardonically; "But I'm frightened enough to think that if I allow myself to believe it's going well, it might fall apart."

Q: How much money did Ilie Nastase make last year and where does he live?

A: Nastase, who can swear in six languages and often does, lives with wife Dominique, their two-year-old daughter Nathalie and her nannie in Bazoch-es-sur-le-Betz, 60 miles south of Paris. Their home is an early 16th-century stable which has been converted into a seven-bedroom house at one end of a thousand-acre parcel of land owned by Dominique's family. Last year, Nastase won about $400,000 and nearly doubled that with endorsements and exhibitions.

Q: Is it true that Gene Autry is one of Hollywood's richest stars? If so, how did he make his money — his movies were terrible!

A: From humble beginnings as a telegraph clerk in Texas, Autry, 69, rode through miles and miles of purple sage to multi-millionaire status. Today, his personal fortune is worth $40 million, including major shares in West Coast broadcasting properties, a hotel in Palm Springs, two ranches, four music publishing firms, and a collection of antique cars and locomotives. As the singin' cowboy once sang, he's "Back in the Saddle Again."

Q: I have a drawer full of old trading stamps and wonder how I can redeem them?

A: Send one stamp to the Trading Stamp Institute of America at 11 Broadway, New York, N.Y., 10004, for information about redeeming canceled trading stamps. Only about one in six supermarkets now give stamps, compared to nearly two-thirds when the stamp craze hit its peak in the 1960s.

Q: Please settle an argument. Out of the dozens of "how-to" sex books that which have been published in the past few years, which one is the most successful?

A: According to book industry figures, Joan Garrity's "The Sensuous Woman" has outstripped its heavy-breathing competitors with more than nine million copies in print. Financially, however, Dr. Alex Comfort's higher-priced "Joy of Sex" should bring him joy and comfort for the rest of his days — its gross of $33 million is more than double the "Sensuous Woman's" $16 million.

Q: I'm a Carolyn Jones fan and haven't heard anything about her in ages. Is she retired?

A: Only from marriage. After nearly 10 years of wedded bliss, Carolyn has filed for divorce from writer Herb Green, despite the fact that he threatened suicide if she went through with it. Interestingly enough, Green has never looked better. After a car careened into his protruding stomach and knocked him off a curb, he shed 100 pounds, which prompted him and Carolyn to co-author a book, "Diary of a Mad Eater." Carolyn is doing more writing and says she wants to return to acting.

Q: My pet peeve is popcorn munchers at the movies — is it really necessary to feed folks that foul-smelling stuff during films?

A: The concessionaires wouldn't have it any other way. A recent survey showed that people attending indoor theaters spend an average of 48.3 cents each. And apparently there's nothing like a breath of fresh air to help whet the appetite — outdoor theaters report spendings on food and drink of 87 cents per admission.

Q: I'm looking for a YOUNG millionaire to marry. How many are there?

A: Chances are you'll have to make a choice — millions and minors just don't mix. At the last count five years ago, 118,900 Americans over 35 were worth at least $1 million, and only 14,500 under 35.

THEN AND NOW — former cowboy star Gene Autrey as he appeared in movies, above, and today as a multi-faceted business executive.

AUTHORS, Dr. Alex Comfort, above, "Joy of Sex," and Joan Garrity, "The Sensuous Woman" — theirs are best-selling books on subject.

Theater-related books recommended reading

Collecting books for summer reading? Two vastly interesting women of the theater, Cheryl Crawford and Vivien Leigh, are the subjects for two worth considering. "One Naked Individual: My Fifty Years in the Theater" by Cheryl Crawford (Bobbs Merrill, $10.95) is one on the top of the pile.

It's the fascinating, informative and inspiring autobiography of one of Broadway's most distinguished female producers. Stack up her achievements end to end, and you'd reach the moon. The title comes from one of Ms. Crawford's childhood experiences. She missed the lesson on the Pledge of Allegiance. Consequently, when the rest of the class recited "one nation indivisible," Cheryl said "one naked individual."

How many times, reading a Playbill, have you asked yourself, "Just what does a producer DO?" Cheryl Crawford's simplified answer: "I find a good play or musical, I find the money required to give it the best physical form onstage. I find the right people to give it life. I find a theater and I try to fill it."

Producing is gambling to her, and after five decades of serious, calculated risks, her roulette wheel has turned out winners like "Porgy and Bess," "Brigadoon," "Paint Your Wagon," "One Touch of Venus" and such Tennessee Williams classics as "The Rose Tattoo" and "Sweet Bird of Youth." She has also been involved in the most important theater movements of this century: the Theater Guild, the Group Theater, and the Infamous Actors Studio.

"ONE NAKED Individual" is a lean and exciting book. Anyone who has ever been touched by the magic of the theater will find it impossible to put down. She describes the process of production — an exhilarating, sometimes heartbreaking process that starts with finding a script and ends (if luck holds) with opening night.

She also describes the discovering of John Garfield, Clifford Odets and James Dean, among others, the optimistic, wildly enthusiastic beginnings of the Group Theater and the Actors Studio, and the tragedy of their ultimate disintegration.

All is described with intelligence and accuracy, and charged from beginning to end with a passionate love of the theater. Cheryl Crawford is a businesswoman extraordinaire, but she is also probably the last living producer who still thinks the theater is an art and a privilege. Bless her.

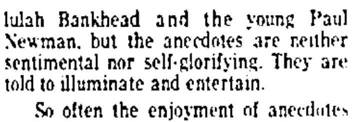
Halfway through this book, I started to pick up on her key to success. It's her ability to take failure, abominable and devastating, squarely on the chin. When she left the Group Theater and first started producing plays on her own, she launched five flops in a row. Whatever her private feelings, she doesn't launch posthumous attacks on the unseen villains of her day. She blames only herself. Then there are the plays she could have produced but didn't: "The Member of the Wedding," "West Side Story," "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf," "Death of a Salesman."...read why, and weep along with her.

SHE IS CANDID about her failures, even telling us how she sat Carson McCullers down like a fond but strict den mother, explaining why she would not produce "The Member of the Wedding."

"Carson, dear," she writes, "No one doubts your writing ability. But the play's story is so slight, so small, I doubt a Broadway audience would be interested in a young tomboy full of fantasies. I'm sorry to say it, but I really think you'd be better off sticking to novels." She's still taking it on the chin for that one.

Cheryl CrAwford, now in her 70s, is still producing plays. Her last project was "Yentl,"and she's bringing out yet another new surprise next season. She has never, by the way, in her 50 years in the theater, despite the times she badly needed the income, done any work for Hollywood or TV. Failures aside, as a record of dedication, I'd say that's flawless.

In case you're worried that this isn't the kind of trashy, gossip-strewn autobiography you relish, fear not. There are juicy anecdotes about legendaries like Marilyn Monroe, Marlene Dietrich, Tallulah Bankhead and the young Paul Newman, but the anecdotes are neither sentimental nor self-glorifying. They are told to illuminate and entertain.



rex reed

So often the enjoyment of anecdotes in similar books is hampered by a lingering suspicion that the tales might have been heavily embellished, if not totally fictitious. I never once felt that while reading "One Naked Individual," which is another gratifying reason I found it so enthralling. It seems Cheryl Crawford went about writing her autobiography the way she tackled each play in her enviable career — determined to make it truthful, good and, above all, a success. Her credentials are impeccable; so is her book.

"VIVIEN LEIGH: A Biography" by Anne Edwards (Simon and Schuster, $9.95) chronicles the ups and downs (mostly downs) of a woman of remarkable beauty and talent, with wit, charm and undying energy, Vivien Leigh portrayed two of the most famous characters in American film — Scarlett O'Hara and Blanche DuBois, winning Oscars for both performances.

As Laurence Olivier's mistress and later, as his wife, she formed half of one of the world's golden couples, along with the Windsors, the Fitzgeralds and the Lunts. Later in her life, Vivien fought against the gnawing symptoms of manic-depression, accompanied by fits of hostility, paranoia and hysteria. The bloom faded and she died in fear, sickness and self-contempt.

Although her life is interesting, Anne Edwards (who milked the last tears out of an earlier book about Judy Garland) has written a disappointing book. As a memoir, it is pointless. As a biography, it is well-researched though, alas, lifeless.

Vivien Leigh remains too far out of reach, like an elusive moth, throughout. It's as though she were still on the screen, playing out her roles forever in some kind of celluloid purgatory, locked in two dimensions instead of three.

'VIVIEN LEIGH: A Biography' by Anne Edwards chronicles the life of the Academy Award winning actress, but never lets the reader really get to know her.

Her childhood in an English convent school (where her pal Maureen O'Sullivan came in second to Vivien in the "Prettiest girl" election), her exposure to European society in her early teens, her first marriage to Leigh Holman in London, her presentation to the king and queen when she was a ravishing beauty of 19 — all is catalogued in an exaggerated, bloated style, much in the manner of the simpering movies that inspired her as a child.

THE AUTHOR seems as easily manipulated as her subject by fantasies and glorious aspirations. It thus comes as something of a surprise in the later passages of the book to learn that Vivien Leigh was extremely intelligent, and more ambitious for acclaim in serious stage roles than for the glamor of a movie star.

Even so, we are told about this intelligence and dedication to the theater without ever sensing it for ourselves, as if these qualities were troublesome appendages the author felt obliged to graft onto the real-life Scarlett O'Hara.

More at home with the characteristics Vivien Leigh projected on the screen, Edwards dwells on her beauty, her restlessness, her flashing green eyes, her demure Cheshire smile. By limiting herself this way, Edwards reduces much of the book — especially the early chapters — to the level of a fan magazine.

Writing the biography of a movie star presents a problem encountered in no other kind of writing. The image of a star, especially a matinee idol to millions of women, is so powerful and lasting that it leaves little room for imagination, which is what successful writing depends on. The writer must somehow get around the image to the human being behind it in order to bring both the person and the star to life. Anne Edwards has failed to introduce us to Vivien Leigh. We sniff the perfume, but never meet the woman wearing it.

At that moment

Friday, August 9, 1974

In the broad, marble foyer, the Marine Orchestra was playing an incongruously gay medley of show tunes from Oklahoma, South Pacific and other old favorites.

It is through this foyer that one enters the White House, past the portraits of John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson. Down the long, red-carpeted hall to the right is the elegant, crystal chandeliered State Dining Room, where a short prayer made by the First President to occupy the house remains carved in the fireplace mantel.

"I pray Heaven," said John Adams in 1800, "to bestow the best of blessings on this house and on all that shall hereafter inhabit it. May none but honest and wise men ever rule under this roof."

At the opposite end of the hall, past the portraits of Dwight Eisenhower and Harry Truman, past the grand staircase with its likenesses of Franklin Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson, is the simple gold and white beauty of the East Room.

It was here that Union troops bivouacked in Abe Lincoln's time, here that Presidents danced with their ladies, entertained kings and prime ministers and here that they lay in state.

And here that Richard M. Nixon, the first President in history to resign and leave in dishonor, came to say farewell to his cabinet and staff. The long tortured road of lies and manipulation that began two years before in Watergate ended this day in the East Room.

With his wife and family behind him, between the portraits of George Washington and Dolley Madison, the 37th President of the United States talked in a disjointed way and slid into bathos.

He talked about his father and he talked about his mother and he came to tears. "Nobody'll ever write a book about my mother . . . My mother was a saint."

He talked about the destructive quality of hate, he pointed out that no member of his administration had profited at the public expense, he quoted Theodore Roosevelt on the death of his young wife: "And when my heart dearest died, the life went from my life forever."

Richard Nixon, who was fond of quoting that President, did not mention that the same Roosevelt said: "No man is above the law and no man is below it; nor do we ask any man's permission when we require him to obey it."

Tips on getting yourself out of touchy situations

Dear Ms. Baldrige: I seem to be a magnet for the social faux pas and I never know how to get out of the situation once I'm in it. For example, what should I do in the following instances? (1) My boss' wife shows up at a party either wearing a wig or having dyed her hair and I don't recognize her right away (ignore her, in fact). (2) There is "water cooler" talk about one of the girls in the office with all of the men tearing down her reputation. I don't agree with them but I don't know whether to speak up or shut up. (3) A business acquaintance borrowed $25 and when he repayed me, the check bounced. What should I do now? — E.H., New Haven, Conn.

tish baldrige

In the first case, relax. It happens all the time. It happens, too, when a person has had radical plastic surgery. Once you realize who it is and why you didn't recognize the person, make a point of speaking to them, commenting on the change (they possibly feel a shade insecure about public reaction to it and will welcome any encouragement).

"I was just about to ask Jim who the attractive blonde was when it dawned on me that I didn't need an introduction!" A statement like that doesn't really commit you to liking the change, but it does acknowledge the person and the new look.

WHEN SOMEONE you know is being discussed — especially when it's a member of the opposite sex — you should make your feelings known immediately. This often has the effect of ending malicious gossip. You don't have to use strong-arm tactics to make your point. Just say positively, "Look, I think you shoud know that Sally is a very good friend of ours. She went to school with my wife." Any man who continues with disparaging comments after that is pretty low on the scale of human behavior. Leave the water cooler.

The writer of the rubber check is aware of the fact that it bouned and you won't do yourself any favor by setting your lawyer out to catch him! Your best course would be to write him a letter explaining that the check bounced (and that it happens to all of us who are not perfect accountants), and that you know he means to make good on his obligation.

Ask him if he would like you to put the check through again, or if he would rather issue you a new one. This is the kind of letter that can't get a "no" answer; he has to state which affirmative action he will follow.

It is often possible to solve these little problems yourself by putting yourself in the other person's place. Say you finally got the nerve to have a "nose job" and an acquaintance didn't recognize you immediately. You wouldn't want him to stay away forever and therefore you'd make it very easy for him once he did make the connection. We all make mistakes, but a show of good manners in how we straighten them out is what wipes the slate clean.

(Ms. Baldrige welcomes letters and will answer as many questions as possible in her column. Please address your letters to Ms. Tish Baldrige, Independent, Press-Telegram, P.O. Box 5028, F.D.R. Station, New York, N.Y. 10022.)

No blazers, just boots at cookout

MEMBERS OF the Committee of 300 traded their distinctive red blazers for overalls and blue jeans when they staged a western-style barbecue at Rancho Los Alamitos.

They took over the grounds of the former Bixby estate turned museum atop Bixby Hill for a "Western Hoedown" starring barbecued beef and all the trimmings.

Also starring were hospitality chaircowgirl, Della Sanford and her husband, Ron. They rounded up a posse of helpers and spouses such as Steve Cockriel and Kathy, Joan Swanson and Al and Sue Evans Williams and her bridegroom, Kelly.

Cowpersons for the evening included new Committee boss, Roger Jesme, and his wife, Bonnie. Foreman, or president-elect if you prefer, Hank Wadleigh, showed up in sheriff garb packing a pistol. His wife, Marcia, wasn't a bit scared of him.

Keith Foster, curator of the museum, was there to keep the crowd in order. Bill Williams, president of the Bixby Hill Homeowners Association, was also on hand.

Other costumed characters included docents of the museum, Long Beach Chamber of Commerce staffers, Councilcowboys Wallace Edgerton and Ernie Kell.

Others sipping cider (?) included John and Ruth Queen, Bill Jochims, Rod and Sherry Ballance, Walt and Jenny Johnson, Vic Hawkins, Dottie Barclay, Art Hall, Lynn Pelsinger and Jim and Joann Gray (Joann looking with longing at the rustic trappings of the old ranch — she is doing their new home overlooking the Lake Arrowhead golf course in nostalgia.)

Jack Spears was honored with a plaque for his photography work during the year.

Monty Sharp and his about-to-become-a-mother wife Karen managed to make the party. Their brand-new son Bryan Wayne waited until two days after the party to make his arrival.

JUNE IS KNOWN as the month for weddings.

It is also graduation time.

Especially for 83 year old Ben Nicholas of Seal Beach Leisure World. He picked up his honorary associate of arts degree from Coastline College.

carolyn mcdowell

The graduation ceremonies took place in the amphitheater at Golden West College.

JUNE ALSO STARTS the class reunion phenomena. I'll list a few of those for you.

I don't usually write about reunions after the fact but, the exception makes the rule or something like that.

Anyhow Vance Thurston and his wife, Carole, organized a 30 year reunion for Wilson High's 1947 CIF baseball championship team.

Needless to say the guest list was very elite and somewhat limited.

Extra special guests were Cliff Meyers and his wife, Helen. Cliff, now retired, coached the team to the championship. All of his former players signed a baseball and presented it to him.

Bob (Rup) Hughes, the team's first coach in Legion ball was also there.

Host Vance was named player of the year in 1947. The reunion was also a celebration of his son, Ron, being named player of the year for the Moore league. Ron is following in dad's spikes at Wilson.

Dick Perry and his wife, Donna, were there. Dick is now athletic director at USC.

Other reunioners were John and Momi McKeown from Bakersfield. They call him Sheriff John because he really is — of Kern County.

Another of the class of '47 who stayed with athletics is Millikan High baseball coach, Artie Boyd, there with his wife, Jackie. Al Larson and his wife, Ingebord, also joined the reminiscing. Al "sort of" stayed with sports — he writes about them for these newspapers.

The patio of the Thurstons' new Ocean Boulevard home was decorated in red and yellow streamers — Wilson colors, naturally.

More grand old players were Gene and Barb Painter of Gardena, Marvin and Julie Galyan, Whitey and Donna Thompson, Bob and Janet Johnson (Janet celebrating her birthday), Morley Bockman, Bob (Lefty) Phillips and his wife, Joyce, and Bill Muntz with Ruth Redwine, Jim Russell and Jack and Barbara Randall.

EQUAL TIME for Jordan High School.

The class of 1957 is staging a 20 year reunion.

The place is the Golden Sails Inn. The date for dining and dancing is Aug. 6.

Advice to the Taxlorn

His question of marginal interest

DEAR MR. SMITH: Each month my broker charges interest on my margin account. Must I write him a check each time in order to get a deduction? — E.E.

That's one good way to be sure of the deduction, but not the only way. Periodically, the broker receives and retains funds that belong to you — for example, proceeds of securities sold, interest on bonds, dividends on stock, and, of course, any check of yours that you give him at any time. Whenever you receive such credits, they can be considered as payments of your interest charge.

jacob smith

DEAR MR. SMITH: I am remarried and pay $400 monthly as alimony to my former wife, as required by court decree. Everything is friendly and harmonious and we would like to keep it that way. I am embarrassed about her living arrangements but my ex says that her boy friend has financial problems and they need the money from the alimony payments. If she remarries, the alimony stops.

So far, I have always deducted the payments on Form 1040 and she reported them as income. Suppose my present wife and I wanted to continue the payments to my ex after she remarries; will everything be the same for income tax purposes? — J.D.R.

No, everything will be different! You can't deduct the payments and she doesn't report them once she remarries. The new payments will be gifts, too small for gift tax reporting, and not subject to income tax reporting.

Possibly, the payments should be reduced by the additional income tax you would have to pay. Or you could have your attorney draw a new, formal, enforceable agreement for the payment of alimony, so that the income tax reporting would continue exactly as now, whether your ex remarries or not. That would need a lot of thought and a lawyer, because you would be subject to the alimony courts for a long, long time.

DEAR MR. SMITH: I have seen several cases in which persons are being denied an Earned Income Credit by IRS due to the way the worksheet for this credit is set up. I would question that the law intended for such to happen.

To be specific, a young friend was farming in 1976 and he had a net loss of $9,266. During the year he also had wages of $4,558. He has dependent children and otherwise meets the Earned Income Credit requirements.

However, due to the fact the loss of $9,266 has to be included on line four of the Earned Income worksheet, it acts to wipe out the wage income and leaves a zero balance on line five, resulting in no credit at all. This appears grossly unfair and it is hard to believe the law was intended that way. — F.J.B.

I believe you are right. Neither the law as adopted, nor the explanations given by the legislative committees, say anything about reducing the credit on account of losses. The references are in the opposite direction: offset the burden of Social Security deductions and self-employment tax, get people off welfare and unemployment roles, reduce the credit by excessive income — those are the stated purposes.

The key words are "add, plus, net earnings, calculate merely by adding together." Those who write and explain our tax laws, have no difficulty saying "less, subtract, net loss, reduce," if that is what they mean.

On July 12, 1976, regulations were proposed by the Treasury Department which could perpetuate this error. Those who are affected should protest to Congress and the Treasury Department. For 1975 and 1976, if you had wages, and also a loss from a business or farm, and you had a dependent child in your household, you may be eligible for the special refund. Remember, you get the refund even if you paid no tax.

Women are asking

'My hair looks limp and lifeless. How can I find out what's going on with it?'

By Reba and Bonnie Churchill

Are you a hair detective? Studying your freshly shampooed hair, can you determine the type, texture and condition of the strands? Do you know what effect soap, permanent wave solutions or color has on it?

If this sounds like a scientific approach to hair care, it is. We interviewed Dr. David Cannell, technical consultant at Redkin Laboratories, and he filled us in on what the average girl can do to beautify her hair.

"Today, there is sophisticated testing equipment to analyze the hair. One method is Trichoanalysis, which makes use of a Trichoscope. The tests measure the strands' diameter, force and elongation.

"A polarized light shows up any defects, so an evaluation can be made if fibers are damaged. Also, how much shampoo, wave set, conditioner, color or spray will be absorbed by the strand.

"No one is surprised when a doctor asks for blood samples during a physical examination," Dr. Cannell explained. "A hair test will indicate the proper treatment for the individual's needs." He showed us the machines that do the work. Stylists at many local beauty salons (over 50,000 are members of the research testing group) will take at least four hair strands, one from each side of the head. A questionnaire "case history" is recorded, and either the salon with its own Trichoscope and Trichogram, or the laboratory will provide a "read out."

Some of the data will reveal the "above average keratin structure," meaning that the hair's protein structure is stronger than its diameter would predict. "Below average elongation" shows the hair would tend to be brittle. "Birefringence," the way light is refracted through the hair, is the pattern of colors seen under the microscope which relate to the compactness of hair fibers.

"The hair is a tattletale," Dr. Cannell summarized. "It not only reveals how you care for it, but what your eating habits are, the state of your health, and often nervous habits."

P.S.

At Wit's End

His middle name is wallet

I have never considered George Washington the father of this country. Maybe I would have felt differently if he had had children.

Somehow, I've always associated this distinction with people like Tom Braden (author of "Eight Is Enough") or Jack Anderson or Harry Reasoner, who head large families.

You can get as sloppy as you want about a mother's love, a mother's tenderness, a mother's tear, but our kids would have been nothing without their father's checkbook.

It began at the birth of our first child. As she lay there in the crib her father said, "She's not only beautiful. She's absolutely perfect!"

"You really think so?" I said hesitantly. "She has an umbilical hernia."

"Can it be fixed?"

"Of course," I said. He got out his checkbook.

With the birth of our son, he said, "This one could whip the world with one hand tied behind his back."

"You really think so? Maybe someday, but for the moment, he needs minor surgery."

He whipped out the checkbook.

THE NEXT ONE toed in and not only needed braces at night, but orthopedic shoes during the day.

Then the fun really began. One had an overbite, the other an iron deficiency, then another was allergic to dust and mold.

They cracked their skulls open, broke bones, were allergic to bee stings, tore cartilage and required stitches.

They contracted rashes, astigmatisms, high fevers and stepped on rusty nails.

When their bodies were finally put together, he had to start supporting their basic psychological needs. "Daddy, I'm the only senior in North America who does not own a pair of earth shoes."

"Ride a bicycle to school! Are you still punishing me for being born Jan. 2 and blowing your $700 deduction for 1953?"

"I KNOW the class ring costs $75, but honest, Daddy, I'll wear it until the day I die."

"Do you expect me to go to a college that is eight hours from the ski slopes? What kind of a degree would that be?"

"If you want a Father's Day present, you'd better give me an allowance."

Sure, George Washington had to provide food and clothing for hundreds of needy troops at Valley Forge. He took office with a country with millions of dollars in debts which the Congress of the Articles of Confederation had been unable to pay. He worked from sunup to sundown managing his 8,000 acres at Mt. Vernon.

But next to today's fathers who have to deal with taffy in space maintainers and insurance on a 16-year-old male driver . . . that was a piece of cake.

Dear Abby

Divorces are not news in Minnesota

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me how a couple can obtain a divorce without having it published in the newspaper.

It is imperative that it not be published due to extenuating medical circumstances in my family.

My attorney doesn't seem to know anything about this. — MINNESOTAN

DEAR MINNESOTAN: A competent lawyer would have informed you that there is no law on the books in Minnesota indicating that divorces must be published. If the petitioner (or the defendant) asks that the names be withheld from publication when he (or she) files for divorce, it will be respected.

DEAR ABBY: I am having an argument with a friend of mine. He says roosters and hens have teeth. I say they do not. My friend insists that they MUST have teeth, even though they are not visible, or they would not be able to grind up their food to digest it.

Well, I don't know anything about how roosters and hens grind up their food, but I am almost certain they don't have teeth. Who is right? — NEW YORKER

DEAR NEW YORKER: You are, but don't crow about it. Birds and fowl do NOT have teeth. The food they eat is broken down (or ground up) after it reaches their gizzards.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 22-year-old liberated woman who is on the Pill. I've been paying for the pills myself, but I think my boyfriend should share half the cost. Problem is, I don't know him well enough to discuss money with him. Any advice? — SHY

DEAR SHY: Get to know him better. Then you'll be able to discuss anything with him.

DEAR ABBY: Nancy in San Clemente asks you to recommend that people have their pets neutered to keep them from running wild or being killed in the streets. She sounds like a typical neutering nut. I recommend keeping pets home where they belong. It will also prevent unwanted reproduction as well as annoyance to the neighborhood.

Neutering is unnecessary surgery. It is only for the convenience of lazy pet owners who don't care enough for their pets to properly supervise them — AGAINST MUTILATION

DEAR AGAINST: Properly supervising pets often takes more time than most pet-owners can spare, so in the absence of such supervision, I view neutering as an act of kindness.

DEAR ABBY: Someone wrote that she had been approached often by people asking her "who she was mad at" because she never smiled. Then she went on to say that she had trouble smiling when there was nothing to smile about.

You told her that a smile was the universal language of friendliness, and you encouarged her to make a conscious effort to smile more often.

I have just finished sketching a sampler whose message is: "If you see someone without a smile, give them one of yours." — HELEN V.

DEAR HELEN: Beautiful. Thanks for sharing.

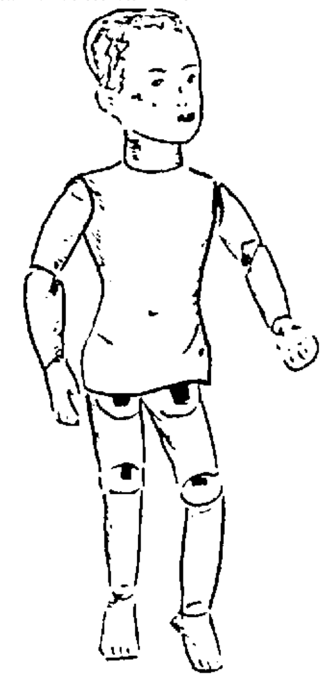
Flea Market Finds

Vintage dolls bring high prices

dan d'imperio

Q. "We found a boy doll in the attic from the Schoenhut firm marked 'Pat. Jan. 17, 1911'." — Mrs. F. S., Mobile, Ala.

A. The brilliant Philadelphia-based toymaker Albert Schoenhut, the man responsible for the Humpty Dumpty circus, entered the doll business in 1911 when he received a patent for his swivel spring-jointed dolls. These wooden dolls were referred to by their creator as "All-Wood Perfection Art Dolls."



Schoenhut doll, Jan. 17, 1911

Boy and girl dolls dressed in fashions of the period were sold with either molded hair or mohair wigs. They had hardwood feet with two holes in the soles, enabling them to stand or pose. His durable wooden dolls proved popular as Infant dolls appeared in 1912 followed in 1915 by the Doll Face line. Schoenhut dolls were still tempting buyers in doll catalogs as late as 1930. Value guide: boy, dressed, "Pat. 1911," 16 inches tall, $335.

Q. "Kindly assist me in evaluating some opaque glass animal covered dishes." — Evelyn, Chattanooga, Tenn.

A. Numerous American glass houses produced pressed glass animal covered dishes in the late 1890s with enough varied subject matter to fill a zoo. The opaque white types are the most familiar. However, they were made in other colors and in various color combinations. Value guide: camel, milk white, $70; duck, milk white, $68; fox, Atterbury, milk white, $120; hen, blue, $65; rooster, blue, $75; turkey, milk white, $115.

Q. "I'm curious about the glass objects called 'Witch Balls'." — Joan, Augusta, Ga.

A. Round glass balls measuring in size from that of a large marble up to 12 inches in diameter were strategically placed in homes during the 1700s and 1800s to ward off evil spirits. Thus the term witch ball. They usually had a hole in the center of the top and were blown in clear and colored glass.

Silvered types also scared off their share of flying witches in the 19th century. Actually many were made as covers for bowls or pitchers or as floaters for fishermen's nets. The variously colored Nailsea specimens with involved loopings were so lovely they probably attracted more witches than they repelled! Value guide: Cobalt blue white loopings, 4 inches diameter, $[illegible].

Q. "A price list on Moxie advertising items would be appreciated." — Ed, Springfield, Mass.

A. Nowadays the foxy flea market shopper is hoarding Moxie mementos before they stage a disappearing act. Value guide: ashtray, copper, $16; covered butter dish, ceramic, $235; fan, beautiful lady, $11; mug, $15; toy, tin, Moxiemobile, $275; tray, lady with violets, 6 inches diameter, $30; tumbler, glass $11.

Explore arts of Orient in two museum shows

By Elise Emery
Arts Editor

When Long Beach Museum of Art exhibited original Oriental art for two days in January, more than 1,500 viewers came to see the 500 pieces from Japan, China, India, Tibet, Nepal and Thailand.

In response to this interest, the museum will repeat the special exhibition and sale Saturday and next Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. The art to be shown is from the Marson Ltd. of Baltimore, Md., collection.

The oldest prints, dating to the 18th and 19th centuries, include Chinese woodcuts, Indian miniature paintings and manuscripts as well as master works by such artists as Hiroshige, Kunisada and Kuniyoshi. The modern pieces consist of a large group of original woodcuts, etchings, lithographs, serigraphs and mezzotints by contemporaries Azechi, Katsuda, Maki, Mori and Saito.

Prints will be shown in open portfolios, in an informal atmosphere. The public is invited to browse through the collection. The price range is wide to appeal to budgets of potential buyers. The museum is located at 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

STILL IN ORIENTAL theme is another exhibit, this one to be at California State Museum of Science and Industry from Saturday through May 1, 1978. The museum joined with the Consulate General of the Republic of China to arrange the show, "Chinese Culture in Focus."

Artifacts and reproductions of China's priceless and spectacular jade, ivory, ceramics, embroidery, bronze, paintings, and carvings in wood, bamboo, stone and horn will portray the many cultural aspects of the Chinese people. On the opening day from 2 to 5 p.m. a special ceremony will be sponsored by the museum and the Los Angeles Area Chinese-American Communities. This will include traditional Chinese cultural events, dragon, lion and serpent dances, classical and folk dances, folk songs, Chinese music, a Kung Fu demonstration and demonstrations of Chinese drawing and calligraphy.

Other special programs of dance, music, drama and literature are scheduled throughout the exhibition period.

When Kublai Khan, the Mongol emperor, conquered China in the 13th century, many Chinese scholars were discovered living as hermits while creating naturalistic landscape paintings. They were perpetuating a tradition of devotion to art that has characterized China for more than 10,000 years.

Much of the art in the Los Angeles exhibit reveals the history of China, tracing religious, philosophical and social changes from dynasty to dynasty. The largest painting in the show — it is 111 feet long — depicts the Great China Wall. The smallest object, an unbelievable one-fifth of an inch by one-eighth of an inch — is a grain of rice, intricately carved. Presumably, it will be displayed under a magnifier.

There are bone needles, discovered in neolithic cave dwellings, which suggest that the art of embroidery existed 10,000 years ago. Ceramics, traced back to 5,000 B.C. have been found along the Yellow River, birthplace of Chinese civilization. Photography joins other art forms as a modern expression of Chinese life and times.

The museum, at 700 State Drive in Exposition Park, Los Angeles, is open daily from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

POLAND is the subject of an exhibit at Norwalk Library, 12350 Imperial Highway, which will continue through July. Displays include salt from the mine in Wieliezka, pieces of coal and a replica of a miner's lantern from Katowice, the large, carved eagle from Rzeszow and crystal and cut glass from the Rzeszow area. The first factory which the Polish people built in Jamestown in 1608 was a glass factory.

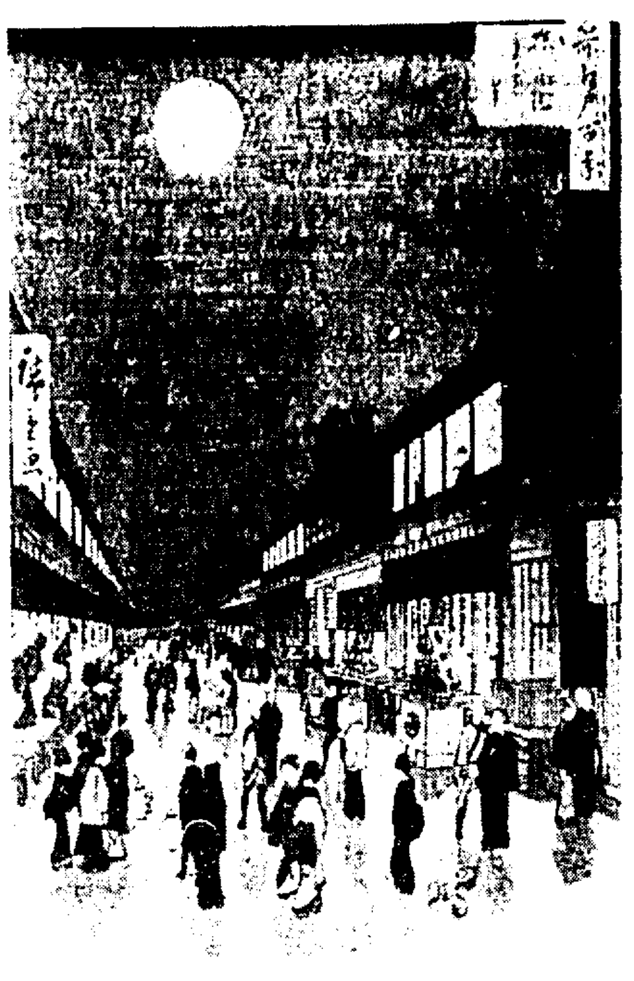
Other objects being shown are dolls carved from wood and dressed in authentic costumes of various regions in Poland; jewelry boxes, carved plates and mountaineers' walking canes from Zakopane in the Tatra Mountains adjoining Czechoslovakia, amber necklaces from Oliwa on the Baltic Sea, coins, stamps and other items.

Articles in the show are on loan from Mr. and Mrs. Chester Kilis and from the Polish National Catholic Church, the Guardian Angel Church, in Los Angeles.

THURSDAY, Ken Decker will paint a watercolor of a rural American scene at a meeting of Lakewood Artist Guild at 7:30 p.m. in Mayfair Park, Clark Avenue and South Street. The public is invited.

DON LAGERBERG chose these winners in Palos Verdes Community Arts Association's current show: Susan McNeill, $250; Teal Dennen, $150; and Pat Cox, $100. There also are 10 artists who won honorable mentions.

The show will hang through July 24 at Palos Verdes Community Arts Center, 5504 W. Crestridge Road, Rancho Palos Verdes. Of 233 entries, Lagerberg, professor of art at California State University, Fullerton, chose 73 for exhibit.



'NIGHTTIME in Saruwakacho,' right, is a color woodcut by Japanese artist Ando Hiroshige (1797-1858) whose work will be in Long Beach Museum of Art show.

THESE IVORY statuettes of the Eight Immortals of Taoism, below, carved about 1900 A.D., are part of 'Chinese Culture in Focus' exhibit which will open Saturday at California State Museum of Science and Industry.

Time near for Serenades

Long Beach Symphony will inaugurate its 1977 summer Starlight Serenades Wednesday, July 13. Each of the five programs in the series will begin at 8 p.m in Recreation Park, Seventh Street and Park Avenue; admission is free. Many concert-goers arrive early to enjoy picnic suppers before the outdoor programs.

The Starlight Serenades were started July 24, 1962, under sponsorship of the Long Beach Symphony Association and the Independent, Press-Telegram. Each program is attended by thousands of listeners who sit on benches, bring their own chairs or spread blankets on the lawn. It's an all-ages affair; families bring infants and toddlers, teen-agers come singly and in groups, and adults range from young to aged.

THE JULY 13 bill will feature Don Ray, one of Hollywood's best-known composer-conductors. He will direct the Long Beach Symphony in a program of dance music from around the world; Johnnie Carl will be piano soloist.

July 20, Larry Granger will conduct the Southeast Youth Symphony. Ray will return July 27 to conduct the Long Beach Symphony in music from Spain. The Valley Chamber Youth Orchestra, conducted by Thomas Osborn, will perform Aug. 3. The series will conclude with Ray again conducting the symphony in a program of Slavic music Aug. 10.

Hyer, Carlson to attend conference

John Hyer, manager of the Long Beach Symphony Orchestra, and Alberta Carlson, president of the Symphony Guild, will be among more than 1,000 representatives of orchestras who will attend the American Symphony Orchestra League's 32nd National Conference Monday through Friday at the Fairmont Hotel in New Orleans. Theme of the conference is "Symphony and All That Jazz."

Conductors, managers, officers, board members, women's guild members, and musicians from more than 120 orchestras are expected to attend as are music critics, publishers and other music industry leaders.

Summer sight reading orchestra now forming

Musicians are invited to join Long Beach City College's Summer Sight Reading Orchestra Mondays and Wednesdays at 7 p.m. from Monday through Aug. 12.

Dr. Michael Pappone will direct. Half of each class meeting will be spent preparing for a community concert the group will perform Sunday, Aug. 7; the other half will consist of sight reading new materials, including works of Bruckner, Elgar, Strauss, Debussy and others.

Registration information is available in the LBCC summer schedule of classes, available on LBCC campuses and in public libraries, or by calling the LBCC office of admissions and records.

DEL ALLEN
Everything from mussels to crab

MANY WIVES, bless their souls, admit candidly that they can't prepare seafoods they way they're broiled at the Seafood Broiler restaurant in Lakewood.

So that's why quite a few wives will help their husbands celebrate Father's Day today by taking them to dinner at the Broiler on Candlewood Street just east of Lakewood Boulevard. The Seafood Broiler will serve its big variety of seafood dinners from 11 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Those seafoods are so delectable and the place is so popular that the best times to visit on Sunday are from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. or after 4 p.m. when it's apt to be less thronged.

The Seafood Broiler is a large restaurant directly across Candlewood Street from Lakewood Center. Its owners are Del Allen and Steve Stiefel. Both are food and restaurant experts. Del has the most expertise with seafoods and it took him years to develop the Broiler's technique of cooking its seafoods over natural wood coals. The broilers are behind glass in the dining room, enabling the customers to watch the chefs as they cook red snapper, crab, shrimp, scallops, salmon and other varieties. The broiling is done swiftly, turning out delicacies that are moist, tender and scrumptious.

New on the menu are imported mussels, from Korea and France. These are shellfish which resemble small oysters and taste like chicken livers. They are broiled on skewers and are extremely popular, $2.50 for luncheon and $3.50 for dinner. The dinners offer your choice of three of the following: coleslaw or potatoes or cherry tomatoes or rice pilaf or corn cobbett. You also receive bread and butter, fresh lemon wedge and tartar sauce or red cocktail sauce.

Some of the Seafood Broiler's entrees are fresh, others are shipped frozen. Currently in season are fresh Dungeness crabs from Oregon. They are shipped packed in ice. Sweet and tender, the crabs are served cracked and chilled with red sauce. The serving, $4.95, is about 12 ounces. Manager Dave Christie reports that this season's crabs are particularly large and choice.

The Broiler serves luncheon Mondays through Saturdays, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Among the entrees: Pacific red snapper, $2.65 for luncheon and $3.75 for dinner; Atlantic whitefish, $2.65 and $3.85; sea bass, $2.95 and $3.95; oysters with bacon on a skewer, $2.75 and $3.95; eastern scallops with bacon on a skewer, $3.35 and $4.95; Chinook salmon, $3.75 and $5.50; halibut, $3.50 and $5.75. Also featured are clam chowder, seafood cocktails, smoked fish appetizers, seafood salads, wine and beer. The restaurant's fish market, open from 10 a.m. on, has many varieties of fresh fish.

IN THE NOT SO DISTANT PAST, women were reluctant to visit bars in the middle of the day, preferring to let the men take over.

But now things are different. An example is the Keona bar and dining room, 1115 E. Wardlow Road near Orange Avenue. At lunch time on week days its clientele is about evenly divided between men and women.

Women executives, working wives, salesladies and others like to drop in for luncheon and a cocktail. Many enjoy the combination of the Keona's huge shrimp cocktail with a fruit daiquiri. The Keona's shrimp cocktail has long been proclaimed the biggest and best in town for $1.25; it's all shrimp, no celery filler. Owner Chuck Heckel's daiquiris are works of art. Currently in season are fresh strawberry daiquiris. Before long, fresh peach daiquiris will be in season. Fresh banana daiquiris are served all year round.

Chuck and his wife Peggy (who will mark their 31st wedding anniversary July 4) have owned the Keona since the late 1950s. Peggy has unusual skill at decorating. Her ideas have transformed the separate dining room into an attractive, cheerful place. One corner of the room has a stone and steel grill broiler where the guests cook their own steaks. The dining room offers its special top sirloin steak for $2.95 day and night every day, including Sundays and holidays. Included are salad, baked potato bread and butter and a darned good, choice steak that weighs about eight ounces.

It takes only minutes to broil the steak on the grill over the open flames. Many husbands like to grill steaks for their wives, inviting them to relax from their cooking duties at home. Also featured are the bullseye steak, $3.75, and the Australian lobster tail (cooked by the Keona chef) for $5.75. The choice of salad dressings includes Peggy's special French dressing, extremely good.

Mondays through Fridays from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., the Keona has special luncheons which are delicious top values. On Mondays, the special for $1.95 is meaty prime rib bones. On Tuesdays the special is hamburger steak or perhaps sauteed chicken livers, $1.95. The popular special on Wednesdays is the open-face prime rib au jus sandwich, $2.75. On Thursdays the entree is the steak sandwich, $2.50. On Fridays, the choice may be meatloaf, pork tenderloin or pepper steak, $1.95. The entrees come with salad and choice of potatoes: baked, French fries or cottage fries.

In-sights

Young son's insecurity gives family fits

Dear Dr. Menninger:

"I have a seven and a half year old son who has been driving me up the wall for the past few months.

If I go out of the house for the slightest thing — take the garbage out, put the dog out, check the mail — he thinks he should be with me. If I refuse to let him go, he will stand and watch me all the way.

If I don't come back as soon as he thinks I should, he begins to cry. When he leaves for school in the morning, he wants to know what I am going to do during the day and if I am going anyplace.

He will stay with a sitter, but if my husband and I are not back when he thinks we should be, he once again starts crying.

When he goes to bed at night, he will tell me good night a half a dozen times, saying, "I'll see you in the morning." If I don't answer him the same way, he gets upset. Then he gets up in the middle of the night and comes into my bedroom to make sure I am in bed.

We are a close family, just the three of us. My husband and I were married 15 years before our son was born. We have never left him alone. He usually goes anyplace we do, however he has never refused to stay with a sitter if it was necessary or if we wanted to go without him.

We had a death in the family (an aunt) a year ago. He didn't seem upset at the time. He also saw a car accident a few months ago where a person was hurt quite badly. Those are the only things I can think of that might have any bearing on him.

As I said at the beginning, he is driving me crazy the way he is acting. I can't be out of his sight. I would like to know what you think is our problem. And how could or should we handle it?

Thank you. —H.M.

DEAR H.M.:

Rarely will you find a parent who has not been worried at some time about the behavior of a child. Or been driven up the wall. A study found that most youngsters between five and eight have symptoms often associated with emotional disturbance, and some children have quite a few symptoms. Yet actually nothing may be seriously wrong.

I would assume that your son is anxious and upset about a separation from you because of thoughts or ideas about what that separation means to him. The challenge is to find out what is so upsetting to him.

Around this age, death or injury can be unsettling experiences. But he may be troubled by other unsettling thoughts or feelings. His need to restate his love and be reassured of your love may signal feelings of guilt or of being somehow a bad or unworthy boy in your eyes.

First, sit down with him and tell him you can't understand what is going on. Is he afraid you'll never come back? Why so? What kinds of thoughts does he have?

If he is unable to open up with you, perhaps he has with others. Ask the baby sitter and school teachers about their observations. Have they any ideas about what is upsetting him?

Also, when a child is unable to talk easily, you can often get a clue to the problem by observing his play. Sometimes he will make his conflict quite clear in the way he plays with his toys, or puppets, or friends.

Further, some people have been helped by books directed to parents, such as: Dr. Benjamin Spock's "Raising Children in a Difficult Time" (New York: W. W. Norton, 1974) or Haim Ginott's "Between Parent and Child" (New York: Macmillan, 1965).

If, after exploring these avenues, you are still stymied in understanding your child's struggle, then I would seek professional assistance from a child guidance service — such as a family and children's service, or a child psychiatrist or psychologist.

(Dr. Menninger invites your comments and questions. Write to him in care of the Independent, Press-Telegram. Because of the volume of mail, he cannot answer each individually but will handle questions of general interest in his column.)

Medicine and You

Doctor warns against silicone

ben zinser

The risks of liquid silicone injections for strictly cosmetic purposes far outweigh any possible benefits, says an editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Silicone has been used to smoothe facial wrinkles or to enlarge the female breast.

The serious medical problems of women who have had liquid silicone injected into their breasts is now well known. Even gross disfigurement has been reported.

But similar problems have arisen after silicone injections for cosmetic purposes into the face, hands and abdomen, says Dr. Charles A. Vinnik, Las Vegas, Nev., in the editorial.

Dr. Vinnik says the breast complications occur an average of five years after injection. The liquid migrates elsewhere in the body to cause serious medical problems. Facial problems for those who have had injections for wrinkles occur eight to 15 years after injection.

The doctor notes, however, that injectable silicone may outweigh the risks in correcting certain cases of disfiguring facial conditions from accident or disease.

Malaria report

Simple starvation may decrease the severity of malaria and other infections, says a research team at the University of Minnesota.

Inadequate amounts of vitamin E in particular can be beneficial in malaria patients, says John W. Eaton, Ph. D., in a report prepared for the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Explains Dr. Eaton:

Deficiency of the vitamin predisposes the malaria-infected cell to premature destruction. This releases the parasite in its immature form. Thus it is likely to be destroyed.

The incidence of the disease may suddenly rise in areas when an inadequate diet is supplemented with vitamins and calories, reports Modern Medicine, a periodical for doctors.

Hypnosis and pain

Hypnosis can be helpful in the control of chronic pain, says Dr. Harold J. Wain.

Dr. Wain, director of the psychiatric liaison service at the Forest Glen, Md., campus of Walter Reed Army Medical Center, says hypnosis has been used to treat pain such as that from tension and migraine headaches and the low back.

In some cases, results have been striking, the doctor reports.

In one instance, a child with severe headaches had been treated for four years by conventional medical means. Within a short time after hypnotherapy the child gained control over his pain and was playing with other children again.

The technique has even been used to control cancer pain, he says.

A detailed report of how Dr. Wain uses hypnosis to treat pain appears in U. S. Medicine, a newspaper for physicians.

Heroin use up

Heroin use is again growing steadily, according to the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

New surveys of drug use show new heroin use is greatest among persons 18 to 21 and is unlikely to occur before age 13 or after age 25.

About three years ago drug abuse officials said there had been an apparent drop in heroin use, according to Internist Reporter, a newspaper for doctors.

ira corn
on bridge

Dear Mr. Corn:

Is there such a bid as a close out? With these hands, if opener jumps to three no trump is this a jump shift or a close out? We made six no trump.

Opener	Resp.
♠ A Q 10 7	♠ 9 4 3
♥ K J	♥ A 6 5
♦ A K 8 6	♦ Q 9 4 3
♣ A 7 5	♣ K 3 2

Open	Resp
1♦	2♦
3NT	Pass

[illegible]

Answer: There are close out bids and in the situation you describe, three no trump is a close-out. Responder has limited his hand to 6 to 10 points and opener has jumped to game, showing a strong hand with little chance for slam.

The same principle applies when opener bids a descriptive and limited one or two no trump and responder jumps directly to game.

If you made six no trump, you took every trick that wasn't nailed down. Actually, I would not like to be in any slam although six diamonds is probably the best of a bad lot.

Dear Mr. Corn:

In duplicate bridge are any redeals permitted when a hand is passed out after it is first dealt? Several local life masters insist that this is O.K., but I was taught differently.

Two Swipes,
Indianapolis, Ind.

Answer: No redeals are authorized after no player has bid (law 22). Some modify the laws to suit local custom, however, the law has a purpose and I agree with no redeals. If redeals were permitted, hardly any group would ever pass out a hand since they would know that it had been played previously. This practice might not only distort the bidding, it might also delay progress of the game.

Dear Mr. Corn:

My partner opened four hearts and I tried for slam. She showed one ace and I stopped at five. How should these hands be bid?

Opener	Resp.
♠ K J 7	♠ A 8
♥ A K J 9 8 7 6 5 2	♥ Q
♦ 7	♦ A K 9 3
♣ —	♣ J 10 9 8 4 2

13 Tricks, Riverside, Calif.

Answer: The one bid I totally disagree with is the four heart opening. While no one really knows how to handle nine card suits, this hand is much too strong for a four heart preempt.

Accurate bidding requires the use of cue bids to pinpoint aces, kings and voids after the jump rebid establishes the trump suit. A possible sequence is:

Open	Resp.
1♥	2♣
3♥	3♦
5♥	5♠ [illegible]
6♣ [illegible]	7♥

Dear Mr. Corn:

I opened a game demand bid of two diamonds with this hand. Was I too far off base.

♠ A K 8 5
♥ Q J 10 2
♦ A Q 10 [illegible]

[illegible] N.Y.

Answer: Depends on whether or not you were caught stealing. In standard methods, the hand is too light for a game demand. However, if one does open only one diamond, partner might have a bad hand with a five card major that may produce an easy game.

Student summer travel programs still open

By Herb Shannon
I-P-T Travel Editor

Two established programs of summer study in Europe are still open to enrollment by Southland high school, college and university students. Some junior high school programs are included in eight American Institute for Foregn Study (AIFS) tours, while free scholarships are available to full-time college students under the "Encounter Ireland," program co-sponsored by the Council on International Educational Exchange (CIEE), and the Union of Students in Ireland.

Don Karvelis, Long Beach area AIFS administrator, points out that all of the high school study programs beginning the last week of this month and the first week of July have room for a few more students. The application deadline for the college-level "Encounter Ireland" summer scholarships has been extended to July 8.

AIFS programs for senior high school students range from two to five weeks and encompass study at Cambridge and Aberdeen Universities in Britain, with travel throughout the European continent from the North Sea to the Greek Islands and touching distant shores of the Mediterranean at Egypt and Turkey

FORMAL scholastics, including literature, music, debating, oceanography and geology, are on the light side, allowing ample time for learning through travel experiences. A special four-week junior high program, "Peoples of Europe," visiting Switzerland, France, Belgium, Holland and England, starts June 30 and runs through July 27.

"Heart of Bavaria," shortest of the AIFS tours at two weeks and also the first to depart, will include a Rhine cruise through Germany as well as visits to London, Amsterdam, Paris and Salzburg, starting June 27

SCHOLARSHIP IS TICKET TO DUBLIN SCENE

"Crossroads of Culture," a four-week high school level program starting June 28 combines visits to London and Stratford in England with a homestay in Holland, and a cruise on the upper Rhine and side trips to Austria, Italy and a stop in Paris on the return. "Traditional England," another four-week tour starting July 7, also includes visits to Paris and Rome on the continent.

FOUR AIFS programs of five weeks duration allow more scope for study as well as more extensive travel experiences. The first, "Living Scotland and Western Mediterranean," begins June 30 in Britain and continues to Aug. 3 with a cruise to the French and Italian Rivieras, Tunisia in North Africa, and the islands of Majorca, Malta, Sicily and Capri.

Three other five-week tours begin July 7. "Traditional England and the Greek Islands" includes the capitals of London, Paris, Rome, and Athens before sailing on to Dubrovnic on the Adriatic. "Classical Civilization" adds visits to London, Cairo, Pompeii and a cruise to Mykonos, Crete, Rhodes and Turkey to studies of ancient and current Greek culture. "Comparative Cultures" is primarily a land and air tour through England, Holland, France, Spain, and Italy.

All of the AIFS tours are accompanied by experienced escorts and counselors from Long Beach area and Orange County schools. Full information on the tours is available from Donald S. Korvelis, 3663 Kallin Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90808.

LAUNCHED last year, the CIEE "Encounter Ireland" program provides scholarships valued at more than $800 for study in Ireland to qualified full-time students of American colleges and universities

Each scholarship includes a curriculum of study, discussion and living experiences in Ireland from July 14 to Aug. 12, with the final week free for travel throughout the Republic.

The extension of the deadline for scholarship applications to July 8 opens up the program to students traveling to Europe independently of the travel arrangements operated by the program sponsors. Those traveling to Britain or Europe by other means may now join the program from those destinations instead of flying directly from the U.S. to Ireland.

Guest lecturers for the study program in Dublin this year include Irish statesman Dr. Conor Cruise O'Brien, playwright Hugh Leonard and Ireland's foremost actor Niall Toibin. Focus of the studies will be Irish history, politics, music, literature and theater, with a special seminar on Brendan Behan. The contributions of Irish women also will be explored.

Scholarships provide students with the first three weeks' acommodations and meals with Irish families in Dublin, and the final week free for independent travel. Each participant will receive a three-week bus pass for use in Dublin and a rail pass good for unlimited travel throughout Ireland during the fourth week.

Each scholarship candidate is required to submit a 500-word essay about personal interrests and reasons for wanting to visit Ireland. Also necessary are two passport-sized photos, a reference from a college professor and an official application form. Deadline for submissions is July 8.

Application forms are available from CIEE, Encounter Ireland Program, 777 United Nations Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10017.

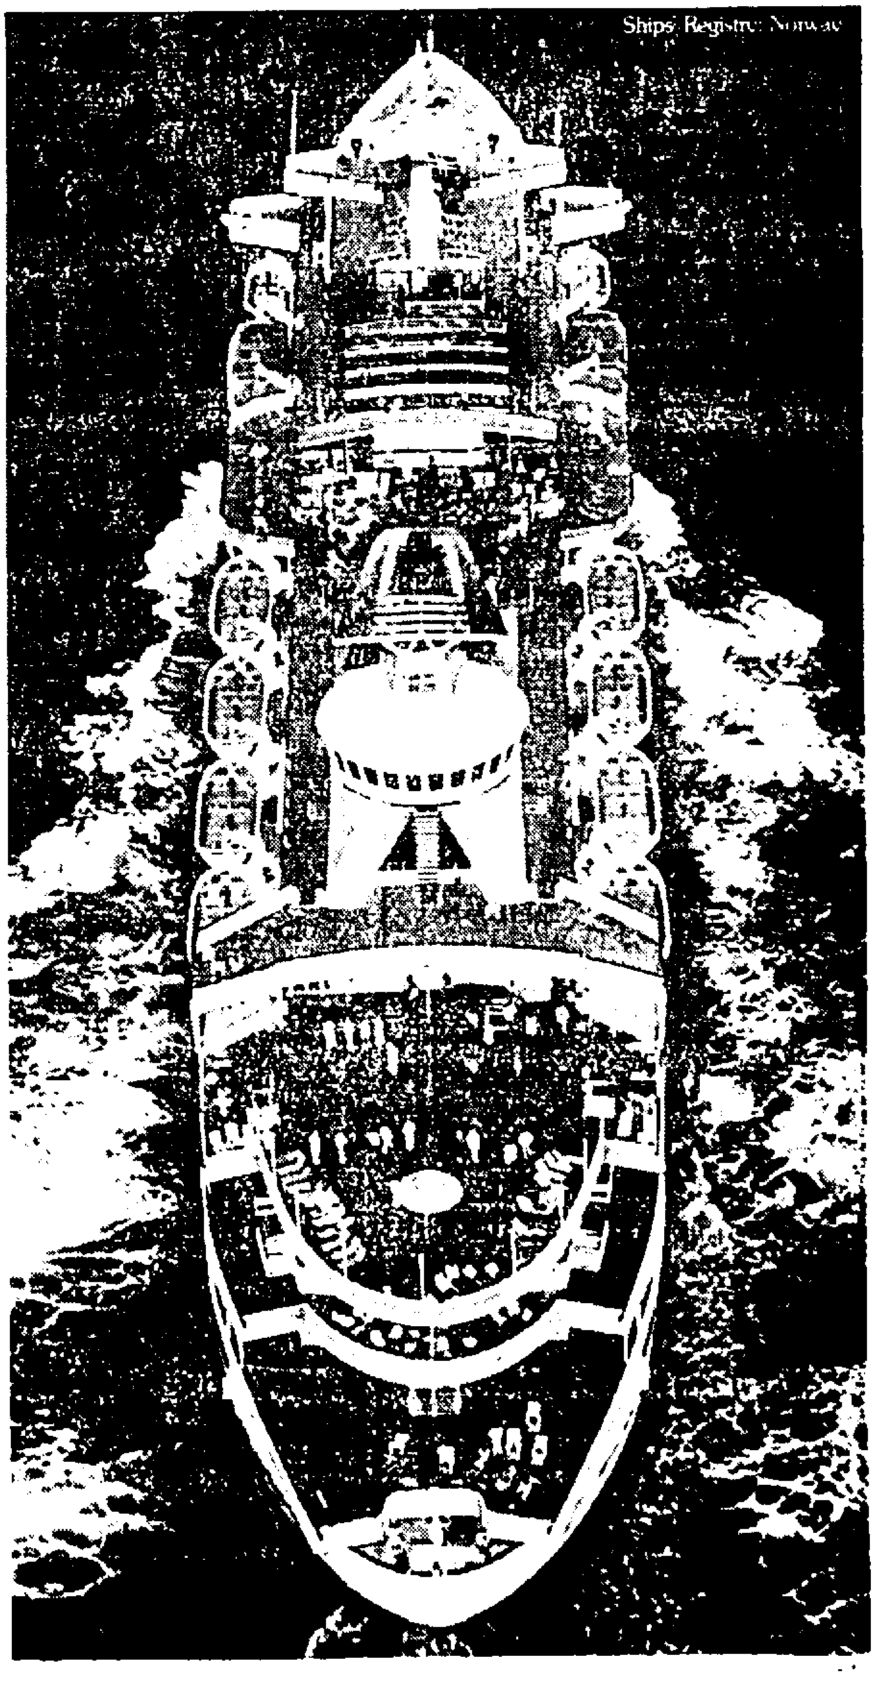
Catalina Cruises for summer

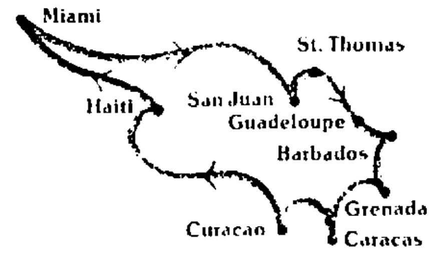
Catalina Cruise boats are now operating eight departures daily to Avalon from Long Beach and San Pedro under new schedules for the summer vacation season.

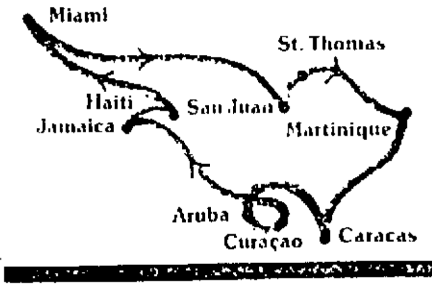
Long Beach-Catalina Cruise vessels leave five times daily from the pier at 330 Golden Shore Blvd. in downtown Long Beach. Departure times are 8 a.m., 9 a.m., 12:15 p.m., 1:45 p.m. and 5:15 p.m. On Fridays and Saturdays the 5:15 boat is moved to 7 p.m.

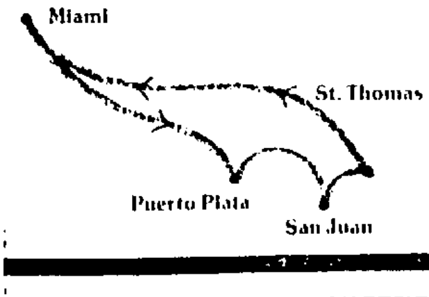
Catalina Island Cruises leave San Pedro three times daily from the terminal at Berth 86, under the Vincent Thomas Bridge approach. Departure times are 9 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

All cruises under the new schedules are aboard the same triple-deck, 700-passenger vessels used year around.









Ships' Registry: Norway

We have a Caribbean vacation leaving Los Angeles every Friday.

And we give you a choice of one week. Or two.

If you're looking for a one week vacation, we recommend Song of Norway. More Californians sail aboard Song of Norway than any other 7-day cruise ship in the Caribbean.

If you're planning on getting away for two weeks – we offer Sun Viking or Nordic Prince – the two most popular two week cruise ships in the Caribbean.

Last year more than 25,000 Californians vacationed with us. You probably know some of them. So talk to them.

They'll tell you about our ships, our service, our entertainment, our food. (Everyone loves to talk about our food!)

And, they'll tell you that we're one of the best vacation values going. Anywhere.

See your travel agent. He'll tell you the same thing.

Then join us. Aboard one of our Air/Sea Cruises soon. Who knows, you may run into one of your neighbors.

HOTELS AND HILLS OF SAN FRANCISCO

travel

SAN FRANCISCO — "I see you know all the best places," said the famous war correspondent, an acquaintance who happened to be checking out of the Beresford Hotel as I was checking in.

I gave him my modest Muhammad Ali smile and speedily switched subjects. The truth was that I'd "found" the modest-priced Beresford ($20-$22 single, $24-$26 double) because I'd lost most of my alternatives.

The problem is that you can have your heart in San Francisco, but, on the whole, the hoteliers prefer money. And these days that generally means $35 to $40 for minimum-priced singles, $41 to $50 for minimum doubles, with maximums hitting as high as $75 and $80 at all of the tonier hotels and even a good many motels. So if your objective is to do well for less, what then?

If the woman at the airport information desk knew, she wasn't telling. She was prepared to give names, prices and locations, period. No suggestions, much less hot tips.

TWO SORE feet and some days later, I arrived at my own conclusions. Yes, it is possible to cut those hotel costs way back without feeling that you might as well be in Siberia, and there are even some "small" San Francisco hotels that, for the money, are pretty fair bargains.

First, I should say I like luxury, but I'll settle for charm. Given funds enough for a splurge, I'd demand both and be right up there on Nob Hill at the Stanford Court, possibly taking telephone calls in a marble-lined, decorator's dream of a bathroom or writing notes on the Stanford Court's superb stationery.

My second choice would be that Rolls-Royce of hostelries, the Huntington, one of the least commercialized, most elegant hotels in the country. The Clift belongs in the same league by many people's standards, but to me the atmosphere is too stiff, too much, "The Prussians have come, the Prussians have come."

The hands-down winner in the charm-plus-value-for-money category has to be the $25 singles and $35 doubles (rates do go higher) at The Raphael near Union Square. The furnishings are "hotel," but several cuts above the ordinary, and they obviously get tender, loving care. The lobby is small but smart. Pam-Pam East, a dark, leathery, 24-hour coffee shop with bar, is just next door with an entrance from the hotel as well.

ANY HOTEL that keeps a stash of books, magazines and newspapers for guests to read in its lobby and its rooms can't be all bad, and The Cartwright verges on being all good. It's a well-located (Sutter and Powell) older hotel that demonstrates the magic you can manage with color. Its 120 guest rooms are still fresh from a recent facelift and thoroughly agreeable, $18-$20 for singles, $22-$26 for two, and family suites of two adjoining rooms at $40-$45.

Up the street is the Canterbury, a 225-room spot that ought to be better than it is, but still deserves thought for its minimum-priced rooms. At $22 for a minimu single, $28 for a double or twin, it offers air-conditioning, color TV, a garage, pleasant bar, coffee shop and The Greenhouse, a uniquely decorated restaurant that functions under a load of live plants. Furnishings above and below are comfortable, with extra touches like a sprinkling of antiques in the lobby and free coffee-makers in rooms.

NEARBY is the high-rise Barrett Motor Hotel, which is that uncommon thing: a new place (built in 1971) for motorists in the heart of downtown. Its minimum doubles at $36 a night (plus $2.50 a day for in-and-out parking) may not sound like "steals," but they are. The Kyoto Inn is even newer (September, 1975) and offers about the most quality for money in motels, with singles starting at $23, doubles at $29, free parking and no charge for children under 12.

Newest sleeper (pun intended) is another in-town inn. The Bed and Breakfast Inn has opened in a cul-de-sac near the Union Street shopping area in a gracious old gingerbread charmer of a house. There, at No. 4 Charlton Court, Marily and Bob Ravanaugh rent five generally flower-filled rooms that share three baths. There's a scattering of antiques around and the $25 to $35 price includes a coffee, juice, and croissant breakfast.

BUT WHAT can you do on still less money? Suffer to some degree or other, of course. I'd say singles would survive best at the Regent, the Yerba Buena (both in the Union Square area) and the Grand Central (in the Civic Center area), in that order. All three have had recent overhauls by people with taste, look fresh and clean and feature "European-style" rooms (bath down the hall, no air-conditioning or TV) for $8.50, $8-$9 and $9-$10, respectively — more, of course, for other types of rooms.

Considering the high cost of downtown San Francisco real estate and soaring utility rates, these will be bargain buys as long as these prices last. Even better, the rooms are not quite the assault on your senses that bare-bones budgeters generally find waiting for them. But like all San Francisco hotels, they expect to be full most of this summer, so you'd better start thinking about reservations now.

Macau in the good old days

stan delaplane

Macau (Portuguese China)

We used to come over from Hong Kong on the river steamer Tak Shing. Loaded with chattering coolies below. Whisky-sodas on the posh upper deck for the posh tourists. Headed for the opium dens and the gambling hells of Macau.

British officers in starched whites stood on the navigation bridge. The doors were double-barred. A curtain of barbed wire laced in front of the bridge. (Insurance against a sudden takeover by river pirates.)

Black soldiers from Portuguese Africa marched stiffly along the border entrance. On the other side, Red Chinese soldiers in sloppy grey uniforms stood guard belligerently.

We used to check in at the wicked old Central Hotel. Walk out of our rooms to the central lightwell. You could look down and see the feverish gambling of the fantan tables.

For us — the elite — they sent up wicker baskets. We put our bets in them. Lowered them to the tables five or six floors below.

THERE WAS opium. Prostitutes. Smuggling and guns and lanterned alleys.

We all looked like Errol Flynn. (At least we thought we did.)

As usual Hong Kong is hot, rainy and noisy. Caught a Cathay Pacific plane from Manila. Got picked up by an air-conditioned Rolls Royce from the grand old Peninsula Hotel.

"Pen" was to be torn down and replaced last year. But now they're going to keep it. Just bought a new fleet of eight Rolls to ferry guests from the airport.

"The Pen" has wonderful, high-ceilinged rooms. Including the bathrooms with six-feet high windows.

When William Holden was staying here — (making "The World of Suzie Wong") — he looked out the bathroom window one day. Discovered the opposite rooftop was lined with Chinese girl admirers. They'd found out his room number and were cheering him on.

WE BOOM over to Macau now in 70 minutes on a speedy hydrofoil. Alas, the wicked city has become classy.

The old Central, the wicker betting baskets, the chattery fantan games are gone. Now they have the Lisboa — 600 rooms. As vulgar-rich as any you'll find in Las Vegas.

Blackjack is the favorite. There are roulette tables and a three-dice game called High-Low.

Rooms run $16 to $25. A visa is $5. Hydrofoil ride, $7. Exit fee from Hong Kong, $1.60. Local money is the petaca. Par with HK dollars, now $4.50 HK for $1 U.S.

We picked up Jose De Aquino as a guide. (Turned out to be the brother-in-law of Iva Toguri d'Aquino "Tokyo Rose" recently pardoned by President Ford.)

"Actually the Chinese don't mind," said De Aquino. He was born in Japan. Macau gets a lot of Japanese tourists. He keeps busy. Pays a five per cent "refugee tax."

MACAU IS only 2¼ miles long. Has 300,000 people. You sightsee it in an hour or so.

A couple of blocks from the border, a Levi Strauss factory makes blue jeans. Enough work to bring five or six "refugees" a day from Red China.

"Sometimes the Red guards fire a shot. But generally they don't care. These aren't political refugees. Just people looking for a job."

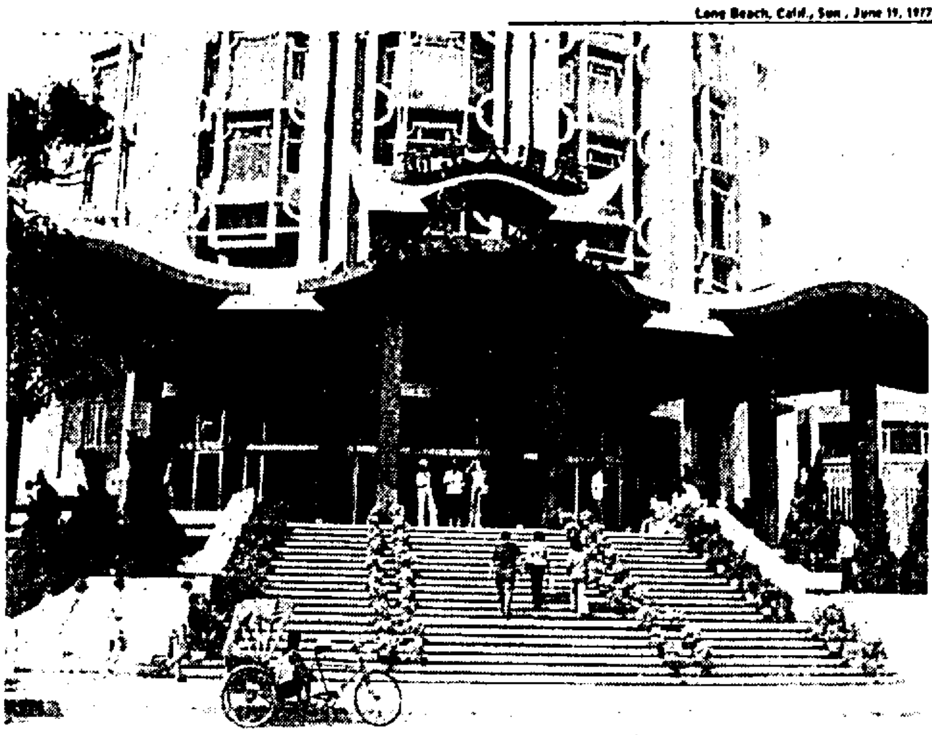
The blue jeans factory is at a creek called Duck Channel. In the old days — (with black soldiers stamping guard in British drill fashion) — droves of ducks crossed the border here.

They were driven in quacking flocks by farmer women. (Macau imports food from Red China.)

Occasionally, a black soldier grabbed a duck at random. Punched its stomach. And, if he bet right, the duck would lay a gold coin. Like laying an egg.

Gold was smuggled that way. Stuffed into live ducks.

But those were the good old days. When all of us were Errol Flynns. Oh, yes.



PEDICAB driver waits for sightseeing customers outside the ornate Oriental entrance to new Lisboa Hotel in Macau.

Eastern Canada excursions

The gateway cities of Montreal and Toronto are featured in a new series of Canadian tours offered by American Airlines, which has added direct Los Angeles-Montreal service to its Canadian routes.

The four-day Montreal tour includes hotel accommodations, sightseeing excursions and lunch or dinner in a choice of French restaurants for as low as $98 per person on a double occupancy basis, plus air fare.

A four-day Toronto tour is priced at $88 per person, double hotel accommodation, plus air fare, with sightseeing and dining features.

There also are economical seven-day fly/drive tours for both destinations. Details and brochures are available from American Airlines offices and local travel agents.

New free travel classes

"Travel Sense," a free six-week adult education course in vacation planning, will hold its first session Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the library of the Gahr High School, Cerritos.

Guest lecturers from transportation firms and field trips to cruise ships in port will be included. Full information is available from instructor Carole Beebe of Atlas Travel, Long Beach.

No free lunch on CN

Meals are not included in the price of sleeping-car tickets on Canadian National Railways transcontinental trains, as reported in a feature story in the I.P-T special Canada travel section June 12.

The inclusive meal fare was discontinued shortly after the material for the article was prepared. The railway story originally was scheduled for an earlier issue.

A choice of meals is available on CN's coast-to-coast "Super Continental" at the regular dining car rates, according to Gene Thompson, regional representative for the railroad.

Thompson said other information in the article pertaining to CN operations is correct, including supervised play periods with books and toys for children, adult games and free stopovers at points along the route between Vancouver and Montreal.

Further information on rail travel in Canada may be obtained by writing CNR, 1330 Broadway, Room 1017, Oakland, Calif. 94612.

Workshop

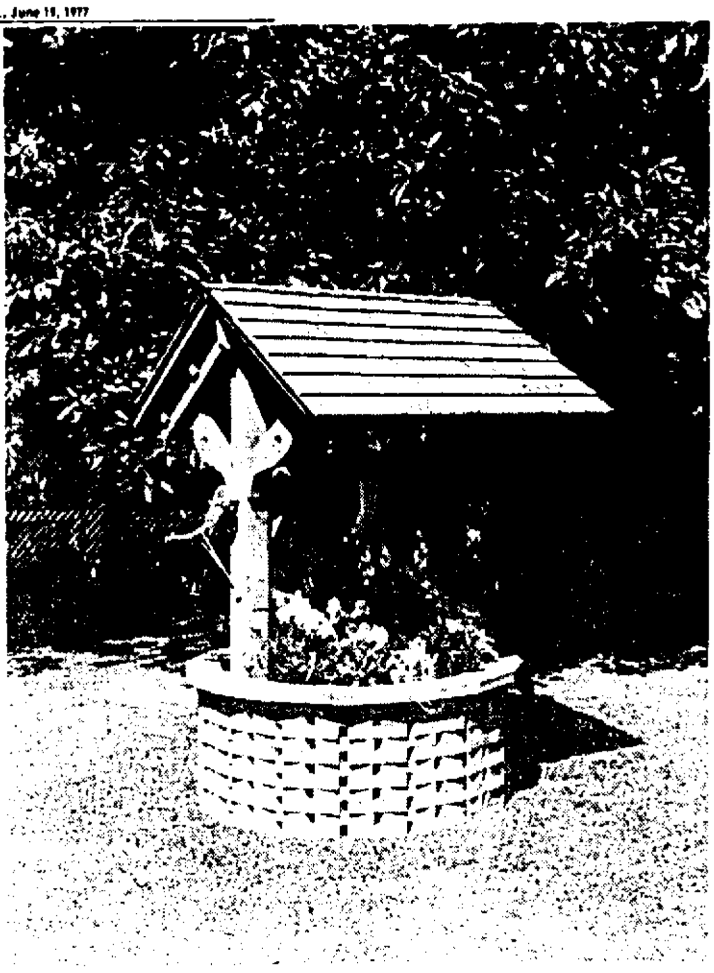
Even if you aren't an American history buff, you will appreciate the handsome wishing well shown here. In addition to its decorative and rustic charm, it can also be a practical garden center.

The old oaken bucket may be planted with flowers while attractive pots can line the ledges. The well also serves as a novel centerpiece for outdoor entertaining. When the bucket is used for ice, the ledge may be used for hors d'oeuvres, beverages and so forth.

The bricks for this easy project are cut from standard lumber sizes (available from all lumber and home centers) so there's no messy, tricky brick-laying necessary. Redwood or red cedar are recommended as either of these require practically no maintenance. The full-size pattern lists the necessary materials along with step-by-step instructions and photographs showing all the steps in building. This is truly an inexpensive project and something that will last a lifetime.

To obtain the Wishing Well pattern No. 371 (via first class mail), send $2.50. Or you can order our No. C-23 packet (9 different lawn and garden projects including the wishing well) for only $6.50. Send check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Independent Press-Telegram Pattern Dept., P.O. Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.

New! Our 100-page Patterns for Better Living project book featuring more than 500 woodworking and handicraft projects...$1.50 (includes postage and handling).



OLD-FASHIONED wishing well filled with flowers instead of water makes charming addition to back yard or patio.

The Formula

Rid your home of carbon tet

The sale of carbon tetrachloride is banned for home use by the Food and Drug Administration. But somehow there appears to be some still in use. For example, I was doing a question-and-answer radio program in Kansas City a while ago, and one person called in to tell me what excellent results she had using it for removing spots.

How it gets into homes I don't know. Perhaps some family member works in a lab or industry and brings it home, or it could be a leftover supply. At any rate, GET RID OF IT IMMEDIATELY. It can be lethal, which is why it's banned.

Carbon tetrachloride is dangerous in that it is highly toxic by ingestion, inhalation and skin absorption and can cause liver damage and other serious complications. But even more serious than that is the fact that under certain conditions it can cause immediate death, especially to young children.

When carbon tetrachloride comes in contact with heat it produces phosgeue gas, the deadly poison gas of World War I. This gas is over five times the weight of air, and herein lies a great danger. There are many cases on record where carbon tet has been used for removing spots and then a hot iron was used to dry the area. In doing so, phosgeue gas was produced which then fell to the floor where children were playing, causing death.

So if uou have any carbon tetrachloride in your home — you may find it in labeled bottles or in those glass globe type fire extinguishers that hang on the wall — get rid of it. You could easily save a life.

L.B. officers' gunplay ended with death of I, P-T reporter

William B. Hunter, 35, award-winning reporter for the Independent, Press-Telegram, was shot accidentally and killed almost instantly at 12:05 a.m. today in the pressroom of the Long Beach Police Department.

The bullet was discharged from a revolver dropped, then quickly picked up by Det. Creighton Wiggins Jr., one of Hunter's close friends.

I P-T, April 23, 1964

BILL HUNTER

Two Long Beach police detectives have admitted playing a game of "cops and robbers" with loaded revolvers which ended in the death of Independent, Press-Telegram reporter William B. Hunter, Police Chief William Mooney said today.

The two detectives, he said, changed their original stories about the gunshot death of the 35 year old reporter early Thursday while he sat quietly reading a novel at his desk in the police pressroom.

I P-T, April 24, 1964

By Larry LaRue
Staff Writer

It rained April 22, 1964, and Errol Greanleaf was feeling just lousy enough to call in sick. He didn't.

Midway through his shift, sitting in an unmarked police car with his partner, Det. Creighton Wiggins Jr., Greenleaf still felt bad. He talked about going home early. He didn't.

Instead, Long Beach Police Det. Errol Greenleaf, a nine-year veteran, sat through a rainy night with his partner simply because the two wanted to play cards with a friend.

The friend was Bill Hunter, the Independent Press-Telegram's police reporter. It was not unusual on slow nights for Greenleaf, Wiggins and Hunter to play pinochle in the station press room.

THE THREE were friends. The two officers had on occasion taken Hunter along on important arrests. Hunter had written several stories on cases Greenleaf and Wiggins had worked.

But tonight nothing was happening. Rainy nights keep criminals, like everyone else, off the street. The two had been partners nearly two years, seen a few nights like this. They'd made good busts. Had good times.

Wiggins was a second generation cop, his father an inspector with LBPD. He was 31, a seven-year-veteran with a reputation as a good officer who often seemed anxious to prove himself his father's equal on the force.

Greenleaf, 32, had seen that in Wiggins. There were times he was overzealous. Times he was tougher than necessary. But together the two earned more than a dozen police citations apiece.

They were a Mutt and Jeff pair. Greenleaf tall and thin, Wiggins inches shorter and stocky. As partners, they were loyal to each other, and though they rarely saw one another off duty, they had been a good team from the beginning. So good, in fact, that early in April when Greenleaf had requested a transfer, the personnel captain — Ralph Kortz — said no.

A LITTLE before midnight, Wiggins and Greenleaf entered the station, their raincoats dripping, and completed routine paperwork on the third floor.

That done, they walked to the elevator. As they waited, Wiggins bent over the drinking fountain and his tie fell under the flow of water.

On the elevator, heading for the second floor press room, Greenleaf looked at Wiggin's tie and broke up. Called him sloppy. Wiggins worked up a serious face and drew his .38 caliber revolver in a threatening gesture.

The two of them laughed. Wiggins put his gun away. The elevator doors opened.

In the hallway, Wiggins stopped briefly when Sgt. John Coleman asked if he was going down the hall to "further your press relations."

Greenleaf walked on alone, down an empty hallway, his 6-foot-7, thin frame still under the raincoat. He was thinking about a couple of quick hands of pinochle and then home to the wife and kids.

HE LOOKED back over his shoulder, saw Wiggins, now trailing him, fake a fast draw and come up empty handed, grinning like a Boy Scout. Greenleaf ducked into the press room.

Hunter, a stocky, bespectacled 35 years old, sat with his feet on his typewriter, leaning back in his chair, engrossed in "Stop This Man!", a mystery novel.

Greenleaf said hello, and Hunter flipped a page, said hello without looking up.

On impulse, Greenleaf pulled his own snub-nose .38 and without even looking down the hall, stuck the gun around the doorjam. He held it with his fingers touching just the butt, not the trigger, and he holstered it after just a quick show.

It was an old gag — like pretending to be spying on someone by sticking just your eyeglasses around a corner.

He walked to a desk in the back of the room and took off his raincoat. Errol Greenleaf's back was to the door when Creighton Wiggins walked in.

Wiggins had his gun in his hand, cocked. He was sneaking into the room to get the drop on his partner again. But he squeezed the trigger, and the room roared.

THE GUNSHOT scared the hell out of Greenleaf. He jerked around and knew immediately it was bad. He'd jumped at the sound of the shot. Bill Hunter, sitting less than 4 feet from where Wiggins stood, hadn't moved.

Wiggins was pale already, the .38 still in his hand. "Jesus, Bill, are you hit?"

Greenleaf started across the room, everything in slow motion. Wiggins was on his knees beside Hunter, his hands running over his arms, checking for a wound, finding nothing.

"Bill . . . Bill . . ." Wiggins was near tears, and still Hunter sat, the book in his hands unmoved.

Errol Greenleaf was sick with fright. Sick at the stillness in Hunter's body. He touched Bill's head, pushed it back so he could look into his face.

Lawsuit planned in Women's Year dispute

By Barbara Bradley
Staff Writer

A member of an Orange County-based anti-Equal Rights Amendment group says her organization plans to file a class action suit against the California International Women's Year Committee because of alleged irregular voting practices at this weekend's state IWY conference at USC.

Betty Fusilier, of Los Angeles, told the Independent, Press-Telegram Saturday she expects the Citizens Review Committee to file the suit "as soon as we can get things documented."

The Citizens Review Committee, based in Orange County but with members also in other areas, is headed by Billy Bowles and Mary Schmitz, wife of 1972 presidential candidate John Schmitz, who ran on the American Independent Party ticket.

Mrs. Fusilier also identified herself as a member of the IWY nominating committee which drew up the list of 101 names nominated as California delegates to the national convention to be held in Houston.

But she charged that she was excluded from the final meeting of the committee and was unable to add candidates who represent the anti-ERA philosophy. Her charges were supported by members of the Stop ERA group.

The chief complaint, aside from the delegates themselves, was the confusion over voting regulations and the tree-shaded alumnae park where the voting took place for the more than 5,000 conference participants.

"I would have suggested a two-day voting period inside under more supervision," said Mrs. Fusilier as she pointed to the wide open area. "I'm supposed to be a poll monitor, and yet they asked me to stay outside the area. But look at the people walk around in there."

Evelyn Boswell of Anaheim said she was unhappy because no anti-ERA people had been allowed into the ballot area to help oversee the process.

She also expressed dissatisfaction with the noon Saturday cutoff of registration, which participants had to meet to have voting privileges, as well as the presence of large numbers of pro-ERA women

Factor in high costs

Housing red tape scored

By Dick Howland
Staff Writer

A popular trade joke in the housing industry is that it takes four years to obtain the necessary construction permits, four months to build a house and four days to sell it.

But the joke is not far from the truth and helps explain why the average purchase price of a home is soaring, a real estate leader said Saturday during a city-sponsored, day-long housing fair at Long Beach City College.

DON WIEDMANN

Don Wiedmann, first vice president of the California Association of Realtors, said builders are so hampered by the permit process that they can't keep up with the demand for new homes, and the lack of supply forces up prices for both new and existing homes.

He said several factors have contributed to an unprecedented demand for housing in California, including:

—The number of people entering the housing market is larger than ever because young men and women born during the post-World War II baby boom are now in the home-buying age bracket.

—Available land is scarce due to "slow-growth" regulations imposed by local governments.

—A slump in construction was caused by the recent recession.

—The high divorce rate in California, where one of two marriages breaks up, generates a need for more housing because divorcees often require two homes instead of one.

—The demand is high, but the supply is low because it takes so long to get all of the required permits from various city, county and state agencies.

"We need to reduce the red tape involved in construction and let the free enterprise system work," Wiedmann said. "Only then will the supply of homes meet the demand, with reasonable prices."

Another housing problem is the deterioration of existing dwellings

Sohio's Alaskan plans hit

Senator says transport inadequate

By Mark Gladstone
Staff Writer

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, criticized oil companies Saturday for constructing the now-completed trans-Alaskan oil pipeline but not making adequate plans for bringing the petroleum to the lower 48 states.

He was particularly critical of Standard Oil of Ohio (Sohio), which has proposed a $60-million oil tanker terminal for Long Beach and a 1,025-mile pipeline to bring the oil to Texas and other parts of the country.

"Either they had to be stupid or they were planning to export the oil," Metzenbaum said in an interview at the National Energy Dialogue, a forum at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Beverly Hills sponsored by the National Democratic Forum.

He said he could not comment on the specific merits of the Sohio proposal for Long Beach but that he would favor such a terminal "if the environmental concerns can be worked out," either on the California coast or along the coast of Washington.

Earlier this month the Southern California Air Quality Management District voted to issue air-quality permits to Sohio if it agreed to meet specific air standards and trade-offs. Sohio controls 54 per cent of the Alaskan oil field. The company has discussed the possibility of exchanging oil with Japan.

Metzenbaum, a member of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, was one of several speakers at the forum who expressed strong criticisms of

Kids tell how to dog the energy crisis

Barking dogs might help the nation ease the current energy shortage. At least that's the belief of one school child who wrote Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

Speaking Saturday at an energy forum in Beverly Hills, Cranston listed several suggestions he's received from youngsters. Among them:

—Barking dogs would be taught to yelp whenever their masters drove faster than 55 miles per hour.

—Travelers to oil-rich countries should bring back a bottle of oil.

—People should help out in gas stations so employes would have more time to look for oil.

Cranston's favorite: "Find out if oil is called anything else but oil and look for it under that name."

People Talk

L.C. Anderson

HE'S CONSIDERED average — just another number on insurance policies, Social Security records and census forms. He's grist fed into payroll computers, magazine subscription lists and the statistical agencies that govern our lives.

He's known variously as Dad, Pop or the Old Man, and except for one day of the year he is uncelebrated and taken for granted. No one quotes him, no one pays much attention to his average build, his average job, his average house and car, his average family or his average plodding to cope and make ends meet.

Even those who love him tend to take him for granted. Perhaps there's a twinge of conscience at work in the gifts he receives on Father's Day. Maybe there's a more profound message than we realize in the presentation of ties, handkerchiefs and socks to the average American father.

He'll wear the new tie with his six-year-old suit, wear the new socks with his resoled shoes. And maybe, when the givers are out of sight, he'll use the new handkerchief to blot away a tear in the corner of his eye.

He's not used to such attention. He's more used to punching a clock five days a week, "mistering" the boss at his office, tramping over hard concrete with heavy sample cases. He's more used to ringing doorbells in search of buyers, lugging lumber, pounding nails, rigging steel, sweating out accounts.

He's more used to providing than being provided for, more used to giving than receiving. He gives a lot, much of it going unnoticed, or when noticed unappreciated. No matter, he still gives.

When his children are very young he's an oracle, the man who can do everything, the man who knows everything. Later, he's just an old-fashioned stick-in-the-mud, a relic of the past who's simply not with it any more.

He tries to be with it. He's a Little League coach, a Cubmaster, a school carnival volunteer, a ticket buyer for football games, theaters, chauffeur for picnics and excursions to the seashore.

He fixes faucet leaks, replaces broken glass, cements loose bricks, mows lawns, rigs speakers for stereo music he can't abide, waits up late for sons and daughters, shows up for school open houses, finances motorcycles and graduation suits.

He tires more easily now, dozes of a Sunday afternoon. But sometimes he lies awake at night, trying to squeeze a college year, a new set of tires and needed dentistry out of his savings account.

He wonders about his retirement, hopes he'll live to see it. And if he can't make it all the way, what's to become of his wife? Can he outlive the mortgage, can he survive automation?

He remembers his own father, another average man who was forced to give up on his own dreams in the hope they might be fulfilled by his children. Some of the dreams were fulfilled, the others will have to wait for another generation. Fathers come to accept such facts of life.

It's funny about fathers, the things children remember aren't parental spankings and scoldings but images. The image that sticks with me is my father kneeling at the Communion rail on a Sunday morning, with holes the size of 50-cent pieces showing in his shoes. The reason I remember is that I was wearing new shoes. That morning at the Communion rail I learned the cost of my new shoes.

Years later I related that image to my father. The occasion was the last time I saw him. I'm glad I had the opportunity, but looking back I'm sorry I didn't tell him so much more. If I had known how late it was for him, I would have told him more than I did.

That's a recurrent theme in conversations at funerals. Sons and daughters just never get around to telling their parents how much they love them. This doesn't have to happen to you. And you can start the telling on Father's Day.

OVERHEARD: The boy waiting in line at the Sav-on Drug ice cream counter on Pine Avenue was maybe 6 or 7, and after a struggle he managed to untie the coins from a handkerchief much worse for wear. He ordered a double dip rocky road.

"That's a big cone for a guy your size," said the man next in line.

"It's not for me," said the lad. "It's a Father's Day present for my dad."

Good luck to him. The temperature outside was in the mid-70s. Maybe it was the "thawed" that counted with dear old Dad.

Irony of Toth arrest

It is ironic, but not surprising, that just as diplomats of 35 nations were about to open the planning phase of a conference to review how their countries have complied with human rights provisions of the 1975 Helsinki Agreement, the Soviet Union arrested Los Angeles news correspondent Robert C. Toth.

Toth was accused of collecting "secret information of a political and military character." Russia first said he would not be permitted to leave the country, as he had planned to do, but later gave permission.

EVERYTHING ABOUT the incident pointed to a frameup. A scientist telephoned Toth, saying he wanted to give the reporter some information. The scientist insisted they meet on a public street. He handed Toth a document, and immediately the secret police drove up and arrested the reporter.

The "secret information" reportedly was a study of the applications of parapsychology — hardly a document that threatened the security of the Soviet Union.

The White House, in a formal protest to the Soviet Union, said Toth's arrest "introduces a new and even more disturbing element into what seems to be a persistent effort by Soviet authorities to harass and intimidate American correspondents in the exercise of their profession."

The protest also said the arrest was "inconsistent" with Soviet pledges in the 1975 Helsinki Agreement.

It may be inconsistent with Soviet pledges, but it is not inconsistent with their actions. As we editorialized back in January, the Communists let it be known almost immediately after signing the agreement that they would not be bound by its provisions and then proceeded to ignore them in subsequent months.

The arrest of Toth was just the latest in a continuing series of violations by the Russians of both the spirit and letter of the Helsinki Agreement.

It is hard to avoid the conclusion that Toth's arrest was a gesture of defiance by the Soviet Union toward President Carter's criticism of its suppression of human rights.

THE HELSINKI Agreement changed nothing as far as human rights for individual Russian citizens are concerned. It means as little to Russian citizens as the Soviet constitution, which "guarantees" all manner of individual liberties — and which the government and the secret police continue to ignore.

The United States should maintain its efforts for peace and cooperation with the Soviet Union, but the Toth arrest reminds us that the Russians always are looking out for their own interests. We should give nothing for which we don't get full value.

Life with father

Clarence Day's father, entertainingly depicted in his book, "Life with Father," wouldn't have been found dead in an apron. Today, however, a lot of fathers are taking a far more active role in the raising of their children.

The whole "male mystique" about men not caring as much or not wanting to be with their children is being proven completely false. Divorced fathers, for example, who for years accepted the idea that women were better at caring for the children, are now, increasingly, demanding custody — and sometimes getting it.

Douglas M. Davis, editor of Newsweek, recently won exclusive custody of his two daughters after an eight-year legal battle.

"Yes, it was terrifying to think of raising them alone, because as men we're not raised to think we can do it," Davis said in an interview. "But I found delight and joy in being a single parent."

Still the legal and social bias toward maternal custody remains strong. It is estimated that more than 11 million children now live in single-parent homes, but only about 900,000 live with their fathers.

In an article in the June issue of Human Behavior magazine, Rita T. Gasser and Claribel M. Taylor of Ohio State University reported on interviews with 15 widowers and 25 divorced men who were raising children under 18 years on their own.

Despite lack of experience with housework, the researchers found, the fathers generally got along by sharing chores with the children. For the most part, they managed without a great deal of outside help from relatives or babysitters.

So, on Fathers Day 1977, we'd like to give a special nod of recognition to fathers who, for whatever reason, are raising children in a single-parent home. It's a tremendous challenge, but it can be rewarding beyond belief.

Dymally's ethnic report

Impedes efforts to end racism

SACRAMENTO — Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally has released a report on what he calls California's "Third World" population.

The report states that at present "31.7 per cent of California's total population are members of minority groups," and predicts that "if the present trend continues, by 1990, California's minorities will comprise a staggering 60.7 per cent of the total population."

The report is a sort of follow-up to remarks Dymally made early in May at a conference on the quality of life in California, sponsored by the San Jose Mercury News. The changing statistics are important, he said, because of the "nature of racism in society."

"Neither the media, the government, nor private interests are preparing for this emerging phenomena and will consequently be unprepared to meet the challenge," the lieutenant governor said when he released the report.

WHAT THAT "challenge" will be, neither Dymally nor the report specifies, but the very use of the word signifies an "us against them" response to an arbitrarily selected column of numbers.

Philosopher John Stuart Mill is referred to briefly in the report. He is said to have written, more than a century ago, that a society must utilize new ideas to correct past deficiencies because that is the only way a society could progress.

He would no doubt agree, the report predicts, that "the need to accurately assess the composition of a society is a superior idea because it is intrinsic to meeting the progressive needs of its citizenry."

It is suggested here that John Stuart Mill was correct when he said that new ideas are necessary if past deficiences are to be corrected by society. That, however, suggests the need to discard some of the old ideas.

One of those old ideas which might properly be discarded is "the need to accurately assess the composition of a society" if, by "composition," ethnic categorization is meant.

Bob Schmidt

View From Our State Bureau

The report contains a population table, with the state's estimated present population of 24 million people broken down into the following 18 categories, in descending order of size:

White, Mexican-American, Black, Japanese, Chinese, Filipino, American Indian, Portuguese, Puerto Rican, Cuban, Korean, East Indian, Guatemalan, Panamanian, Vietnamese, Samoan, Guamanian and Caribbean.

No attempt is made to define "white," or "black," or to define the difference, if any, between "black" and "Cuban" or "Panamanian." It is not explained in what category a child born of one white parent and one black parent is placed, and why.

Maybe what John Stuart Mill might say today is, "Why don't you just forget the whole idea of ethnic separation?"

In the April issue of California Journal, a monthly magazine dealing primarily with government and politics, a former assemblyman and college professor named Ray Gonzales raises an interesting point which Dymally and his report writers might have done well to contemplate.

Gonzales writes that the overwhelming defeat of the Cesar Chavez-backed Proposition 14 in 1976 may eventually be a boon to the great majority of Chicanos in the state.

Most non-Chicano Californians, Gonzales points out, automatically associate the word "Chicano" with the phrase "farm workers," and use the two interchangeably.

In fact, he says, 86 percent of California's Chicanos live in cities, and have no more knowledge of agriculture than any other city dwellers.

SIMILARLY, blacks who have become doctors, lawyers, engineers, merchants, i.e., "successful," have no more in common with the black high-school dropout standing on a street corner waiting for an old lady to mug than a white librarian has with a white Hell's Angel.

The keeping of statistics is a livelihood for statisticians, and the categorizing of people is a livelihood for demographers, and so in the striving for full employment perhaps there is value in the keeping of statistics about the number of Californians of Portuguese extraction.

But as a society painfully works its way toward that Utopian time when such labels have no relevance, one wonders why such leaders as Mervyn Dymally delay the arrival of that time by giving those amorphous labels a value they should not have.

Bill to make French Quebec's official tongue called vengeful

By Stanley M. Cohen
Editorial Research Reports

MONTREAL — Many French Quebecers are preparing to celebrate St. Jean Baptiste Day, the province's traditional June 24 holiday honoring its patron saint, with an unprecedented air of heady nationalism.

Inspired by the upset victory of the separatist Parti Quebecois in last November's election, they see this year's fete symbolizing the realization of a dream.

Although their conclusion for now is unwarranted — opinion polls indicate that Premier Rene Levesque could not win a majority in a referendum to remove Quebec from Canada politically — there are ardent nationalists who are convinced Quebec is well on its way to sovereign statehood.

And some of the province's non-French-speaking residents are hesitant to disagree. English and other minority language groups make up more than one million of Quebec's six million people.

They are deeply troubled by a language bill introduced on April 27 in the National Assembly, the provincial legislature. Known as Bill 1, this charter of the French language in Quebec would, through coercive provisions, ensure that French became the dominant language in the province — not only in everyday conversation, but in government, education, public institutions, public signs and private businesses. Other languages would be permitted on a restricted basis.

Editor's Note: Cohen is associate editor of the Montreal Star.

Bill 1 would impose penalties on violators, including heavy fines, loss of business permits, denial of contracts and refusal of professional licenses. The bill is currently before a committee of the National Assembly for public hearings.

Although the federal government in Ottawa has the power to disallow provincial acts, it has not used this power in more than 40 years. And observers say it would be politically inopportune for Ottawa to do so in this case. However, the federal government might join in a court challenge to one or more sections of the proposed Quebec act.

LANGUAGE legislation is not new in Quebec. The previous administration, under Liberal Premier Robert Bourassa, passed the Official Language Act amid protest, particularly from outside the French community. Some provisions of the current bill are similar, but far stronger in their demands, their restrictions and their penalties for non-compliance.

Criticism of the measure has not been confined to the non-French. Recently, 325 French-speaking business leaders, in a letter to Levesque and the bill's author, Dr. Camille Laurin, printed June 4 in the Montreal Star, expressed fear it would drive business away and trample on individual rights. Dr. Laurin, a Montreal psychiatrist and Quebec's minister for cultural development, accused them of being "loyal to the English establishment."

THERE IS LITTLE question, regardless of what party is in power, that French will become increasingly the language of government and business in Quebec. Many non-French Quebecers do not oppose that objective. Moreover, they accept the principle that a Quebec government has an obligation to protect and enhance the language of the province's French-speaking majority.

What does concern many people — French as well as English — is what they regard as the coercive and vengeful spirit of the proposed law. They are disturbed, too, that Quebec is making it difficult for non-French-speaking persons to settle here and uncomfortable for those who already live here.

Thus far, despite a plethora of home "for sale" signs, the exodus has been a trickle. There remains a "wait and see" attitude and a hope, albeit faint, that the government might amend the bill significantly.

Why wasn't Mrs. Carter given diplomatic status?

By Virginia Weldon Kelly

If the First Lady of a foreign country were to come without diplomatic credentials to the United States, and if she discussed matters of substance with our President, Americans would regard the situation as curious and intrusive.

President Nixon gave his wife ambassadorial status when she made her historic journey to Africa.

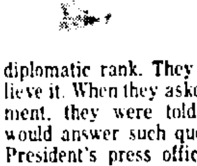
Many believe that President Carter should have made his wife a special ambassador before her recent trip to Jamaica, Central and South America.

In the face of his endorsing equal opportunities for women, it seems odd that Mr. Carter, of all people, should not have given the First Lady the professional status of an ambassador. By not doing so, however, he avoided making her accountable to the State Department, the Congress, and the people. By going as the First Lady, she could report only to her husband without having Congress and the public "prying" into every aspect of her trip.

It is generally believed that this trip is only the first that Mrs. Carter will undertake. For the protection of the President and First Lady, and for orderly diplomatic procedure, she should have the rank of envoy. This would mean that she would have to be judged objectively by the country on her diplomatic competence. First Ladies have nearly always enjoyed an immunity from criticism. Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Mrs. John F. Kennedy were criticized by the public and the press.

Mrs. Roosevelt never undertook discussions with foreign heads of state. Her trips in this country and elsewhere were fact finding missions for her husband, because his responsibilities, including the state of the economy and World War II plus his physical handicap, made it difficult for him to travel.

Before Mrs. Carter left the country, reporters were told that she did not have diplomatic rank. They could scarcely believe it. When they asked the State Department, they were told the White House would answer such queries. A call to the President's press office brought the answer, "Call Mrs. Carter's press office." A reporter who called Mrs. Carter's office was told, "Only one person has the authority to answer and she isn't around, but she will call you." The call was never returned.



Virginia Kelly

Before leaving, Mrs. Carter received 39 hours of briefings. In his column, former Senator Eugene J. McCarthy quipped that the President is a speed reader and that Mrs. Carter is a speed listener.

On her trip, Mrs. Carter received daily briefings of the sort that would be given ambassadors or other high ranking officials.

She was accompanied by Mrs. Cyrus Vance, wife of the Secretary of State, the Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs, and the U. S. Coordinator, Alliance for Progress, Terence A. Todman, a career foreign service officer; and by Mrs. Evan Dobelle, wife of the Chief of Protocol. There were 27 in the traveling party.

During her tour, Mrs. Carter carefully avoided controversy. In Brazil, she talked for several hours with President Ernesto Geisel about human rights. Diplomatically, Mrs. Carter said, "I think there have been misperceptions on the whole issue between our country and theirs." Later, she said, "I think we've narrowed those misperceptions."

In 1867, Emperor Maximilian of Mexico was executed.

In 1852, the U.S. Congress prohibited slavery in American territories.

In 1885, the Statue of Liberty arrived in New York from France, a gift of the French people.

In 1953, Julius and Ethel Rosenberg were executed at Sing Sing prison after being convicted as spies.

Ten years ago: President Nasser named himself Premier of the United Arab Republic.

Five years ago: Hurricane Agnes, blamed for 118 deaths, thundered ashore in Florida with 80-mile-an-hour winds.

One year ago: King Carl Gustaf of Sweden married Silvia Sommerlath, daughter of a West German businessman.

Thought for today: The farther backward you look, the farther forward you are likely to see. — Winston Churchill.

'Letters to editor' provide an educational service

The Independent, Press-Telegram's "Letters to the Editor" column is the place where one man's lie is another man's truth, where readers cry "ouch" when our editorials step on the corns of their pet ideology, bias, conviction, etc., where friends come to praise us and foes gather to bury us.

And, believe it or not, our "Letters" column is an informational service as well. So says Joe Maher of Long Beach, resident of this city for 44 years and until June 12 unaware of the existence of Rancho Los Alamitos and Rancho Los Cerritos.

Joe Maher discovered the ranchos by way of a letter to the editor written by Lonie Bosserman, Los Alamitos docent. She expounded on the wonders of the ranchos in answer to another letter writer who had charged Long Beach has only one tourist attraction — the Queen Mary.

But back to Joe Maher:

"Boy, can you ever live and learn. I'm going to have to find out where in the hell they (the ranchos) are and go visit them. I wonder how many other Long Beach residents are like me?"

There are probably many readers like Joe Maher, just as there are thousands and thousands of New York City residents who exist without any knowledge of the Statue of Liberty or Grant's Tomb. The fortunate among them encounter such wonders for the first time through the medium of a newspaper, perhaps in story form, perhaps in a letter to the editor.

F. C. Anderson

A millenium from now archeologists may be sifting through the ruins of Long Beach to determine what kind of a people we were, the quality of our minds, the fears and hopes we held. If the archeologists are lucky, they may find Page B-3 of the Independent, Press-Telegram, the page most often occupied by our letters to the editor.

It's possible to read those letters over a period of days and come to some firm conclusions about the writers. And when you know something about the writers, you have to know something about the society in which they lived.

Yes, I'd have to say the letters column is an educational experience for Joe Maher and the rest of us. I wouldn't miss it. It's the best show in town.

Let's shift from praise for the I, P-T to criticism, as voiced by Everett E. Cook of Compton, who says:

"I read your editorials all the time. I notice that when something happens involving handguns there is a lot said and printed. Everyone who does not like firearms wants to disarm the owners of handguns.

"But when someone dies as a result of smoking in bed, you don't say 'let's stop smoking in bed.'

"In the I, P-T last week there was a story about a 79-year-old woman who died in a fire caused by a cigarette she was smoking in bed. But did the I, P-T advise its readers against such practice, did the newspaper say 'let's stop making cigarettes?' It did not.

"...If you were to make a check, you'd find more people die from cigarette smoking than from handguns."

I think reader Cook has his editorials mixed up with his news stories. This newspaper doesn't advocate cigarette smoking any more than it advocates the proliferation of handguns. But a news story is hardly the place in which to insert an antismoking or antihandgun commercial.

I smoke, but I wouldn't have a handgun in the house. There are nonsmokers who feel safer with handguns in their houses. I'm not about to reform them, and they certainly aren't going to stop me from smoking, short of at the point of a gun.

Cigarettes kill people. Handguns kill people. People kill people: with their bare hands, if they lack other means of dispatch. Are we to recommend the chopping off of hands after every strangulation? I think not.

Antismoking injunctions belong in editorials, in pertinent medical stories about the the American Heart Association and the American Cancer Society, in letters to the editor. The only trouble with editorials about handguns, pro or con, is that people can't read and shoot at the same time.

Whether more people die from cigarettes than from handguns, I don't know. I do know there are people who succumb to both at the same time. These are the people who stand before a firing squad and ask for and get a last cigarette.

Whims and caprices

The Long Beach Planning Commission is preparing several new elements of the city's general plan, including a land use element and a shoreline element. Judging from past experience, the Planning Commission can be expected to ignore the general plan unless the public is alert and constantly looking over the shoulders of the commissioners to see that the plan is being implemented faithfully.

The Planning Commission approved construction of a YMCA in Scherer Park in spite of the statement in the Environmental Impact Report that "the facility does not conform to either the general plan or correct zoning." Many other examples could be given of the Planning Commission approving projects that are in violation of the general plan.

I spoke to the Planning Commission on June 9 and requested the commissioners to adopt a policy of conforming to the general plan. I told the commissioners that past violations of the plan constituted a breach of faith with the citizenry. But the planning commissioners turned down my request. They told me that they reserve the right to bypass the requirements of the general plan whenever they see fit to do so.

Thus, the city's general plan constitutes little more than a worthless scrap of paper, subject to the whims and caprices of the Planning Commission. For example, in Scherer Park, the general plan was for all practical purposes amended without benefit of citizen knowledge or participation.

Citizens participating in preparation of the city's new general plan should listen to the tape recording of the Planning Commission meeting of June 9. They will learn that the Planning Commission is willing and able arbitrarily to emasculate the general plan without public notice — and in one day to cancel the results of a year of citizen participation in planning for the future of Long Beach.

Power boat races

Mr. Watson, in defense of using Marine Stadium for drag boat races and other noise producing events, attempts to justify his position by the use of several fallacious arguments.

All homeowners did not purchase their homes when the noise level was high. Many residents owned their property when the purpose of Marine Stadium was solely for canoeing and rowing. Late purchasers of property should not be precluded from voicing their displeasure at the noise levels, pollution, traffic congestion, and the not yet fully examined impact of these races on marine life.

It should be considered that we are dealing with a recreational activity. Too often we attempt to justify the impact of an activity on the environment in the name of recreation.

While the residents of Long Beach may pay taxes that support this particular leisure activity, not all who pay these taxes necessarily enjoy this particular pastime. The mere fact that this activity may generate some revenue is not justification for continuing a nuisance.

Mr. Watson and others who favor this type of recreation should direct their efforts toward establishing a race area which can accommodate both noise and traffic congestion. Such an area might possibly be created off downtown Long Beach. Since the races are normally held on weekends and holidays, parking, noise levels and traffic congestion would have an effect on fewer residents. Further, commercial services are more readily available in the downtown area.

Since the Recreation Department serves all of Long Beach, all residents must be considered when the recreational program is being planned.

For Social Security

My heart bleeds for Dennis Sale of Norwalk in his letter, "End Social Security" (June 9). His reasoning blows my mind. He must be a young person who has no vision of what his future would be when he is 35 and can't get a job.

In the middle class and poor class who can save for old age? It's a rich country, but only for the rich. I paid into Social Security from 1937 to 1972 when I retired, and believe me, I thank God there was this very thing to help me now. I was glad to pay into it and I just barely eked out a living in my day. For 35 years I paid in and only got five years' benefits, but it's keeping me alive.

Haven't you thought about some day when you will be old and need help and there wouldn't be any? What then? Don't think for a minute you can be independent forever or are you one of the rich now and can make such a statement? Social Security is not food stamps or welfare.

The remark about the occupation of the U.S. by our enemies and the information falling into their hands—what has that kind of information got to do with Social Security? Lastly, putting the numbers on an infant's feet with additional numbers later on as time goes by: how about the numbers on all the people of the country. I have a real good suggestion on where to put the numbers: same place they branded cows in the old days. By the time that certain place heals, maybe it would give you time to think about this more rationally.

Judge not

Reading the daily newspaper can be a frightening experience. Either Anita Bryant is picking on another minority, or scientists are telling us that they have found another suspected cause of cancer.

I find it extremely disconcerting to be aware of the ever increasing number of people who just don't seem to care about the world around them. We are not the only people who have to live here. We are responsible for what happens in the future. Let's stop judging people and start caring.

Deepsea diving

Regarding your Q & A with Cmdr. Garland Suggs on Monday, June 13, these comments:

Cmdr. Suggs' memory is dimmed by time. The submarine Squalus sank on May 23, 1939, not March, as so stated.

Many a sailorman, particularly submariners, shivered when they saw this name Momsen come out in the articles as Munson . . . Tch! Tch!

Quoting from Nat A. Barrows, "Blow All Ballast!", Dodd, Mead & Co., 1940, on Momsen (This report by Adm. Cous):

"Commander C. B. Momsen. As officer in charge of the Experimental Diving Unit, Commander Momsen reported with the men of his unit to the senior officer present at the scene of the Squalus disaster early in the morning of May 24, 1939. He was immediately made diving officer on the staff. From then until the end of the Squalus rescue and salvage operations, he handled with rare skill, initiative and good judgment all diving operations. This was a period of the greatest diving effort in the world's history. That in 640 dives, under the most severe conditions, there was not a single loss of life or a single personal injury speaks for the eternal vigilance, professional skill, technical knowledge and rare judgement and initiative of Commander Momsen. He is an outstanding officer."

Cruelty to animals

Planning directors and planning commissions of some South Bay cities and generally throughout the state are permitting acts of cruelty to be performed on helpless wild and domestic animals, and further permit unnatural acts by allowing the caging of and maintaining of wild creatures in narrow, confined spaces.

At Del Amo school they keep George the snake in a classroom. George is tied in knots by the kids.

In Carson, a panther was declawed, and defanged as a condition of keeping the animal in an apartment house. A P-A-N-T-H-E-R. In typical fashion, after the poor, hapless pet and its owner went through sympathetic pain and real pain, plus thousands of dollars in medical bills the officials changed their minds. I am told that the planning director and the Planning Commission of Torrance will welcome this travesty of a panther. How sad.

In Torrance, the planning director will allow iguanas, ocelots, alligators and snakes, but not contributing animals as chickens and ducks.

To take an animal from its wild habitat and confine it in most unnatural surroundings constitutes cruel and unusual punishment in the eyes of this writer, and to stipulate that an animal be made a mockery of what it once was by defanging and declawing is most heinous.

This writer strongly suggests that a board be made to pass on the keeping of animals, such board answerable to a state agency. Such a board to be comprised of a Humane Society member, a school trustee and five members of the general public who are interested in the welfare of animals and their keeping.

They are serving

In reference to a letter to the editor, "Show me I'm wrong," by John Northmore:

I thank John for his fine article and congratulate him on the excellent job he does with "Teen Post," but I must set the record straight regarding the support given by service clubs to the Boys' Club of Long Beach.

Most of the service clubs, including some auxiliary ladies' clubs, in Long Beach and Lakewood contribute to the Boys' Clubs and many are long-time supporters of our annual fund-raising Golden Boy Award Dinner and Auction, which is one of the highlights of the Long Beach social calendar.

Many service club members serve on our board of directors, as members of the staff and as volunteers in our four branches, so we at the Boys' Club are indeed greatly indebted to the very active service clubs in our area.

A warming sight

I saw a curious sight Wednesday morning, June 8. As I walked down Pacific Avenue at the corner of fith or sixth street, I can't remember which, I noticed a frail, gray-haired old lady holding desperately onto a lamp post. Before I was able to walk across the street and lend some assistance, four or five persons had gathered around her, each trying to help. In what seemed a few short minutes, a huge fire truck pulled up. Out jumped several young, blue uniformed men racing toward her with willing arms and equipment. How strange the contrast. Energetic youth and stricken old age. Yet how satisfying it was to see a portrait of something good in the downtown area where oldsters haunt the sidewalks, lone shadows shuffling along decaying streets lined with dirty, out-of-business stores.

Rats on Riviera

We have endeavored on numerous occasions to get the Los Angeles County Health Department to do something about the rats and skunks that are a plague to the Riviera section of the City of Torrance.

The skunks are so bold they eat the food out of the plates set for the dogs and cats! At one house, they even beg and scratch at the door so the occupants will notice them and feed them. This at feeding time for their pets!

As for the rats! A sad commentary — rats in the Riviera! It seems rats are not respecters of wealth, status or economic position. They live in the ivy and ice plant which abounds here on the rolling hills. Can't they go elsewhere?

Please put a soft word into the ears of the Health Department.

Back to nature

I spent an hour in a beautiful corner of the world today — a corner I hadn't realized existed.

The Altrusa Club of Long Beach has donated a wheelchair to be used by the guests of the Nature Center at El Dorado Park and I went with my niece to deliver it. I've lived in this area more years than I'd care to tell, and today was like taking a walk through a countryside I'd thought long gone.

When I came to Long Beach as a child, we didn't have to drive very far to be in the country, to watch ducks dipping their heads into ponds, to see wild animals popping into holes, to see and hear colorful birds all around us, to see and enjoy the lovely scent of wild sage and honeysuckle or just to walk along a tree-lined path through the woods. I did all these things again today.

The special use trail at El Dorado Park has a paved path which is very easy to navigate, provided by the Kiwanis Club, and the area has been aided in other ways by several other public service groups. There are benches on the trail where one can relax, as well as in other lovely areas in and around the center itself. Ranger Hal Boyle is a most enthusiastic person, and truly enjoys "selling his products."

A walk or ride around this special use trail at El Dorado should certainly be a must on everyone's list.

Know your medicine

In the Sunday, June 5, edition, Parade magazine carried an article entitled "What You Don't Know about your Medicine Can Hurt You," by Nancy Chasen.

This was an excellent article and proved to be a great help to me. I have passed it on to many of my friends. Regardless of the great American Medical Association, I agree with Dr. Schmidt when he states, "The patient has an obligation to know what he is taking..."

Many thanks for this article.

A rare pleasure

A rare pleasure it is today to live in an inner-city community that keeps its heart open to the young therein.

The PTA of Robert Louis Stevenson Elementary School takes pleasure in telling the members of our unusual city that everyone who was informed of the sixth grade graduation party was delighted to contribute some special souvenir or memento. Our PTA representatives found only friendliness, warmth and encouragement in their contacts with the various businesses, associations, government and private organizations.

Our boys and girls and our PTA would like to say "thank you" to a city composed of such kind and thoughtful individuals.

Graffito hoodlums

Isn't there something that can be done to stop the surge of obscene writing on our buildings, benches, fences or anywhere else that these hoodlums can write upon?

One cannot sit on the benches while waiting for a bus without later finding imprints of this scrawling on our light clothing. And now they have defaced the beautiful Baptist Church walls at 10th and Pine Avenue. Please help.

Election dissension marks women's meeting

in both the audiences and on the workshop agendas.

"They've been bringing in busloads of people already preregistered and, even though they've said that it's been cut off, they've been taking them elsewhere to register them," Mrs. Boswell charged.

"Everything is very slanted, and I think this should be done again with more representation, more legality and more notification. Many churches, PTAs and women's groups were not notified of this conference."

Mrs. Boswell also voiced concern for the printed lists of specialized slates being carried into the voting area. Since the formal introduction of the delegates and 36 others nominated from the floor at the opening session Friday morning, numerous groups had devised lists of delegates as alternatives to the IWY list.

Flyers and placards appeared all over the USC campus urging conference participants to vote for IWY-nominated and write-in candidates sympathetic to such groups as the National Organization for Women, gays, Chicanas and Latinas, Blacks, Right to Life League and Native American Indians.

And although many people were drawn to the conference by the advance rumors that Stop ERA National President Phyllis Schlafly and members would disrupt the event, the group that most worried state IWY Chairwoman Sally Martinez was a small group of extremist Black feminists. (Mrs. Schlafly did not attend, although Mary Schmitz did.)

"They've made unreasonable demands, although we've tried to do everything they wanted," said Ms. Martinez. "They want 14 more black women members on the IWY Committee, and they want a black woman named chairwoman."

IWY presiding officer Carmela Lacayo, vice chairwoman of the Democratic National Committee, said she was concerned about the apparent deep divisions between ERA supporters and opponents at the conference.

"Every other conference across the United States has had trouble getting organized and getting out unified resolutions because of the tremendous divisions," she explained. "Unfortunately, I think that personality attacks are the cause of dissension on ERA and in the women's movement."

Members of several special interest groups were visible at the conference Saturday, but most were peaceful and orderly and content for the present to quietly observe the event and take notes for later actions. Only three picket signs were paraded — two chastising singer Anita Bryant for her anti-homosexual rights stand and one supporting the Right to Life League.

Earlier in the day at the opening workshops, a group of panelists painted a bleak picture of women's rights and progress for several thousand in the audience at the Shrine Auditorium.

Panelists Diane Russell and Dina Iguchi noted that an amendment to the HEW appropriations bill had been passed by Congress Friday, cutting off federal aid for women seeking abortions.

"Unfortunately, President Carter says he's for women's rights and yet he's one of the people taking away the poor women's rights by disallowing Medicaid funds for abortions," said Ms. Russell, an associate professor of sociology at Mills College.

"This means that poor women will not be able to get abortions but the rich woman will always be able to get abortions because money buys," said Ms. Iguchi, the panel moderator and a specialist on criminal justice systems.

Afternoon workshops dealing with politics featured, among others, Assemblywoman Teresa Hughes, D-Los Angeles; Maxine Waters and Marilyn Ryan. Rep. Yvonne Brathwaite Burke, D-Los Angeles, who had been scheduled to speak Friday, arrived at the Saturday session in time to walk the campus and talk with conference participants. She had been delayed in Washington Friday by the HEW bill vote.

The IWY conference concludes today with the results of the Houston delegation election and voting on resolutions to be taken to the national convention.

Udall, Nader speakers at energy parley

parts of President Carter's energy proposals.

He, Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., chairman of the House Interior Committee, and consumer advocate Ralph Nader said the plan should do more to create competition among oil and natural gas companies.

The senator also said Carter's proposal "provides a special bonus to producers of Alaskan oil without any justifiable reason." He said Federal Energy Administrator John O'Leary last month said these revenues would amount to "a windfall for the oil companies — more than $2 billion for Britsh Petroleum, Arco and Sohio."

Metzenbaum and Nader supported formation of a federal company to develop energy resources on government lands. Metzenbaum said such a company would be a "barometer for costs" in the industry. He said that last year there was such a bill by Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., but it has not been reintroduced.

SEN. HOWARD METZENBAUM

NADER ASKED, "Do we want our resouces to be put up at auction at inadequate bids?" He answered that by saying oil, gas and other forms of energy on federal lands are an "annuity" for the people and as such should be developed by some kind of government firm.

He was also critical of the administration's plan for not stressing development of solar energy and conservation and for generally not having a "unifying view."

Both Metzenbaum and Nader said Carter's plan relies too heavily on increasing the price of oil to provide incentives to oil companies to search for oil.

"A careful study of the costs associated with the production of oil and natural gas," the senator said in his formal remarks, "clearly demonstrates that while greatly increased prices have provided producers with record profits, the increased profits have not been accompanied by noticeable increases in production."

Udall echoed similar sentiments but didn't go quite as far in his own proposals.

He said he will begin hearings in Washington Tuesday on his Federal Resources Energy Act that would take effect in two years. Under it, oil and other energy-related leases on federal lands would only go to companies involved in one energy business. For instance, an oil lease could only be bid on by a firm involved in the petroleum business and not other energy fields such as coal or natural gas.

The National Democratic Forum is a nonprofit organization based in Washington and founded in 1973 by Democrats involved in the 1972 presidential campaign.

New Immigration chief visits Long Beach area

Leonel Castillo plans to spend a few hours with his family in Houston today.

Since being sworn in May 13 as the first Mexican-American to head the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, he hasn't had much of a chance to see his wife and two children. He says he's been working seven days a week.

President Carter prophesized this heavy work schedule when he told Castillo that heading INS is one of the toughest jobs in government, maybe even tougher than Carter's.

On Friday and Saturday, Castillo was working in the Long Beach area, meeting with employe groups, Mexican-American groups and speaking at the Harbor district IMAGE dinner at the Queensway Hilton in Long Beach.

LEONEL CASTILLO

CASTILLO, 38, moved easily among the crowd, chatting casually and asking for suggestions on how to improve his agency. He spoke quietly but firmly that he could make INS an efficient but still compassionate government agency.

He said his first task is to reduce the backlog of cases his agency has accumulated. He said the backlog in the Los Angeles office amounts to 5,000 cases and that many aliens legally in the U.S. have to spend the night waiting to be served at offices the next morning.

He thinks Carter will commit money and manpower to reduce this. Castillo also wants to computerize his agency's operations.

Growing up in Galveston, Tex., Castillo says he never really thought about being a high-level government official. He was born in Victoria, Tex.

His background includes a stint in the Peace Corps and, until his INS appointment, serving as treasurer of the Texas state Democratic Party and controller of the city of Houston.

While in the Long Beach area, Castillo was privately explaining Carter's forthcoming immigration proposals to Mexican-American groups. He was also meeting with INS employes. The IMAGE group to which he spoke Friday promotes employment of Spanish-surnamed persons in government.

One of the main features of that proposal probably will be some form of "amnesty" for aliens illegally in the U.S. prior to the early 1970s.

He spoke about one subject of particular concern to Southland counties — reimbursement for health care to illegal aliens. He said he recently testified in Congress in support of a bill that would provide such aid.

"My job is to bring the agency up to date and humanize the process," Castillo said.

Yet for him there is a price — being away from his home and family, except on rare occasions like today. Eventually, he hopes to move his family to Washington.

Housing red tape scored in L.B.

in older neighborhoods. Wiedmann said cities should change zoning laws to allow the conversion of apartments to condominiums, encouraging an influx of improvement-oriented owners rather than less-concerned renters, therby bringing more stability to the neighborhood.

Dick Major, chairman of the housing fair and housing director for Long Beach, said 9 per cent of the housing in Long Beach is debilitated.

Leanne Lachman, vice president of the Chicago-based Real Estate Research Corp., said blight evolves slowly in a neighborhood.

She noted that property values in such an area may be stable, but people are unsure what will happen to the neighborhood and are reluctant to spend money on repairs, painting or remodeling the kitchen when they may move in a year or two to a newer neighborhood.

Ms. Lachman said public works projects are very important in such a neighborhood. Streets must be resurfaced and swept clean regularly, and parks must be well-maintained.

Such action shows the city's commitment to the neighborhood and bolsters the residents' confidence, encouraging them to invest their own money in home improvements.

Abandoned, boarded-up buildings should be condemned and demolished because they have a strongly negative psychological effect on residents, she continued. Building and zoning codes should be strictly enforced to prevent deterioration.

"It's less expensive to deal with problems of blight early rather than waiting until later," she said. "In the past, federal funds for community redevelopment were devoted to total clearance and rebuilding. Now funds are available for rehabilitation."

Dwain Liggett, housing rehabilitation supervisor for Long Beach, explained the low interest loans available through the city with federal funds to bring dwellings up to the city's minimum housing code (including electrical, plumbing, heating and structural elements and yard conditions).

Homeowners in nine designated neighborhoods in Long Beach may borrow up to $17,400 at 3 per cent interest for a 20-year loan term or, for special income categories, up to $9,500 with no interest and deferred payment until the property is sold or transferred.

Liggett said the city expects to loan $1 million for neighborhood preservation during the 1977-78 fiscal year in areas near Webster School, Stephens School, Poly High, Burnett School, Lee School, Rose Park, Anaheim Street at Cherry Avenue, Seventh Street at Cherry and Santa Fe Avenue at Willow Street.

Those properties that have not been brought up to minimum compliance when the loan program is discontinued will be inspected by the city and owners will be required to make necessary improvements without the benefit of the loan program, which will continue as long as enough owners are participating in it.

Councilwoman Eunice Sato pointed out that publicly subsidized housing is available to everyone, not just low income families.

Scottish event expected to draw 20,000

The United Scottish Societies 45th Annual Highland Gathering & Games, scheduled for next Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium, is expected to draw some 20,000 tourists and contestants from throughout North America.

In the past the gathering, sponsored by the United Scottish Societies Inc., was hosted in Santa Monica.

This year the day-long pageant, starting at 8:30 a.m., will offer a panorama of Scottish history through a series of events taking place along the stadium field.

Competitions in piping, drumming, Highland dancing and athletics for children and adults are part of the traditional gathering.

All adult athletic competitors will be required to wear kilts, with the exception of contestants in the tug of war.

Booths will feature Scottish foods, kilts, bagpipes, records, books and other items.

The "Arizona Scottish Singers" of Tempe will perform the National Anthem at the welcoming ceremonies at 12:30 p.m.

SEVERAL championship tossers of cabers — a Gaelic pole — are expected to attend to continue a tradition that dates back to the 16th century.

Camping space for self-contained vehicles will be available on the parking lot next to the stadium, says Highland Games chieftain Art Roberts. The fee is $3 for one night and $5 for two nights, with public restrooms available.

Sometime past 4:30 p.m., near the end of the gathering, the Massed Pipe Bands will salute the presentation of the major competition awards.

Admission is $3, parking 50 cents.

Prior to the Saturday gathering, there will also be a special "piobaireachd" concert and competition, with amateur and professional pipers playing the classic music of the great Highland bagpipe dating from the 16th and 17th centuries. This will take place Friday at Long Beach City College's Liberal Arts Campus, in Studio C, at 7:30 p.m.

Five new classes have been added to the original 150 classes, including layman law, crafts workshop, custodian training, Citizen Band electronics and photography.

Parents and their children can learn together during Parent Participation Pre-school classes for tots between 3 and 5.

Detectives' gunplay ended in death of I-PT reporter

(Cont. from Page B-1)

Blood gushed from his nose and mouth.

"Oh no, God no, no . . . no," Wiggins was on his feet. "Get help. Hurry . . . my God, Bill."

Greenleaf knew he was dead but didn't say a word. He ran to the hallway, sprinting, yelling, crying. It wasn't real. It wasn't real.

It was real. Bill Hunter was dead before anyone else reached the press room and found him, still in his chair, his head cradled by Wiggins.

A single shot struck him directly in the heart. He died instantly.

When Greenleaf returned, Wiggins was sitting on the floor outside the press room, his back against the wall.

"What happened?" Greenleaf asked.

"I dropped my gun." Wiggins was crying.

Greenleaf knew better. The gun couldn't fire without trigger pressure.

"It's not possible," he told Wiggins. The two men were less than 15 feet from where Hunter had died. Wiggins was sheet-white, his hands went to his face.

"I dropped my gun," he said, more to himself than Greenleaf.

Police officers escorted the two away to separate rooms then. The questioning began. Wiggins insisted he'd dropped the gun while taking off his raincoat. When he scooped it up, he said, it fired.

Greenleaf told the truth — as far as he went. He said he didn't see it happen. Didn't hear the gun fall.

HE SAID nothing about the gunplay.

He was shaken. Hunter was dead — his own partner had fired the shot that killed him. There could be absolutely no excuse now. Between the two of them, Wiggins and Greenleaf, there was 16 years experience.

Now that meant nothing. Greenleaf knew Wiggins was gone. No suspension for something like this. At best, he would be allowed to resign.

Greenleaf could say nothing to defend him. There was no defense. But for the next few crucial hours, Errol Greenleaf would not make it worse, for himself or his partner. The gunplay wasn't mentioned. No one else had seen it.

The next morning's Independent carried the story of Hunter's death, with the front page explanation of the dropped gun, and pictures of Hunter and Wiggins.

Shortly after the newspaper hit the streets, however — and 13 hours after the shooting, Errol Greenleaf told the truth.

"It's going to come out, anyway," he said. And he laid it out.

The delay in telling the complete story of what had happened threw the entire case into a different light. The immediate question asked by newsmen was whether the two policemen had told the truth about other aspects of the shooting — and whether the police department was initiating a coverup.

A CORONER'S inquest a week after the shooting stirred up more controversy. Though the horseplay had been made public, officers testifying said they saw nothing unusual transpire in the hallway moments before Hunter was killed.

Wiggins, seated with his attorney throughout the inquest, wept openly during testimony about the cause of death and during his own testimony.

Greenleaf did not have an attorney at the inquest.

Even when the coroner's jury ruled Hunter's death involuntary manslaughter, Greenleaf did not seek an attorney. Later, he would admit he never believed he needed one. He didn't think he was going to be charged with anything.

On May 4, Wiggins and Greenleaf were fired.

On May 5, they were arraigned on charges of involuntary manslaughter. At the suggestion of a police captain, Errol Greenleaf got an attorney, E. Fred Lightner.

On May 13, Wiggins asked that, for purposes of future employment, he be allowed to resign rather than face dismissal. He said he had no "aim or desire" to ever work as a police officer again. He cited his career record.

A DAY LATER, Greenleaf denied all charges in a letter appealing his dismisal from the force, saying, "I have not been guilty of any breach of duty or of misconduct sufficient to warrant my dismissal."

Wiggins, as Greenleaf had known from the moment of the shooting, was done as a policeman. Greenleaf wasn't willing to make that same judgment in his own case.

A long legal process began. In June, both officers plead not guilty to charges. Later, their cases would be severed, and in August Wiggins entered a plea of nolo contendere — no contest — and was soon after placed on three years' probation.

A probation officer said a self-inflicted "life sentence of guilt and self-recrimination" was enough. Other police officers embraced Wiggins as he left the courtroom crying.

The headlines the next day said "Wiggins escapes prison sentence."

Errol Greenleaf suffered what his doctor termed hypertension of the heart, and his trial was postponed.

On Jan. 4, 1965, Greenleaf — against the advice of his attorney, asked that his case be judged on testimony given at the preliminary hearing, avoiding a jury trial.

Four days later, he was found guilty. Like his partner, Greenleaf was given three years' probation on Jan. 20. Outside the courtroom he told his attorney, "I presume justice has been done."

More than 12 years later, E. Fred Lightner was called at home and asked if he'd talk about the case of Errol Greenleaf.

He was silent a moment. He said he hadn't seen Greenleaf since just after the trial. Then his voice cracked.

"There was never a man more innocent than Errol Greenleaf. I could've proved that. No jury in the world would have convicted him."

Then why didn't Greenleaf go to a jury trial?

Lightner sighed. "Part of my defense was to subpoena 20 Long Beach police officers and have them testify, under oath, to having participated or witnessed gunplay within the department in the six-month period before that shooting."

One of the officers, a captain, would have had to admit to firing his service revolver into the ceiling of his office three times while toying with it, Lightner said.

HORSEPLAY with guns, he said, was frequent and common among officers in 1964.

"Conviction for manslaughter requires that there be intent or criminal negligence present. There wasn't," he says flatly.

But Greenleaf vetoed that defense, Lightner says, insisting he would not involve anyone else from the department in his troubles.

"He would have been acquitted. No doubt in my mind. He was innocent."

At the end of the interview, Lightner pointed to a stack of papers attached to Greenleaf's case file. "You should have seen the hate mail," he said. "The threats he got. The pressure on him was tremendous. I never saw him break down."

Errol Greenleaf did, though. Once. May 4, 1964.

"A lieutenant walked over to me and asked for my badge. It was probably the toughest moment in my life. I sat down and cried. It just all came down on me."

Greenleaf smoked another cigarette. He is 45 now. A real estate salesman in Huntington Beach. He spent nearly 10 years working with Sears in security.

His weight ballooned from 225 to 275 pounds at one point, but now he's down to 210. He dragged on the cigarette again.

"I haven't seen Creighton in 10 years. I've only seen him twice since the trials, both times by accident. I don't even know where he lives."

He was asked about the jury trial — why hadn't he asked for one. Why hadn't he appealed the conviction?

"Part of it was the other guys. I couldn't see dragging them into it. They were catching so much heat already from the press. And part of it was my health. The heart thing was very real. And the case was damn near a year old.

"I WAS TIRED of the headlines. Of going to the supermarket and having people call me a killer or a murderer.

"To tell you the truth, I didn't appeal because I wasn't sure I could take anymore. I got telephone calls. Letters. People thought I didn't care . . ."

Greenleaf smiled faintly. "Bill Hunter was my friend."

He talked about real estate, about the market in houses. About his family.

"My wife supported us for a year after the conviction. I couldn't get a job because of the publicity the case got. About the time things got really bad, a couple police officers brought by an envelope full of money they'd collected at the station and left it at my house. It was $3,000.

"I loved being a police officer. I never worked a single day I wasn't glad to be one. It's all I ever wanted to be, and I was a damned good cop.

"I still wish I was a policeman, yeah. I guess I think about all the time, in the back of my mind. And I think about what happened. I used to have dreams every night — nightmares."

GREENLEAF smiles again, very faintly. He says he asked for the transfer a week before the shooting because "I thought it was best . . ." and lets it go at that.

He says he often thinks about how close he came to calling in sick April 22.

"And I think about how useless, how stupid and useless the whole thing was. I've always felt morally guilty for what happened. I never felt criminally guilty."

He looked up suddenly. "You know, all through it, up to the moment they convicted me, I never thought it would happen. I never believed I'd lose my job."

Why did he lie about the gunplay during those crucial hours after the shooting?

"I was scared," he said simply. "I make no excuse for that. I was in a state of shock. I was scared out of my mind. Creighton was saying he'd dropped his

A new use of an age-old therapy

Allergies

For hundreds of years, [illegible] recognized the curative virtues of their [illegible] fluids.

In Europe, Asia and Central America these natural fluids were freely used to treat physical ailments.

Today, there is a growing awareness that [illegible] methods were of great value. In fact, there is a large mass of [illegible] and clinical evidence that every person's own body fluids contain [illegible] fighting diseases specific to that person.

These substances are as unique to each person as his or her fingerprints.

When an individual's own body [illegible] are used to treat that individual's own [illegible]

· · · · · · ·

Reports on [illegible] began appearing in Western medical literature during the 1890s. [illegible] scientists began to [illegible] information on use of natural body fluids [illegible] allergic reactions. Among these scientists was Dr. [illegible], Albert Einstein's personal physician and closest friend.

· · · · · · ·

A few American physicians [illegible] became aware of autogenous (self-produced) therapy [illegible] allergies and about 50 years ago began using (and improving) [illegible] for their own patients.

· · · · · ·

The results were astonishing. [illegible] of case histories [illegible] compiled. Records revealed a startling 85 [illegible] recovery rate [illegible] the whole range of allergic disorders [illegible] eczema, hay fever, hives, intestinal disturbances, allergy-linked headaches and reactions to foods.

The American physicians who pioneered auto-immunization for allergies were, and are, men of impeccable professional reputation. They are men who founded hospitals, who held research fellowships from the nation's top medical schools, and who were, indeed, scientists as well as practicing physicians.

· · · · · · ·

Their detailed case histories revealed not one single instance of harm resulting from auto-immunization. There is, in fact, much research data already published on auto-immunization for allergies, and none of this information indicates a single major side effect connected to autogenous therapy.

· · · · · · ·

The Allergy Care Medical Clinic of Lakewood administers an advanced auto-immunization technique, a method refined far beyond those employed by early investigators.

This therapy is a short-term, vaccination-like method which recycles immunizing agents believed by scientists to be naturally present in body fluids.

The body appears to use these agents as "a lock to a key" in building immunity to allergic disease.

Can't afford new home? Fix up the old one

Editor's Note: The American home is getting so expensive that the homeowner finds there is only one thing to do — put more money into the one you have. You can't afford anything else anyway. It's a boon to the home improvement trade and the local lumber yard.

By Andy Lang
Associated Press

Few people, it seems, are satisfied with that "home, sweet home" they broke their backs to buy.

The result is a cacophony of hammers, saws, drills and delivery trucks as Americans struggle to make the old homestead something it wasn't.

Americans spent more than $30 billion last year to improve their homes. It's a clear contrast to the housing industry's depressed state, but the home improvement market has been going up for more than a decade.

AFTER A STEADY increase of $1 billion a year until 1974, it then jumped from $18.5 billion to $22.1 billion — and last year leapt a clear $5 billion.

How is this money being spent? Kitchens, bathrooms, basements and attics are being remodeled. Porches are being enclosed, walls paneled and floor tiled. Wallpaper is being hung, paint spread and houses cooled. New siding is going up and carpets are going down.

Exhaust fans are being added and electrical circuits expanded. There is even a spurt in the sales of less essential items such as swimming pools, saunas, whirlpool baths, greenhouses and tennis courts.

And just to make sure they can enjoy these additions to the good life in comparative safety, people are buying record-breaking numbers of burglar alarms and smoke detectors.

The transition from a reasonable annual increase, caused partly by inflation, to a marked surge occurred when so many families began to be priced out of the housing market.

Randy Siefert, general counsel of the National Home Improvement Council, puts it this way:

"IF IT DIDN'T pay to sell the old house to buy a new one, partly because the profit on the former would be wiped out by the premium on the latter and partly because of the big difference in the mortgage interest rate, a family figured that it might as well make the old one a better place to live."

A family that paid $25,000 for a house 10 or 12 years ago might find that its present market value is $50,000.

If it purchases a new house for $50,000, thus avoiding a capital gains tax on the profit, it might have to settle for a smaller house without the improvements that had been made over the years.

Even more important, its new mortgage interest rate would be in the neighborhood of 9 per cent, compared with a rate several points less on the old mortgage, thus increasing the size of the monthly payments.

Also, those who choose to purchase what the real estate business calls "existing" houses — to distinguish them from new ones — in most cases immediately begin to remold them to suit their own tastes.

A FACET of human nature especially prevalent among home buyers is the desire to change the appearance of something that seemed perfectly satisfactory at the time of purchase.

Siefert says the home improvement sales figures began to move sharply upward when the median price of a new house reached $42,000. The Federal Home Loan Bank Board reported on Oct. 19th of last year that the average price of a new house had reached $50,500.

While you can get houses between $20,000 and $40,000 if you are willing to accept smaller lots and fewer square feet of habitable area, not many people seem so inclined.

The housing industry is learning what automobile manufacturers have known for several years — that the public is not yet ready to relinquish the good things it has been taught to enjoy.

Except in a few locations where population growth has created a demand that is difficult to meet, people are rejecting stripped-down "no frills" models in favor of houses that give them at least some of the amenities.

IT IS THIS public attitude that is making home improvement contractors and the manufacturers of the necessary materials so pleased with what is happening.

Nobody can really be sure how many familes are having the work done by professionals and how many are doing it themselves, simply because there is so much overlap in many of the projects.

But one educated estimate comes from a home improvement council executive vice president, John Hammond, who says:

"A few years ago, we figured that about 40 per cent of the improvement work was being done by do-it-yourselfers. From the rough figures we have at hand, that percentage now is at least 50 per cent, and the chances are that it will go even higher in the next couple of years."

WHAT'S THE MOST popular home improvement? No argument there. Year after year, it's kitchen remodeling. That, unless you are talking about adding a room or building a garage, is about the most expensive type of remodeling there is.

Langslet gets merit award

C. Robert Langslet & Son, Inc., developer of several area housing tracts, has received a Gold Nugget Merit Award from the Pacific Coast Builders' Conference for the company's distinctive new headquarters at 206 Redondo Ave., Long Beach.

The attractive building, conceived by the architectural firm of Hugh Gibbs and Donald Gibbs, is set amid a sylvan atmosphere of heavily landscaped slopes, waterways, boulders and waterfalls.

The structure was applauded by the builders' conference and the Sales and Marketing Council of the Building Industry Association of Southern California in the "Best Commercial Development" category.

A spokesman for the company said the building was "created to project an image of quality and expertise for a builder whose reputation for excellence in building spans some 25 years."

The spokesman added that the response from employes, clients, suppliers, contractors and guests who attended a recent open house show that "the structure more than meets this goal."

To achieve "a larger than life" impression, the architect utilized a glass and beam structure that combines the elements of drama and simplicity, the spokesman said.

The glass walls require no corner frames, and the overlapping panels extend from floor to ceiling. Above, 75-foot-long beams define the ceiling.

The spokesman added that the "total vision" concept of the building includes the exterior landscaping, dramatic interior decor and flowing open lines for an eye-appealing — as well as functional — working environment.

The three individual offices contain acoustics for privacy while retaining individual views of the landscaped slopes, pools and waterfalls.

"The result," noted the spokesman, "is total privacy without a closed-in feeling.

"In addition, the dramatic interior design combines brilliant oranges and greens with deep black for emphasis. This striking decor lends impact and contrast to the natural exterior landscaping. The total effect is one of simplicity, but boldness of statement."

In conclusion, the spokesman commented:

"The new C. Robert Langslet & Son, Inc., building expresses a philosophy. We have combined natural beauty, enhanced by man's originality and creativity, for an exceptional use of land, structural concept and overall decor in a practical and unique commercial building."

The builder's most recent residential projects include Peppertree Villas in Long Beach and the under-construction Lakewood Shores development.

The 232-home Lakewood complex, located on Centralia Street just east of Bloomfield Avenue, will also feature a water-oriented atmosphere. Sales on the project are to begin this summer.

Newport Beach firm garners Gold Nuggets

Richardson Nagy Martin, a Newport Beach-based architectural and planning firm, has received two Gold Nugget awards during competition sponsored by the Pacific Coast Builders Conference and the Sales and Marketing Council of the Building Industry Association.

The firm captured the coveted awards for an Orange County hillside condominium and a San Diego hillside apartment complex.

The Gold Nugget awards, presented at the conference in San Francisco June 2, are designed to recognize the best residential, commercial, industrial and institutional projects in 13 Western states.

RICHARDSON NAGY MARTIN received its Gold Nuggets for The Hollyhock, an attached home constructed in the Turtle Rock Glen section of Irvine by Irvine Pacific Development Co., and Two Parks, an apartment complex developed in North San Diego's University City by Techbilt Construction Co.

A spokesman said the firm is one of the most consistently honored developers in the Gold Nugget Awards Competition, having received five awards in 1976, eight in 1974 and four in 1973.

Altogether, the firm has won 30 Gold Nugget awards and a total of 41 major architectural awards.

The spokesman said this year's awards included the Award of Merit in the single-family attached home category of structures over 1,800 square feet for The Hollyhock.

THE HOLLYHOCK, he added, is a three-bedroom downhill model with family room and den. It has an all-wood exterior of either cedar plank siding or cedar shingles.

THE SPOKESMAN said the firm's Two Parks development in San Diego won its award in the low-rise apartment category.

He said Two Parks is a 145-unit development, with apartments ranging in size from 875 to 1,637 square feet.

The apartment complex features contemporary design and spaciousness.

ARTIST'S CONCEPTION shows park-like setting of luxury Woodside/Cerritos homes now selling at 166th Street and Marquardt Avenue.

Parkside, single-family homes

Woodside/Cerritos open

A parkside setting highlights the large, fully air-conditioned family homes of Woodside/Cerritos, now selling at the northwest corner of 166th Street and Marquardt Avenue in Cerritos.

The single-family residential community was constructed by the J. M. Peters Co. of Newport Beach and designed by the architecture and land-planning firm of Bates Bassenian-Pekarek.

Jim Peters, president of the award winning home building firm, said the three to five bedroom houses feature up to 2,949-square-feet of interior living space and are designed to satisfy the need for separate zones for entertaining and privacy.

The one-story, two-story and split-level designs are priced from $63,990 to $127,990.

"The home is the central element in family living," Peters said. "Routine needs of preparing food, storage of clothing, personal grooming and sleeping are satisfied by architectural designs and features which focus on comfort and convenience.

Soaring cathedral ceilings, clerestory windows, intimate corners and wide walls invite families to exhibit their individual treasures. Both indoors and outdoors, space is available for the pursuit of special hobbies and interests," Peters added.

The firm president said finishing touches on the homes include wood shake roofs, bronze tinted windows and exterior wood trim.

He added that the firm, noted for the use of quality materials with a variety of textres, has used ceramic tile or wood parquet for the formal entries, decorator-selected hardware for the double front doors and interior doors, interesting lighting fixtures and plush shag carpeting for the living room, dining room, family room, all bedrooms, closets, halls, master bath and dressing areas.

Each plan has a wood-burning fireplace with a convenient gas stub, up to three full baths and interior space from 1,831 to 2,949-square-feet.

Peters said the well-designed kitchens overlook garden areas and are complete with a full line of time-saving appliances. Hand-finished cabinets with raised panel designs, ceramic tile counter tops, refrigerator areas plumbed for an ice maker and luminous ceilings are also included.

In addition, all plans have built-in microwave ovens, self-cleaning electric ovens and gas cooktops. Double compartment sinks are equipped with a garbage disposal, and all plans have a large storage pantry and a dishwasher.

The deluxe baths include china basins, Corian marble counter tops and showers with ceramic tile wainscots and safety glass enclosures. Powder rooms have carpeting, and master baths have double basins and luminous ceilings.

Some plans have a choice of two or three-car garages, and all homes are fully insulated. Utility lines have been concealed underground.

The homes are located adjacent to Carmenita Park and close to the new 83-acre Cerritos Regional Park.

To reach the 20-acre Woodside/Cerritos community, take the Artesia Freeway (91) exit at Carmenita Avenue and drive north to 166th Street, then turn right to Marquardt Avenue.

Walker & Lee sales hit $1 billion in 21 weeks

Walker & Lee, Inc., the Anaheim-based real estate services company, reached $1 billion in 1977 sales and services by the 21st week of the year, according to Dennis Gardner, senior vice president for finance and administration.

He added that the organization hit the $1 billion mark nearly three full months ahead of its world record-setting schedule of 1976.

By the week ending May 29, the firm had reached a total volume of $1,030,581,000. That figure is $438 million ahead of last year's sales total for the same time period — a 74 per cent increase.

"Last year," said Gardner, "we decided to set a $1 billion goal, even though our total never had exceeded three-quarters of a billion in previous years. We passed that goal in late August, taking less than eight months to do it. This year we did it in only 21 weeks.

"Counting on a continuing strong real estate market, we doubled our goal to $2 billion in 1977. With the continuing strong efforts of our sales, administrative and support staffs, we should have no trouble realizing that goal by year-end."

The $1 billion total for this year includes $804 million in sales of new and existing homes, investment property, commercial and industrial property.

The remaining $226 million was accumulated in the value of services through three subsidiaries, Walker & Lee Mortgage Co., Summit Escrow Co. and Walker & Lee Insurance, Inc. as well as the firm's Marketing Services Department.

Saws, drills set in motion during remodeling craze

Assuming an average number of changes, including such things as new cabinets, counters, sinks, major appliances and the like, the cost can run over $5,000. Savings of up to 40 per cent can be gained by doing the work yourself, depending on local labor costs.

Besides being the most popular home improvement, kitchen remodeling also tops the list of money projects, with $5.5 billion expected to be spent on it this year.

Adding an extra room, next on the popularity list, will get $3.1 billion of the homeowners' money.

More than $2.5 billion will go for bathroom remodeling, $1.1 billion for finishing basements, $1.1 for enclosing porchs and breezeways and $1 billion for adding garages.

After that, come such projects as adding bathrooms, finishing attics, adding and enclosing carports, and interior and exterior painting. Close behind are the addition of new roofs and siding and air conditioning.

In non-essential improvements, residential swimming pools are three times as numerous as 10 years ago. The number, excluding the above-ground models, is now 1,400,000.

Home improvement loans are relatively easy to get. No wonder. They carry a high rate of interest, usually from 12 to 15 per cent.

What are known as Title I home improvement loans are insured up to 90 per cent of the amount, which can be as much as $10,000 for a one-family house, with a 12-year payment plan at 12 per cent interest.

THE BIG advantage to the lender is that no matter what happens, the government agency guarantees that he will get back at least 90 per cent of the loan.

The disadvantage is that the bank or lending institution cannot charge more than the 12 per cent rate, even though its regular rate for such loans may be one or two percentage points higher.

While most home improvements qualify for a Title I loans, some of the non-essential items, such as swimming pools, do not.

Some lenders call for repayment of the loans within five, six or seven years. Some have 15-year repayment programs. In nearly all cases, the exceptions being home owners with very high credit ratings, the borrower must put up collateral or furnish a lien on the house when the loan is over $7,500.

No matter whose money is being used, everyone is spending it to make a house a home.

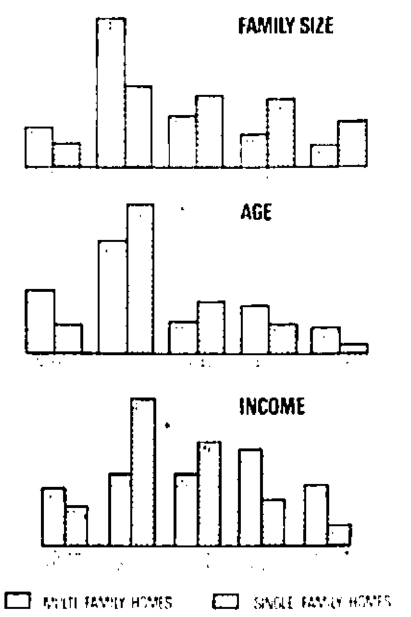
How Do YOU Compare With Today's Average Homeshoppers?



TO COMPARE YOURSELF to today's average home shopper, relate the total number of people in your family to the first graph, the age of the head of your household to the second graph and the total income of your family unit to the third graph. The chart represents a composite of more than 700 home buyers at 16 new Southland housing developments.

—Chart prepared by Walker & Lee

Shoppers' survey discovers change in home market

A recent survey of 700 shoppers at new home developments in Southern California disclosed some shifts in attitude from a year ago

—Today it's the higher income buyers who are willing to spend more money, relative to their income, for a new home. Lower income home shoppers, who a year ago were willing to stretch for a higher priced home, have turned conservative —Fewer renters are among the shoppers, 22 per cent this year compared with 35 per cent a year ago.

—Only 10 per cent of the shoppers said they were buying a home that they would rent out rather than live in.

This year for the first time the survey asked prospective buyers if their family income included funds from more than one source: 60 per cent said it did.

The survey was conducted by Walker & Lee, an Anaheim-based residential real estate company.

The survey focused on age, family size, income and motivation.

AGE: Most of the buyers are young: 48 per cent are in the 26- to 35- year-old bracket. Another 15 per cent are even younger, under 25. The 36 to 45 and 46 to 55 age brackets each contained about 15 per cent of the shoppers queried.

Younger shoppers tended to be looking for single family homes; older persons, those over 45, were seeking attached housing by a ratio of more than two to one.

FAMILY SIZE: The average household size in the survey increased to 2.85 persons, compared to 2.7 a year ago. Still, two-person households account for 38 per cent of all shoppers. Singles represent 10 per cent of shoppers, and 8 per cent of the single family home hunters.

INCOME: Some 33 per cent of the shoppers questioned had a family income of $15,000 to $25,000. Other income categories represented the following percentage of the sample: less than $15,000, 13 per cent; $25,000 to $35,000, 26 per cent; $35,000 to $50,000, 18 per cent, and over $50,000, 10 per cent.

Overall, the amount an average family is willing to spend on a home remains 2.5 times its annual income. Last year, however, lower income buyers would go to 3.5 times their annual income; this year they dropped back to a willingness to spend 2.1 times annual income.

Higher income shoppers, who would only spend 1.7 times annual income a year ago, were willing to go 2.7 times annual income this year.

"More affluent families appear to stretch further because the equity they built up in their previous home enables them to buy a more expensive home without increasing their montly payments too much," an official of the surveying firm suggested.

MOTIVATION: Given a multiple choice of 11 possible reasons to want to buy a home, most shoppers chose "An investment to dwell in." A distant second was: "Need a larger home."

Renting outweighs short-term buying

ABOUT REAL ESTATE

"What's Your Problem?" by Don G. Campbell

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

My annual salary is about $12,000. I have my wife and one child as dependents. I am foreign-born and plan to return to my native country in four or five years

I presently live in an apartment with a monthly rent of $250. A house which we would like to buy will cost between $60,000 and $70,000. I can manage to pay about $12,000 to $15,000 as a down payment.

Considering my plan to go back home soon, is it advisable to buy a house or continue living in the apartment? — Mr. R.R. (Cincinnati, Ohio)

A. This is one of those situations where I could say "Stay right where you are -- don't buy," and you could disregard me, buy it, and sell it in four years at a whopping profit. I doubt it, though

Under normal circumstances, we might assume this house would appreciate in value at the compounded rate of about 8 per cent a year. In your case, it would almost HAVE to for you to come out ahead.

Remember that your principal and interest alone will cost you about $443 a month (assuming $15,000 down on a $70,000 house). That is about $193 more a month than you are now paying in rent.

On top of this, there are about $2,000 in move-in expenses, utilities (which now may or may not be included in your rent), maintenance, taxes and insurance. And then, when it comes time to resell, you've got a whopping real estate sales commission.

Would it pay? On the basis of raw figures it WOULD, but only if the house appreciates in value pretty sharply over the next four years. You COULD come out ahead but, as I said, I'm inclined to doubt it.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

In a recent column about five cousins who jointly inherited an undivided, 20-acre section of land, you said, "Why do people leave wills making life so much more complicated than it has to be?" I would like to know how my sister and I can avoid a similar situation.

"We are both in our late 50s and we inherited undivided property from our father many years ago. We now live on opposite sides of the country, and we both have children who are not too well acquainted

Our property is on the edge of a commercial area and there are some legal difficulties which currently prevent us from selling the land, unless we choose to practically give it away.

The legal problems are not of our making, but they involve city and township rulings on that particular section. It would not be feasible to divide the property because it involves a corner section which is more valuable. — Mrs. J.E.C. (Hayward Calif.)

A. I admit you've got a situation that could be a headache to your four heirs if anything were to happen to you and your sister at the same time.

But I also think you're both too young to panic about this. Expedite the clearing of the cloud over the property as much as possible, of course, so that you can sell it as soon as possible and not burden your children with it.

However, weighing the advantages of waiting until the property can be disposed of at a fair price against the disadvantages of possibly leaving these four children a cumbersome estate problem — but one that involves a valuable piece of property that is WORTH a little trouble — I would take the gamble of waiting.

gun and I knew he couldn't have. I'd never been in trouble before."

Does he blame Wiggins?

"No. Maybe subconsciously. I don't want to put any guilt on Creighton. It was an accident. Some people don't believe that. If you do a story now, some people still won't believe it. They think I'm guilty and I can't change that. I've stopped trying.

"It's history."

Creighton Wiggins lives in Huntington Beach, unaware until contacted last week that Errol Greenleaf does too.

At first he agreed to an interview, but an hour later called back to say he'd changed his mind.

"I'm living my life now as best I can. I can't see the point in bringing it all back out.

"I'll tell you this: Long Beach lost two of the best cops it ever had."

Lomita redevelopment hearing set

A proposal recommending the formation of a community redevelopment agency to rehabilitate six sites in Lomita has been set for a public hearing at 6:30 p.m. July 27 by the Lomita City Council.

A feasibility study by Municipal Services, Inc., a Pasadena consulting firm, identified six sites located along the city's major arterial streets — Pacific Coast Highway, Lomita Boulevard, Narbonne Avenue and Eshelman Avenue — that could be redeveloped in accordance with state law.

MSI's study recommended "development of convenience shopping and mixed retail commercial uses; elderly housing; and, general office and medical office facilities" on the various sites.

In some cases older buildings would have to be cleared from the sites before they could be effectively marketed for new development; in other cases small lots would have to be repackaged into larger parcels to make them more marketable, according to the report.

All six sites combined make up less than 20 acres, a relatively small project compared to programs in other Los Angeles County cities which have, in some cases, put the entire city in a redevelopment project. The Lomita proposal involves less than one per cent of the city's total land area of 1.87 square miles.

MSI estimated the net cost of the six redevelopment projects at $2.8 million, which could be funded either by short term notes, tax increment bonds, advances from developers, or from the city's allocation of federal Housing and Community Development Act (HCDA) funds.

If the project is fully developed in accord with the MSI projections it would provide a net increase of $2,974,368 in Lomita's current assessed valuation of $45.3 million, which would represent more than enough bonding capacity to finance the project, according to the report.

The MSI report included letters from two developers expressing interest in undertaking the redevelopment of three of the six areas identified in the study.

The proposal recommended the development of an 80,000-square-foot shopping center, anchored by a major supermarket or drug chain store, in the vicinity of Pacific Coast Highway and Narbonne Avenue, and a 33,000-square-foot cluster of antique stores or other highway-commercial uses near Pacific Coast Highway and Eshelman Avenue.

A need for 100 to 150 residential units for elderly persons was identified in the community, with the recommended site being on Narbonne Avenue near the new Lomita City Hall.

Stormy Saturday in Boston

Nation-wide television audience had excellent view of flareup between Yankee manager Billy Martin and slugger Reggie Jackson Saturday when Martin pulled Jackson out of the game in sixth inning at Fenway Park for apparent lack of hustle. Martin confronted Jackson (above), then had to be restrained by coaches Elston Howard and Yogi Berra in sequence at right when Jackson was out of camera range. Red Sox hammered Yanks for second day in a row, winning, 10-4. See story, Page S-4.

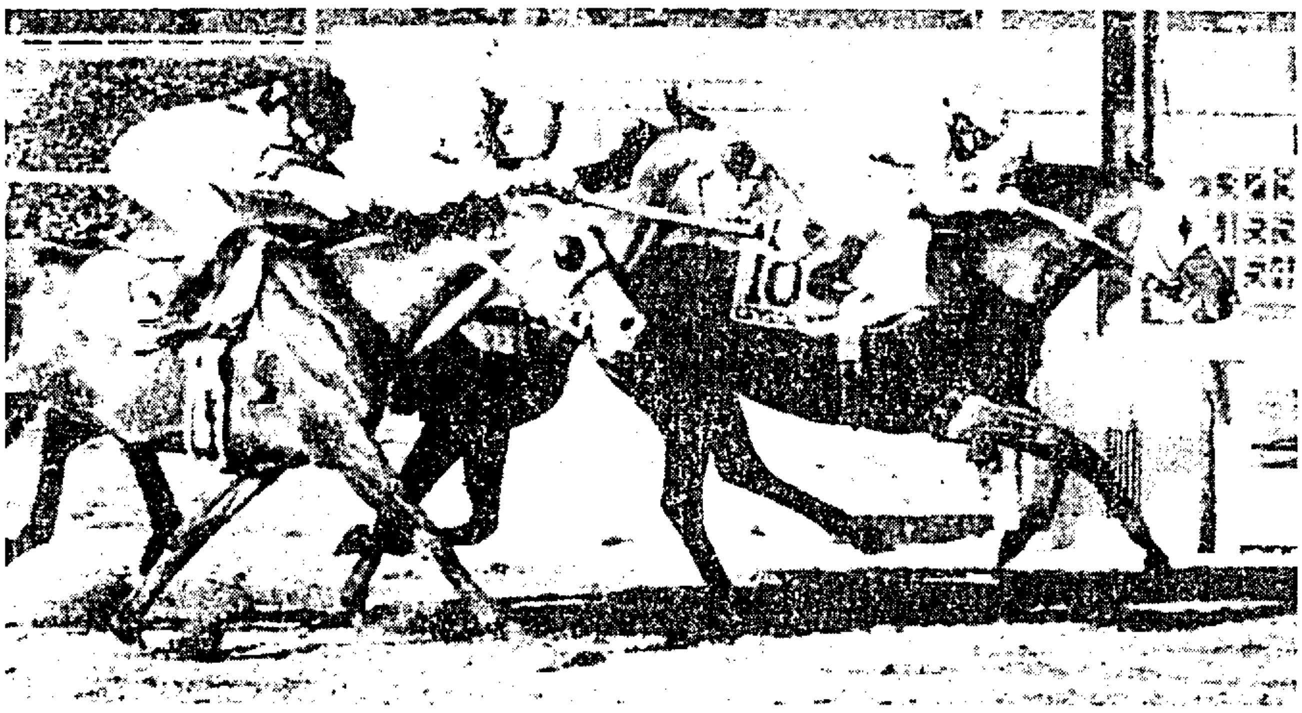
Gold Cup to Crystal Water



A Crystal clear winner

Crystal Water holds off a strong challenge in the stretch Saturday to win the $350,000 Hollywood Gold Cup at Hollywood Park. Crystal Water won by a neck over Cascapedia, the only filly in the race, in a rapid two minutes flat for the mile and one-quarter. Caucasus was third.

Issues a challenge to Forego

Hard-hitting Crystal Water, setting a sizzling pace, held off a strong challenge in the stretch Saturday and won the $350,000 Hollywood Gold Cup at Hollywood Park.

Moments later, his handlers proposed a challenge — a race against the East's champion horse, Forego, and the Triple Crown winner, Seattle Slew.

It was announced at Hollywood Park over the public address system that Seattle Slew may possibly fly West from New York to run in the $200,000 Swaps Stakes July 3, a 1¼-mile race for 3-year-olds.

Vice president-general manager Robert Benoit said there was a "tentative promise" that Seattle Slew would run at Hollywood Park but a formal announcement remains to be made by the champion colt's co-owners, Karen and Mickey Taylor.

Winning his fourth sucessive major race, the four-year-old Crystal Water got under the wire a neck in front of Cascapedia, the lone filly in the rich event. A nose back in a thundering three-horse finish was Caucasus.

Brewers one-hit Angels

By Tracy Ringolsby
Staff Writer

MILWAUKEE — Gary Beare figures it's about time things started going his way.

The 24-year-old former Long Beach State performer has suffered through enough tragedies in his short baseball career to last a lifetime.

He hopes the one-hit, 4-2 win he registered over the Angels Saturday night indicates things are starting to go his way.

"Baseball is a lot of luck," said Beare, who entered the game with an 8.44 earned run average.

He got plenty of breaks against the Angels, a team he held to two unearned runs in 7⅓ innings, his longest stint of the season.

All four of the Brewer runs came in the third, when Milwaukee managed to hit the ball just inches away from the reach of infielders and wound up with five hits off Gary Nolan, making his first start as an Angel.

"That was an awful funny inning," said manager Norm Sherry, stressing the word awful. "I really don't know what to say about it except it was the strangest thing I've ever seen."

Dodgers double up Cubs, 2-1

By Gordon Verrell
Staff Writer

As the Dodgers' Tommy John flattened the Cubs, 2-1, with his darting and diving sinkerball Saturday night and Ron Cey was exploding from a long home run slump, a Dodger Stadium throng of 45,655 was witnessing a lesson in "ceramics."

That's the way manager Tommy Lasorda described it, anyway, when John drew a warning for throwing a "knockdown" pitch and the Cubs' Bill Bonham got nothing for "brushing back" Cey after he belted his homer.

"There's a difference," insisted plate umpire Terry Tata who assessed John $50 for slipping one low and inside to Ivan DeJesus. But he said nothing to Bonham when he sailed one right at Cey's noggin.

"All those years I was throwing at guys I should have said I was just brushing 'em back," roared Lasorda, a man who was not at all bashful about pitching inside to enemy batters during his playing days.

"I thought it was a knockdown pitch. He (Tata) said it was a brushback. What the hell's the difference? It must be a matter of ceramics."

What did he say?

For all the harassment, John hurled a splendid game, recording all but three of his 27 putouts on the infield and benefiting from an incredible five — yes, five — double plays.

It was the Dodgers' first com-

Superlative Cincy debut for Seaver

Combined News Services

MONTREAL — Pity the poor National League.

Cincinnati discovered it not only acquired a kingpin pitcher in Tom Seaver, but a hitter too.

"We didn't need any more bats, but it looks like we got another one," said Reds manager Sparky Anderson after Seaver made his debut with a three-hit 6-0 victory over Montreal Saturday.

Seaver singled twice, one a bases-loaded liner that scored two runs to key a four-run eighth inning.

It was the seventh win in a row and 16th in 20 games for the surging Reds.

The 32-year-old right-hander said he paused a moment in the first inning to capture the memory of what he called "the start of the second part of my career."

'They have to come and catch me'

Green retains U.S. Open lead

TULSA (AP) — Hubert Green drifted off into philosophy after his two-over-par 72 was good enough to retain a one-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the United States Open Golf Championship.

"I'm still leading," he said after constantly fighting nerve-wracking, downhill putts throughout the hot and humid day.

"That means the rest of them have to come and get me. They have to catch me. They'll have to gamble to do it. This is the U.S. Open. When you gamble in the Open, you can make mistakes.

"You can book bogeys in the Open. They're going to happen.

"I'm not sure I can shoot another 72 and win the tournament," he said and grinned, "but I wouldn't mind it at all if I did."

Green, now only 18 holes away from the major title that so far has eluded him, composed a 54-hole total of 208, two under par on the Southern Hills Country Club course, 6,873 yards of gently-rolling hillsides that was scorched by 90-plus degree temperatures and opporessive humidity.

Big Andy Bean, the tour's most noted alligator-wrestler, was the only other man under par after three rounds of this 77th American national championship.

Bean, who, like Green, spent his boyhood summers in weather similiar to that which turned this event into an endurance contest, shot a 68 and was one under par at 209.

Green, who needs only a major title to confirm his status as one of the game's leading lights, grew up in Birmingham, Ala., and the 6-foot-4, 210-pound Bean learned to wrestle alligators in the swampland of southern Georgia.

They were followed by a grab-bag assortment at 210—even par—that included Tom Weiskopf, grimly-determined South African Gary Player, unawed outsiders Gary Jacobsen and Don Padgett, along with Terry Diehl and Tom Purtzer, one of those previously obscure young men who dominated the tour in the early seasgn.

Player, who needs this one to complete a career double sweep of the game's four major championships—the U.S. and British Opens, the Masters and PGA—finished birdie, birdie for a 71.

Purtzer shot the same score. Diehl, in the last twosome with Green, had a 73.

Weiskopf, apparently returned to the form that gained him the nickname Tom Terrific a couple of seasons ago, closed up with a 68 and said: "If I didn't think I could win, I wouldn't have entered the tournament.'

Jacobson, 24, a mini-tour player from Minnetonka, Minn., and Padgett, 28, who couldn't make it on the pro tour and now is a club pro in Carmel, Ind., were the surprises.

Jacobsen, who has been on a physical fitness kick that includes in its regimen weightlifting 40,000 pounds a week, 150 sit-ups and six miles of roadwork daily, shot a 67.

"I expected to have a good tournament and put no limits on how well I'd play," said Jacobsen. "My position is no surprise whatsoever."

Yarborough hangs it on Johncock

CAMBRIDGE JUNCTION, Mich. (AP) — "I never won so much money so quick," Cale Yarborough beamed after beating Gordon Johncock by three seconds in the nationally televised $15,000 Camaro Challenge race.

Yarborough, the defending national champion of Grand National stock car racing, won $13,500 for less than 10 minutes of work. Johncock, the 1973 Indianapolis racing titlist, took home $1,500.

Because of their "champion" designations, they were paired in identically prepared Camaros for the 10-lap, 20-mile duel around the two-mile Michigan International Speedway oval. The payoff, from CAM2 Motor Oil and ABC-TV, was the richest per mile in auto racing history.

DODGERS TOP CUBS—

plete game in their last 24 starts, since John went the distance against Pittsburgh on May 21.

The win kept the Dodgers 6½ games in front of the sizzling Cincinnati Reds in the National League West while the Cubs, despite only their second loss in their last nine games, retain their six-game lead in the East.

The Dodgers trailed, 1-0, and still hadn't managed a hit off former UCLA star Bonham when Bill Russell, who wound up with three of Los Angeles' six hits, tripled with one out in the fourth.

One out later Cey drilled one of Bonham's change-ups into the rightfield pavilion.

It was his 15th home run of the season, but his first since June 4 and only his second since May 17.

Dodgers of the Day

TOMMY JOHN hurled seven-hitter and RON CEY slugged two-run homer in 2-1 victory over Cubs.

The two RBIs also regained the club lead from Steve Garvey. Cey now has 54 RBIs, Garvey 53.

When Cey made his first appearance after hitting the home run, the Dodgers had runners at first and third. But Bonham let fly anyway, firing a fastball high and inside. Cey fell back, then hurled his bat and helmet to the side in anger.

"Yes," said Cey. "I was a little surprised he threw at me in that situation. It was totally uncalled for, as far as I'm concerned."

Lasorda complained then to Tata, demanding that Bonham be drawn and quartered or locked up or fined or, at the very least, warned.

"He was not deliberately throwing at him," Tata explained. "Anyway, the ball wasn't AT him, it was just inside."

Way inside, that is.

Cey then grounded out to end the inning and DeJesus, the former Dodger, was first to face John. T.J.'s first pitch was inside, got past catcher John Oates and struck Tata on the arm.

That's when John found himself $50 lighter.

"Maybe Tata thought I was throwing at him," guessed John. "But an umpire is the last guy I'm going to throw at."

Tata said, no, that he fined John for "intentionally throwing at DeJesus."

Retorted John:

"Now, what in the world do I want to throw at him for?"

John scattered seven Chicago hits but escaped time after time, thanks to an alert infield that turned over the five doubleplays, two short of the major league record.

The biggest twin killing was in the eighth when the Cubs had runners at first and third on two infield singles and John's throwing error. There was one out when Gene Clines, who drove in Chicago's only run in the third, shot a liner toward left-center. But Russell, who figured in four of the doubleplays, leaped to spear the drive and then doubled DeJesus off first.

The game ended on a doubleplay when John fanned Jerry Morales and Oates gunned out Bobby Murcer who was running on the play.

DODGER DOPE: Tommy Lasorda gathered his troops for a brief meeting before Saturday evening's game. It seems several players have been tardy getting to the ballpark and, as a result, have been late for batting practice. Is that why the team batting average dropped from .294 to .274 in a month? . . . Reggie Smith, still with a pulled stomach muscle, started in rightfield. "The stomach doesn't feel any better sitting on the bench," he reasoned. . . Dave Lopes says he doesn't know when he'll be ready to return to the lineup. He missed his seventh game in a row Saturday night because of the muscle pull in his side. Lasorda is hopeful Lopes will play Monday night.

How they scored

CUB THIRD

Mitterwald doubled. Bonham singled. DeJesus grounded out. Clines hit a line drive that John deflected toward Russell who failed to handle the ball for an error, Mitterwald scoring. Buckner grounded into a double play. One run (earned), two hits, one error, one left.

DODGER FOURTH

With one out, Russell tripled. Smith grounded out, Russell holding. Cey homered to right, his 15th. Garvey walked. Monday singled. Baker walked, loading the bases. Oates forced Baker. Two runs, three hits, three left.

ANGELS LOSE—

It all started when catcher Charlie Moore hit a drive at Nolan, who deflected the ball, which rolled through second baseman Orlando Ramirez's legs for a single.

Then Robin Young slashed a single to right, advancing Moore to third. Up came Don Money, who hit a pop foul down the first base line, which neither Ramirez nor first baseman Tony Solaita could reach.

Money grounded out, sending shortstop Mario Guerrero deep in the hole to make the play and sending Moore home with the first run and Yount to second.

Sixto Lezcano followed up with a grounder, which Guerrero knocked down but couldn't pick up quick enough to throw to Solaita. After Sal Bando and Cecil Cooper rapped successive singles, Von Joshua hit a potential double play ball to Ramirez. The native of Columbia, filling in for the injured Jerry Remy, had trouble getting the ball to Guerrero, covering second. The Angels settled for one out while the fourth Brewer run was scoring.

Angel of the day

WAYNE SIMPSON pitched four one-hit innings in 4-2 loss to Milwaukee.

"They got some hits but they got a lot of luck too," said Sherry.

Nolan finished his initial effort for the Angels by retiring the Brewers in the fourth before Wayne Simpson came on to pitch four scoreless innings of relief.

Meanwhile, Beare, whose earned run average had reached 10.12 at one point last month, was holding the Angels, who were no-hit by Cleveland's Dennis Eckersley earlier in the year, to Joe Rudi's first-inning double.

The Angels, who had picked up 63 hits in the five previous games, did receive 11 walks from Beare and his two successors as well as a hit batter but were unable to cash in, stranding 11 runners.

In fact, relievers Sammy Hinds and Bill Castro, the victim of the Angels' 7-5 win in 10 innings on Friday, walked the bases loaded with one out in the ninth before pinchhitter Gil Flores grounded into a game-ending double play.

"Most of the time I was just throwing the ball so poorly they could not hit it hard," said Beare, who struck out four before giving way to Hinds with two outs and runners on first and second in the eighth.

"I have been on the verge of being sent down (to the minor leagues) several times in the past month so I this was something I really needed," said Beare. "I have a lot of friends in the Southern California area so I was up for this game. I wanted to show them I really should be in the big leagues."

Actually, Beare is lucky to be pitching at all. During his days at San Diego Mesa Junior College he suffered an arm injury, which caused numbness in the ring and little fingers of his right hand. Doctors had to transplant a nerve.

That was mild compared to the first day of spring training in 1976, when he was returning from the Brewer ballpark in Sun City, Ariz., and his van was hit by a train.

And when training camp started this year, he missed the first few weeks with a case of pneumonia.

ANGEL ANGLES — The Angels complete a three-game series against the Brewers today with Frank Tanana (10-3) going against Moose Haas ([illegible]) . . . Sherry and general manager Harry Dalton were upset with a story saying pitching coach Billy Muffet was on the verge of being fired. "It is an irresponsible story," said Dalton. "I don't know how that could be written without the writer coming to either myself or Norm and asking us." There may be more truth to the story than the Angels care to admit, but any changes now appear to be postponed if not halted. The Angels feel they have a good chance of winning the American League West and do not want anything to disrupt the unity on the team. To make room for Nolan, the Angels have placed lefthanded reliever Mickey Scott on the 10-day designated list, which gives them until June 28 to place Scott either with another major league team or minor league squad. Scott appeared in 12 games with a 5.62 earned run average and 0-2 record.

Palomino a knockout in London

The World Boxing Council's welterweight champion has resided the last several years in the Orange County community of Westminster, although Long Beach retains a proprietary interest because he is an alumnus of its highest institution of learning.

His hometown of Luis B. Sanchez, a Mexican village on the Arizona border, also claims him as one of its own, but the crowning phenomenon may be that one of England's most popular fighters of the day has come to be this Mexican-American named Carlos Palomino.

"They received me well last time," he says, "but this time was more than I expected. They're just great people."

Palomino won his title in London a year ago, knocking out John Stracey in the ninth round. The past week he returned to defend it against Dave Green, who had beaten Stracey since Green fell in 11.

IT MIGHT be stretching the point to state that the English loved it, but Palomino's success did not go unappreciated.

Jackie McCoy, his co-manager with Noe Cruz, said, "He'd still be there if he had tried to sign all the autographs people wanted."

The crowd at Wembley Empire Pool was somewhat different in character than, say, a Thursday night gathering at the Olympic Auditorium.

"Oh, yes," Palomino says with a chuckle, "very different. The fans are more, uh, respectful. They even stuck around after the fight and they applauded me at the beginning."

McCoy described it as "a standing ovation."

"They've been good to me," Carlos says. "I can't complain."

Promoter Mickey Duff says that Palomino is now so popular in England that he could bring in another outside fighter against him and still draw well. Carlos would be the hometown guy.

"He's very low key," McCoy says of his fighter, "a gentleman. They like that over there."

THE ENGLISH press spared few adjectives in describing Carlos' second defense.

"A lot of English reporters were saying it was the best fight they'd seen in 30 years," McCoy said. "This guy (Green) had really been hot. He'd never lost, had beaten Stracey and had been popular a long time before that, winning a lot of amateur fights.

"But one guy wrote, 'When he (Palomino) defeated Stracey, we thought he might be a good champion. Now he might be a great one.' "

The audience was most impressed by the left hook that finished Green.

"One of the best punches anybody's thrown in a long time," McCoy says. "One writer said it lifted Green off the floor. I thought it had killed him. Forty-five minutes later he was still asking what happened."

BUT PALOMINO needed more time than he had anticipated to set it up.

"He was a little tougher than we had expected. We saw the film of him against Stracey when we got there. The way he looked in that fight, we figured he wouldn't go more than six or seven rounds. He was throwing punches wide open, and his chin was wide open.

> "As it landed I could tell it was a good shot, and when he went down I knew there was no way he was gonna get up."

"I felt I would be able to catch him, but he's very strong and very tough and a very determined guy. He throws wide punches as he rushes in and keeps throwing them from all angles, so you don't have time to get set and plan an offense. You have to stay on defense.

"Most of the night I was trying to hit him with the hook because as he'd throw the overhand right, he'd come in with the head first.

"But early in the fight he had his head down, so the hook was going off the top of his head. As the fight went on, though, and he started tiring, he did come in and exposed the chin—and he walked right into the hook.

"I took a little short step back and threw the hook at the same time, and he just went right into it. I was just hoping it would land on the money, but as it landed I could tell it was a good shot. I had my body and shoulder and everything behind it, and when he went down I knew there was no way he was gonna get up."

THE RESULT of the blow momentarily frightened Palomino himself.

"His head snapped back and bounced off the canvas. I walked over to see him and Mickey Duff said, 'He's okay.' He didn't let me get close to him. It took awhile for them to bring him around."

Palomino has stopped his opponent in each of his three title fights, although Armando Muniz was on his feet when referee John Thomas rescued him in the 15th.

Palomino isn't sure whether the same punch would have dropped Muniz.

"I hit Mando with some very good left hooks," he says.

As against Muniz, Palomino led on points at the end, although McCoy thought the last one was being scored "closer than I figured."

AT 27, PALOMINO seems destined for a long reign. He is a nice size for the division at 5 feet, 9 inches and can make the weight of 147 pounds without trouble, so he goes into each fight at full strength.

"I was eating really good," he says. "I got up about 9 o'clock the day of the fight, checked my weight at about 11 and was a quarter-pound over. The weigh-in was at 1, so I didn't do anything, and by 1 I was 147. At my age, I don't think I'm going to be growing anymore."

His only problems were three cuts over his eyes from Green's head butts, requiring 12 stitches, and a bruised left hand.

"We were warned that this guy's like a billy goat," McCoy said.

The hand was X-rayed when Palomino returned home.

"About the fifth round I felt some pain in it," he says. "It's sore right now, but it's not fractured."

A chipped knuckle on his right hand forced a postponement of the Muniz fight.

"I hope maybe within four months I can have another fight," Carlos says.

MONDAY MORNING he will put his degree in recreation to work as a summer counselor's aide at Golden West College.

"I'm going to get some experience and break the monotony. I've been laying around since I graduated in December, and it got kind of boring."

"Laying around" meant training, which is more than many fighters can handle. Palomino doesn't exactly enjoy it, but it's a small price to pay for what he has. He plans to be champion a long time.

"I feel very confident," he says. "The first two title defenses were against the No. 1 guys. There isn't much more they can throw at me."

McShane readying for second chance in pro football

By Gary Ellis
Staff Writer

The career of Charlie McShane is clouded:

IF:

- The World Football League hadn't folded.
- The National Football League hadn't cut squad sizes.
- A linebacker was hurt.
- Anyone but Dallas had drafted him.
- He had experience.

If any, or all, of the above combinations had occurred, McShane would have held a job as an NFL linebacker last year.

But as everyone knows, you don't eat ifs.

ABOUT THE same time it was announced that Ricky Bell had signed a multi-million dollar contract, or Tony Dorsett was a high-round draftee, Charlie McShane signed a free-agent contract with the Seattle Seahawks.

Bell's signing was front page; McShane's signing was not even carried in this newspaper in six-point (agate) type.

"It must be nice to be a running back," he laughed. "I've never been a big name but at least I have an opportunity to prove I can play in the NFL."

McShane graduated from Millikan High in 1972, attended Long Beach City College where he banged up his knee, and graduated from Cal Lutheran, a small college powerhouse.

Despite his size, 6-2, 211, Dallas drafted him on the 12th round. But instead of being drafted as a down defensive lineman—his experienced position—the Cowboys wanted to convert him to linebacker.

For several weeks, McShane toiled in Thousand Oaks (the home of Cal Lutheran), learning the complicated "flex defense," a Dallas trademark.

"I had an opportunity to make the team," McShane remembered. "If they (NFL) hadn't cut squad sizes from 45 to 43; if Lee Roy Jordan had retired one year earlier, or if a linebacker was hurt in training camp I would have made the team. But football is a business and I think Dallas wanted me around in case anyone did get hurt. I knew after the last week, I would have made the team if the squad size wasn't reduced."

McSHANE'S departure was also listed in six-point. But he was cut with a couple of former notables—running backs Ron Johnson and Duane Thomas.

"There wasn't a knock at my door," remembered McShane. "It was a telephone call. One of the coaches said, 'Coach Landry wants to talk to you.' I was really hurt emotionally. I knew I had to come back to Los Angeles and of all the places in the world, that was the one city I didn't want to come back to."

CHARLIE McSHANE
Millikan grad

Being converted to a linebacker was difficult—unexplainably difficult.

"When the quarterback drops back, you have to go the other way," McShane laughed. "I was used to chasing quarterbacks, now I had to get back. The Dallas system was mindboggling."

McShane was asked to analyze the "flex." "I don't know," McShane laughed. "You have to ask Landry.

"Seriously, though, if you see a ballcarrier coming in your direction, you want to get him. In the flex, you have to take care of your area—your zone—you can't always chase the ballcarrier."

The off-season was a work season for McShane. "I went to Atlanta to work on my legs. I play a lot of basketball. A linebacker needs strong legs."

McSHANE has been in Seattle for several weeks, working out with friends, readying for the July 17 training camp struggle.

"It was a compliment that Dallas drafted me, thinking I was athletic enough to play for them. Now I hope to get a two-month head start with Seattle. They are setting up their defenses right now. I hope not to get trampled too much—mentally or physically. That's why I'm in Seattle—to learn."

Seattle officials are high on McShane. The Seahawks traded their middle linebacker after the season. "The job is open. We wouldn't have made the trade unless we felt he could help," said a Seattle spokesman.

Vying with McShane will be Greg Collins, a former Notre Dame all-America, and Kent Hutcherson, who was on the Seattle injured reserve list last year.

With a little luck, McShane will become a professional—enjoying a six-month work-year, laying in the sun and collecting salary.

"Not yet. I'm still a rookie," he laughed. "I'm working 12 months a year, not six months. The older and wiser you get, the less physical you have to be. But you have to be smarter."

LOEL SCHRADER

Ricky Bell, the reluctant rich guy

Ricky Bell is the only millionaire I've ever known who was embarrassed about his riches.

You see, there was a time when Ol '42 didn't have a pot to spit in or a window to throw it out of.

Like two months ago.

Then came that wondrous instrument called the National Football League draft.

Bell was embraced by Tampa Bay, which had qualified for the first selection in the draft by failing to win a game as a newcomer to the league in 1976.

According to Bell's agent, Mike Trope, the Buccaneers threw a million-two at the USC running back for the honor of his signature on a contract.

Bear in mind that Trope's record for addition and subtraction does not warrant a citation for accuracy.

Trope once said he had negotiated an airtight contract for Anthony Davis with Sam Battistone and the Southern California Sun of the World Football League, an agreement that was supposed to yield a million-five or so.

When the Sun and the WFL collapsed, they vied for balloon-breaking honors with Davis's airtight contract.

BUT BELL really doesn't care what figures are bandied about on his Tampa contract.

He cares not whether he's the highest paid rookie in professional football.

"I'm completely satisfied with what I'm getting and I'm anxious to start earning it," says the Trojan tailback, who was chosen ahead of Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett in the draft.

Bell admits to trepidation about his initiation into the pro game.

"Remember when I gave you a ride in my '66 Chevy before the 1975 season and how I told you I was scared about trying to follow in the footsteps of such great Trojan tailbacks as O.J. Simpson, Mike Garrett, Jon Arnett, Clarence Davis and Anthony Davis?" Bell asked. "Well, I feel the same way now. You can use the same quotes."

But the situation varies in certain respects. For instance, Bell no longer is driving a '66 Chevy.

"You would have to bring that up," he groans.

What are you driving now?

"Do I have to say?" Bell asks.

Well, no one is going to try to twist your arm, considering your physical dimensions. But readers probably would be interested.

BELL SQUIRMS, leans forward and whispers, "A Mercedes."

A nice little family car, but what do you drive when you're going out among 'em?

"Hey," says Bell, "will you knock off that stuff if I promise to buy you that lunch you've been begging for?"

That's a deal.

Actually, Bell is not the kind to squander for a free lunch. He's had his head screwed on tightly for several years, and fame and fortune are'nt likely to change him.

He's blown a few bucks — the Mercedes, a few clothes, a gourmet dinner and necklaces for some of his former USC teammates and a new home for his mother.

But Ricky Bell isn't the kind to wind up his career broke.

"The Mercedes is more like an investment," he says. "If I ever decide to sell it, I'll get my money out of it. The dinner for my teammates was something I planned a long time ago. And you know how grateful I am for all my mother has done for me."

Bells says he feels like "just another rookie."

But it's not likely he'll be treated that way when he joins his former USC coach, John McKay, at Tampa Bay.

BELL HAS made two visits to Florida for discussions with McKay.

"He's not sure how he'll use Anthony Davis and me in the same backfield," says Bell, who was a blocking fullback for A.D. at USC in 1974. "But he said he's going to use the I-formation some and a split-back formation the rest of the time.

"I don't really care. I'll block for A.D. when they want me to and run with the ball when they want me to. I just want to play.

"One thing I understand is that we won't have the blocking in the line that we had at USC. But who does?"

McKay was the first to spot Bell's potential as a tailback. Although he had such promising tailbacks as Lynn Cain, Dwight Ford, Paul Rice and Rod Connors available in the spring of '75, McKay decided to experiment with Bell at the position.

Within a week, McKay had decided the move would be permanent.

Bell responded with 1,957 yards rushing in the fall of '75 and 1,433 yards in '76, when he played with injuries most of the season. He established a Pacific-8 and USC single-game record with 347 yards in 51 carries against Washington State.

"The move to tailback was mainly God's will," says Bell. "He's been with me 100 per cent all the way."

For sure, somebody up there likes Ricky Bell. But so does everyone else.

Angel pitcher may rewrite record book

Bonds: Tanana will get better

By Tracy Ringolsby
Staff Writer

MILWAUKEE — When Frank Tanana joined the Angels late in the 1973 season he wanted to wear 25. Rich Hand had that number already.

"They picked No. 40 out of the pile and said, 'Here kid, go out and see if you can pitch,' " said Tanana.

Hand is no longer in baseball, but Tanana is still with the Angels and he has proven he can pitch.

"He is one of the four best pitchers in baseball," said Boston manager Don Zimmer. "He is right there with Tom Seaver, Catfish Hunter and Andy Messersmith."

Angel rightfielder Bobby Bonds agrees but feels Tanana may have more potential than any of them.

"It is hard to compare Frankie with any of them because he is only 23," said Bonds. "He is in the superstar class and he is going to get better. If he stays healthy he will rewrite the record books."

This year, Tanana may begin some of the rewriting. He already has won 10 games, with only three losses, and his [illegible] earned run average is the lowest among starters in the American League. All of which comes as no surprise to Tanana.

TANANA...no shrinking violet

"EXCEPT for my first (full) year in the big leagues I never lost at any level, so naturally I always figured I was going to tear them (the major leagues) up," said Tanana. "Nothing has happened to change my belief."

Tanana admitted the first half of the 1974 season had him wondering a bit. By the midway point he was 4-13 but he finished with a 14-19 record, a 3.11 earned run average and renewed confidence.

"Once the season was over I knew I had the stuff to win in the big leagues," he said. "There is no way in the world a guy should be 14-19 with a 3.11 earned run average. I knew that and knew I had pitched well enough."

The last two seasons have merely served to boost the confidence of the cocky 23-year-old from Detroit. He has a combined 35-19 record with a 2.53 earned run average for a team that has not been over .500 since 1970.

"He is as good a young pitcher as I've ever seen," said catcher Andy Etchebarren, who caught some of the best in his days with Baltimore. "He throws three pitches and has so much confidence in them he will throw any of them at any time. Not many guys, young or old, can do that."

It didn't take Tanana's major league credentials to prove to Angel coach Bob Clear that Tanana had the mental toughness to be a superstar. He knew that from the day the Angels' first-round pick of the June, 1971 draft showed up at Idaho Falls, where Clear was the manager.

THE ONLY question Clear ever had was whether Tanana would be able to throw the ball. The youngster, you see, showed up for the rookie team with such a sore back he did not throw a pitch that summer nor did he throw during instructional play in the winter.

"Everyone was a little concerned because he never threw a ball," said Clear. "That was at a time when a lot of teams were having problems with their first-round picks. There were about four pitchers that year who never made it."

Despite the injury, Tanana stayed around. Having signed for a sizeable bonus while most of his teammates did not even get enough money to buy a pair of shoes, he took plenty of ribbing but never let it bother him.

"A lot of guys in his situation would have wanted to go home because they couldn't throw, but Frank stayed around and learned as much as he could about the game," said Clear.

"It had to be tough on Frank mentally but he ever showed it," said Clear, who used Tanana as a pinchrunner once. "He played pepper for hours at a time. Hey, he was the best pepper player I've ever seen. He would have been an all-star if they picked pepper players."

They didn't have any spots on minor league all-star teams for pepper players so Tanana didn't make the team. But in the big leagues they have room for pitchers on their all-star teams and for the second year in a row, Tanana is a virtual shoo-in for the American League team.

BUT THAT is not Tanana's main concern.

"Hey, I'd be lying if I said I wouldn't like to be on the team," said the man, who ranks second to teammate Nolan Ryan in strikeouts with 109 and has walked only 33 in 125⅓ innings. "But of much more importance to me is that this team wins. I would like to be with this team in a championship series."

While personal goals may play a minor part in Tanana's effort, he does have a chance this year to become the first 30-game winner since Detroit's Denny McLain won 31 in 1968, when the Tigers won the American League crown.

"All that means to me is that it is not impossible because it has been done, but it is no challenge" said Tanana. "It takes every break in the world, but it can be done."

Tanana was a 15-year-old youngster in Detroit when McLain pulled off the feat but has only a few recollections about that season.

"All I remember was one day Baltimore was in town and had two runners on with Boog Powell up," said Tanana. "Powell hit a liner, which McLain caught and turned into a triple play. That was a sign of how good he was going. A guy hits a rocket and he turns it into a triple play."

CLEVELAND pitcher Pat Dobson was a youngster on that Tiger team and remembers McLain's efforts, but says the 30 wins were secondary.

"We never really thought about it that much until right at the end when he had won 25 games and we knew he had a shot at it," said Dobson. "Actually, winning 30 doesn't mean that much unless you win the pennant.

"If Tanana wins 30 and they take the gas and have to watch the playoffs on television it doesn't mean much," said Dobson.

Tanana agrees.

"I got caught up in the Tigers that year but only because they won it," said Tanana. "That is the big thing."

The biggest thing to come out of baseball so far for the son of a Detroit policeman is his contract, which calls for him to make $250,000 over each of the next five years but could gross as much as $4 million if all the bonuses are paid.

"Money doesn't mean that much to me right now," he said. "I play the game because I love it and I want to be the best at it. I make a lot of money, but that is only because they are passing it around."

As much money as Tanana may have, he has even more confidence. There is no doubt in his mind that he is one of the best pitchers around.

"I'd have to put myself right up there with the best," he said. "You know, the Seavers, the Palmers, the Hunters. Guys that do it year in and year out.

"If all things were equal — I mean both pitchers were going with the same lineup and the same defense — I'd take my chances against anybody in the game."

WHAT IS more, Tanana's abilities are not limited to baseball. During his high school days he was one of the top basketball players in Michigan and was offered scholarships to virtually all the Big Ten school as well as Notre Dame, which he turned down.

"It was fine I could get a college education but that was not what I wanted to do," said Tanana. "I always had a desire, as a kid growing up, to play baseball and when the opportunity presented itself and the money was good enough I took it."

And nobody has had any complaints—except the opposing hitters in the American League.

Jackson loafs, so Martin blows fuse

Combined News Services

A national television audience Saturday saw the altercation of the year as well as the game of the week, in which the first-place Boston Red Sox thumped the New York Yankees, 10-4.

Reggie Jackson, the Yankees' millionaire slugger, and Billy Martin, his volatile manager, engaged in a shouting match and nearly came to blows in the dugout after Martin lifted the right fielder for failing to hustle after a bloop double by Jim Rice in the sixth inning.

"I can't say anything until I talk to Billy and Reggie. I'll wait until they cool off and talk to them later tonight or tomorrow," said Yankee general manager Gabe Paul, who viewed the confrontation from a seat adjacent to the dugout.

Rice's instigating hit prompted Martin to lift starter Mike Torrez. After the skipper returned to the dugout, he sent Paul Blair to right to replace Jackson, who appeared bewildered upon seeing his substitute.

When he reached the visitors' alcove, Jackson confronted Martin. Then the shouting began.

JACKSON kept his cool, but Martin had to be restrained by coaches Elston Howard and Yogi Berra, among others.

"Words were exchanged that I didn't like," said Martin, whose multi-city career, like that of Jackson's, has been filled with wins—and controversy.

The player was unavailable for comment but Martin had more to say.

"As a manager, I ask only one thing of a player—hustle. If a player doesn't hustle, it shows up the club and I show the player up. Hustle is the only thing I really demand. It doesn't take any ability to hustle."

Paul spoke briefly to Martin approximately 10 minutes after the fireworks had subsided and Jackson had gone to the locker room. Paul then left his seat.

"I just went for a walk," the executive said. "No, I didn't go into the clubhouse."

Jackson's massive ego has caused several brouhahas since he departed the free agent market and joined the Yankees by signing a $2.9 million, five-year contract last November.

The former Oakland A and Baltimore Oriole criticized captain Thurman Munson's leadership qualities in a national magazine story. Later in the season, Jackson refused to shake hands with teammates after he hit a home run.

The New York team's morale can't be plummeting any faster than their deficit in the East Division standings. The Red Sox win, their second in 24 hours over the Bronx Bombers, gave them a one and a half game edge.

AMERICAN

Boston beat the defending American League champions, who were supposed to be untouchable with the addition of Jackson and Don Gullett, with a pair of homers each from veteran Carl Yastrzemski and Bernie Carbo and a long-distance blast from Geroge Scott, his 17th.

New York took a 2-0 lead in the first, but Boston assumed command for keeps in the bottom of the frame when Yastrzemski homered into the center field seats with two mates aboard.

BILL Campbell, the Red Sox' prize free agent catch, pitched three and two-thirds innings of scoreless relief for his 13th save. Reggie Cleveland got credit for his sixth win in nine tries.

The Baltimore Orioles moved into second place with the Yankees as their ace pitcher, Jim Palmer, threw his best game in several starts, a 4-2 decision over Toronto.

In stopping a three-game losing streak, Palmer (9-7) became the Orioles' all-time winningest pitcher with a 182-99 mark. He had been tied with the retired Dave McNally.

Palmer also snapped Ron Fairly's 13-game hitting streak.

Ken Kravec struck out 11 Oakland A's before tiring in the eighth inning as the Chicago White Sox prevailed 2-0. Lerrin LaGrow relieved and earned his tenth save.

The win moved the White Sox within one and a half games of first-place Minnesota in the West.

Minnesota fell, 2-1, in Kansas City as the Royals' scored both their runs in the second inning. Joe Zdeb's gounder scored one run, then Fred Patek stole home to give winner Jim Colborn, who tossed a four-hitter, the deciding run.

Eighth-inning RBI singles by Duane Kuiper and Jim Norris produced Cleveland's 4-3 victory over Detroit.

Seattle exploded for five runs in the tenth inning, the first two scoring on Ruppert Jones' double, to torpedo Texas, 6-1. Jones had scored the tying run in the ninth on Carlos Lopez' ground out.

Seaver stops Expos on three-hitter, 6-0

"It was a beautiful experience," said Seaver, the former Mets ace who joined the Reds this week in one of baseball's biggest trades.

"I made a point to look around and remember what I saw," said Seaver, who registered his 43rd career shutout.

Seaver's performance left Expos slugger Tony Perez shaking his head in awe of the collection of talent now assembled in Cincinnati.

"With Seaver they will catch the Dodgers easy. I wouldn't be surprised if he loses another game," said Perez.

"My feeling," said Seaver, "is even if I didn't come here, Cincinnati was going to catch them anyway."

The Reds were down 13 games three weeks ago, but now have cut the Dodgers' lead to 6½ lengths.

Seaver said he shook off a case of nerves, then found the groove in the second inning. "I was just trying to get through it without getting hurt. I didn't expect anything like that. I was nervous."

He retired the first seven batters before yielding a hit to Larry Parrish with one out in the third. He faced only 30 batters, three over the minimum, striking out eight while walking none.

"He was a little excited," said catcher Johnny Bench in a masterpiece of understatement. "He's been psyching himself up for three days."

"I learned a lesson today. The true professional is not bothered by anything," said Anderson, who later predicted the four-time 20-game winner would win between "13 to 15 games" for the Reds.

The Reds staked Seaver to a 1-0 lead in the first before adding their second run in the fourth, on George Foster's 18th home run of the season.

Pete Rose led off the Reds' first with a walk, advanced to third on a single to right by Ken Griffey and scored on Joe Morgan's seacrifce fly.

Foster smashed a 1-1 pitch from loser Santo Alcala (2-4) over the right field wall with one out in the fourth.

Anderson said he leaned back and watched the show with amazement.

Giants 7, Pirates 5

SAN FRANCISCO — Gary Thomasson's two-run homer with one out in the 12th inning Saturday sent Pittsburgh down to its fifth loss in a row and ninth in the last 12 games.

Both teams hd scored in the 11th.

The Pirates went ahead in the top of the inning on Dave Parker's wind-blown double, a bunt single by Al Oliver and Wille Stargell's sacrifice fly.

Jack Clark's second pinch-hit homer of the season in the bottom of the inning made it 5-5.

Phillies 8, Braves 5

PHILADELPHIA — Ollie (Downtown) Brown, the one-time Poly High product, slammed a three-run homer with two out in the 12th inning to give the Phillies a come-from-behind victory over Atlanta.

Brown's first home run of the season came off Frank LaCorte after a walk and a single by Terry Harmon.

Tug McGraw, just activated after two months on the disabled list, picked up his first victory of the year, working one scoreless inning.

Jay Johnstone's two-run, two-out bases-loaded single, the only hit in the Phillies' three-run ninth-inning rally, tied the game 5-5 and sent it into extra innings.

Atlanta starter Phil Niekro, breezing along with nine strikeouts and a five-hitter, walked three batters to load the bases with one out in the ninth.

Astros 4, Mets 3

NEW YORK — Jose Cruz' two-run double was the big blow of a three-run sixth as Houston beat Jerry Koosman.

Koosman, now 5-7, held a 3-0 lead going into the sixth with the help of home runs by John Milner and Ed Kranepool.

But Cesar Cedeno worked a walk off the left-hander to lead off the sixth and went to second on a single by Enos Cabell. The runners moved up on a double steal and both came home on Cruz' line drive double against the right field fence. After Joe Ferguson struck out, Bob Watson got Houston's tying run home with a single.

Padres 4, Cards 1

SAN DIEGO — Two-run homers by Gene Richards and George Hendricks lifted the Padres.

Tom Griffin (5-4) got the win, but failed to become only the second Padres pitcher in 68 games to go the route, Dave Tomlin having to finish up.

F. Robinson again on hot seat

CLEVELAND (AP) — Reports circulated in Cleveland Saturday night that the Cleveland Indians were about to announce the firing of manager Frank Robinson.

Robinson could not be reached for comment on the latest reports, which said the firing was definite and would be announced soon.

None of the Indians' officials could be reached for comment on the report carried by radio station WERE and by a television station.

Ciuffetelli, Woyjeck pace Peterson win

Aldo Ciuffetelli's three-hit pitching and a 2-for-3 batting performance by Joe Woyjeck were enough for Peterson to defeat the Retail Clerks Saturday in American Legion action at Blair Field.

Ciuffetelli yielded only a seventh-inning run and Woyjeck knocked in the first run of the game when he singled home Mark Hayworth.

In other action, catcher Bob Billinger went 3-for-4 in support of his batterymate Chris Kaesman as Motor Patrol conquered San Pedro 5-3 while the Lakewood pitching quartet of Mark Thomson, Kevin Mckenna, Tom Tereschuk and Ken Hironimus hurled a five-hitter at Atlantis Realty, 7-0.

Ron Trott of the Shua Rams tossed a four-hitter to down Alamitos Bay, 7-0. He struck out six.

GREEN CLINGS TO LEAD—

Asked his biggest title so far, he replied: "the Minnesota state junior."

Padgett, son of the national president of the PGA, lost his card after two years of tour activity but unsheathed a magic putter that produced eight one-putts on the glass-slick greens and propelled him to a four-under-par 66, the best round of the tournament.

The quartet at 211, one over par but only three strokes off the pace, was made up of former Open champion Lou Graham, Wally Armstrong, Jay Haas and 44-year-old veteran Rod Funseth, who once had a share of the top spot but fell back and finished with a 72.

Graham, who has played extremely well in recent weeks, shot a 68, Armstrong 70 and Haas 71.

Jack Nicklaus, seeking a record-matching fourth American national championship, was frustrated and disappointed after a 71 that left him at 213, five strokes back.

Nicklaus, who normally goes bare-headed, went to a sun visor against the glaring light. But it didn't help his putting. He missed birdies from 10 and 12 feet on the 16th and 17th holes, then three-putted for bogey on the double-tough 18th.

"I had a chance to move into position and then just gave it away at the end," Nicklaus said. "I feel I'm ready to shoot a good round, but I'm not sure I've got one in my bag."

Johnny Miller had a 70-214. Arnold Palmer was 73-215. Al Geiberger, author of that landmark, record-setting 59 last weekend, made triple bogey seven on the final hole for a 75 and a 216 total that apparently took him out of contention.

Ben Crenshaw, Lee Trevino and Masters champion Tom Watson were bunched at 217. Trevino shot a 73, Crenshaw 72, Watson 71. Hale Irwin was 77-221. Jerry Pate, the 1976 winner, failed by one stroke to qualify for the final two rounds.

Most ofthe round ws played under a severe thunderstorm watch and the heat and humidity were definite factors.

"It just drains you, makes concentration very difficult, said Weiskopf.

More than four dozen spectators in the gallery of 20,000 were stricken by heat prostration and attended by first aid personnel. The caddy for pro Bob E. Smith collapsed on the 10th hole and was carried from the course. Smith's bag was picked up by a friend who was in the gallery.

"The nice thing about leading is that it's gonna force the other players to come to me," said Green, who really hasn't received the recognition due his 11 tour titles.

"And in the Open, when they start to gamble, they make mistakes."

Asked if he were surprised his over-par round enabled him to retain the lead, he replied:

"This is the U.S. Open. The USGA are professionals at putting the pins where you're putting downhill all day. And that's what I was doing. No, I'm not surprised."

Everyone else was backing up at the same time after Green posted his second consecutive bogey on holes two and three.

Green was talking, gesturing, smiling almost constantly on routine pars for the next few holes, but had to make a 12-footer to save par on the sixth.

He bogeyed the 12th after missing the green with a six iron, went to three over par for the day but still had a jaunty wave for the gallery when he walked off the green.

His only birdie came on a 15-footer on the 15th.

"I was putting downhill all day," he said, "trying to let the ball die in the hole. I'd rather have an eight-foot uphill putt than a four-foot downhill putt on greens this fast.

Bean's round was built on his first two holes.

He birdied them both, with putts of 10 and 18 feet.

There were some adventures after that, a bogey, another birdie, three saves, but the two that opened the round were the key.

As for today's final round for the most coveted title in golf, the 24-year-old Bean, winner of the Doral Open earlier this year, said:

"I'd just like to go out and play as well as I did today and see what happens."

Green, who wants so desperately to win this one, was asked about the pressure.

Green laughed.

"I heard all that talk about Tom Watson choking at the Masters. Well, if he choked, I can really choke.

"It's always been a private goal of mine to win this tournament."

Laura trails by 2 strokes

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Battling fatigue from high humidity and temperatures in the 80s, Judy Rankin fired a par-72 Saturday to earn a one-stroke lead after two rounds in a Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

Sandra Spuzich, playing before many of her hometown fans from Indianapolis, was one stroke back at three-under par 141 on the 6,044-yard Harbor Trees golf course. She shares the runner-up position with South African Sally Little.

Laura Baugh and Donna Caponi Young, who missed two putts of less than two feet on the back nine, were next at 142.

"I got woozy, maybe a little tired," said the 32-year-old Mrs. Rankin, who will try for her 23rd tour victory in today's final round.

"I never perspired and my legs were going like I've never seen them before. I was glad to see the back nine finish," said Mrs. Rankin, of Midland, Tex.

Jane Blalock and Kathy Farrer are at 143 and LPGA Hall of Famer Mickey Wright is next at 145.

Bunched together at 146 are Amy Alcott, Chako Higuchi, who had an eagle. They are tied with Jan Stephenson, Beth Stone, Marlene Floyd, Alexandra Reinhardt and Kathy Cornelius.

Jocelyne Bourassa had one of the more unusual rounds of the tournament, finishing with a 74. She had seven birdies, but picked up six penalty strokes.

Long Beach day tickets available

There are few things that can be considered more American than baseball — unless it would be a good bargain.

The Independent, Press-Telegram, in observance of Long Beach Day at Dodger Stadium, Thursday, July 28, has a plan which allows its readers to have both.

By clipping and filling out the adjacent box you can receive one adjoining box ($4.50) or reserved ($3.00) seat free for every one purchased at the regular price. Adding to the bargain is the quality of competition as the Dodgers face the defending Eastern Division champion Philadelphia Phillies.

Order as many tickets as you like but order only in even numbers (2-4-6-etc.). Checks or money orders made payable to the Dodgers should be mailed to:

Galindez retains WBA crown

ROME (AP) — Victor Galindez of Argentina survived a sixth-round cut and clearly outpointed challenger Richie Kates of Bridgeton, N.J. to retain his World Boxing Association light heavyweight crown Saturday night.

The 28-year-old Argentine dominated the 15-round bout with superior power and speed.

The bout was almost a repetition of the controversial, bloody title fight the two boxers staged in Johannesburg 13 months ago.

On May 22, 1976, Galindez suffered a third round cut, but doctors said he could continue after a 10-minute interruption. The Argentine suffered a deep cut over his right eye in a sixth round clinch Saturday night, but it was his head that hit the American's during one of his lightning fast attacks.

Galindez had charged that Kates was butting with his head during the first match and he said the American could only beat him in Rome by hitting him with his head.

The cut did not slow down Galindez who kept on waiting for Kates to score with his left hook and right uppercut.

The 24-year-old Kates kept up a steady pace but lacked the power to shake Galindez and cause visible damage to the Argentine. The American, however, showed his ability in finishing the match on his feet, despite severe punishment, mainly in the 11th, 12th and 14th rounds.

It was the sixth title defense for Galindez who carried his record to 44 wins, two draws, two no contests and seven defeats, winning his last 33 bouts in a row.

Free parking lot for S.D. anglers

DONNELL CULPEPPER

At a time when parking fees are going up and up, the City of San Diego is doing its best to make visitors happy with free parking almost everywhere, particularly around its famous Mission Bay, Shelter Island and just recently, the huge parking lot that will serve the overflow of anglers' vehicles at the three main sportfishing landings—Fisherman's Landing, Point Loma and H & M.

The parking around those landings always has been free, but there was an overflow to the streets. Now the Port of San Diego is landscaping the lots for those landings. Workers are putting in islands and planting trees and shrubs. That will involve the elimination of precious parking spaces now in use.

Port authorities, looking toward the albacore, yellowfin tuna and marlin seasons, have taken over a large lot situated on Shelter Island Drive, just off Rosecrans and only four blocks from the sportfishing landings. Parking there will be free. Port officials are cooperating with the landings and a shuttle bus with trailer will be working between the lot and the landings.

Fishermen may park at the lot, lock their cars and board the bus, putting their tackle and other gear on the trailer. The bus will stop at each landing. It will be a continuous service prior to departures of boats for the fishing banks. The shuttle bus will be available in the afternoon or whatever time the boats return to port.

FISHERMAN'S LANDING, one of the three on the San Diego Municipal Pier, has established a special parking area near its office for handicapped persons. There also are some 20-minute zones around the landing and officials of Fisherman's Landing say that police are very diligent about those zones.

While we are on the subject of San Diego landings, it might be well to tell you about the changes at H & M Landing. The Miller family, which sold the landing to Ken Golden in 1972, has regained possession of the facility and is making numerous changes in boat operation. While Golden operated the landing, the Miller family kept the Mascot V to keep up a tradition of always having a "Mascot" in operation.

Ralph Miller, son of the Miller who started the landing in 1935, met his wife while working as a deckhand on the Mascot III. Ralph is now general manager of the landing, and one of his sons, Bob is the supervisor. He also has earned his skipper's license and is capable of alternating with Kirby Kersey on the Mascot VI. Another son, Mark, now 16, is wor king at the counter in the landing, sells tickets, rents rods and reels and repairs rental fishing outfits.

The Miller daughters, Mary, Catherine and Anne, are away at college, but Catherine probably will be doing some work at the landing through the summer.

The Mascot VI is a refurbished model of the H & M Salado [illegible] and Kersey will remain as the main skipper.

BACK TO THE PARKING fee subject: Parking fees irritate some people to such an extent that they will deliberately leave the lot or a zone where fees are charged. When H. Werner Buck, noted show producer, shifted his Los Angeles Sportsmen's Show to the Los Angeles Sports Arena this year, he subsidized the adjacent lots and gave patrons free parking. He made more friends doing that than he would have had he lowered the admission price $1.50.

There is much static being generated in Long Beach about the proposed beach parking fees of $1 on weekdays and $2 on weekends and holidays. One of the lots affected is the one adjacent to Belmont Pier. I have heard from several oldtimers who fish on the pier and whose main income comes from Social Security. One angler came to my house the other day to protest. He said that all of the elderly fishermen were "plenty mad about the proposed fees."

That lot has to serve Belmont Pier as well as the Plaza swimming pool area and the beach.

There will be free parking at Queen's Wharf Sportfishing, but spaces there are for people who buy tickets and fish from sportfishing boats. Operators of Belmont Pier are not happy about the proposed fees because they, too, have boat patrons who must have parking spaces. The proposed fee will force them to pay an extra dollar or two to fish aboard the Queen of the Sea.

THE LONG BEACH PARKING fees for the beach and the beach lots have not gone into effect yet, and it is my understanding that the City Council will have a final reading on July 22. If the Council approves, the plan must go before the Coastal Commission where it could be approved or disapproved.

The plan as presented by the City Manager would earmark the fees for the months of May, June, July, September and October.

Although no provision has been made for exemptions for anybody from the beach parking fees, it is understood that persons who use the beach or fish much of the time from Belmont Pier or in the surf will be able to buy season passes for $15, provided the proposed fees become effective.

NOW FOR a quick glance at fresh-water fishing prospects for the coming week:

Irvine Lake's seven-day-a-week schedule continues and so does the weekly plant of 3,000 pound of rainbow trout. While some other lakes are being drawn down, Irvine is going up. In fact, says Mrs. Alice Carlson, lake manager, the level of the lake should rise another four or five feet vertically. The Irvine Company is accepting water in the reservoir. That water will be used later for agricultural irrigation.

Trout plants have been halted in Lake Skinner, but Russ Cleary, who has the concession there as well as the one at Irvine Lake, says that there are many holdover trout that are surviving. Action has been good around the spillway. Catfish and crappie are making anglers happy.

Billie Jean, Chris spark U.S.

EASTBOURNE, England (AP) — Chris Evert and Billie Jean King scored singles victories Saturday to give the United States a 2-1 victory over Australia and retention of the women's Federation Lawn Tennis Cup.

Miss Evert, although playing below form, won the clincher in the best-of-five series by beating Kerry Reid 7-5, 6-3 in the second singles match to give the Americans the $40,000 first prize.

Earlier, Billie Jean King downed Dianne Fromholtz 6-1, 2-6, 6-2. In the meaningless doubles, Mrs. Reid and Wendy Turnbull defeated Miss Evert and Rosemary Casals 6-3, 6-3.

It was sixth victory in 10 Federation Cup appearances for the United States.

Ms. King showed much of her old power to make sure the Americans got off to a solid start. In an outstanding match of twisting fortunes she beat the 20-year-old Miss Fromholtz in 75 minutes.

Miss Evert was not hardpressed to win because the 29-year-old Mrs. Reid failed to match the form she showed helping the Aussies eliminate Britain Friday night.

By contrast, King's opening match with Fromholtz was full of sparkling tennis. The 33-year-old Long Beach product, six times Wimbledon champion, turned on much of her old magic in a devastating first set.

After such a beating it seemed impossible that Fromholtz could come back. But she transformed the match in the second set by taking on Billie Jean at her own brilliant volleying game, breaking her service twice, in the third and seventh games.

But at the finish it was Billie Jean's vast experience which subdued the young southpaw.

Crystal Water the winner

Carrying high weight of 120 pounds, the California-bred Crystal Water was timed in two minutes flat over the 1¼-mile main track after early fractions of 22⅘, 45⅘, 1:09 and 1:33⅘.

Crystal Water, given an artistic ride by his regular pilot, Laffit Pincay, collected $210,000 for his owner-breeder, Mrs. Connie M. Ring of Beaumont, who is known as the grand dame of racing in the state.

"He is some kinda horse," said Pincay. "What more can I say?"

Favored by a crowd of 38,875, Crystal Water returned $6.80, $4 and $2.60. Cascapedia, who had won four in a row at Hollywood Park this year, carried 116 pounds, including Donald Pierce, and paid $5 and $3.60. Caucasus, 124, with Fernando Toro up, returned $4.60.

After being slammed hard at the break, Crystal Water moved up to press longshot Austin Mittler for the early lead, and carried a comfortable lead into the far turn.

"At the top of the stretch, I thought I still had some horse left, but Crystal Water wasn't really putting out," said Pincay. "Then the filly (Cascapedia) came to us and actually got out in front. My horse had never really responded from the whip too well in the past, but I felt I had to try something, so I hit him and he took off."

Ancient Title, who won the Hollywood Gold Cup in 1975 and has won $1,082,716 in his lengthy career, finished fourth in the field of 12 contenders.

Crystal Water's total earnings have stretched to $723,770. He has won seven of his 16 starts, with three seconds and two thirds.

Trailing behind the top four in order were: Rajab, Mark's Place, Balmerino, Legendario III, Festive Mood, Pay Tribute, Austin Mittler and Taras Bulba.

The purse money included $60,000 for second, $40,000 for third, $25,000 for fourth, $10,000 for fifth and $5,000 for sixth in what was billed as the richest thoroughbred race in the nation and the richest in Hollywood Park history.

DOWN THE STRETCH—Laffit Pincay's Gold Cup victory was his second win of the afternoon and with Sandy Hawley drawing a blank, the Hollypark jockey standings find both competitors tied with 76...10 distaffers will go postward today in the $50,000-added Wilshire Handicap, at a mile and one eighth on the turf course...$25,000 will definitely be given away today to the person or persons selecting the most consecutive winners, beginning with the first race, in the Sunday Sweep contest.

Longshots hit at Alamitos

Hes'Wright was the upset winner of the first division of the Laddie Stakes at Los Alamitos Race Course Saturday night, narrowly defeating Domegood in the 400-yard contest clocked in 20.27 seconds.

Ridden by leading rider Danny Cardoza, Hes'Wright was away from the gate the fastest of seven 3-year-old colts and geldings competing for the $11,500 purse.

As the tightly bunched field reached the wire, Hes'Wright was a neck in front of Domegood and a half-length ahead of Johnnie Brown. The win was worth $19.20, $6.40 and $4.80 and marked Hes'Wright's first triumph in four starts this year.

In the second division, another longshot connected when Think Money, under the handling of Terry Lipham, returned $29.20. Think Money scored in 20.27 seconds and combined with Truly Terrific for a $398.50 exacta payoff.

Turf highlights

BELMONT — Hunza Dancer, under the masterful ride of jockey Jean Cruguet, bulled his way through a small hole on the rail and won the $114,300 Bowling Green Handicap in track-record time of 1:58⅘ on the inner-turf course...Cruguet, who just a week ago swept the Triple Crown by winning the Belmont Stakes with Seattle Slew, said afterwards that Hunza Dancer, "is a good strong horse and he had to be. We had to fight our way through." At the finish of the 1¼ miles before a crowd of 26,544, Hunza Dancer was a head in front of Improvisor with Noble Dancer 1¾ lengths further back in the field of 13...It was the third straight victory for the son of Hawaii who raced in Germany, France and Italy last year and who is now unbeaten in the United States since being brought to this country early this year. Carrying 117 pounds, the five-year-old Kentucky-bred Hunza Dancer went off the 5-2 second choice and paid $7.80.

YONKERS RACEWAY — Longshot Jade Prince, driven by Jack Kopas, nipped Nat Lobell, driven by Kopas's son John, at the wire to win the prestigious Cane Pace...The father-son duel was set up when pace-setters B.G.'s Bunny and Governor Skipper, who was pacing second, broke stride with less than one quarter of a mile to go...Nat Lobell shot into the lead and appeared to be the winner until Jade Prince caught him just before the wire to win by one-half length and pay $63.20...Nat Lobell paid $7 and $4.40 after finishing 1½ lengths in front of Big Towner, who returned $2.60...Time for the mile was 1:59...The eight starters in the Cane were the survivors of two elimination heats...Jade Prince finished third in the second elimination heat which had been won by B.G.'s Bunny in 1:58...Nat Lobell had finished third in the first heat won by Big Towner in 1:58...Jade Prince earned $10,311 in the elimination heat—each was worth $30,000—and then picked up $57,340 more from the Cane Purse of $114,680.

WOODBINE — Northernette, ridden by veteran Avelino Gomez, easily outclassed her distaff rivals in the $80,865 Canadian Oaks, scoring an 11-length victory in the 1⅛-mile race for 3-year-old Canadian-bred fillies...Northernette, the 3-5 favorite, covered the distance in 1:52⅘ over a sloppy track...Lady Nijinsky, a 50-1 shot, finished second, three-quarters of a length in front of Wasaga.

CALDER — What A Threat took the lead soon after the start and stayed in front the rest of the way to win the $20,000 Hollywood Handicap...Noble Royalty, the only filly in the field, was second as favored Lightning Thrust finished third...What A Threat ran 1 1-16 miles on the grass in 1:42⅗...The Florida-bred son of Tronado was second choice with the crowd of 11,368 and paid $7.00.

Arizona St. wins NCAA title, 2-1

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Chris Bando cracked a seventh-inning go-ahead home run and Jerry Vasquez checked South Carolina on five hits Saturday night to lift Arizona State to a 2-1 victory in the championship game of the 31st College World Series.

Top-rated Arizona State (57-12) earned its fourth series crown—but first since 1969—in a pitchers' battle before a capacity crowd of 11,876.

Vasquez, a junior right-hander who won two series games, struck out three and retired the last nine men in order after Steve King deadlocked the game with a leadoff home run in the seventh.

In the bottom of the inning Bando, younger brother of major leaguer Sal Bando, lined an 0-1 pitch over the right field fence to give the Sun Devils the lead again.

Arizona State took a 1-0 lead in the third inning on a two-out single by Rick Peters, a stolen base and a single by Mike Henderson. Peters scored when Henderson was trapped in a run-down after rounding first base.

HIGH TREASON broke smoothly to take a clear lead on the first turn, saved something to meet NOTRUSO on the final turn then moved clear when settled into the stretch and urged. The latter showed speed soon after the break to be close up, gained on the winner to be along side at the quarter pole then could not match strides in the stretch. DESCENDANT saved ground to find some traffic and hung in the last furlong.

Stanford Jr. High's top athlete

Lisa Tribble: Girl for all seasons

By Elaine Risinger
Staff Writer

For the second time in the school's history a girl, Lisa Tribble, has been named outstanding athlete at Stanford Junior High School. Not outstanding girl athlete. Outstanding athlete, period.

Lisa helped her team to a first-place victory in the All-City Basketball playday, is a member of the girls volleyball team and plays third base for the Uncolas in the Los Altos Bobby Sox League.

Lisa keeps in shape riding her skateboard and 10-speed bike. When her skateboard did not have the flexibility need for certain stunts, she designed and made one that did. Riding her bike 30 miles for a picnic is all in a weekend's fun.

LISA TRIBBLE
She does it all

But Lisa is more than a super athlete. Early this year, before she turned 15, she submitted a drawing for the school annual cover. There were more than a hundred drawings submitted but Lisa's was chosen.

She has been winning art contests since fifth grade and has just completed a special class at Long Beach State. The art teacher has invited Lisa to attend a special class for gifted students and, additionally, she has received an invitation from the Long Beach School District to participate in an honor art class at Lakewood High this summer.

And, oh yes, Lisa plays clarinet in the Stanford school band. Of course, there are other things she has not yet mastered. Probably because she hasn't tried—yet.

Next year Lisa will attend Millikan High where she will try out for the girls basketball and volleyball teams.

INCREASED interest in athletics among young women doesn't stop with summer and the end of interscholastic competition. Most girls with an eye toward improved performance and, perhaps, a college scholarship use the three months to attend training camps and participate in summer league programs.

Long Beach State is helping to fill the instruction need by providing camp programs in six sports this year—volleyball, badminton, tennis, soccer, softball and field hockey. LBSU and visiting coaches, all with outstanding credentials, will be teaching.

The week-long sessions stress fundamentals, conditioning, strategy and performance. Athletes will be ability-grouped and receive individual as well as group instruction.

The time schedule for camps is 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily. The cost varies, but most are $35 with dormitory housing available for $45 a week extra.

Badminton and tennis will be presented beginning Monday. Girls interested should check with the Women's Physical Education office at LBSU about late registration.

The two coaches for badminton are Vicki Toutz and Judianne Kelly. Both have been members of UBER champion teams. Coach at Garden Grove High High School, Toutz also was the 1973 state singles and double champion.

Kelly, who coaches at Pacifica High School, was 1975 state and national singles champion and the 1974-76 national mixed doubles champion.

LBSU tennis coach Gloria Hendricks will head the tennis program. Hendricks, a member of the Long Beach Tennis Patrons, is a former California ranked junior. She will be assisted by Dorothy Bogdanoff, an LBSU tennis instructor, who was the collegiate national singles and doubles champion in 1973-74. She is also varsity coach at East L.A. College.

Soccer is on the agenda June 27-July 1 with Barbara Longstreth and Alan Hargreaves the instructors. Longstreet, LBSU field hockey and la crosse coach, has represented the U.S. in international competition in both sports as a player and coach.

Hargreaves, an assistant professor of physical education from Madeley College in England, has been a member of the British University first team and was on the All England College Cup finalist team.

WOMEN IN SPORTS

The camp will include a seven-player-a-side tournament.

The focus will be on tactics and field strategy.

VOLLEYBALL and softball camps will open July 5. Daily times will be lengthened to make up for the shortened week.

Dixie Grimmet and Lu Ann Terheggan will head the volleyball session, and Johanna Moore and Sue Simms will teach softball.

Grimmet, who coached LBSU to a national championship in 1972, served as coach of the World University Games in 1977 and as a member of the USVBA coaching staff. She has been selected volleyball coach of the year.

Terheggan, coach at Golden West College, has been chosen as assistant coach of the U.S. women's team which will compete at the World University Games in Bulgaria in August. It will be her second trip to the Games. She played on the U.S. squad during the 1972 games in Moscow.

A three-time all America, Terheggan played with LBSU's 1972 AIAW collegiate championship team, with Wilt Chamberlain's "Little Dippers" and was on the 1971 U.S. Pan American Games team.

Moore and Simms, the softball coaches, will draw on their professional experience. Moore is former player, coach and owner of the Orange Lionettes. Simms, who plays third base for the San Diego Sandpipers, was a member of the Lionettes national championship team, and was selected to the 1972 all-America softball team at third base.

The final camp of the season, field hockey, will be combined with a coaching and officiating clinic. The session is co-sponsored by the L. A. Field Hockey Assn. Barbara Longstreth and Dr. Margaret Miller will be instructors. The cost will be $25.

Complete information concerning the camps may be obtained through the Women's Physical Educatione Dept. at Long Beach State.

Effective protection for you. Ultra Ban II has a very effective anti-perspirant system that sprays on dry and helps keep you dry while it protects against odor.

More economical too. Ultra Ban II also costs you less to use. In fact, tests show it should last you longer than the same size of our old anti-perspirant with fluorocarbons.

Season-All is a blend of salt and imported spices. So it can do a lot more for the foods you cook than just plain salt. Like add a subtle flavor. Or perk up an aroma. Season-All. Sprinkle it.

Rub it in. Brush it on. Meats, fish, vegetables, poultry, eggs, even cottage cheese. It's great for sauces, gravies, stews and salad dressings. Season-All. Good cooks use it like everyone else uses salt.

Love Game

[illegible]

By Bob Martin
TV-Radio Editor

Television's "Wonder Woman" — Lynda Carter — married her wonder man, Ron Samuels, three weeks ago, and they're still playing the love game.

They'll be coming to Long Beach next Saturday and Sunday (June 25-26) to host a pro-celebrity tennis tournament for charity at the Billie Jean King Tennis Center in Recreation Park.

Lynda doesn't claim to be a wonder woman on the courts, and when I talked with her at a press party in Beverly Hills she wasn't certain whether she would take part in the competition.

It's not likely that she'll make use of "Wonder Woman's" golden belt that gives her superhuman strength, her golden lasso with its magical powers — or her silvery bracelets to return cannonball serves and powerful overhead smashes, as they deflect bullets and missiles.

No, if she were going to put her "Wonder Woman" act on the courts, Lynda wouldn't be playing in Long Beach next weekend — she'd be at Wimbledon. With a few WHAMS!, ZAPS! and CRASHES!, she'd have Chris, Billie Jean, Martina and all the other women stars on the sidelines in no time at all.

Lynda DOES play tennis, though. Ron did some of his courting of her on the court.

"We met and went to lunch on a Friday, played tennis on Saturday — and we've hardly been apart since," said the statuesque brunette. Of course, they did other things besides play tennis.

Ron is her personal manager (other clients have included Lindsay Wagner and Jaclyn Smith), and he's going to produce a TV special starring his bride which will air in the 1977-78 season. Ron's a much better player than Lynda, and he said he'll probably play an exhibition match during the tournament in Long Beach, which will raise funds for the scholarship program of CATHY Inc. (Citizens for Action to Help Youth).

He said he sometimes plays with members of the pro circuit who come to his private court for practice.

Miss Carter is a native of Phoenix and attended high school in Arcadia. She toured the country as a singer with various groups for three years after finishing high school, and then, in 1972, she entered a beauty contest in Phoenix. She won local and state titles and, eventually, the "Miss World-U.S.A." crown before losing out in the Miss World pageant in London to Miss Australia.

After touring for a year as "Miss World-U.S.A.," Lynda settled in Hollywood and started taking acting lessons. Before long, she was picked to star in the second "Wonder Woman" pilot, which aired on ABC on Nov. 7, 1975, and led to the series.

(The original "Wonder Woman" pilot was made in 1974 and starred blonde actress Cathy Lee Crosby, who, incidentally, is a former high-ranking junior tennis player from Pasadena and one of the best of the celebrity players.)

"Wonder Woman," which is based on the newspaper cartoon character created by Charles Moulton in the early 1940s, currently is airing, in reruns, on Saturday nights from 8 to 9 on ABC. When that network failed to place the series on its upcoming fall schedule (though it had not ruled it out for occasional specials), CBS jumped in and bought the show from Warner's and will air new episodes weekly on Friday nights from 8 to 9, starting in September.

Wonder Woman, after all, is not an easy person to kill off. Just ask the Nazis.

Lynda said she'll start work on the CBS series the day after the Long Beach celebrity tournament ends.

Among the celebrities who have agreed to play are Dinah Shore, Lloyd Bridges, Lucie Arnaz, Lyle Waggoner (Maj. Steve Trevor on "Wonder Woman"), Bo Hopkins, Ben Murphy, William Devane, Barry Newman, Don Meredith, John Cappelletti, Bob Seagren, Marv Fleming, Mike Warren, Ray Danton, Jo Ann Pflug, Chuck Woolery, Alex Trebek, Martin Kove, Cheryll Miller, David Sheehan, Gigi Perreau, James (Lefty) Brown, Bruce Wayne, Bob Hogan, Ted Hartley, John Marley, Cornel Wilde, Jean Wallace, Alan Bergman, Henry Hines and Ivan Nagy.

They will be joined in doubles competition by other celebrities, more than 25 tennis pros and members of the public who have contributed to CATHY to take part. General admission for spectators will be $3 a day ($2.40 for children under 12 and senior citizens).

Take it from Lynda and Ron, it'll be a "Wonder Weekend" on the courts.

What a woman!

That's no tennis racket Lynda Carter, as "Wonder Woman," is holding in the photo above — it's a telephone pole. But Lynda and her bridegroom, Ron Samuels, are tennis buffs, and they'll host a pro-celebrity tournament in Long Beach next weekend. Lynda and Ron were married May 28 in Beverly Hills.

'One of the best documentaries in the history of TV'

'CIA's Secret Army' draws praise

By Lee Winfrey
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

"CBS Reports: The CIA's Secret Army," which aired Friday night, June 10, was one of the best documentaries in the history of television. It is a model of how to present investigative reporting on film.

It took almost three years of work by host Bill Moyers and free-lance writer George Crile III to produce this remarkable two-hour special. The result was a great piece of work, a fitting successor to such classic CBS documentaries of the past as "Harvest of Shame" and "The Selling of the Pentagon."

Seventeen years of secret war and public lies were exposed in this documentary. This is how a generation of Cuban exiles was used and misused by the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) and three American presidents.

The range and depth of this special, and the care and compassion with which it was assembled, are difficult to convey in a short review. But here is a synopsis of that show in case you missed it:

In March, 1960, President Dwight Eisenhower authorized the CIA to overthrow Cuban Premier Fidel Castro. Thirteen months later, when John F. Kennedy was President, 1,400 Cuban exiles invaded Cuba at the Bay of Pigs.

A CIA agent named Grayston Lynch led the Cubans ashore and fired the first shot. In scenes of compelling interest, Lynch talked about his years of work with the exiles.

After the invasion failed in a three-day fiasco, President Kennedy said, in a speech resurrected on the program, that the United States as a democracy could not get away with dirty tricks and lies. He was lying, for at that moment he was trying those very things.

Privately, Kennedy and his brother, Robert F. Kennedy, had authorized the CIA, in a plan called "Operation Mongoose," to conduct a secret war of guerrilla strikes and sabotage against Cuba. This war went on until 1967.

As described in the broadcast by Ray Cline, who was deputy director of intelligence for the CIA when he retired in 1966:

"Both of the Kennedy brothers, and particularly Bobby, felt that they had been booby-trapped at the Bay of Pigs. They felt almost an obsession to get even."

Although federal law says the CIA is not supposed to operate inside the United States, Cline says 600 to 700 CIA agents worked on "Operation Mongoose" in Miami during the early 1960s. Moyers says they directed an army of 2,000 exiles.

The secret war continued after the missile crisis of 1962 was ostensibly settled. Castro told Moyers, in an interview gilmed in Cuba, that the ICA tried to kill him two dozen times.

Richard Bissell was deputy director for plans, the CIA's chief of dirty tricks, when he retired in 1962. Describing how assassinations are ordered, he told Moyers on the show, "The President typically says he wants to get rid of somebody."

After the secret war ended a decade ago, E. Howard Hunt, who directed the Bay of Pigs operation for the CIA, appeared again in Miami, recruiting now for President Richard Nixon.

Bernard Barker, Hunt's right-hand man for the Bay of Pigs operation, said that Hunt told him, "We are creating a superstructure at White House level and it is above the FBI and CIA. We're working for national security."

Nixon's "Operation Diamond" ended with the Watergate burglary, and Hunt, Barker and Martinez all went to prison.

Now, some 200 to 300 members of the old secret army are at work in Miami on a terror campaign of their own, highlighted so far by the bombing of a Cuban commercial airliner that killed 73 persons last October.

Ladd joins the angels

A pretty lass named Cheryl, that is

By Jerry Buck
AP Television Writer

CHERYL LADD ... newest 'angel'

Cheryl Ladd, recruited as the newest "Charlie's Angel" after the departure of Farrah Fawcett-Majors, says she doesn't want to become a sex symbol.

"I have a lot more going than just that," Cheryl said during a lunch break filming her first episode for the fall season of the hit ABC series.

She laughed, then added, "But if people want to say I'm sexy, that's all right."

Despite the departure of Farrah, viewers need not worry, said Cheryl, a natural blonde. "It's going to have more sex than ever because of the violence restrictions. But I'm trying to add humor and reality to my character. She's a very real person. The sex is done naturally. It's not played up. I hope to come across on the screen as a human being."

"Charlie's Angels," as most people know, are three beautiful women detectives who rely more on sex appeal than powers of detection to solve cases just one step above the comic book level. Obviously, it's not clever plots that attract viewers to the show.

Cheryl, 25, married to actor David Ladd and the mother of a 2-year-old daughter, was signed to play Kris Munroe, the younger sister to Farrah's character. Kate Jackson and Jaclyn Smith also star.

Farrah announced last March that she would not return to "Charlie's Angels," which in its first year had helped certify her as a sex symbol of the '70s. She is now involved in a lawsuit with the producers, Spelling-Goldberg Productions.

Cheryl, who had been a singer with a small band, arrived seven years ago from Huron, S.D., and professes to be still a small-town girl at heart. She comes from a closely knit family. "I go home twice a year and some of the family comes here," she said. "We talk once a week on the telephone."

She still sings and says her ambition is to star in a Broadway musical.

She had acted in series roles and TV movies for several years, but said she was unprepared for the sudden fame that descended upon her when she signed for "Charlie's Angels."

"It's big shoes to step into if Farrah doesn't come back," she said. "But it's a steady job and good money and I have enough confidence in myself as an actress. It's all so overwhelming. There are so many demands on me now and my time has become precious.

"One thing I am determined is that it will not take away from the relationship with my husband and daughter. That's the most important thing in my life. Jordan is a terrifically healthy and well adjusted girl and I want her to stay that way."

She said she wants to raise her with the same values her parents taught her. "We had some rough times when I was growing up," she said. "I'm proud of that, knowing that my parents taught me that family and people and friends are what's important."

San Francisco show to go nationwide

Series by, for and about women making a success

By Linda Kramer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — It's a show about women, by women, for women, but producer Roxanne Russell does not want her public television series "Womantime & Co." classified as a feminist show.

"We're really aiming for a broad spectrum of women who wouldn't consider themselves feminists but certainly are interested in what's happening to women these days," said Ms. Russell. "We're feminists, but soft feminists. We're not trying to preach a doctrine."

THE SHOW started two years ago at KQED in San Francisco. After a second successful season this year, many of the nation's 156 public broadcast stations bought her show for the 1977-78 season.

"Womantime & Co." is the brainchild of Martha Glessing, who was KQED's membership director when she began lobbying to offer women some alternatives to the traditional daytime programming of game shows and soap operas.

ROXANNE RUSSELL (left), producer of the public television series "Womantime & Co.," chats with Frieda Klussman, San Francisco's "Cable Car Lady" — the octogenarian who led the fight to save the city's cable cars.

— Associated Press Wirephoto

"The people who program for women at the networks are not at all concerned about where women really are, except to change the story line of some soap operas to include women doctors or a segment on abortion," said Mrs. Glessing.

She said a Nielsen rating their first season discovered that "Womantime" had picked up about 10,000 homes per week from the daytime viewing market.

Madeline David, vice president of daytime programming for NBC, said about 85 per cent of daytime viewers are women and "if you gauge what they want by what they look at, they are getting pretty much what they want." She said soap operas continue to be extremely popular and experiments with some alternate kinds of programs mostly have been unsuccessful on commercial television.

"Womantime's" magazine format combines film remotes and live and taped interviews. Women guests have included California Chief Justice Rose Bird, activist singer Joan Baez and director Antonia Brico. The topics have ranged from childbirth

THE BIBLE Says

J. T. Smith

AND MORMONS CLAIM THAT GOD GAVE IT

It is very interesting to note some of the ridiculous things that the God who created the heavens and earth and all things therein supposedly revealed to Joseph Smith. For example, the following account is revealed in the Book of Mormon, Ether 2:16-21.

"16. And the Lord said; Go to work and build, after the manner of barges which ye have hitherto built. And it came to pass that the brother of Jared did go to work, and also his brethren, and built barges after the manner which they had built, according to the instructions of the Lord. And they were small, and they were light upon the water, even like unto the lightness of a fowl upon the water. 17. And they were built after a manner that they were exceeding tight, even that they would hold water like unto a dish; and the bottom thereof was tight like unto a dish; and the ends thereof was tight like unto a dish; and the ends thereof were peaked; and the top thereof was tight like unto a dish; and the length thereof was the length of a tree; and the door therof, when it was shut, was tight like unto a dish. 18. And it came to pass that the brother of Jared cried unto the Lord, saying: O Lord, I have performed the work which thou has commanded me, and I have made the barges according as thou hast directed me. 19. And behold, O Lord, in them there is no light; whither shall we steer? And also we shall perish, for in them we cannot breathe, save it is the air which is in them; therefore we shall perish. (Now as if it is not bad enough that God, they said God gave these instructions mind you, notice how they add insult to injury in the next statements JTS). "20. And the Lord said unto the brother of Jared: Behold, thou shalt make a hole in the top, and also in the bottom; and when thou shalt suffer for air thou shalt unstop the hole and receive air. And if it be so the water come in upon thee, behold, ye shall stop the hole, that ye may not perish in the flood. 21. And it came to pass that the brother of Jared did so, according as the Lord had commanded." If it were not so serious, it would be downright funny. How could anyone accuse God of giving instructions for building such a ridiculous thing? And if you read on in the same chapter, you will find God seeking counsel of Jared's brother as to what ought to be done. Ridiculousness gone to seed.

'Womantime' is spreading out

and contraception to women artists and housespouses.

"Sign on the Dotted Line," a show on the need for women to plan their financial security, won an Emmy for outstanding achievement from the Northern California chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. The same group awarded "Womantime" a second Emmy for a show on women and religion.

MS. RUSSELL said she tries to seek out average women, as well as prominent ones. One of next season's shows features San Francisco's "Cable Car Lady" — octogenarian Frieda Klussmann, who led the fight to save the city's famous rickety mode of transportation. Another will be on menopause.

"We like to show people changing patterns," Ms. Russell said. "We want to share them with people, saying this is interesting, what do you think about it?"

She said they have received a handful of complaints from women who would like to see the show take a heavier feminist stance, but they also have heard from housewives who enjoyed "Womantime" because it wasn't too political.

And she said they were surprised and pleased to discover that 25 per cent of their viewers were men.

"I DON'T think there's too much that goes on today that affects women that doesn't affect men," said Ms. Russell. "If we said this show was for women only, it would be a gross insult to men."

Ms. Russell, 29, a former producer with NBC network news in Los Angeles, said she can't imagine a man producing "Womantime," but neither can she think of a woman producing a show about men.

She said she would not mind having "an involved, interested" man on the staff and did not make a conscious decision not to hire any men. "None applied and since then no one has left," she said.

"If a man did 'Womantime,' it might be a harder feminist approach," she added. "A man would feel more like people were watching him, looking for sexism, looking for piggies. I think he'd feel really obligated to present this more feminist view of what women are into."

'Laugh-In' discovery

Young comic picked for six specials

By Jay Sharbutt
AP Television Writer

A familiar cliche: A struggling young comic comes to town, works free at club for exposure, is spotted by noted producer, is signed for TV shows, is finally able to pay rent on time.

Yet it has all happened to Robin Williams, 24, of San Francisco.

He hasn't been on TV yet, but next season he'll appear in all six of producer George Schlatter's new "Laugh-In" specials on NBC.

It was in the Comedy Store, a showcase for new comics in Westwood, a Los Angeles suburb that Schlatter spotted, then signed Williams, whom he calls just as fast upstairs as Jonathan Winters "but much more disciplined."

A lean, muscular man, Williams usually opens in a furry hat, a tattered black overcoat and a University of Moscow T-shirt, posing as Joey Stalin, a Russian comic whose English isn't so hot.

Moving quickly, nervously about the tiny stage, crying "Yes! Thank you very much!" at the slightest laugh, his act, much of it spur-of-the-moment whimsy, defies description.

On any night, he may try to teach a rubber chicken to talk, then hurl it into the audience, then lie upside down on a chair, announcing he's now doing "Superman on speed."

Or he may slip into a wild Shakespearean take-off, then pick up a red glass bowl containing a lit candle, hold it aloft as kind of a Poor Yorick flambee, and cry out to a heckler:

"Let's drink a toast — suck wax and we'll seal your lips forever."

The odd thing about all this funny business is that Williams, by his reckoning, only has been in comedy about a year and a month. He originally set out to be an actor, a stage actor at that.

An Edinburgh, Scotland, native whose folks moved to the United States when he was a tot, he says he studied at New York's Julliard School of Drama, then took a leave of absence to try his luck.

ROBIN WILLIAMS
... as Joey Stalin

But roles were few, so he drifted to comedy in New York and later with a San Francisco comedy troupe called Papaya Juice.

With $10 in his pocket, he came to the City of Angels last year, premiered — at 1:30 a.m. — at a comedy showcase called The Improvisation, and thus launched the job search they call the L.A. Scuffle.

The scuffle is hard, particularly on those wretched nights when a rookie comic faces what Williams calls "high-energy crazies," or such as the hostile witness who poured a glass of water on him.

"She got me from behind while I was playing a gospel preacher," he recalled. "I was going to baptize her with a pitcher of water, but she had two very big friends ... "

So how'd he fight back?

"Didn't," he mused. "Sometimes it's better to turn the other check and save your behind."

He laughed when it was suggested his coming "Laugh-In" shots may open other doors and even lead to a need for a good tax accountant. He recited an old proverb in fractured Russian. Translation?

"We need da money," said Robin Williams, the new kid in town.

A letter to Mom

Critic's week down the tube at Camp Rerun

By Jay Sharbutt
AP Television Writer

CAMP RERUN, Calif. (AP) — Dear Mom: How are you? I am fine. Well, here I am at Camp Rerun, winding up the one-week summer training they make all us TV critics attend each year.

It is a nifty place, but I must say I do not like the exercise period in the morning. They make us watch "The Gong Show," then leap up and cry, "Poor taste! Poor taste!"

You do this 100 times before breakfast each day and pretty soon you wish you were back covering Washington.

Yesterday, a short, swarthy man in a T-shirt, Baretta, I think his name was, ran a refresher course on what to do about TV violence.

He said we should get the PTA in a dark alley and mug it. Everyone laughed, of course.

Later, a fellow in a dark suit from New York taught us how to spell "profoundly moving." He said it was to be used only when reviewing a TV movie about Franklin D. Roosevelt.

We had been told Farrah Fawcett-Majors was going to hold a course called "The Art of Acting." Due to a prior engagement, though, she couldn't make it and sent her hair instead.

We began the week with a lecture by Lamont Doze, the noted news commentator. He spoke on why it is important to have commentary on the network news each night.

"They would put in four 30-second commercials otherwise," is what he said.

Another good lecture was "The Art of the Stand-in," by David Bald, who we were told is Kojak's stand-in. He wore his Hollywood toupee, the one with the rhinestone part, and was very impressive.

After a TV dinner last night, we heard from Sartre du Tube, the famous French TV critic. His topic was: "Being and Nothingness: A Case for Existentialist Situation Tragedy."

It was a good evening for Mr. du Tube. An ABC vice president who heard his talk bought the rights to it. He says it'll premiere next fall under the title, "Happy Daze."

Today, our last lecture will be by Gentle Ben. He'll speak on discrimination against bears in television. Ben hasn't worked for several years and maybe needs a good agent.

The agent could put an additional claws in Ben's contract. That is a bear joke, Mom.

Incidentally, your cookies arrived this morning. Thank you. But next time, please don't put name tags on each one. Well, got to go. Best to Dad and ask him not to talk so much at the TV set.

It hears everything he says and will get even some day.

Rejoins 'Laugh-In'

Billy Barnes, who wrote words and music for all the topical songs throughout the five-year run of the original "Laugh-In" series, will do the same for the "Laugh-In" specials which will begin on NBC-TV in September.

Barnes was signed by George Schlatter, producer of the six monthly specials and creator-producer of the original Emmy-winning NBC-TV series.

Four stations join NBC Radio Network

The affiliation of four stations with the NBC Radio Network was announced by Marion Stephenson, vice president and general manager, NBC Radio Network.

Joining the network May 30 were KCNW, Kansas City, Mo.; KURV, Edinburg, Tex.; and WPOM, West Palm Beach, Fla. WFMS, Indianapolis, Ind. became an affiliate June 1.

To each his own.

We can put a 12" portable color television in your home for as little as $12.95 a month —any necessary repairs and parts free—so you need not settle for second best tv programming. See it our way.

JAMES MICHENER'S WORLD (28), 8 p.m. — Debut. Tonight's program chronicles the history of Israel as the birthplace of three great world religions — Judaism, Christianity and Islam. Future programs in which the Pulitzer Prize-winning author will act as host and guide to distant regions he has written about will include visual essays on the subjects of some of his other notable books — "Hawaii," "Iberia" and "Tales of the South Pacific."

MARK RUSSELL COMEDY (28), 9 p.m. — Acclaimed political satirist continues his second season of PBS comedy specials. The shows are a lively mixture of irreverent one-liners and musical parodies on current events and poke fun at the whole spectrum of political personalities and activities in the nation's capital.

IT'S FATHER'S DAY, and Dick Van Patten, star of ABC's "Eight Is Enough" series, is fit to be tied. Dick, who was named the 1977 Entertainment Father of the Year by the West Coast Father's Day Council, receives a tie from each of his 11 "children" — eight from the series and three of his own — at a special celebration. Helping him celebrate (clockwise from bottom, center) are Adam Rich (top of head), Dianne Kay, Lauri Walters, Grant Goodeve, Nels Van Patten, Lani O'Grady, Vince Van Patten, Connie Newton, Jimmy Van Patten, Willie Aames and Susan Richardson.

HAMILTON JORDAN

JOSEPH CALIFANO

Q. Isn't there bad blood between Hamilton Jordan, President Carter's patronage chief, and Joe Califano, Carter's HEW Secretary? How long will it be before Jordan ousts Califano?—D. L., Alexandria, Va.

A. Jordan was surprised when Califano chose John Ellis, an Ohio Republican, as his executive deputy commissioner of education. But Jordan is much too shrewd to make overt and traceable moves against Califano at this stage of the game. Perhaps down the road a piece.

Q. The inside word is that there is a porn film on the Rolling Stones which is a knockout. Have the Rolling Stones ever starred in England in a series of pornographic flicks?—Maude L., Pittsburgh, Pa.

A. No, they have not. But in 1972 the Stones commissioned Robert Frank, 52, a Canadian film producer, to make a documentary feature of their North American tour. Mick Jagger planned to release it in Great Britain and the U.S. After Jagger saw the finished product, he banned the film from ever being shown in public. The Stones went to court to prevent British newspapers from describing the film, which Sir Hilary Gwynne Talbot of the High Court described as "wholly unfit for public exhibition." And with good reason—it allegedly contains scenes of group sex, nudity, and sexual activity photographed backstage, on the airplane, in hotel bedrooms, and elsewhere. Reportedly there have been private showings of the film.

Q. It is my understanding that Leonid Brezhnev, leader of the Soviet Union and Secretary-General of the Communist party, has Communist party card #1. Who has Communist party card #2?—F.D.L., Hartford, Conn.

A. No one knows. You are probably mixing up membership in the Soviet Journalists Union with membership in the Communist party. According to Tass, the Soviet news agency, Brezhnev was issued card #2 in the Soviet Journalists Union. Card #1 was issued in the name of Vladimir Ilyich Lenin, founder of the Communist party and the Soviet state.

Q. What is the story about comedian George Kirby? Is it true that he was discovered in Las Vegas with five pounds of heroin worth $3 million?—G. F., Reno, Nev.

A. Kirby and four others were arrested in Las Vegas a few weeks ago by federal agents who allegedly found some cocaine and 1.1 pounds of heroin worth $400,000 on the premises. Kirby has been charged in federal court with possession of heroin and intent to distribute. He pleaded not guilty, will be tried July 6.

Q. I have been told that since Betty and Gerald Ford left the White House, each has become a millionaire. Is that true?—D.L., Bethesda, Md.

A. That is not true. What is true is that the William Morris Agency has negotiated TV and book deals for the Fords which eventually will place them in the millionaire category.

BETTY AND GERALD FORD, MILLIONAIRES-TO-BE

Q. Even though Italy is a Roman Catholic country, doesn't the Italian government distribute free oral contraceptive pills to women?—F.R., Syracuse, N.Y.

A. According to the Italian Health Ministry, such pills are distributed free provided the women obtain a prescription for the pill from a family planning center.

Q. I cannot for the life of me understand why Jimmy Carter sends top secret government and CIA reports to Richard Nixon. What is the reason?—Dean Winter, Los Angeles.

A. Carter also sends such reports to former President Gerald Ford. It is a courtesy extended to former U.S. Presidents and reflects a Presidential continuity of sorts. Both Nixon and Ford possess background knowledge which President Carter may one day find useful.

© WALTER SCOTT 1977

LADY BIRD JOHNSON

Q. Was Lady Bird Johnson offered the U.S. ambassadorship to Mexico? I have heard that story many times. Supposedly, President Carter offered her the job, and she turned it down.—M. Molina, San Antonio, Tex.

A. President Carter never offered Lady Bird Johnson the U.S. ambassadorship to Mexico. He offered her a place on the commission to choose White House fellows, and Lady Bird has accepted that position.

Q. Is professional tennis, with players like Connors, Nastase and others, going the way of boxing? Is the "fix" becoming an integral part of what was once regarded as a gentleman's game? Do players like Connors and Nastase bet on themselves? Are these players controlled by gamblers?—L. Lewis, New Rochelle, N.Y.

A. Connors and Nastase were involved in a tennis match in Puerto Rico in which the prize money distribution was untruthfully announced. It was not a "$250,000 winner-take-all" match. Connors was guaranteed $500,000 and Nastase $150,000. The promotion of professional tennis matches may be suspect, but the tennis players themselves must be regarded as honest until proved otherwise. However, some fans will regard professional tennis that involves big money with a jaundiced eye.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

by LLOYD SHEARER

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN

THE ANDERSON LAWSUIT

At 54, journalist Jack Anderson has achieved much. He is the most widely syndicated political columnist in the world: some 990 newspapers carry his column, distributed domestically and overseas by United Features.

Anderson also appears on the ABC-TV show "Good Morning, America" and some 200 radio stations affiliated with Mutual Broadcasting. He publishes a "business letter," writes books and articles, and lectures at least once a week for a $2500 fee. He employs a staff of 10 reporters and helps train six interns a year.

He is the father of nine children and the grandfather of two. He works in Washington, D.C., but resides in Bethesda, Md. He claims that during the Nixon Administration, "I was probably the most harassed reporter in the nation."

Last Sept. 27th, Anderson, a practicing Mormon, filed suit against various agencies and employees of the federal government--Richard Nixon, Henry Kissinger, John Mitchell, Richard Helms, Bob Haldeman and many others.

He charged that he had been "the victim of the most massive, intensive government harassment in U.S. history" and sued for approximately $22 million in damages, stipulating that he would donate any proceeds won from the lawsuit "to other newsmen to fight freedom of the press abuses."

COLUMNIST JACK ANDERSON AND WIFE OLIVIA AT THEIR BETHESDA, MD., HOME

If and when the Anderson case comes to trial in the U.S. district court for the District of Columbia, one of its most comic chapters will deal with the Central Intelligence Agency.

Although the CIA has no right to conduct a domestic surveillance of a reporter like Anderson, it conducted one of him and his staff under the code name "Project Mudhen" from January to April 1972.

Under a freedom of information request, Anderson's lawyers have obtained the "Mudhen" files from the CIA. They are a riot. They reveal that the CIA wanted to find out where Anderson was obtaining information. At first the agency assigned eight automobiles and agents to the project. Later they increased the number to 18 and established command posts near Anderson's office and home to direct the radio cars and photograph visitors.

During the course of the surveillance, one of Anderson's daughters, Tina, whipped out her own camera and began taking photos of the CIA agents who were following her.

Says the CIA report: "The unidentified woman was driving a dark green or black Ford station wagon....Her apparent age was 20 to 30 and she had long brown hair...." The CIA withdrew its surveillance cars, later returned with rental cars.

Jack Anderson later lunched at the Madison Hotel with the then CIA Director Richard Helms, who was wired with a hidden tape recorder. Helms learned nothing.

Last month a New York jury agreed that the CIA had invaded the privacy of three U.S. citizens by opening their mail to and from the Soviet Union. The jurors recommended awards ranging from $2500 to $10,000.

Anderson has asked for a jury trial in his lawsuit, and it will be interesting to learn what the jurors recommend in his case. Can you imagine a reporter being awarded damages of $22 million?

RETIREMENT MONEY

Retirement and advancing age place a heavy financial burden on people in most Western nations.

Sweden, for example, is the only country where the elderly enjoy a higher standard of living than when they were young and employed. This results, among other things, from the fact they are not taxed as heavily as before.

The following list, prepared by the Union Bank of Switzerland, shows the income of a retired couple as a percentage of their last earned wage after taxes and deductions:

Sweden	131.6%
Switzerland	95.6
Finland	95.6
Austria	90.5
West Germany	84.3
Great Britain	81.6
Netherlands	80.4
U.S.A.	71.4
Canada	62.1
Belgium	60.6

TEA RISE

Panic-buying and a bit of hoarding have broken out in England since the price of tea reached $2 a pound.

This is triple last year's price, and it has hit the British where it hurts most--tradition. "A nice cup of tea" has always been a British anodyne for crisis situations as well as being the national drink.

London tea brokers deny that the sharp rise is the result of speculation and financial intrigue. They explain it by pointing out that high coffee prices have caused coffee drinkers all over the world to switch to tea--thus causing the price to rise skyward.

TOO MUCH BRASS

Sam Nunn, the junior Senator from Jimmy Carter's home state of Georgia, believes the armed forces are rapidly reaching the point where they will have more chiefs than Indians.

Nunn, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Manpower and Personnel Subcommittee, says the Defense Department plans to have 1165 generals and admirals this year--one flag officer for every 1800 active duty members. During the Vietnam war we had one flag officer for every 2600 active duty members.

"I find it hard to believe," Nunn declares, "that it takes more general officers to wage peace than war."

STYLE CHANGE

It remains unpublicized in Moscow, of course, but the Soviets have quietly hired a West German fashion designer, Heinz Oestergaard, 60, to restyle clothes for the Soviet merchant marine.

Oestergaard, a couturier who designed uniforms for the German police and nurses in Bavaria, recently received a request from the Kremlin to submit sketches for "a friendly, international, dignified and appealing merchant seaman's uniform."

MALE PILL SLOW

Although chemists and physicians and assorted researchers have been trying to develop one for years, a truly effective and harmless oral contraceptive for men is a long way off. So declares Dr. Donald Fawcett, a Harvard professor.

At a recent University of California symposium in Berkeley, Fawcett explained that a contraceptive pill for men would have a more complex function to perform than the pills women use.

"With a female," he pointed out, "you have to block the delivery of one ovum once a month. A male, on the other hand, manufactures 30 million or more sperm cells every day of his reproductive life."

Male contraceptive pills have been developed previously, but when used in combination with alcohol, they cause nausea and other side effects.

Researchers in Italy, Fawcett said, are experimenting with a pill involving acids that act upon supportive cells where sperm are formed rather than on the sperm itself. The advantage of this approach is that it would eliminate the possibility of genetic damage to mature sperm cells. Such damage could result in the birth of defective children.

Fawcett explained that the development of a male oral contraceptive pill is handicapped by a shortage of research funds and incomplete data on the male reproductive system.

Its development, however, would prove a boon to women whose use of female contraceptive pills sometimes causes undesirable side effects. The Food and Drug Administration, for example, insists that manufacturers of contraceptive pills for women provide labels that say such pills may cause heart attacks in women 40 or over.

JAPAN AND TAIWAN

Last year 520,000 Japanese tourists visited Taiwan, and Taiwan and Japan engaged in $3.5 billion of trade.

Yet, as far as Japan's three largest newspapers--the Asahi Shimbun, Mainichi Shimbun and Yomiuri Shimbun--are concerned, Taiwan hardly exists. For them it has become a "non-state" of sorts.

Japan's dailies refuse to station any correspondent in Taipei, the capital of Taiwan. They will not accept advertisements for books dealing with Taiwan, nor will they permit members of their staffs to visit Taiwan.

They are determined to acknowledge in all respects Peking's dictum: "There is only one China." Japan's dailies know that if they station correspondents in Taiwan, their correspondents based in Peking will be expelled immediately.

THE REAL THING

For years the U.S. ambassadorship to the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg--a tiny country tucked in between Southeast Belgium and West Germany--has served as a political payoff by U.S. Presidents.

Harry Truman sent Perle Mesta, "the Washington hostess with the mostest," to Luxembourg in the 1940's as ambassador.

When Dwight Eisenhower came to office, he paid off Wiley Buchanan, the Texas art collector, with that job. When Ruth Farkas, the department store heiress, contributed $300,000 to Richard Nixon's reelection campaign in 1972, she, too, was rewarded with the Luxembourg post.

But Jimmy Carter has removed Luxembourg as a patronage plum. He has appointed James Lowenstein, a career diplomat and former Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for European Affairs, to the ambassadorship.

The story in Washington is that the man behind the scenes in the switch is Sen. Claiborne Pell (D., R.I.). Pell, a longtime friend of the royal family of Luxembourg, supposedly advised the Luxembourgers to ask the Carter Administration for a professional diplomat instead of the traditional comic relief or Presidential crony.

Thus, for the first time in decades, Luxembourg will have a career U.S. envoy.

Observing nuclear blast eight miles away, these GI's were among 1104 whose reactions were being tested in "Operation Smokey" on Aug. 31, 1957. Two men have contracted leukemia, and U.S. wants to check health of all at the blast.

20 Years Ago, Were You There At Yucca Flats, Nev., Atomic Blast?

by Charles Peterson

Twenty years ago, on Aug. 31, 1957, 1104 members of our armed forces sat with their backs to the explosion of a 44-kiloton atomic device some eight miles away on the Yucca Flats outside Las Vegas, Nev.

A limited test ban treaty in August 1963 prohibited such aboveground nuclear tests in America. The last was conducted Nov. 4, 1962.

If you were one of the 1104 men assigned to the test dubbed "Smokey" or were stationed at Camp Desert Rock, the base camp for the Yucca Flats test, please write Dr. Glyn G. Caldwell, U.S. Center for Disease Control, Atlanta, Ga. 30333.

Dr. Caldwell, deputy chief of the center's cancer branch, wants to determine what effect that atomic blast, about twice as powerful as the ones that destroyed Hiroshima and Nagasaki, has had upon your health.

Two develop leukemia

Two men who were there, Paul Cooper of Emmett, Idaho, and Donald Coe of Tompkinsville, Ky., have developed leukemia. Others are cancer-free.

The Veterans Administration Appeals Board ruled a few weeks ago that Cooper's leukemia was contracted during his military service. But no one has confirmed his claim that it was caused by "Smokey."

Donald Coe has been awarded a pension but denied service-connected benefits. His case is being reviewed by the VA's central office.

Dr. Caldwell wants to trace the other participants in the exercise, the purpose of which was to test soldiers' reactions to a nuclear blast.

"Thus far," he reports, "I've been able to determine that there were about 600 men from the 12th Infantry Division who came from Ft. Lewis, Wash. There were also about 170 men of the 82nd Airborne from Ft. Bragg, N.C. In addition, there were helicopter pilots, some 450 observers and others involved in the two tests I'm most concerned with, one on Aug. 30th and the other on Aug. 31st."

An Army report on "Smokey" states that none of the soldiers involved in the test was closer than eight miles from ground zero on which was a steel tower containing the nuclear device.

A press release issued by the Atomic Energy Commission prior to the test, however, said that the soldiers would be in protective trenches as close to ground zero as 4500 yards.

According to Paul Cooper, a 20-year Army veteran, he was in a company of 250 men who were ordered to a trench that AFC monitors estimated was 3000 yards south of the blast site. When the wind shifted, Cooper's company was moved to a hillside 3000 yards west of the steel tower.

Cooper said he was told to face away from the tower and to cover his eyes with his hands. And when the nuclear device was detonated, "I could see the bones in my hands like an X-ray.

"The heat was quite intense and almost unbearable for 10 to 20 seconds. We were told to turn around. We did and watched the fireball rise into the sky." Cooper recalls that when the men of the 82nd Airborne were marched to within 100 yards of the detonation site, the ground was "cherry hot."

Checked for radiation

The Army claims that soldiers who took part in "Smokey" were checked for radiation exposure; and the Veterans Administration ruled originally that Cooper's leukemia was not service-connected and that he was not entitled to disability payments. But Sidney J. Shuman, chairman of the VA Appeals Board, overruled that decision.

Shuman said the ruling in Cooper's favor was based on clinical observations made in 1968 while Cooper was still in the Army.

"Even though a diagnosis of leukemia was not made during his later years of military service," Shuman explained, "the symptoms and findings documented at the time are persuasive in view of the currently established diagnosis."

Paul Cooper, now of Salt Lake City, Utah, applied to the Veterans Administration for a service-connected disability rating of $820 a month to ensure educational benefits for his wife and three children following his death.

Records destroyed

Dr. Caldwell says the Armed Forces Radiobiology Research Institute has records of 170,000 persons who participated in nuclear tests between 1945 and 1964. "But a few years ago," he points out, "many service records were destroyed in a giant fire in St. Louis, and it's not easy locating the men who took part in 'Smokey.' Twenty years is a long time, and most of those men have settled into civilian life."

Dr. Caldwell says, "There have been some erroneous accounts as to the amount of radiation those men were exposed to. The Army says they were exposed to a 1.25 Roentgen level, which is considered safe. But we'd like to check them all out."

So if you were at Camp Desert Rock during the last week of August 1957, if you observed the nuclear detonations on either Aug. 30th or 31st, one from a balloon, the other from a tower, please write Dr. Caldwell in Atlanta.

He'll take it from there.

Merit Breakthrough Remains Unduplicated.

'Enriched Flavor'™ tobacco makes MERIT unique among low tar cigarettes.

Since the introduction of MERIT, a number of other low tar brands have come along. But MERIT remains unique—the only low tar cigarette with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

MERIT delivers what others can only promise: the flavor of higher tar cigarettes. The kind of flavor made possible by a breakthrough in tobacco technology.

Here's how it was done:

By cracking cigarette smoke down into separate elements, researchers were able to isolate certain flavor-rich ingredients that delivered taste way out of proportion to tar.

These flavor essentials were then packed into MERIT, giving it extraordinary flavor.

Taste tests against a number of higher tar cigarettes proved it.

Overall, smokers reported they liked the taste of MERIT and MERIT 100's as much as the taste of the higher tar cigarettes tested. Cigarettes with up to 60% more tar!

Only one cigarette has 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

And you can taste it.

Keeping Up... With Youth

by Pamela Swift

Idle Children

It's official. Almost 50 percent of mothers in the United States work. And most do so because they can't survive if they don't.

While most women work for small wages—the median yearly salary for full-time employment for women is $6772 compared with $11,835 for men—children wander the streets or stay home and watch television.

In 1975, 27 million children under 18 had mothers who worked, and almost a quarter of these were preschool children. Today there are only 1 million spaces available for children in licensed day-care centers.

What happens down the road to a nation of idle children is not clear, but what's certain is that the present condition of American children is not particularly healthy. For example, the American Academy of Pediatrics estimates that 10 to 20 percent of American children suffer from chronic handicapping conditions, of which at least one-third could be corrected by appropriate preschool care.

"It should be an unequivocal principle of our public policy that all children, whatever the income, location or marital status of their parents," says Sen. Hubert Humphrey, "have good nutrition, timely health care and the opportunity for a stimulating environment and quality education."

COPPER IN POOL WATER CAN TURN BLOND HAIR GREEN—BUT IT SHAMPOOS OUT

Green Hair

If your hair turns green after a dip in a swimming pool, don't get alarmed. All it means is that there's too much copper in the water.

Dr. Richard Lampe of the William Beaumont Army Medical Center in El Paso, Tex., recently described the cases of a 5-year-old blond boy and girl whose hair turned green. The green color disappeared when the kids stopped using their pools and began taking daily shampoos.

Writing in a recent edition of the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Lampe explained that copper frequently enters pools via a substance placed in the water to control the growth of algae. On other occasions it is leached from copper pipes by acid corrosion.

The Scandalous Medical Care In Our Jails

by Donald Robinson

A young inmate at a crowded Queens County jail in New York City went on sick call because he had a racking cough. He told a jail nurse that he had lost a lot of weight and was feeling dreadful.

"You just have a bad cold," she said.

During the next six months, he lost another 60 pounds, but the jail's medical staff continued to treat him for a cold. He was near death before it was found he had active tuberculosis.

A state of emergency was secretly declared in the jail and a special team brought in to X-ray every inmate who might have come into contact with the TB patient. However, no attempt was made to track down hundreds who'd been exposed and released from jail; no one will ever know how many New Yorkers contracted TB from them.

The medical care administered by most of the 4000 city and county jails in the United States today can be described in one word: appalling. Many sick prisoners die for lack of adequate treatment. Thousands suffer needlessly. Large numbers are turned loose into their communities with undiscovered cases of hepatitis, syphilis and other virulently communicable diseases.

The American Medical Association calls the situation "a national scandal." Joseph R. Rowan, who directs the AMA's jail programs, declares: "The health care in many local jails is so bad that it constitutes 'cruel and unusual punishment.' It's a violation of the inmates' constitutional rights. Furthermore, it is a menace to the rest of us because they bring their illnesses back out with them."

Ann Arbor's county jail, which will soon be replaced, is one of few in the country with a clinic. Its medical staff is well trained.

At county jail in Ann Arbor, Mich., Officer Ken Scott gives prescribed medicine to prisoner. But in most jails, treatment is shockingly inadequate.

At last count, more than 160,000 men and women—and some children—were behind bars in city and county jails. Many had never been convicted of any offense. They were awaiting trial and hadn't the money for bail. The others were serving short terms for minor offenses. Under the law, serious offenders who are sentenced to more than one year go to state prisons. Ironically, the experts say that conditions in local jails are usually far worse than those in state prisons. Jails get much less funds to work with.

40-second sick call

The AMA made a survey of medical services in 1083 jails throughout the country. Its findings were shocking. Less than 8 percent of the jails had any kind of clinic. Many didn't even have a first aid kit. Thirty-one percent had no doctor on call for emergencies. Fewer than 5 percent gave inmates a physical examination on admission. Regularly scheduled sick calls were a rarity. Acutely ill inmates could wait weeks for medical attention. If a sick call was held, it frequently was a charade. For instance, the average time per sick call in San Diego Jail was 40 seconds.

Less than 15 percent of the jails had special facilities for the mentally ill. Generally, they were put into cells with other inmates who often beat them severely for acting oddly.

The AMA says that the need for better medical care in our jails is desperate. A few months ago, volunteer AMA doctors, nurses and technicians went into 30 jails in six states and gave 641 inmates thorough examinations. For many it was the first medical going-over they'd ever had. The doctors found an incredible amount of undetected disease. In one Indiana jail, 15 percent of the inmates had positive TB skin tests. In a Georgia jail, 66 percent had abnormal urinalyses indicating diabetes or other illnesses; many urinated blood.

All told, 30 percent of the 641 inmates had abnormal hepatitis readings. A rate of .0281 percent can be expected in the public at large.

In the course of its investigations, the AMA accumulated compelling evidence of suffering caused jail inmates by medical neglect. I learned of incident after incident like these:

- An old inmate was seen sitting in his cell in a New York City jail on Christmas Day with a bleeding hole in his head. He was crying for help. Three days later, he was still in his cell, his wound untouched.
- A man who was locked up in Boston's ancient Charles Street Jail after an automobile accident told the guards

Medical neglect of prisoners is 'cruel and unusual punishment'

he had agonizing pains in his back. No one did anything about it. He was released on bail three days afterward and his family took him to Massachusetts General Hospital. An X-ray showed that he had a fractured spine.

- A man with an excruciating earache begged the guards at the Duval County Jail in Jacksonville, Fla., for treatment. He had to wait 14 hellish days before he was permitted to see a doctor. Dr. Kenneth B. Babcock, a veteran medical inspector who was sent into this jail by a federal court was aghast at what he found. Among other things, prisoners with suspected chicken pox, impetigo, infectious hepatitis and mumps were assigned to the same cells with healthy inmates, "creating epidemic possibilities."

He reported to the court: "It is a sad state of affairs and needs immediate correction."

I saw many reports of abuse of mentally ill inmates. Some jails keep them in chains. One Illinois jail "calms them down" with cold water, using a fire hose from the Fire Department next door. In one week last summer, the Cook County Jail in Chicago had two cases of homosexual assault on young mentally ill inmates.

Thorough physical exams of inmates are rare. As a result, says American Medical Association, diseases like TB and hepatitis go undetected, pose peril

Needless death

According to the AMA, many have died unnecessarily in jails. One aged alcoholic in a Midwestern jail complained to the guards that he was feeling miserably ill. The guards knew that the man was suffering from a liver disease, but they didn't bother to take him to a doctor.

The old man sank into a coma and died in his cell.

A 44-year-old woman from Poughkeepsie, N.Y., was arrested for drunken driving last fall and lodged in the Duchess County Jail. Two days later, she was found dead in her cell. An investigation disclosed that she'd died, unattended, of alcohol withdrawal. Accusations of neglect have also been made over deaths at the San Diego Jail. A prime reason for an ugly riot by female inmates there was the inadequate medical care.

Perhaps the most chilling finding of the AMA was the large number of suicides that take place behind bars; in fact, suicide was the most common cause of death in the jails they saw.

"Most inmates are in jail for the first time," the AMA's Joseph Rowan stresses. "They are frightened and confused. Chances are they have been abandoned by their families and feel unbearably alone. They see no way out of their terrible dilemma, become more and more depressed, and soon start to think of death as the only solution. A competent psychologist—in fact, any experienced counselor—could probably drain off their high state of anxiety and get them to adjust to the situation. Most jails don't have any counseling services, though. They give their depressed inmates no psychological support. In effect, they say, 'We don't care.' "

Guarded treatment

The AMA survey showed that most jails without their own medical facilities pay local hospitals to care for seriously ill inmates. When a prisoner is hospitalized, guards must be assigned to watch him around the clock. To save manpower, one Florida jail chained its sick inmates to their hospital beds. It took a federal court order to halt this barbaric practice.

I saw the good and bad sides of the picture at Rikers Island in New York City, where 5100 inmates are imprisoned in four jails, an obsolete and run down infirmary, and a dungeon-like mental health center.

Corrections Commissioner Benjamin J. Malcolm and other city officials have made an earnest effort to raise health care standards on the island. They have built sparkling new clinics in the four jails and contracted with Montefiore Hospital, a top-notch institution, to operate them. Montefiore has assigned some of its best young physicians to the island.

The clinics are splendid, superbly designed and equipped. Sick calls are held daily, and doctors are on duty 24 hours.

The Rikers Island Infirmary and its Mental Health Center are something else. Malcolm admits they're hideous.

Some mental patients are handcuffed to the iron bars of their cells to prevent them from harming themselves. One middle-aged man jailed for a minor offense bragged that he had tried to hang himself. "I almost made it. My body temperature was down to 65 degrees when they cut me down. Another 10 seconds and I'd have been dead."

"It's tragic," Dr. Stephen Zurrow, the chief psychologist, stated. "We have 140 severely disturbed patients in this center and we don't have half the personnel and facilities to help them properly."

Why is health care in jails so bad? The main reason is that jails are starved for funds. They get the lowest priority in most city and county budgets. But that's not all. Bonnie Jaye Anno, a criminologist who has inspected many penal institutions for the AMA, says that the situation is aggravated by a lack of cooperation between jails and local health departments. She found numerous places where medical help could have easily been provided at no extra cost to the taxpayers. Health department doctors could have screened inmates for communicable diseases, for example, but nobody asked them to.

An insider's explanation

Bob Brown, a respected criminologist who spent 26 of his 48 years in prison for armed robbery and murder but who has since made a fine new life for himself, has this to say:

"Most inmates who go on sick call aren't sick. They're merely trying to get out of their cells for a half hour as a break in the awful monotony. Then they make unrealistic demands on the doctors. The result is that most jail doctors become very callous, and you can't blame them. They're protecting themselves; their own psychic survival is at stake. But it's tough on the inmates who genuinely are sick. They get a brush-off."

The AMA has enlisted six state medical societies—in Washington, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Maryland and Georgia—in a drive to improve health care in jails. Financed by a $500,000 grant from the U.S. Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, they have drafted codes of minimum standards that are being tested in selected jails.

Getting better

Some progress has been recorded. In the state of Washington, inmates staying over seven days in the Whitman County Jail now get physical examinations from the county health department. The Troup County Jail in Georgia has begun a drug and alcohol rehabilitation program. The little Lake County Jail in Michigan has installed its first treatment room.

The Oakland County Jail, a rugged, maximum security institution for 500 at Pontiac, Mich., has hired an expert new doctor and a second nurse for its spotless, three-room clinic. It now holds sick calls six days a week.

The AMA is planning a national system of accreditation for jails, with regular inspections of their medical facilities by teams of volunteer doctors. It's urgently needed, the AMA believes.

"We must stop taking chances with the health of jail inmates," Rowan declares. "For their sake and for ours."

Love Game

By Bob Martin
TV-Radio Editor

Television's "Wonder Woman" — Lynda Carter — married her wonder man, Ron Samuels, three weeks ago, and they're still playing the love game.

They'll be coming to Long Beach next Saturday and Sunday (June 25-26) to host a pro-celebrity tennis tournament for charity at the Billie Jean King Tennis Center in Recreation Park.

Lynda doesn't claim to be a wonder woman on the courts, and when I talked with her at a press party in Beverly Hills she wasn't certain whether she would take part in the competition.

It's not likely that she'll make use of "Wonder Woman's" golden belt that gives her superhuman strength, her golden lasso with its magical powers — or her silvery bracelets to return cannonball serves and powerful overhead smashes, as they deflect bullets and missiles.

No, if she were going to put her "Wonder Woman" act on the courts, Lynda wouldn't be playing in Long Beach next weekend — she'd be at Wimbledon. With a few WHAMS!, ZAPS! and CRASHES!, she'd have Chris, Billie Jean, Martina and all the other women stars on the sidelines in no time at all.

Lynda DOES play tennis, though. Ron did some of his courting of her on the court.

"We met and went to lunch on a Friday, played tennis on Saturday — and we've hardly been apart since," said the statuesque brunette. Of course, they did other things besides play tennis.

Ron is her personal manager (other clients have included Lindsay Wagner and Jaclyn Smith), and he's going to produce a TV special starring his bride which will air in the 1977-78 season. Ron's a much better player than Lynda, and he said he'll probably play an exhibition match during the tournament in Long Beach, which will raise funds for the scholarship program of CATHY Inc. (Citizens for Action to Help Youth).

He said he sometimes plays with members of the pro circuit who come to his private court for practice.

Miss Carter is a native of Phoenix and attended high school in Arcadia. She toured the country as a singer with various groups for three years after finishing high school, and then, in 1972, she entered a beauty contest in Phoenix. She won local and state titles and, eventually, the "Miss World-U.S.A." crown before losing out in the Miss World pageant in London to Miss Australia.

After touring for a year as "Miss World-U.S.A.," Lynda settled in Hollywood and started taking acting lessons. Before long, she was picked to star in the second "Wonder Woman" pilot, which aired on ABC on Nov. 7, 1975, and led to the series.

(The original "Wonder Woman" pilot was made in 1974 and starred blonde actress Cathy Lee Crosby, who, incidentally, is a former high-ranking junior tennis player from Pasadena and one of the best of the celebrity players.)

"Wonder Woman," which is based on the newspaper cartoon character created by Charles Moulton in the early 1940s, currently is airing, in reruns, on Saturday nights from 8 to 9 on ABC. When that network failed to place the series on its upcoming fall schedule (though it had not ruled it out for occasional specials), CBS jumped in and bought the show from Warner's and will air new episodes weekly on Friday nights from 8 to 9, starting in September.

Wonder Woman, after all, is not an easy person to kill off. Just ask the Nazis.

Lynda said she'll start work on the CBS series the day after the Long Beach celebrity tournament ends.

Among the celebrities who have agreed to play are Dinah Shore, Lloyd Bridges, Lucie Arnaz, Lyle Waggoner (Maj. Steve Trevor on "Wonder Woman"), Bo Hopkins, Ben Murphy, William Devane, Barry Newman, Don Meredith, John Cappelletti, Bob Seagren, Marv Fleming, Mike Warren, Ray Danton, Jo Ann Pflug, Chuck Woolery, Alex Trebek, Martin Kove, Cheryll Miller, David Sheehan, Gigi Perreau, James (Lefty) Brown, Bruce Wayne, Bob Hogan, Ted Hartley, John Marley, Cornel Wilde, Jean Wallace, Alan Bergman, Henry Hines and Ivan Nagy.

They will be joined in doubles competition by other celebrities, more than 25 tennis pros and members of the public who have contributed to CATHY to take part. General admission for spectators will be $3 a day ($2.40 for children under 12 and senior citizens).

Take it from Lynda and Ron, it'll be a "Wonder Weekend" on the courts.

That's no tennis racket Lynda Carter, as "Wonder Woman," is holding in the photo above — it's a telephone pole. But Lynda and her bridegroom, Ron Samuels, are tennis buffs, and they'll host a pro-celebrity tournament in Long Beach next weekend. Lynda and Ron were married May 28 in Beverly Hills.

ORDER DEADLINE: JUNE 25

In Sweden, "the land of the midnight sun," there is a joyous tradition as old as the nation's Viking heritage. It is a festival of light and gaiety, celebrated on Midsummer's Eve, the 25th of June. A tribute to the sun . . . that is, by timeless custom, also dedicated to lovers.

Here at The Franklin Mint, we have another tradition . . . that of blending the finest artistic standards with the permanence of precious metals. And now we have brought these traditions together, to create an exquisite new work of art. A unique "gift for lovers" — designed solely and exclusively for this limited edition by Svante Ahlsen, one of Sweden's most distinguished artists, to capture the spirit of Midsummer's Eve in the enduring beauty of gold.

The Pendant of Midsummer's Eve is a work of simple beauty that is rich in meaning. The face of the pendant captures the dazzling brilliance of Sweden's midnight sun, as it lights up the evening sky and sets aglow the hearts of lovers. The reverse evokes all the charm of the traditional Midsummer's Eve revelries—with the delicate flowers that a girl places beneath her pillow to dream of the man she will marry . . . and the following inscription: "Like the sun of Midsummer's Eve, your love will always light my life."

The result: The Pendant of Midsummer's Eve, minted with The Franklin Mint's magnificent gem Proof finish to create a work of art whose finely frosted image is raised in rich relief against the mirrored brilliance of its background. A pendant that will be as rare as it is beautiful. For it will be produced in a single, strictly limited edition, with an absolute limit of one pendant per order.

The total number of pendants to be issued, in fact, will precisely equal the number of orders postmarked by the deadline of June 25, 1977—Midsummer's Eve.

The most marvelous—and most appreciated—gift of all is the one that springs spontaneously from the heart, as an expression of love and caring. The Pendant of Midsummer's Eve is just such a gift. A work of beauty and rarity. A symbol of undying love.

TRY A fish kabob

by BETH MERRIMAN

PARADE FOOD EDITOR

When fish is properly cooked it is never dry or tasteless but delicately flavored and delightful in texture. Modern fast-freezing methods assure fresh fillets in markets throughout the country.

Skewered cubes of fish fillets—only partially thawed, bathed in a zesty butter sauce and broiled to golden perfection—make an unusual kind of kabob. Served with hot crinkle-cut French fries and a salad of fresh raw vegetables, Broiled North Sea Kabobs make fine eating whether served indoors or out. End the meal with berries and cream accompanied by cookies and a beverage of your choice.

broiled NORTH SEA kabobs

2 pounds frozen cod or haddock fillets
1/3 cup butter or margarine
1/3 cup lemon juice
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 tablespoons minced onion
1 teaspoon dry mustard
Freshly ground pepper

Let frozen blocks of fish stand at room temperature for 20 minutes. Cut each block in half the long way, then crosswise into eight two-inch cubes. Thread four squares on each of four skewers, leaving space between. Place on lightly oiled rack in broiling pan. Melt butter; combine with remaining ingredients. Brush fish with butter sauce; broil about eight inches from heat for 20 minutes; every five minutes give skewers a quarter turn and baste with butter sauce. Serve with any remaining sauce. Makes four servings. FROM PARADE'S TEST KITCHEN

How to Rescue Your Child From a Cult

by Carroll Stoner & Jo Anne Parke

EDITOR'S NOTE: The use of "deprogramming" techniques on young people who have joined religious cults has become controversial. Critics call it "reverse brainwashing," while parents of successfully deprogrammed children say it's the only answer.

When parents watch a child's chances for success diminish because of membership in a religious cult, it is not surprising that many panic. Some plunge headlong into deprogramming plans that can, very easily, fail.

Father Kent Burtner is assistant director of campus ministry at the University of Oregon in Eugene. "I tell parents to do four things," he says:

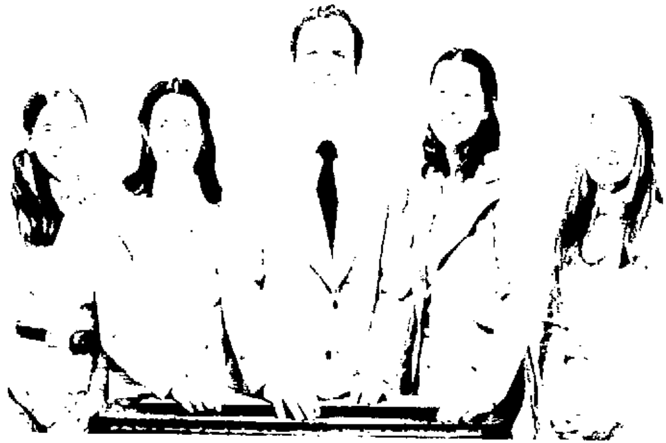
- "Try to learn where your kids' heads are so you can understand how they got involved. What are the problems in their lives, what are their needs and vulnerabilities?" Father Kent suggests that parents save all letters and keep the lines of communication open.
- "Keep a diary of your own thoughts and feelings." The priest explains that this will be very necessary, no matter what the parents decide to do about their son or daughter's new life.
- "Get in touch with parents of other cult members. When you can see you are not alone, it alleviates the guilt.
- "Examine deprogramming as one option."

Deprogramming. The once-unknown word has assumed mythic proportions. Each deprogramming story is different, but the technique can be defined as one in which a person is forced to question his beliefs, by someone opposed to them, and to examine the process of conversion which led to his adoption of the religion. Those who favor the process say it "returns a person to his free mind and allows him to make decisions for himself."

Unjustified and indefensible?

There are others, however, who call deprogramming unjustified and indefensible. "Holding a person against his will and subjecting him to a highly-emotional intellectual battering is wrong, no matter who does it," they say.

The controversy over deprogramming is due in no small measure to the style of the forced, locked-door deprogrammings Ted Patrick writes about in his book Let Our Children Go. "I firmly believe the Lord helps those who help themselves, and a few little things like karate, mace, and handcuffs come in handy from time to time," he writes. Judging from the stories of many young people he has successfully deprogrammed, however, he seldom uses any of these props. Patrick and the other deprogrammers claim that when they force a cult member to listen to opposing views, they can change a subject's mind about a cult in a few days.



Last March, in a landmark case, a San Francisco court granted temporary custody of five adults to their parents in an effort to win them from Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church through deprogramming. They are (l to r): Barbara Undenvood, Janice Kaplan, John Hovard, Leslie Brown and Jacqueline Katz.

However, hundreds of young people have been convinced to leave religious cults during thoughtful, unforced discussions with concerned individuals. These "re-evaluations" of the cultist's religious experience are not carried out under lock and key, but voluntarily. A parent who seeks to remove a son or daughter from the clutches of a cult, these people say, must consider whether or not that person would willingly hear the other side of the issue. There are far more failed deprogrammings than anyone is willing to admit.

Ideally, a re-evaluation of a cult member's life and beliefs should be the result of a parent-child bargain. "If you intend to spend the rest of your life in that group, you owe us a week or two of your time," is one approach. Rabbi Maurice Davis of White Plains, N.Y., has well over 100 "rescues" that came about this way. Each sat in the rabbi's unlocked study, across the desk from him or sharing a sofa with him, and talked and listened. And each ultimately left a cult. He reports few "failures."

Recently, we arranged to be observers– and unintentionally became active participants—in the deprogramming of young John Ashley, a member of Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church. If it began as a forced deprogramming, it ended as a re-evaluation.

With the help of one of the loosely-organized anticult parent groups that have surfaced in recent years, John's mother and stepfather hired a young former "Moonie" to deprogram their son. John would be home for his sister's wedding, and the deprogrammer would "snatch" him.

The deprogrammer bought handcuffs, rounded up a crew of volunteer bodyguards from the family's church and held rehearsals of the snatch.

After the wedding reception, with John still in his stiff, rented evening clothes, the deprogrammer handcuffed him, taped his mouth shut, threw him into a car and sped off to a motel.

Once in the motel room, he handcuffed John to a chair and proceeded to make dramatic statements right out of Ted Patrick's book. "We're prepared to stay here for as long as it takes you to promise you'll never return to that fake church." He ripped up a picture of Moon and called the Korean every name he could think of. Between histrionics, the deprogrammer read quotes from the Bible, showing John how many had been distorted and used out of context for Unification Church purposes.

Why he joined

John told the deprogrammer he had joined the Moonies for the purpose in life and friendship that the group offered, not for its religious aspects. Still the deprogrammer kept trying to discredit the Unification Church on the basis of theology.

Just before dawn of the first full day, the deprogrammer handcuffed John to a chair next to a bed and let him go to sleep. Then, early the next morning, he played a tape made by former Moonie Steve Hassan. On the tape, Steve explains clearly and articulately how he, as a Moonie lecturer and recruiter, had been encouraged to deceive prospective converts and withhold information from them. Steve's tape struck familiar chords for John. He began to wonder if he, too, had been deceived and began to confide that he was getting disenchanted with his life as a Unification Church member.

He told us that he especially despised the lying he felt he had to do in order to meet quotas set for him as a fund-raiser. It really bothered him, he said, to tell people he was raising funds for a children's home that didn't exist. Still, he felt loved and wanted by the Moonies.

Good vs. bad

So we sat down with John and asked him to make two lists, one with all the good qualities of life in the Unification Church and another with all the negative aspects of that life. We discussed each point with him and told him he seemed like an intelligent young man. Didn't he have a responsibility to control his own destiny? First his parents ran his life. Who was running it now?

At first, John just wanted to talk, and we tried to ask open-ended questions that led the way for him to examine his situation. (The deprogrammer had taken a break and was gone.) After a while, John admitted that the bad seemed to outweigh the good on his list. But he still couldn't be sure that his own dissatisfaction was reason enough to leave

"What will I do with my life?" he wondered. John had completed his education and he had a career, though it was one he wasn't sure he wanted to fall back on. He also admitted that he missed having sexual or romantic attachments in his church life.

Agreed to go home

We talked further, and John finally agreed to go home with his parents for a while until he got things together.

Many advocates of deprogramming think the process is helpful even if one decides to leave the church on his own. "It takes a lot longer to get it together again without deprogramming," says Dr. George Swope, the father of a former cult member and head of a counter-cult group. "Some young people who left cults without deprogramming suffered months of inertia and nightmares trying to do it themselves."

Elizabeth Albertson, mother of two successfully deprogrammed children, adds a word of caution to parents: "A deprogramming or a re-evaluation is, after all, only a return to free choice. Parents must understand that there's no guarantee that a child will do what they want, and they must be able to accept the outcome."

'One of the best documentaries in the history of TV'

'CIA's Secret Army' draws praise

By Lee Winfrey
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

"CBS Reports: The CIA's Secret Army," which aired Friday night, June 10, was one of the best documentaries in the history of television. It is a model of how to present investigative reporting on film.

It took almost three years of work by host Bill Moyers and free-lance writer George Crile III to produce this remarkable two-hour special. The result was a great piece of work, a fitting successor to such classic CBS documentaries of the past as "Harvest of Shame" and "The Selling of the Pentagon."

Seventeen years of secret war and public lies were exposed in this documentary. This is how a generation of Cuban exiles was used and misused by the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) and three American presidents.

The range and depth of this special, and the care and compassion with which it was assembled, are difficult to convey in a short review. But here is a synopsis of that show in case you missed it:

In March, 1960, President Dwight Eisenhower authorized the CIA to overthrow Cuban Premier Fidel Castro. Thirteen months later, when John F. Kennedy was President, 1,400 Cuban exiles invaded Cuba at the Bay of Pigs.

A CIA agent named Grayston Lynch led the Cubans ashore and fired the first shot. In scenes of compelling interest, Lynch talked about his years of work with the exiles.

After the invasion failed in a three-day fiasco, President Kennedy said, in a speech resurrected on the program, that the United States as a democracy could not get away with dirty tricks and lies. He was lying, for at that moment he was trying those very things.

Privately, Kennedy and his brother, Robert F. Kennedy, had authorized the CIA, in a plan called "Operation Mongoose," to conduct a secret war of guerrilla strikes and sabotage against Cuba. This war went on until 1967.

As described in the broadcast by Ray Cline, who was deputy director of intelligence for the CIA when he retired in 1966:

"Both of the Kennedy brothers, and particularly Bobby, felt that they had been booby-trapped at the Bay of Pigs. They felt almost an obsession to get even."

Although federal law says the CIA is not supposed to operate inside the United States, Cline says 600 to 700 CIA agents worked on "Operation Mongoose" in Miami during the early 1960s. Moyers says they directed an army of 2,000 exiles.

The secret war continued after the missile crisis of 1962 was ostensibly settled. Castro told Moyers, in an interview gilmed in Cuba, that the ICA tried to kill him two dozen times.

Richard Bissell was deputy director for plans, the CIA's chief of dirty tricks, when he retired in 1962. Describing how assassinations are ordered, he told Moyers on the show, "The President typically says he wants to get rid of somebody."

After the secret war ended a decade ago, E. Howard Hunt, who directed the Bay of Pigs operation for the CIA, appeared again in Miami, recruiting now for President Richard Nixon.

Bernard Barker, Hunt's right-hand man for the Bay of Pigs operation, said that Hunt told him, "We are creating a superstructure at White House level and it is above the FBI and CIA. We're working for national security."

Nixon's "Operation Diamond" ended with the Watergate burglary, and Hunt, Barker and Martinez all went to prison.

Now, some 200 to 300 members of the old secret army are at work in Miami on a terror campaign of their own, highlighted so far by the bombing of a Cuban commercial airliner that killed 73 persons last October

Ladd joins the angels

A pretty lass named Cheryl, that is

By Jerry Buck
AP Television Writer

Cheryl Ladd, recruited as the newest "Charlie's Angel" after the departure of Farrah Fawcett-Majors, says she doesn't want to become a sex symbol.

"I have a lot more going than just that," Cheryl said during a lunch break filming her first episode for the fall season of the hit ABC series.

She laughed, then added, "But if people want to say I'm sexy, that's all right."

Despite the departure of Farrah, viewers need not worry, said Cheryl, a natural blonde. "It's going to have more sex than ever because of the violence restrictions. But I'm trying to add humor and reality to my character. She's a very real person. The sex is done naturally. It's not played up. I hope to come across on the screen as a human being."

CHERYL LADD . . . newest 'angel'

"Charlie's Angels," as most people know, are three beautiful women detectives who rely more on sex appeal than powers of detection to solve cases just one step above the comic book level. Obviously, it's not clever plots that attract viewers to the show.

Cheryl, 25, married to actor David Ladd and the mother of a 2-year-old daughter, was signed to play Kris Munroe, the younger sister to Farrah's character. Kate Jackson and Jaclyn Smith also star.

Farrah announced last March that she would not return to "Charlie's Angels," which in its first year had helped certify her as a sex symbol of the '70s. She is now involved in a lawsuit with the producers, Spelling-Goldberg Productions.

Cheryl, who had been a singer with a small band, arrived seven years ago from Huron, S.D., and professes to be still a small-town girl at heart. She comes from a closely knit family. "I go home twice a year and some of the family comes here," she said. "We talk once a week on the telephone."

She still sings and says her ambition is to star in a Broadway musical.

She had acted in series roles and TV movies for several years, but said she was unprepared for the sudden fame that descended upon her when she signed for "Charlie's Angels."

"It's big shoes to step into if Farrah doesn't come back," she said. "But it's a steady job and good money and I have enough confidence in myself as an actress. It's so overwhelming. There are so many demands on me now and my time has become precious.

"One thing I am determined is that it will not take away from the relationship with my husband and daughter. That's the most important thing in my life. Jordan is a terrifically healthy and well adjusted girl and I want her to stay that way."

She said she wants to raise her with the same values her parents taught her. "We had some rough times when I was growing up," she said. "I'm proud of that, knowing that my parents taught me that family and people and friends are what's important."

How to Wake Up the Financial Genius Inside You

"Millionaires Are Not 100 Times Smarter Than You, They Just Know The Wealth Formula"

Millionaires are not 100 or even 10 times smarter than you. But it is a fact that millionaires are making 10 to 50 and even 100 times more than you.

Are these wealthy people working that much harder than you? No way!

If you are working only 20 hours a week, it would be physically impossible. (There are only 168 hours in a week, no one gets more.)

These questions used to really stump me. That was six years ago.

My wife and I then lived in Denver, Colorado, at 2545 South High Street. We paid $135 a month rent for a cramped, tumbled down house. My wife was expecting our second child and we were flat broke. I felt desperate and forced into a corner. I had to borrow $150 from my father and another $150 from my father-in-law just to buy the groceries and pay the rent. If that wasn't enough, I was several thousand dollars in debt.

Things are much different now. Last year I could have retired and lived off the income of my one million dollars in real estate holdings. (Incidently, almost all of the income from the real estate is tax free).

Since I had worked 20 to 40 hours a week, I know that I didn't work even 10 times longer or harder than you. And with my C-average from Ames High School (located in Ames, Iowa). I'm quite certain that I'm not any smarter than you.

If hours, efforts, or brains are not what separates the rich from the average guy who is swamped with debts and very little income, then what is?

I learned the answer to that question from an old fellow in Denver. This fellow worked in a drug store stocking the shelves. Very few people knew that he had $200,000 in the bank, all of which he had earned starting from nothing.

Within a year after meeting him, I was told and shown the same thing by a young man who had recently earned over a million dollars. By this time, I began to realize that what I was being shown was truly a remarkable and workable way to grow rich.

I began to apply the principles and methods I had been shown. The results were amazing. I couldn't believe how easy it was, if fact it seemed too easy.

But then I met an elderly lady (83 years old) who, although not very smart, has made $117,000 using the same formula.

I then figured my beginning wasn't luck.

For three and one half years, I worked hard to refine and improve on the formula that I had been shown, so that it would be easy to get quicker results.

As I did this, my assets multiplied very rapidly (160% per year) to the point that I didn't have to work any longer.

I guess I am bragging now, but I did start spending alot of time in our back yard pool, traveling around the country, and doing a lot of loafing.

Then one day a friend asked me how he could do what I had done.

So I began to outline the formula that I had improved to show him really how simple it was, and how he could do the same thing.

By the time he approached me, I had written almost a complete volume on the easy way for him to copy my results.

I wrote this in simple, straightforward language so anyone could understand it.

This time my friend's questions were very specific. (He had already begun buying properties with the formulas I had been giving him). Now he had a property he wanted to buy, but was out of cash. How could he buy it?

I not only showed him how to buy without cash, but by the time the deal was complete, he had $5,000 cash in his pocket to boot.

I also showed him how to buy a $26,000 property for $75 down.

You, or anyone, can do exactly what I did, or my close friends have done: in fact, you may well do it better. (I began doing this in my spare time only).

It doesn't matter where you live or the size of your town or city, my formula will show you exactly how to:

- Buy income properties for as little as $100 down.
- Begin without any cash.

Why is millionaire HAROLDSEN willing to share his wealth formula?

Now, if you were a personal friend of mine, I know you would believe me and not need any kind of guarantee, but since you don't know me personally, I will guarantee that you will be completely satisfied and that my formula will work for you if you apply it. I will back up that guarantee by not cashing your check for 30 days, and if you for any reason change your mind, let me know and I will send your uncashed check back.

You may well ask, why am I willing to share my formula for wealth? Well, because many of you will probably seek further consultation and direction from me as your wealth rapidly grows and my consultation fee of $75.00 an hour adds to my fortune.

But you shouldn't care if I profit as long as you profit. And I guarantee that you will.

By the way, if you feel a little uneasy abount sending me a check or money order for $10.00, simply post-date it by 30 days which will completely eliminate your risk.

San Francisco show to go nationwide

Series by, for and about women making a success

By Linda Kramer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — It's a show about women, by women, for women, but producer Roxanne Russell does not want her public television series "Womantime & Co." classified as a feminist show.

"We're really aiming for a broad spectrum of women who wouldn't consider themselves feminists but certainly are interested in what's happening to women these days," said Ms. Russell. "We're feminists, but soft feminists. We're not trying to preach a doctrine."

THE SHOW started two years ago at KQED in San Francisco. After a second successful season this year, many of the nation's 156 public broadcast stations bought her show for the 1977-78 season.

"Womantime & Co." is the brainchild of Martha Glessing, who was KQED's membership director when she began lobbying to offer women some alternatives to the traditional daytime programming of game shows and soap operas.

ROXANNE RUSSELL (left), producer of the public television series "Womantime & Co.," chats with Frieda Klussman, San Francisco's "Cable Car Lady" — the octogenarian who led the fight to save the city's cable cars. — Associated Press Wirephoto

"The people who program for women at the networks are not at all concerned about where women really are, except to change the story line of some soap operas to include women doctors or a segment on abortion," said Mrs. Glessing.

She said a Nielsen rating their first season discovered that "Womantime" had picked up about 10,000 homes per week from the daytime viewing market.

Madeline David, vice president of daytime programming for NBC, said about 85 per cent of daytime viewers are women and "if you gauge what they want by what they look at, they are getting pretty much what they want." She said soap operas continue to be extremely popular and experiments with some alternate kinds of programs mostly have been unsuccessful on commercial television.

"Womantime's" magazine format combines film remotes and live and taped interviews. Women guests have included California Chief Justice Rose Bird, activist singer Joan Baez and director Antonia Brico. The topics have ranged from childbirth

THE BIBLE Says

J. T. Smith

AND MORMONS CLAIM THAT GOD GAVE IT

It is very interesting to note some of the ridiculous things that the God who created the heavens and earth and all things therein supposedly revealed to Joseph Smith. For example, the following account is revealed in the Book of Mormon, Ether 2:16-21.

"16. And the Lord said; Go to work and build, after the manner of barges which ye have hitherto built. And it came to pass that the brother of Jared did go to work,, and also his brethren, and built barges after the manner which they had built, according to the instructions of the Lord. And they were small, and they were light upon the water, even like unto the lightness of a fowl upon the water. 17. And they were built after a manner that they were exceeding tight, even that they would hold water like unto a dish; and the bottom thereof was tight like unto a dish; and the ends thereof was tight like unto a dish; and the ends thereof were peaked; and the top thereof was tight like unto a dish; and the length thereof was the length of a tree; and the door therof, when it was shut, was tight like unto a dish. 18. And it came to pass that the brother of Jared cried unto the Lord, saying: O Lord, I have performed the work which thou has commanded me, and I have made the barges according as thou hast directed me. 19. And behold, O Lord, in them there is no light; whither shall we steer? And also we shall perish, for in them we cannot breathe, save it is the air which is in them; therefore we shall perish. (Now as if it is not bad enough that God, they said God gave these instructions mind you, notice how they add insult to injury in the next statements JTS). "20. And the Lord said unto the brother of Jared: Behold, thou shalt make a hole in the top, and also in the bottom; and when thou shalt suffer for air thou shalt unstop the hole and receive air. And if it be so the water come in upon thee, behold, ye shall stop the hole, that ye may not perish in the flood. 21. And it came to pass that the brother of Jared did so, according as the Lord had commanded." If it were not so serious, it would be downright funny. How could anyone accuse God of giving instructions for building such a ridiculous thing? And if you read on in the same chapter, you will find God seeking counsel of Jared's brother as to what ought to be done. Ridiculousness gone to seed.

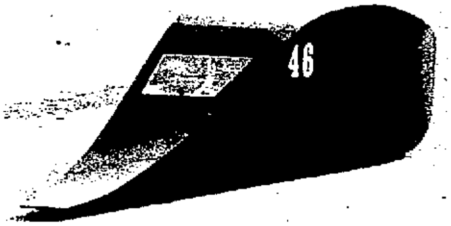
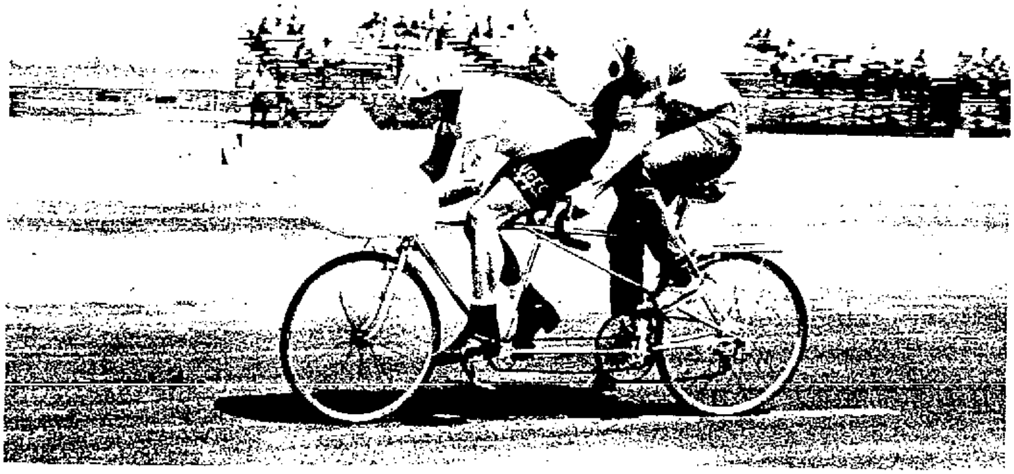
Anything Goes

■ Some of the weirdest-looking vehicles this side of outer space participated recently in an unusual race held on a track in Ontario, Cal. The only qualification was that all machines be propelled strictly by human power—arms, legs, hands, feet, elbows, knees or any other bodily parts. All sorts of strange devices appeared, from three-seater bikes to rickshas. They were made of plastic, metal, wood and wire, powered by competitors ranging from teenagers to grandfathers. The winning entry was the tandem bike team of Jerry Ash and Gibby Hatton, who hit 49.9 mph. And think of all they saved on gas!



Is there somebody in there? Anyhow, it didn't win.



The winning team heads toward the finish line on a bicycle built for two, with a special aerodynamic device up front.

and contraception to women artists and housespouses.

"Sign on the Dotted Line," a show on the need for women to plan their financial security, won an Emmy for outstanding achievement from the Northern California chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. The same group awarded "Womantime" a second Emmy for a show on women and religion.

MS. RUSSELL said she tries to seek out average women, as well as prominent ones. One of next season's shows features San Francisco's "Cable Car Lady" — octogenarian Frieda Klussmann, who led the fight to save the city's famous rickety mode of transportation. Another will be on menopause.

"We like to show people changing patterns," Ms. Russell said. "We want to share them with people, saying this is interesting, what do you think about it?"

She said they have received a handful of complaints from women who would like to see the show take a heavier feminist stance, but they also have heard from housewives who enjoyed "Womantime" because it wasn't too political.

And she said they were surprised and pleased to discover that 25 per cent of their viewers were men.

"I DON'T think there's too much that goes on today that affects women that doesn't affect men," said Ms. Russell. "If we said this show was for women only, it would be a gross insult to men."

Ms. Russell, 29, a former producer with NBC network news in Los Angeles, said she can't imagine a man producing "Womantime," but neither can she think of a woman producing a show about men.

She said she would not mind having "an involved, interested" man on the staff and did not make a conscious decision not to hire any men. "None applied and since then no one has left," she said.

"If a man did 'Womantime,' it might be a harder feminist approach," she added. "A man would feel more like people were watching him, looking for sexism, looking for piggies. I think he'd feel really obligated to present this more feminist view of what women are into."

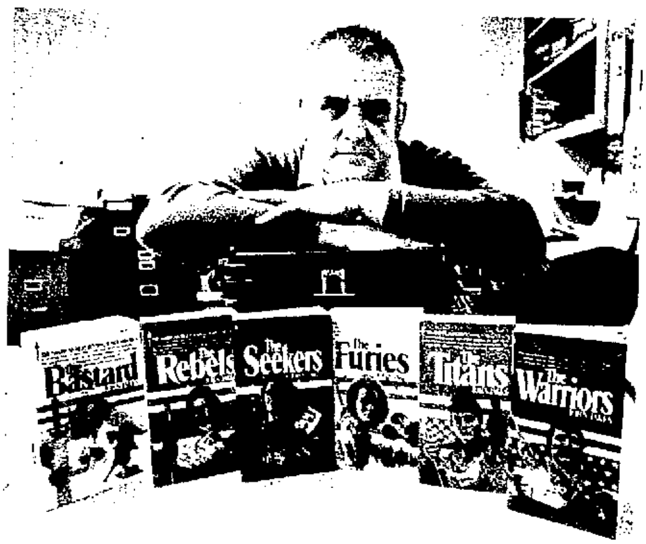
Meet John Jakes: Instant Historian and Millionaire

by L. H. Whittemore



Six down, two to go. John Jakes, author of the best-selling "American Bicentennial Series," is racing to complete set of historical novels on his old $35 typewriter. The former ad man lives modestly, is unaffected by wealth.

KETTERING, OHIO.

A middle-aged family man, living modestly in this Dayton suburb, has become our current top-selling author and a millionaire.

Does "John Jakes" ring a bell?

Walk into any store selling paperback books and chances are you'll see his name under six titles, lined up from left to right as follows: The Bastard, The Rebels, The Seekers, The Furies, The Titans and The Warriors. These historical novels, appearing in rapid succession since 1974, are an unparalleled publishing success.

"The idea," says Jakes, 45, "was to trace a fictional family through 200 years of American history. I was going to get all the way up to the Bicentennial year in five books. Well, I started in 1770 and got so enamored of the history that I began to crawl through it. The seventh book will be The Lawless, which begins in the early 1870's. After that comes The Americans, but there's no way I'll bring it up to the present."

Altogether there are nearly 16 million copies of Jakes' American Bicentennial Series, subtitled The Kent Family Chronicles, in print—all published originally in paperback. In 1976, the first five books were each among the nation's top 20 best sellers. The Warriors, which appeared this past April, had the largest initial printing ever—3 million copies—yet the publisher, Pyramid Books, went back to press for 500,000 more in a couple of weeks.

'Had to be nuts'

A former advertising man, Jakes had never made much more than $5000 a year from his free-lance writing. In 1973, he took a $15,000 advance to begin work on the series. "I thought I had to be nuts to take it on," he says. "I really didn't see how anyone who wasn't a trained historian could accomplish it, especially within the deadlines I was given."

Even so, he insisted on doing all his own research, mostly in libraries. Each book of more than 500 pages required about four months of poring through biographies and historical diaries, then an equal period of nonstop writing. The trick was to blend his fictional characters into the real events of American history—not forgetting a frank but judicious sprinkling of sex.

Despite the enormous success of his series, Jakes is still working at breakneck speed as if under terrible pressure. "After the third book," he recalls, "I got sick with a little ulcer, but it cleared up." In the back of The Warriors, he even apologizes to his readers for not having finished it sooner.

A tall, heavyset man with a crewcut, Jakes looks nothing like the dashing heroes portrayed on his book jackets. Nor is his life filled with the "panoramic adventure and soaring romance" the ads claim for his characters.

"I've only had one vacation in four years," he says with a smile: he and his wife Rachel went to Florida last year for their 25th wedding anniversary. They have four children—three daughters and a son.

"Our lives haven't really changed at all," he continues. Monday through Friday, starting at 8:30 a.m., he works in a small, makeshift office in the basement of his home. He uses a typewriter that he purchased secondhand for $35 in 1955. At lunchtime he climbs up to the kitchen where, without fail, he eats a peanut butter sandwich. "I'm addicted to peanut butter," he says.

Eager fans

What explains how Jakes has captured the imagination of so many people with his series? Why do millions of "non-readers" so eagerly await each succeeding book?

"Maybe it's because I hated history in high school," Jakes offers. "And in college I avoided it altogether. But when I started reading about our past, I realized what an exciting opportunity this was. It was like going back to school and getting paid for it. And I came to see the entire project as a way of involving others who'd been 'turned off' by history."

Born and raised in Chicago, Jakes believes that his advertising and free-lance writing provided perfect training for doing the series.

"The pulps paid a penny per word," Jakes recalls. "My first story was sold in 1951, while I was an undergraduate at DePauw University. It was a science fiction piece about a struggle between a man and a toaster. I was paid $25."

Over the years he turned out more than 200 stories, mostly science fiction, Westerns, detective and juvenile pieces. He also managed to write a number of books (more than 50, his publisher says), including six novels set in ancient Roman and Biblical times, under the pseudonym of Jay Scotland. The bulk of his work "sank like a stone," he says cheerfully.

"Also, I spent 16 years in the advertising business," Jakes points out, "and the account man was always banging on the door, yelling, 'Give me a 30-second spot by 2 this afternoon!' So I learned to write under that kind of pressure."

One of his main goals for the American Bicentennial Series was to be as "faithful to the historical record" as possible and, at the same time, to "make sure the characters weren't phonied-up, but real human beings. They'd be men and women who get stomachaches, women who hurt when they deliver children, guys who get scared when they see a gun."

Jakes also loves to explode popular myths. "For example," he says with delight, "I'm now researching the Old West. And I discovered that famous marshals like Wild Bill Hickok were routinely working as street commissioners in addition to glamorous things. Hickok spent lots of time filling potholes and removing dead horses or pigs from the street. That's the kind of touch I like to include in my books."

In The Bastard (1770-75), Jakes includes a touch of little-known history by describing Ben Franklin's custom of taking "air baths"—sitting naked for half an hour in front of an open window, because he thought it was healthy.

In The Warriors, Jakes steers his characters through the end of the Civil War and the Reconstruction period, the taming of the Wild West, the building of the transcontinental railroad and the era of the robber barons.

Justice is key

Is there an overall theme? "Well," Jakes says, "I don't hold up any message board, but I've developed a theory of what this country is all about. It seems to me that our main thrust has been the idea of justice. In other words, you can examine each part of our history and ask what it meant for people in terms of justice.

"What did it mean to the black slaves? To the women of a particular period? What did it mean to the consumers of the 1880's who were being ripped off? If there's any unconscious theme, I hope that's it."

Jakes may well be riding the crest of a growing trend in publishing by his phenomenal success with original paperbacks. "If these books had gone into hardcover editions first," he says, "the critics would have killed them."

Original paperbacks, however, are seldom reviewed. The only review of substance concerned The Warriors and appeared in The Washington Post, which noted that Jakes' narrative pacing is "nothing short of remarkable."

"The best reward," he says, "is to get mail from people who aren't regular readers."

She got mink

With the prospect of great wealth in store, John and Rachel Jakes remain largely unaffected in terms of material possessions. "Last year we did go out and buy a Cadillac Seville for $8800," he admits. "Also, Rachel got a mink, which I've always wanted for her. A great thing is not having to worry about the kids' college educations."

Jakes says, "I enjoy working," adding that he's already negotiating to do another historical-novel series after the eighth and last book of this one is finished.

"I'm not really sure what makes the books successful," he says. "It might be a longing people have for family ties or heritage, but I just try to write the best stories possible and to put in what interests me."

AP Television Writer

A familiar cliche: A struggling young comic comes to town, works free at club for exposure, is spotted by noted producer, is signed for TV shows, is finally able to pay rent on time.

Yet it has all happened to Robin Williams, 24, of San Francisco.

He hasn't been on TV yet, but next season he'll appear in all six of producer George Schlatter's new "Laugh-In" specials on NBC.

It was in the Comedy Store, a showcase for new comics in Westwood, a Los Angeles suburb that Schlatter spotted, then signed Williams, whom he calls just as fast upstairs as Jonathan Winters "but much more disciplined."

A lean, muscular man, Williams usually opens in a furry hat, a tattered black overcoat and a University of Moscow T-shirt, posing as Joey Stalin, a Russian comic whose English isn't so hot.

Moving quickly, nervously about the tiny stage, crying "Yes! Thank you very much!" at the slightest laugh, his act, much of it spur-of-the-moment whimsy, defies description.

On any night, he may try to teach a rubber chicken to talk, then hurl it into the audience, then lie upside down on a chair, announcing he's now doing "Superman on speed."

Or he may slip into a wild Shakespearean takeoff, then pick up a red glass bowl containing a lit candle, hold it aloft as kind of a Poor Yorick flambee, and cry out to a heckler:

"Let's drink a toast — suck wax and we'l seal your lips forever."

The odd thing about all this funny business is that Williams, by his reckoning, only has been in comedy about a year and a month. He originally set out to be an actor, a stage actor at that.

An Edinburgh, Scotland, native whose folks moved to the United States when he was a tot, he says he studied at New York's Julliard School of Drama, then took a leave of absence to try his luck.

ROBIN WILLIAMS
. . . as Joey Stalin

But roles were few, so he drifted to comedy in New York and later with a San Francisco comedy troupe called Papaya Juice.

With $10 in his pocket, he came to the City of Angels last year, premiered — at 1:30 a.m. — at a comedy showcase called The Improvisation, and thus launched the job search they call the L.A Scuffle.

The scuffle is hard, particularly on those wretched nights when a rookie comic faces what Williams calls "high-energy crazies," or such as the hostile witness who poured a glass of water on him.

"She got me from behind while I was playing a gospel preacher," he recalled. "I was going to baptize her with a pitcher of water, but she had two very big friends . . . "

So how'd he fight back?

"Didn't," he mused. "Sometimes it's better to turn the other cheek and save your behind."

He laughed when it was suggested his coming "Lauch-In" shots may open other doors and even lead to a need for a good tax accountant. He recited an old proverb in fractured Russian. Translation?

"We need da money," said Robin Williams, the new kid in town.

A letter to Mom

Critic's week down the tube at Camp Rerun

By Jay Sharbutt
AP Television Writer

CAMP RERUN, Calif. (AP) — Dear Mom: How are you? I am fine. Well, here I am at Camp Rerun, winding up the one-week summer training they make all us TV critics attend each year.

It is a nifty place, but I must say I do not like the exercise period in the morning. They make us watch "The Gong Show," then leap up and cry, "Poor taste! Poor taste!"

You do this 100 times before breakfast each day and pretty soon you wish you were back covering Washington.

Yesterday, a short, swarthy man in a T-shirt, Baretta, I think his name was, ran a refresher course on what to do about TV violence.

He said we should get the PTA in a dark alley and mug it. Everyone laughed, of course.

Later, a fellow in a dark suit from New York taught us how to spell "profoundly moving." He said it was to be used only when reviewing a TV movie about Franklin D. Roosevelt.

We had been told Farrah Fawcett-Majors was going to hold a course called "The Art of Acting." Due to a prior engagement, though, she couldn't make it and sent her hair instead.

We began the week with a lecture by Lamont Doze, the noted news commentator. He spoke on why it is important to have commentary on the network news each night.

"They would put in four 30-second commercials otherwise," is what he said.

Another good lecture was "The Art of the Stand-in," by David Bald, who we were told is Kojak's stand-in. He wore his Hollywood toupee, the one with the rhinestone part, and was very impressive.

After a TV dinner last night, we heard from Sartre du Tube, the famous French TV critic. His topic was: "Being and Nothingness: A Case for Existentialist Situation Tragedy."

It was a good evening for Mr. du Tube. An ABC vice president who heard his talk bought the rights to it. He says it'll premiere next fall under the title, "Happy Daze."

Today, our last lecture will be by Gentle Ben. He'll speak on discrimination against bears in television. Ben hasn't worked for several years and maybe needs a good agent.

The agent could put an additional claws in Ben's contract. That is a bear joke, Mom.

Incidentally, your cookies arrived this morning. Thank you. But next time, please don't put name tags on each one. Well, got to go. Best to Dad and ask him not to talk so much at the TV set.

It hears everything he says and will get even some day.

MY FAVORITE JOKES

by ART MOGER

EDITOR'S NOTE: When he was a press agent for various movie studios, Art Moger regaled Hollywood stars with jokes and stories. From there it was a natural transition to professional raconteur on the banquet circuit and on TV.

Moger is completing his fifth book of humor, "Once A-Pun a Time," dealing with—what else? Puns. He was inspired to write the book years ago, he says, "when my son Stan was 6 years old. He walked out of a cartoon festival remarking, 'Dad, Mickey Mouse gives me Disney spells!'"

Here are some of Art Moger's puns and jokes:

Several chess players formed the habit of staging daily contests in the lobby of a hotel. The crowds grew so large that one day the manager ordered them to get out. A hotel guest asked, "What's happening?" The manager replied, "It's really nothing. I'm pulling the chess nuts out of the foyer."

My brother is a magistrate. He told me of a woman who stood up in a divorce court and said she didn't want any alimony.

"All I want is for my husband to leave me as he found me," she insisted.

"And how was that?" my brother asked.

"I was a widow," she said.

IT'S TO LAUGH

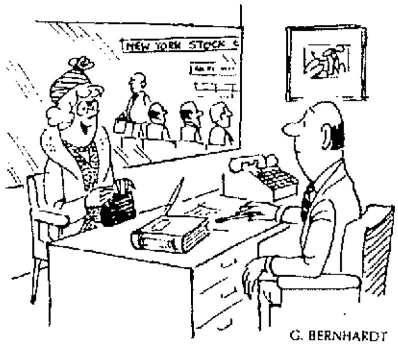
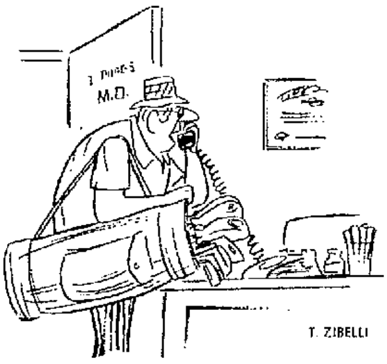
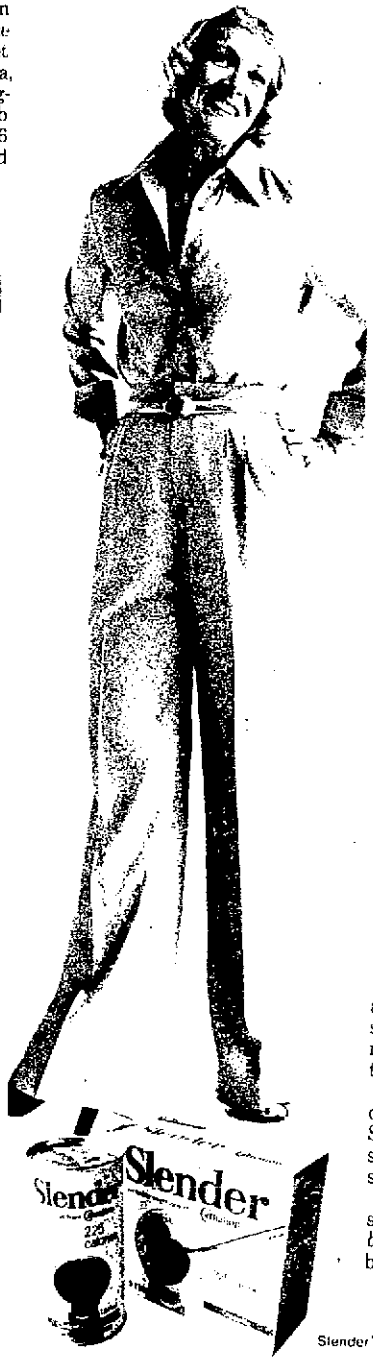
"When I grow up, I'm going to be the head of a large corporation and buy your corporation out!"



"I want to take a flyer on a sure thing."



"Take two aspirins and keep your head down."



How Virginia Hughes got Slender and stayed Slender.

Virginia Hughes is tall, tanned, terrific — and 52! She walks with the easy grace of the natural born athlete that she is. That's ever since Slender* diet food helped her get back in the swim. You see, Virginia, who once trained to swim the English channel, let her weight climb in later years to a grand total of 196 pounds on her 5'7" frame. She lived with all those extra pounds for over two years "wearing mumu's and tent dresses and swimsuits with those little skirts on the front" — until she saw an ad for Slender.

Says Virginia, "I tried all sorts of diets and I just couldn't lose. Then I saw the Slender ad, and being familiar with Carnation milk products for so many years, I decided a product they put out must be good so I tried Slender and am I glad!"

It took ten months but Virginia lost 66 pounds with the help of Slender; dropping pound after pound from 196 to a trim 130. Today she wears a size 11 or 12 and shops for her swimsuits (sometimes bikinis) in the junior department.

"Getting fat is like being on a merry-go-round," says Virginia. 'You start gaining weight...you begin to feel it and see it. This makes you nervous and tends to make you eat for consolation. So you gain some more weight and then you eat to console yourself again and, pretty soon...you're way out!

"Well, I started with the Slender powder — Chocolate's my favorite —and mixed it with skimmed milk because that cuts the calories even further yet it doesn't cut the nutrition, or the feeling of well-being when you're through. I stayed on Slender for 4 months...then for the next 4 months I went on a high protein diet and watched my calories. After that, I went back on Slender again for another 2 months and took off some more. Sure, it takes a certain amount of determination. Lots of people want to lose weight, but they have to ask themselves - am I willing to go on a diet?

"I found Slender a pleasant way to diet because I like sweets, and Slender satisfied my appetite for sweets. I've kept my new figure for 3 years now. If I go up 3 pounds, I go right back on Slender until I drop it. I try not to gain even 5."

Virginia, whose children are 24 and 14, swims 3 times a week at her swim club. "I get lots of compliments," she says. "One man said that I'd taken 10 years off my body."

Virginia Hughes' whole life changed when she decided to try Slender. So get Slender and get started yourself. And the very same thing could happen to you.

We hope Virginia's story inspires you to get your own figure back. If it does, please write. Maybe you could inspire someone else.

JAMES MICHENER'S WORLD (28), 8 p.m. — Debut. Tonight's program chronicles the history of Israel as the birthplace of three great world religions — Judaism, Christianity and Islam. Future programs in which the Pulitzer Prize-winning author will act as host and guide to distant regions he has written about will include visual essays on the subjects of some of his other notable books — "Hawaii," "Iberia" and "Tales of the South Pacific."

MARK RUSSELL COMEDY (28), 9 p.m. — Acclaimed political satirist continues his second season of PBS comedy specials. The shows are a lively mixture of irreverent one-liners and musical parodies on current events and poke fun at the whole spectrum of political personalities and activities in the nation's capital.

HAMILTON JORDAN

JOSEPH CALIFANO

Q. Isn't there bad blood between Hamilton Jordan, President Carter's patronage chief, and Joe Califano, Carter's HEW Secretary? How long will it be before Jordan ousts Califano?—D. L., Alexandria, Va.

A. Jordan was surprised when Califano chose John Ellis, an Ohio Republican, as his executive deputy commissioner of education. But Jordan is much too shrewd to make overt and traceable moves against Califano at this stage of the game. Perhaps down the road a piece.

Q. The inside word is that there is a porn film on the Rolling Stones which is a knockout. Have the Rolling Stones ever starred in England in a series of pornographic flicks?—Maude L., Pittsburgh, Pa.

A. No, they have not. But in 1972 the Stones commissioned Robert Frank, 52, a Canadian film producer, to make a documentary feature of their North American tour. Mick Jagger planned to release it in Great Britain and the U.S. After Jagger saw the finished product, he banned the film from ever being shown in public. The Stones went to court to prevent British newspapers from describing the film, which Sir Hilary Gwynne Talbot of the High Court described as "wholly unfit for public exhibition." And with good reason—it allegedly contains scenes of group sex, nudity, and sexual activity photographed backstage, on the airplane, in hotel bedrooms, and elsewhere. Reportedly there have been private showings of the film.

Q. It is my understanding that Leonid Brezhnev, leader of the Soviet Union and Secretary-General of the Communist party, has Communist party card #1. Who has Communist party card #2?—F.D.L., Hartford, Conn.

A. No one knows. You are probably mixing up membership in the Soviet Journalists Union with membership in the Communist party. According to Tass, the Soviet news agency, Brezhnev was issued card #2 in the Soviet Journalists Union. Card #1 was issued in the name of Vladimir Ilyich Lenin, founder of the Communist party and the Soviet state.

Q. What is the story about comedian George Kirby? Is it true that he was discovered in Las Vegas with five pounds of heroin worth $3 million?—G. F., Reno, Nev.

A. Kirby and four others were arrested in Las Vegas a few weeks ago by federal agents who allegedly found some cocaine and 1.1 pounds of heroin worth $400,000 on the premises. Kirby has been charged in federal court with possession of heroin and intent to distribute. He pleaded not guilty, will be tried July 6.

Q. I have been told that since Betty and Gerald Ford left the White House, each has become a millionaire. Is that true?—D.L., Bethesda, Md.

A. That is not true. What is true is that the William Morris Agency has negotiated TV and book deals for the Fords which eventually will place them in the millionaire category.

BETTY AND GERALD FORD, MILLIONAIRES-TO-BE

Q. Even though Italy is a Roman Catholic country, doesn't the Italian government distribute free oral contraceptive pills to women?—F.R., Syracuse, N.Y

A. According to the Italian Health Ministry, such pills are distributed free provided the women obtain a prescription for the pill from a family planning center.

Q. I cannot for the life of me understand why Jimmy Carter sends top secret government and CIA reports to Richard Nixon. What is the reason?—Dean Winter, Los Angeles.

A. Carter also sends such reports to former President Gerald Ford. It is a courtesy extended to former U.S Presidents and reflects a Presidential continuity of sorts. Both Nixon and Ford possess background knowledge which President Carter may one day find useful.

LADY BIRD JOHNSON

Q. Was Lady Bird Johnson offered the U.S. ambassadorship to Mexico? I have heard that story many times. Supposedly, President Carter offered her the job, and she turned it down.—M. Molina, San Antonio, Tex.

A. President Carter never offered Lady Bird Johnson the U.S. ambassadorship to Mexico. He offered her a place on the commission to choose White House fellows, and Lady Bird has accepted that position

Q. Is professional tennis, with players like Connors, Nastase and others, going the way of boxing? Is the "fix" becoming an integral part of what was once regarded as a gentleman's game? Do players like Connors and Nastase bet on themselves? Are these players controlled by gamblers?—L. Lewis, New Rochelle, N.Y.

A. Connors and Nastase were involved in a tennis match in Puerto Rico in which the prize money distribution was untruthfully announced. It was not a "$250,000 winner-take-all" match. Connors was guaranteed $500,000 and Nastase $150,000. The promotion of professional tennis matches may be suspect, but the tennis players themselves must be regarded as honest until proved otherwise. However, some fans will regard professional tennis that involves big money with a jaundiced eye.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

by LLOYD SHEARER

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN

THE ANDERSON LAWSUIT

COLUMNIST JACK ANDERSON AND WIFE OLIVIA AT THEIR BETHESDA, MD., HOME

At 54, journalist Jack Anderson has achieved much. He is the most widely syndicated political columnist in the world: some 990 newspapers carry his column, distributed domestically and overseas by United Features.

Anderson also appears on the ABC-TV show "Good Morning, America" and some 200 radio stations affiliated with Mutual Broadcasting. He publishes a "business letter," writes books and articles, and lectures at least once a week for a $2500 fee. He employs a staff of 10 reporters and helps train six interns a year.

He is the father of nine children and the grandfather of two. He works in Washington, D.C., but resides in Bethesda, Md. He claims that during the Nixon Administration, "I was probably the most harassed reporter in the nation."

Last Sept. 27th, Anderson, a practicing Mormon, filed suit against various agencies and employees of the federal government--Richard Nixon, Henry Kissinger, John Mitchell, Richard Helms, Bob Haldeman and many others.

He charged that he had been "the victim of the most massive, intensive government harassment in U.S. history" and sued for approximately $22 million in damages, stipulating that he would donate any proceeds won from the lawsuit "to other newsmen to fight freedom of the press abuses."

If and when the Anderson case comes to trial in the U.S. district court for the District of Columbia, one of its most comic chapters will deal with the Central Intelligence Agency.

Although the CIA has no right to conduct a domestic surveillance of a reporter like Anderson, it conducted one of him and his staff under the code name "Project Mudhen" from January to April 1972.

Under a freedom of information request, Anderson's lawyers have obtained the "Mudhen" files from the CIA. They are a riot. They reveal that the CIA wanted to find out where Anderson was obtaining information. At first the agency assigned eight automobiles and agents to the project. Later they increased the number to 18 and established command posts near Anderson's office and home to direct the radio cars and photograph visitors.

During the course of the surveillance, one of Anderson's daughters, Tina, whipped out her own camera and began taking photos of the CIA agents who were following her.

Says the CIA report: "The unidentified woman was driving a dark green or black Ford station wagon....Her apparent age was 20 to 30 and she had long brown hair...." The CIA withdrew its surveillance cars, later returned with rental cars.

Jack Anderson later lunched at the Madison Hotel with the then CIA Director Richard Helms, who was wired with a hidden tape recorder. Helms learned nothing.

Last month a New York jury agreed that the CIA had invaded the privacy of three U.S. citizens by opening their mail to and from the Soviet Union. The jurors recommended awards ranging from $2500 to $10,000.

Anderson has asked for a jury trial in his lawsuit, and it will be interesting to learn what the jurors recommend in his case. Can you imagine a reporter being awarded damages of $22 million?

RETIREMENT MONEY

Retirement and advancing age place a heavy financial burden on people in most Western nations.

Sweden, for example, is the only country where the elderly enjoy a higher standard of living than when they were young and employed. This results, among other things, from the fact they are not taxed as heavily as before.

The following list, prepared by the Union Bank of Switzerland, shows the income of a retired couple as a percentage of their last earned wage after taxes and deductions:

Sweden	131.6%
Switzerland	95.6
Finland	95.6
Austria	90.5
West Germany	84.3
Great Britain	81.6
Netherlands	80.4
U.S.A.	71.4
Canada	62.1
Belgium	60.6

TEA RISE

Panic-buying and a bit of hoarding have broken out in England since the price of tea reached $2 a pound.

This is triple last year's price, and it has hit the British where it hurts most--tradition. "A nice cup of tea" has always been a British anodyne for crisis situations as well as being the national drink.

London tea brokers deny that the sharp rise is the result of speculation and financial intrigue. They explain it by pointing out that high coffee prices have caused coffee drinkers all over the world to switch to tea--thus causing the price to rise skyward.

TOO MUCH BRASS

Sam Nunn, the Junior Senator from Jimmy Carter's home state of Georgia, believes the armed forces are rapidly reaching the point where they will have more chiefs than Indians.

Nunn, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Manpower and Personnel Subcommittee, says the Defense Department plans to have 1165 generals and admirals this year--one flag officer for every 1800 active duty members. During the Vietnam war we had one flag officer for every 2600 active duty members.

"I find it hard to believe," Nunn declares, "that it takes more general officers to wage peace than war."

STYLE CHANGE

It remains unpublicized in Moscow, of course, but the Soviets have quietly hired a West German fashion designer, Heinz Oestergaard, 60, to restyle clothes for the Soviet merchant marine.

Oestergaard, a couturier who designed uniforms for the German police and nurses in Bavaria, recently received a request from the Kremlin to submit sketches for "a friendly, international, dignified and appealing merchant seaman's uniform."

MALE PILL SLOW

Although chemists and physicians and assorted researchers have been trying to develop one for years, a truly effective and harmless oral contraceptive for men is a long way off. So declares Dr. Donald Fawcett, a Harvard professor.

At a recent University of California symposium in Berkeley, Fawcett explained that a contraceptive pill for men would have a more complex function to perform than the pills women use.

"With a female," he pointed out, "you have to block the delivery of one ovum once a month. A male, on the other hand, manufactures 30 million or more sperm cells every day of his reproductive life."

Male contraceptive pills have been developed previously, but when used in combination with alcohol, they cause nausea and other side effects.

Researchers in Italy, Fawcett said, are experimenting with a pill involving acids that act upon supportive cells where sperm are formed rather than on the sperm itself. The advantage of this approach is that it would eliminate the possibility of genetic damage to mature sperm cells. Such damage could result in the birth of defective children.

Fawcett explained that the development of a male oral contraceptive pill is handicapped by a shortage of research funds and incomplete data on the male reproductive system.

Its development, however, would prove a boon to women whose use of female contraceptive pills sometimes causes undesirable side effects. The Food and Drug Administration, for example, insists that manufacturers of contraceptive pills for women provide labels that say such pills may cause heart attacks in women 40 or over.

JAPAN AND TAIWAN

Last year 520,000 Japanese tourists visited Taiwan, and Taiwan and Japan engaged in $3.5 billion of trade.

Yet, as far as Japan's three largest newspapers--the Asahi Shimbun, Mainichi Shimbun and Yomiuri Shimbun--are concerned, Taiwan hardly exists. For them it has become a "nonstate" of sorts.

Japan's dailies refuse to station any correspondent in Taipei, the capital of Taiwan. They will not accept advertisements for books dealing with Taiwan, nor will they permit members of their staffs to visit Taiwan.

They are determined to acknowledge in all respects Peking's dictum: "There is only one China." Japan's dailies know that if they station correspondents in Taiwan, their correspondents based in Peking will be expelled immediately.

THE REAL THING

For years the U.S. ambassadorship to the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg--a tiny country tucked in between Southeast Belgium and West Germany--has served as a political payoff by U.S. Presidents.

Harry Truman sent Perle Mesta, "the Washington hostess with the mostest," to Luxembourg in the 1940's as ambassador.

When Dwight Eisenhower came to office, he paid off Wiley Buchanan, the Texas art collector, with that job. When Ruth Farkas, the department store heiress, contributed $300,000 to Richard Nixon's reelection campaign in 1972, she, too, was rewarded with the Luxembourg post.

But Jimmy Carter has removed Luxembourg as a patronage plum. He has appointed James Lowenstein, a career diplomat and former Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for European Affairs, to the ambassadorship.

JAMES LOWENSTEIN

The story in Washington is that the man behind the scenes in the switch is Sen. Claiborne Pell (D., R.I.). Pell, a longtime friend of the royal family of Luxembourg, supposedly advised the Luxembourgers to ask the Carter Administration for a professional diplomat instead of the traditional comic relief or Presidential crony.

Thus, for the first time in decades, Luxembourg will have a career U.S. envoy.

Observing nuclear blast eight miles away, these GI's were among 1104 whose reactions were being tested in "Operation Smokey" on Aug. 31, 1957. Two men have contracted leukemia, and U.S. wants to check health of all at the blast.

20 Years Ago, Were You There At Yucca Flats, Nev., Atomic Blast?

by Charles Peterson

Twenty years ago, on Aug. 31, 1957, 1104 members of our armed forces sat with their backs to the explosion of a 44-kiloton atomic device some eight miles away on the Yucca Flats outside Las Vegas, Nev.

A limited test ban treaty in August 1963 prohibited such aboveground nuclear tests in America. The last was conducted Nov. 4, 1962.

If you were one of the 1104 men assigned to the test dubbed "Smokey" or were stationed at Camp Desert Rock, the base camp for the Yucca Flats test, please write Dr. Glyn G. Caldwell, U.S. Center for Disease Control, Atlanta, Ga 30333

Dr. Caldwell, deputy chief of the center's cancer branch, wants to determine what effect that atomic blast, about twice as powerful as the ones that destroyed Hiroshima and Nagasaki, has had upon your health.

Two develop leukemia

Two men who were there, Paul Cooper of Emmett, Idaho, and Donald Coe of Tompkinsville, Ky., have developed leukemia. Others are cancer-free.

The Veterans Administration Appeals Board ruled a few weeks ago that Cooper's leukemia was contracted during his military service. But no one has confirmed his claim that it was caused by "Smokey."

Donald Coe has been awarded a pension but denied service-connected benefits. His case is being reviewed by the VA's central office.

Dr. Caldwell wants to trace the other participants in the exercise, the purpose of which was to test soldiers' reactions to a nuclear blast.

"Thus far," he reports, "I've been able to determine that there were about 600 men from the 12th Infantry Division who came from Ft. Lewis, Wash. There were also about 170 men of the 82nd Airborne from Ft. Bragg, N.C. In addition, there were helicopter pilots, some 450 observers and others involved in the two tests I'm most concerned with, one on Aug. 30th and the other on Aug. 31st."

An Army report on "Smokey" states that none of the soldiers involved in the test was closer than eight miles from ground zero on which was a steel tower containing the nuclear device.

A press release issued by the Atomic Energy Commission prior to the test, however, said that the soldiers would be in protective trenches as close to ground zero as 4500 yards.

According to Paul Cooper, a 20-year Army veteran, he was in a company of 250 men who were ordered to a trench that AEC monitors estimated was 3000 yards south of the blast site. When the wind shifted, Cooper's company was moved to a hillside 3000 yards west of the steel tower.

Cooper said he was told to face away from the tower and to cover his eyes with his hands. And when the nuclear device was detonated, "I could see the bones in my hands like an X-ray.

"The heat was quite intense and almost unbearable for 10 to 20 seconds. We were told to turn around. We did and watched the fireball rise into the sky." Cooper recalls that when the men of the 82nd Airborne were marched to within 100 yards of the detonation site, the ground was "cherry hot."

Checked for radiation

The Army claims that soldiers who took part in "Smokey" were checked for radiation exposure; and the Veterans Administration ruled originally that Cooper's leukemia was not service-connected and that he was not entitled to disability payments. But Sidney I. Shuman, chairman of the VA Appeals Board, overruled that decision.

Shuman said the ruling in Cooper's favor was based on clinical observations made in 1968 while Cooper was still in the Army.

"Even though a diagnosis of leukemia was not made during his later years of military service," Shuman explained, "the symptoms and findings documented at the time are persuasive in view of the currently established diagnosis."

Paul Cooper, now of Salt Lake City, Utah, applied to the Veterans Administration for a service-connected disability rating of $820 a month to ensure educational benefits for his wife and three children following his death.

Records destroyed

Dr. Caldwell says the Armed Forces Radiobiology Research Institute has records of 170,000 persons who participated in nuclear tests between 1945 and 1964. "But a few years ago," he points out, "many service records were destroyed in a giant fire in St. Louis, and it's not easy locating the men who took part in 'Smokey.' Twenty years is a long time, and most of those men have settled into civilian life."

Dr. Caldwell says, "There have been some erroneous accounts as to the amount of radiation those men were exposed to. The Army says they were exposed to a 1.25 Roentgen level, which is considered safe. But we'd like to check them all out."

So if you were at Camp Desert Rock during the last week of August 1957, if you observed the nuclear detonations on either Aug. 30th or 31st, one from a balloon, the other from a tower, please write Dr. Caldwell in Atlanta.

He'll take it from there.

Merit Breakthrough Remains Unduplicated.

'Enriched Flavor'™ tobacco makes MERIT unique among low tar cigarettes.

Since the introduction of MERIT, a number of other low tar brands have come along. But MERIT remains unique—the only low tar cigarette with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

MERIT delivers what others can only promise: the flavor of higher tar cigarettes. The kind of flavor made possible by a breakthrough in tobacco technology.

Here's how it was done:

By cracking cigarette smoke down into separate elements, researchers were able to isolate certain flavor-rich ingredients that delivered taste way out of proportion to tar.

These flavor essentials were then packed into MERIT, giving it extraordinary flavor.

Taste tests against a number of higher tar cigarettes proved it.

Overall, smokers reported they liked the taste of MERIT and MERIT 100's as much as the taste of the higher tar cigarettes tested. Cigarettes with up to 60% more tar!

Only one cigarette has 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

And you can taste it.

Keeping Up... With Youth

by Pamela Swift

Idle Children

It's official. Almost 50 percent of mothers in the United States work. And most do so because they can't survive if they don't.

While most women work for small wages—the median yearly salary for full-time employment for women is $6772 compared with $11,835 for men—children wander the streets or stay home and watch television.

In 1975, 27 million children under 18 had mothers who worked, and almost a quarter of these were preschool children. Today there are only 1 million spaces available for children in licensed day-care centers.

What happens down the road to a nation of idle children is not clear, but what's certain is that the present condition of American children is not particularly healthy. For example, the American Academy of Pediatrics estimates that 10 to 20 percent of American children suffer from chronic handicapping conditions, of which at least one-third could be corrected by appropriate preschool care.

"It should be an unequivocal principle of our public policy that all children, whatever the income, location or marital status of their parents," says Sen. Hubert Humphrey, "have good nutrition, timely health care and the opportunity for a stimulating environment and quality education."

COPPER IN POOL WATER CAN TURN BLOND HAIR GREEN—BUT IT SHAMPOOS OUT

Green Hair

If your hair turns green after a dip in a swimming pool, don't get alarmed. All it means is that there's too much copper in the water.

Dr. Richard Lampe of the William Beaumont Army Medical Center in El Paso, Tex., recently described the cases of a 5-year-old blond boy and girl whose hair turned green. The green color disappeared when the kids stopped using their pools and began taking daily shampoos.

Writing in a recent edition of the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Lampe explained that copper frequently enters pools via a substance placed in the water to control the growth of algae. On other occasions it is leached from copper pipes by acid corrosion.

The Scandalous Medical Care In Our Jails

by Donald Robinson

A young inmate at a crowded Queens County jail in New York City went on sick call because he had a racking cough. He told a jail nurse that he had lost a lot of weight and was feeling dreadful.

"You just have a bad cold," she said.

During the next six months, he lost another 60 pounds, but the jail's medical staff continued to treat him for a cold. He was near death before it was found he had active tuberculosis.

A state of emergency was secretly declared in the jail and a special team brought in to X-ray every inmate who might have come into contact with the TB patient. However, no attempt was made to track down hundreds who'd been exposed and released from jail; no one will ever know how many New Yorkers contracted TB from them.

The medical care administered by most of the 4000 city and county jails in the United States today can be described in one word: appalling. Many sick prisoners die for lack of adequate treatment. Thousands suffer needlessly. Large numbers are turned loose into their communities with undiscovered cases of hepatitis, syphilis and other virulently communicable diseases.

The American Medical Association calls the situation "a national scandal." Joseph R Rowan, who directs the AMA's jail programs, declares: "The health care in many local jails is so bad that it constitutes 'cruel and unusual punishment.' It's a violation of the inmates' constitutional rights. Furthermore, it is a menace to the rest of us because they bring their illnesses back out with them."

Ann Arbor's county jail, which will soon be replaced, is one of few in the country with a clinic. Its medical staff is well trained

At county jail in Ann Arbor, Mich., Officer Ken Scott gives prescribed medicine to prisoner. But in most jails, treatment is shockingly inadequate.

At last count, more than 160,000 men and women—and some children—were behind bars in city and county jails. Many had never been convicted of any offense. They were awaiting trial and hadn't the money for bail. The others were serving short terms for minor offenses. Under the law, serious offenders who are sentenced to more than one year go to state prisons. Ironically, the experts say that conditions in local jails are usually far worse than those in state prisons. Jails get much less funds to work with.

40-second sick call

The AMA made a survey of medical services in 1083 jails throughout the country. Its findings were shocking. Less than 8 percent of the jails had any kind of clinic. Many didn't even have a first aid kit. Thirty-one percent had no doctor on call for emergencies. Fewer than 5 percent gave inmates a physical examination on admission. Regularly scheduled sick calls were a rarity. Acutely ill inmates could wait weeks for medical attention. If a sick call was held, it frequently was a charade. For instance, the average time per sick call in San Diego Jail was 40 seconds.

Less than 15 percent of the jails had special facilities for the mentally ill. Generally, they were put into cells with other inmates who often beat them severely for acting oddly.

The AMA says that the need for better medical care in our jails is desperate. A few months ago, volunteer AMA doctors, nurses and technicians went into 30 jails in six states and gave 641 inmates thorough examinations. For many it was the first medical going-over they'd ever had. The doctors found an incredible amount of undetected disease. In one Indiana jail, 15 percent of the inmates had positive TB skin tests. In a Georgia jail, 66 percent had abnormal urinalyses indicating diabetes or other illnesses; many urinated blood.

All told, 30 percent of the 641 inmates had abnormal hepatitis readings. A rate of .0281 percent can be expected in the public at large.

In the course of its investigations, the AMA accumulated compelling evidence of suffering caused jail inmates by medical neglect. I learned of incident after incident like these:

- An old inmate was seen sitting in his cell in a New York City jail on Christmas Day with a bleeding hole in his head. He was crying for help. Three days later, he was still in his cell, his wound untouched.
- A man who was locked up in Boston's ancient Charles Street Jail after an automobile accident told the guards

Medical neglect of prisoners is 'cruel and unusual punishment'

Thorough physical exams of inmates are rare. As a result, says American Medical Association, diseases like TB and hepatitis go undetected, pose peril

he had agonizing pains in his back. No one did anything about it. He was released on bail three days afterward and his family took him to Massachusetts General Hospital. An X-ray showed that he had a fractured spine.

- A man with an excruciating earache begged the guards at the Duval County Jail in Jacksonville, Fla., for treatment. He had to wait 14 hellish days before he was permitted to see a doctor. Dr. Kenneth B. Babcock, a veteran medical inspector who was sent into this jail by a federal court was aghast at what he found. Among other things, prisoners with suspected chicken pox, impetigo, infectious hepatitis and mumps were assigned to the same cells with healthy inmates, "creating epidemic possibilities."

He reported to the court: "It is a sad state of affairs and needs immediate correction."

I saw many reports of abuse of mentally ill inmates. Some jails keep them in chains. One Illinois jail "calms them down" with cold water, using a fire hose from the Fire Department next door. In one week last summer, the Cook County Jail in Chicago had two cases of homosexual assault on young mentally ill inmates.

Needless death

According to the AMA, many have died unnecessarily in jails. One aged alcoholic in a Midwestern jail complained to the guards that he was feeling miserably ill. The guards knew that the man was suffering from a liver disease but they didn't bother to take him to a doctor.

The old man sank into a coma and died in his cell.

A 44-year-old woman from Poughkeepsie, N.Y., was arrested for drunken driving last fall and lodged in the Duchess County Jail. Two days later, she was found dead in her cell. An investigation disclosed that she'd died, unattended, of alcohol withdrawal. Accusations of neglect have also been made over deaths at the San Diego Jail. A prime reason for an ugly riot by female inmates there was the inadequate medical care.

Perhaps the most chilling finding of the AMA was the large number of suicides that take place behind bars; in fact, suicide was the most common cause of death in the jails they saw.

"Most inmates are in jail for the first time," the AMA's Joseph Rowan stresses. "They are frightened and confused. Chances are they have been abandoned by their families and feel unbearably alone. They see no way out of their terrible dilemma, become more and more depressed, and soon start to think of death as the only solution. A competent psychologist—in fact, any experienced counselor—could probably drain off their high state of anxiety and get them to adjust to the situation. Most jails don't have any counseling services, though. They give their depressed inmates no psychological support. In effect, they say, 'We don't care.' "

Guarded treatment

The AMA survey showed that most jails without their own medical facilities pay local hospitals to care for seriously ill inmates. When a prisoner is hospitalized, guards must be assigned to watch him around the clock. To save manpower, one Florida jail chained its sick inmates to their hospital beds. It took a federal court order to halt this barbaric practice.

I saw the good and bad sides of the picture at Rikers Island in New York City, where 5100 inmates are imprisoned in four jails, an obsolete and run-down infirmary, and a dungeon-like mental health center.

Corrections Commissioner Benjamin J. Malcolm and other city officials have made an earnest effort to raise health care standards on the island. They have built sparkling new clinics in the four jails and contracted with Montefiore Hospital, a top-notch institution, to operate them. Montefiore has assigned some of its best young physicians to the island.

The clinics are splendid, superbly designed and equipped. Sick calls are held daily, and doctors are on duty 24 hours.

The Rikers Island Infirmary and its Mental Health Center are something else. Malcolm admits they're hideous.

Some mental patients are handcuffed to the iron bars of their cells to prevent them from harming themselves. One middle-aged man jailed for a minor offense bragged that he had tried to hang himself. "I almost made it. My body temperature was down to 65 degrees when they cut me down. Another 10 seconds and I'd have been dead."

"It's tragic,"Dr. Stephen Zurrow, the chief psychologist, stated. "We have 140 severely disturbed patients in this center and we don't have half the personnel and facilities to help them properly."

Why is health care in jails so bad?

The main reason is that jails are starved for funds. They get the lowest priority in most city and county budgets. But that's not all. Bonnie Jaye Anno, a criminologist who has inspected many penal institutions for the AMA, says that the situation is aggravated by a lack of cooperation between jails and local health departments. She found numerous places where medical help could have easily been provided at no extra cost to the taxpayers. Health department doctors could have screened inmates for communicable diseases, for example, but nobody asked them to.

An insider's explanation

Bob Brown, a respected criminologist who spent 26 of his 48 years in prison for armed robbery and murder but who has since made a fine new life for himself, has this to say:

"Most inmates who go on sick call aren't sick. They're merely trying to get out of their cells for a half hour as a break in the awful monotony. Then they make unrealistic demands on the doctors. The result is that most jail doctors become very callous, and you can't blame them. They're protecting themselves; their own psychic survival is at stake. But it's tough on the inmates who genuinely are sick. They get a brush-off."

The AMA has enlisted six state medical societies—in Washington, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Maryland and Georgia—in a drive to improve health care in jails. Financed by a $500,000 grant from the U.S. Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, they have drafted codes of minimum standards that are being tested in selected jails.

Getting better

Some progress has been recorded. In the state of Washington, inmates staying over seven days in the Whitman County Jail now get physical examinations from the county health department. The Troup County Jail in Georgia has begun a drug and alcohol rehabilitation program. The little Lake County Jail in Michigan has installed its first treatment room.

The Oakland County Jail, a rugged, maximum security institution for 500 at Pontiac, Mich., has hired an expert new doctor and a second nurse for its spotless, three-room clinic. It now holds sick calls six days a week.

The AMA is planning a national system of accreditation for jails, with regular inspections of their medical facilities by teams of volunteer doctors. It's urgently needed, the AMA believes.

"We must stop taking chances with the health of jail inmates," Rowan declares. "For their sake and for ours."

The Pendant of Midsummer's Eve

An everlasting expression of love – inspired by the timeless Swedish legend and designed by the distinguished Swedish artist Svante Ahlsen. Minted by The Franklin Mint.

Gold on sterling silver pendant shown actual 32mm size. Also available in solid 18 karat gold at 26mm.

ORDER DEADLINE: JUNE 25

In Sweden, "the land of the midnight sun," there is a joyous tradition as old as the nation's Viking heritage. It is a festival of light and gaiety, celebrated on Midsummer's Eve, the 25th of June. A tribute to the sun . . . that is, by timeless custom, also dedicated to lovers.

Here at The Franklin Mint, we have another tradition . . . that of blending the finest artistic standards with the permanence of precious metals. And now we have brought these traditions together, to create an exquisite new work of art. A unique "gift for lovers" – designed solely and exclusively for this limited edition by Svante Ahlsen, one of Sweden's most distinguished artists, to capture the spirit of Midsummer's Eve in the enduring beauty of gold.

The Pendant of Midsummer's Eve is a work of simple beauty that is rich in meaning. The face of the pendant captures the dazzling brilliance of Sweden's midnight sun, as it lights up the evening sky and sets aglow the hearts of lovers. The reverse evokes all the charm of the traditional Midsummer's Eve revelries – with the delicate flowers that a girl places beneath her pillow to dream of the man she will marry . . . and the following inscription: "Like the sun of Midsummer's Eve, your love will always light my life."

The result: The Pendant of Midsummer's Eve, minted with The Franklin Mint's magnificent gem Proof finish to create a work of art whose finely frosted image is raised in rich relief against the mirrored brilliance of its background. A pendant that will be as rare as it is beautiful. For it will be produced in a single, strictly limited edition, with an absolute limit of one pendant per order.

The total number of pendants to be issued, in fact, will precisely equal the number of orders postmarked by the deadline of June 25, 1977 – Midsummer's Eve.

The most marvelous – and most appreciated – gift of all is the one that springs spontaneously from the heart, as an expression of love and caring. The Pendant of Midsummer's Eve is just such a gift. A work of beauty and rarity. A symbol of undying love.

TRY A fish kabob

by BETH MERRIMAN

PARADE FOOD EDITOR

When fish is properly cooked it is never dry or tasteless but delicately flavored and delightful in texture. Modern fast-freezing methods assure fresh fillets in markets throughout the country.

Skewered cubes of fish fillets—only partially thawed, bathed in a zesty butter sauce and broiled to golden perfection—make an unusual kind of kabob. Served with hot crinkle-cut French fries and a salad of fresh raw vegetables, Broiled North Sea Kabobs make fine eating whether served indoors or out. End the meal with berries and cream accompanied by cookies and a beverage of your choice.

broiled NORTH SEA kabobs

2 pounds frozen cod or haddock fillets
1/3 cup butter or margarine
1/3 cup lemon juice
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 tablespoons minced onion
1 teaspoon dry mustard
Freshly ground pepper

Let frozen blocks of fish stand at room temperature for 20 minutes. Cut each block in half the long way, then crosswise into eight two-inch cubes. Thread four squares on each of four skewers, leaving space between. Place on lightly oiled rack in broiling pan. Melt butter; combine with remaining ingredients. Brush fish with butter sauce; broil about eight inches from heat for 20 minutes; every five minutes give skewers a quarter turn and baste with butter sauce. Serve with any remaining sauce. Makes four servings. FROM PARADE'S TEST KITCHEN

How to Rescue Your Child From a Cult

by Carroll Stoner & Jo Anne Parke

Last March, in a landmark case, a San Francisco court granted temporary custody of five adults to their parents in an effort to win them from Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church through deprogramming. They are (l to r): Barbara Undenvood, Janice Kaplan, John Hovard, Leslie Brown and Jacqueline Katz.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The use of "deprogramming" techniques on young people who have joined religious cults has become controversial. Critics call it "reverse brainwashing," while parents of successfully deprogrammed children say it's the only answer.

When parents watch a child's chances for success diminish because of membership in a religious cult, it is not surprising that many panic. Some plunge headlong into deprogramming plans that can, very easily, fail.

Father Kent Burtner is assistant director of campus ministry at the University of Oregon in Eugene. "I tell parents to do four things," he says:

- "Try to learn where your kids' heads are so you can understand how they got involved. What are the problems in their lives, what are their needs and vulnerabilities?" Father Kent suggests that parents save all letters and keep the lines of communication open.
- "Keep a diary of your own thoughts and feelings." The priest explains that this will be very necessary, no matter what the parents decide to do about their son or daughter's new life.
- "Get in touch with parents of other cult members. When you can see you are not alone, it alleviates the guilt.
- "Examine deprogramming as one option."

Deprogramming. The once-unknown word has assumed mythic proportions. Each deprogramming story is different, but the technique can be defined as one in which a person is forced to question his beliefs, by someone opposed to them, and to examine the process of conversion which led to his adoption of the religion. Those who favor the process say it "returns a person to his free mind and allows him to make decisions for himself."

Unjustified and indefensible?

There are others, however, who call deprogramming unjustified and indefensible. "Holding a person against his will and subjecting him to a highly-emotional intellectual battering is wrong, no matter who does it," they say.

The controversy over deprogramming is due in no small measure to the style of the forced, locked-door deprogrammings Ted Patrick writes about in his book Let Our Children Go. "I firmly beleve the Lord helps those who help themselves, and a few little things like karate, mace, and handcuffs come in handy from time to time," he writes. Judging from the stories of many young people he has successfully deprogrammed, however, he seldom uses any of these props. Patrick and the other deprogrammers claim that when they force a cult member to listen to opposing views, they can change a subject's mind about a cult in a few days.

However, hundreds of young people have been convinced to leave religious cults during thoughtful, unforced discussions with concerned individuals. These "re-evaluations" of the cultist's religious experience are not carried out under lock and key, but voluntarily. A parent who seeks to remove a son or daughter from the clutches of a cult, these people say, must consider whether or not that person would willingly hear the other side of the issue. There are far more failed deprogrammings than anyone is willing to admit.

Ideally, a re-evaluation of a cult member's life and beliefs should be the result of a parent-child bargain. "If you intend to spend the rest of your life in that group, you owe us a week or two of your time," is one approach. Rabbi Maurice Davis of White Plains, N.Y., has well over 100 "rescues" that came about this way. Each sat in the rabbi's unlocked study, across the desk from him or sharing a sofa with him, and talked and listened. And each ultimately left a cult. He reports few "failures."

Recently, we arranged to be observers—and unintentionally became active participants—in the deprogramming of young John Ashley, a member of Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church. If it began as a forced deprogramming, it ended as a re-evaluation.

With the help of one of the loosely-organized anticult parent groups that have surfaced in recent years, John's mother and stepfather hired a young former "Moonie" to deprogram their son. John would be home for his sister's wedding, and the deprogrammer would "snatch" him.

The deprogrammer bought handcuffs, rounded up a crew of volunteer bodyguards from the family's church and held rehearsals of the snatch.

After the wedding reception, with John still in his stiff, rented evening clothes, the deprogrammer handcuffed him, taped his mouth shut, threw him into a car and sped off to a motel.

Once in the motel room, he handcuffed John to a chair and proceeded to make dramatic statements right out of Ted Patrick's book. "We're prepared to stay here for as long as it takes you to promise you'll never return to that fake church." He ripped up a picture of Moon and called the Korean every name he could think of. Between histrionics, the deprogrammer read quotes from the Bible, showing John how many had been distorted and used out of context for Unification Church purposes.

Why he joined

John told the deprogrammer he had joined the Moonies for the purpose in life and friendship that the group offered, not for its religious aspects. Still the deprogrammer kept trying to discredit the Unification Church on the basis of theology.

Just before dawn of the first full day, the deprogrammer handcuffed John to a chair next to a bed and let him go to sleep. Then, early the next morning, he played a tape made by former Moonie Steve Hassan. On the tape, Steve explains clearly and articulately how he, as a Moonie lecturer and recruiter, had been encouraged to deceive prospective converts and withhold information from them. Steve's tape struck familiar chords for John. He began to wonder if he, too, had been deceived and began to confide that he was getting disenchanted with his life as a Unification Church member.

He told us that he especially despised the lying he felt he had to do in order to meet quotas set for him as a fund-raiser. It really bothered him, he said, to tell people he was raising funds for a children's home that didn't exist. Still, he felt loved and wanted by the Moonies.

Good vs. bad

So we sat down with John and asked him to make two lists, one with all the good qualities of life in the Unification Church and another with all the negative aspects of that life. We discussed each point with him and told him he seemed like an intelligent young man. Didn't he have a responsibility to control his own destiny? First his parents ran his life. Who was running it now?

At first, John just wanted to talk, and we tried to ask open-ended questions that led the way for him to examine his situation. (The deprogrammer had taken a break and was gone.) After a while, John admitted that the bad seemed to outweigh the good on his list. But he still couldn't be sure that his own dissatisfaction was reason enough to leave

"What will I do with my life?" he wondered. John had completed his education and he had a career, though it was one he wasn't sure he wanted to fall back on. He also admitted that he missed having sexual or romantic attachments in his church life.

Agreed to go home

We talked further, and John finally agreed to go home with his parents for a while until he got things together.

Many advocates of deprogramming think the process is helpful even if one decides to leave the church on his own. "It takes a lot longer to get it together again without deprogramming," says Dr. George Swope, the father of a former cult member and head of a counter-cult group. "Some young people who left cults without deprogramming suffered months of inertia and nightmares trying to do it themselves."

Elizabeth Albertson, mother of two successfully deprogrammed children, adds a word of caution to parents: "A deprogramming or a re-evaluation is, after all, only a return to free choice. Parents must understand that there's no guarantee that a child will do what they want, and they must be able to accept the outcome."

How to Wake Up the Financial Genius Inside You

"Millionaires Are Not 100 Times Smarter Than You, They Just Know The Wealth Formula"

Millionaires are not 100 or even 10 times smarter than you. But it is a fact that millionaires are making 10 to 50 and even 100 times more than you.

Are these wealthy people working that much harder than you? No way!

If you are working only 20 hours a week, it would be physically impossible. (There are only 168 hours in a week, no one gets more.)

These questions used to really stump me. That was six years ago.

My wife and I then lived in Denver, Colorado, at 2545 South High Street. We paid $135 a month rent for a cramped, tumbled down house. My wife was expecting our second child and we were flat broke. I felt desperate and forced into a corner. I had to borrow $150 from my father and another $150 from my father-in-law just to buy the groceries and pay the rent. If that wasn't enough, I was several thousand dollars in debt.

Things are much different now. Last year I could have retired and lived off the income of my one million dollars in real estate holdings. (Incidently, almost all of the income from the real estate is tax free).

Since I had worked 20 to 40 hours a week, I know that I didn't work even 10 times longer or harder than you. And with my C-average from Ames High School (located in Ames, Iowa) I'm quite certain that I'm not any smarter than you.

If hours, efforts, or brains are not what separates the rich from the average guy who is swamped with debts and very little income, then what is?

I learned the answer to that question from an old fellow in Denver. This fellow worked in a drug store stocking the shelves. Very few people knew that he had $200,000 in the bank, all of which he had earned starting from nothing.

Within a year after meeting him, I was told and shown the same thing by a young man who had recently earned over a million dollars. By this time, I began to realize that what I was being shown was truly a remarkable and workable way to grow rich.

I began to apply the principles and methods I had been shown. The results were amazing. I couldn't believe how easy it was, if fact it seemed too easy.

But then I met an elderly lady (83 years old) who, although not very smart, has made $117,000 using the same formula.

I then figured my beginning wasn't luck.

For three and one half years, I worked hard to refine and improve on the formula that I had been shown, so that it would be easy to get quicker results.

As I did this, my assets multiplied very rapidly (160% per year) to the point that I didn't have to work any longer.

I guess I am bragging now, but I did start spending alot of time in our back yard pool, traveling around the country, and doing a lot of loafing.

Then one day a friend asked me how he could do what I had done.

So I began to outline the formula that I had improved to show him really how simple it was, and how he could do the same thing.

By the time he approached me, I had written almost a complete volume on the easy way for him to copy my results.

I wrote this in simple, straightforward language so anyone could understand it.

This time my friend's questions were very specific (He had already begun buying properties with the formulas I had been giving him). Now he had a property he wanted to buy, but was out of cash. How could he buy it?

I not only showed him how to buy without cash, but by the time the deal was complete, he had $5,000 cash in his pocket to boot.

I also showed him how to buy a $26,000 property for $75 down.

You, or anyone, can do exactly what I did, or my close friends have done; in fact, you may well do it better. (I began doing this in my spare time only).

It doesn't matter where you live or the size of your town or city, my formula will show you exactly how to

- Buy income properties for as little as $100 down.
- Begin without any cash.
- Put $1,000., $10,000., or even more cash in your pocket when you buy (without selling property).
- Double your assets regularly and consistently.
- Legally avoid, reduce or postpone paying federal or state income taxes.
- Buy bargains at a fraction of their market value.

When you send me a check or money order for $10, I will send you all my formulas and methods, and you are free to use them anywhere and as often as you would like.

Why is millionaire HAROLDSEN willing to share his wealth formula?

Now, if you were a personal friend of mine, I know you would believe me and not need any kind of guarantee, but since you don't know me personally, I will guarantee that you will be completely satisfied and that my formula will work for you if you apply it. I will back up that guarantee by not cashing your check for 30 days, and if you for any reason change your mind, let me know and I will send your uncashed check back.

You may well ask, why am I willing to share my formula for wealth? Well, because many of you will probably seek further consultation and direction from me as your wealth rapidly grows and my consultation fee of $75.00 an hour adds to my fortune.

But you shouldn't care if I profit as long as you profit. And I guarantee that you will.

By the way, if you feel a little uneasy abount sending me a check or money order for $10.00, simply postdate it by 30 days which will completely eliminate your risk.

Meet John Jakes: Instant Historian and Millionaire

by L.H. Whittemore

KETTERING, OHIO.

A middle-aged family man, living modestly in this Dayton suburb, has become our current top-selling author and a millionaire.

Does "John Jakes" ring a bell?

Walk into any store selling paperback books and chances are you'll see his name under six titles, lined up from left to right as follows: The Bastard, The Rebels, The Seekers, The Furies, The Titans and The Warriors. These historical novels, appearing in rapid succession since 1974, are an unparalleled publishing success.

"The idea," says Jakes, 45, "was to trace a fictional family through 200 years of American history. I was going to get all the way up to the Bicentennial year in five books. Well, I started in 1770 and got so enamored of the history that I began to crawl through it. The seventh book will be The Lawless, which begins in the early 1870's. After that comes The Americans, but there's no way I'll bring it up to the present."

Altogether there are nearly 16 million copies of Jakes' American Bicentennial Series, subtitled The Kent Family Chronicles, in print—all published originally in paperback. In 1976, the first five books were each among the nation's top 20 best sellers. The Warriors, which appeared this past April, had the largest initial printing ever—3 million copies—yet the publisher, Pyramid Books, went back to press for 500,000 more in a couple of weeks.

'Had to be nuts'

A former advertising man, Jakes had never made much more than $5000 a year from his free-lance writing. In 1973, he took a $15,000 advance to begin work on the series. "I thought I had to be nuts to take it on," he says. "I really didn't see how anyone who wasn't a trained historian could accomplish it, especially within the deadlines I was given."

Even so, he insisted on doing all his own research, mostly in libraries. Each book of more than 500 pages required about four months of poring through biographies and historical diaries, then an equal period of nonstop writing. The trick was to blend his fictional characters into the real events of American history—not forgetting a frank but judicious sprinkling of sex.

Despite the enormous success of his series, Jakes is still working at breakneck speed as if under terrible pressure. "After the third book," he recalls, "I got sick with a little ulcer, but it cleared up." In the back of The Warriors, he even apologizes to his readers for not having finished it sooner.

A tall, heavyset man with a crewcut, Jakes looks nothing like the dashing heroes portrayed on his book jackets. Nor is his life filled with the "panoramic adventure and soaring romance" the ads claim for his characters.

Six down, two to go. John Jakes, author of the best-selling "American Bicentennial Series," is racing to complete set of historical novels on his old $35 typewriter. The former ad man lives modestly, is unaffected by wealth.

"I've only had one vacation in four years," he says with a smile: he and his wife Rachel went to Florida last year for their 25th wedding anniversary. They have four children—three daughters and a son.

"Our lives haven't really changed at all," he continues. Monday through Friday, starting at 8:30 a.m., he works in a small, makeshift office in the basement of his home. He uses a typewriter that he purchased secondhand for $35 in 1955. At lunchtime he climbs up to the kitchen where, without fail, he eats a peanut butter sandwich. "I'm addicted to peanut butter," he says.

Eager fans

What explains how Jakes has captured the imagination of so many people with his series? Why do millions of "non-readers" so eagerly await each succeeding book?

"Maybe it's because I hated history in high school," Jakes offers. "And in college I avoided it altogether. But when I started reading about our past, I realized what an exciting opportunity this was. It was like going back to school and getting paid for it. And I came to see the entire project as a way of involving others who'd been 'turned off' by history."

Born and raised in Chicago, Jakes believes that his advertising and free-lance writing provided perfect training for doing the series.

"The pulps paid a penny per word," Jakes recalls. "My first story was sold in 1951, while I was an undergraduate at DePauw University. It was a science fiction piece about a struggle between a man and a toaster. I was paid $25."

Over the years he turned out more than 200 stories, mostly science fiction, Westerns, detective and juvenile pieces. He also managed to write a number of books (more than 50, his publisher says), including six novels set in ancient Roman and Biblical times, under the pseudonym of Jay Scotland. The bulk of his work "sank like a stone," he says cheerfully.

"Also, I spent 16 years in the advertising business," Jakes points out, "and the account man was always banging on the door, yelling, 'Give me a 30-second spot by 2 this afternoon!' So I learned to write under that kind of pressure."

One of his main goals for the American Bicentennial Series was to be as "faithful to the historical record" as possible and, at the same time, to "make sure the characters weren't phonied-up, but real human beings. They'd be men and women who get stomachaches, women who hurt when they deliver children, guys who get scared when they see a gun."

Jakes also loves to explode popular myths. "For example," he says with delight, "I'm now researching the Old West. And I discovered that famous marshals like Wild Bill Hickok were routinely working as street commissioners in addition to glamorous things. Hickok spent lots of time filling potholes and removing dead horses or pigs from the street. That's the kind of touch I like to include in my books."

In The Bastard (1770-75), Jakes includes a touch of little-known history by describing Ben Franklin's custom of taking "air baths"—sitting naked for half an hour in front of an open window, because he thought it was healthy.

In The Warriors, Jakes steers his characters through the end of the Civil War and the Reconstruction period, the taming of the Wild West, the building of the transcontinental railroad and the era of the robber barons.

Justice is key

Is there an overall theme? "Well," Jakes says, "I don't hold up any message board, but I've developed a theory of what this country is all about. It seems to me that our main thrust has been the idea of justice. In other words, you can examine each part of our history and ask what it meant for people in terms of justice.

"What did it mean to the black slaves? To the women of a particular period? What did it mean to the consumers of the 1880's who were being ripped off? If there's any unconscious theme, I hope that's it."

Jakes may well be riding the crest of a growing trend in publishing by his phenomenal success with original paperbacks. "If these books had gone into hardcover editions first," he says, "the critics would have killed them."

Original paperbacks, however, are seldom reviewed. The only review of substance concerned The Warriors and appeared in The Washington Post, which noted that Jakes' narrative pacing is "nothing short of remarkable."

"The best reward," he says, "is to get mail from people who aren't regular readers."

She got mink

With the prospect of great wealth in store, John and Rachel Jakes remain largely unaffected in terms of material possessions. "Last year we did go out and buy a Cadillac Seville for $8800," he admits. "Also, Rachel got a mink, which I've always wanted for her. A great thing is not having to worry about the kids' college educations."

Jakes says, "I enjoy working," adding that he's already negotiating to do another historical-novel series after the eighth and last book of this one is finished.

"I'm not really sure what makes the books successful," he says. "It might be a longing people have for family ties or heritage, but I just try to write the best stories possible and to put in what interests me."

MY FAVORITE JOKES

by ART MOGER

EDITOR'S NOTE: When he was a press agent for various movie studios, Art Moger regaled Hollywood stars with jokes and stories. From there it was a natural transition to professional raconteur on the banquet circuit and on TV.

Moger is completing his fifth book of humor, "Once A-Pun a Time," dealing with —what else? Puns. He was inspired to write the book years ago, he says, "when my son Stan was 6 years old. He walked out of a cartoon festival remarking, 'Dad, Mickey Mouse gives me Disney spells!'"

Here are some of Art Moger's puns and jokes:

Several chess players formed the habit of staging daily contests in the lobby of a hotel. The crowds grew so large that one day the manager ordered them to get out. A hotel guest asked, "What's happening?" The manager replied, "It's really nothing. I'm pulling the chess nuts out of the foyer."

Old salesmen never die—they just go out of commission.

A hermit in an antique car was stopped by a policeman while driving 80 miles an hour. He was charged with recluse driving.

I don't say my wife always gets her own way, but she writes her diary a week ahead of time.

A friend of mine works in a distillery where he gets paid time-and-a-fifth for overtime.

My brother is so insecure that he has a rowing machine with a life preserver.

My brother is a magistrate. He told me of a woman who stood up in a divorce court and said she didn't want any alimony.

"All I want is for my husband to leave me as he found me," she insisted.

"And how was that?" my brother asked.

"I was a widow," she said.

I overheard a middle-aged couple saying to a travel agent, "We'd like a pleasure cruise. Book us on different ships."

My nephew Bobby brought home a report card heavy with poor grades. "What have you to say about this?" asked his mother. "One thing for sure," he replied. "You know I ain't cheating!"

A certain railroad known for slowness decided to speed up its service. It moved the stations closer together.

They say a fool and his money are soon parted. What puzzles me is how they ever got together in the first place.

A U.S. Senator in quest of a secretary was visited by an applicant who was beautiful but not too bright. "How do you spell Mississippi?" asked the Senator. "The river or the state?" she replied.

Television is still in its infancy. That's probably the reason why you have to get up so often to change it.

A beautiful woman moved in next door. My wife is jealous, so I remarked, "Pay no attention to her. She's her own worst enemy." And my wife said, "Not while I'm alive."

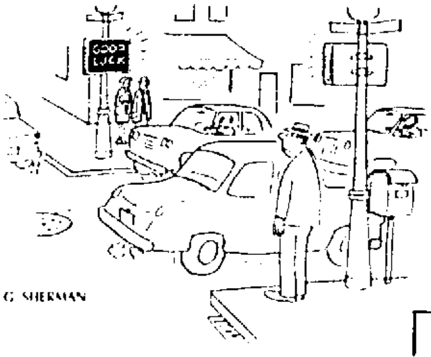
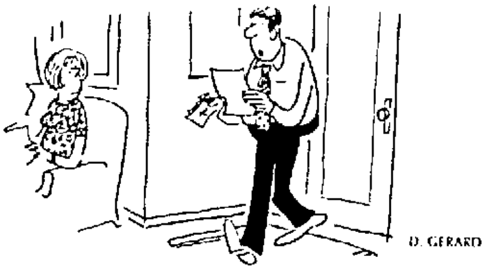
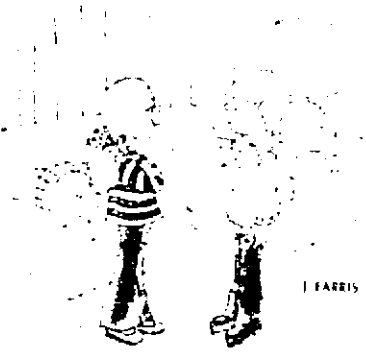
IT'S TO LAUGH

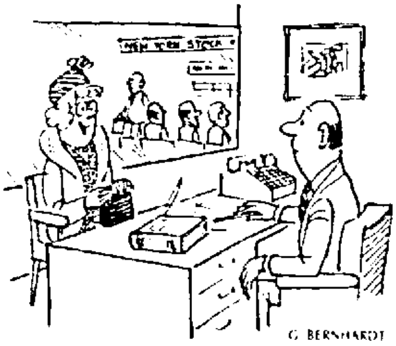




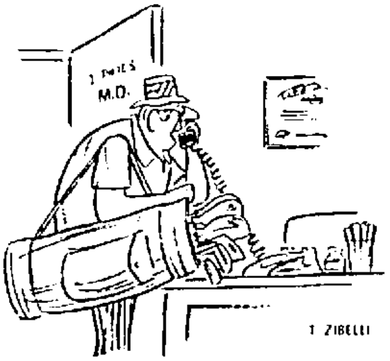
"The landlord just made this a luxury apartment!"



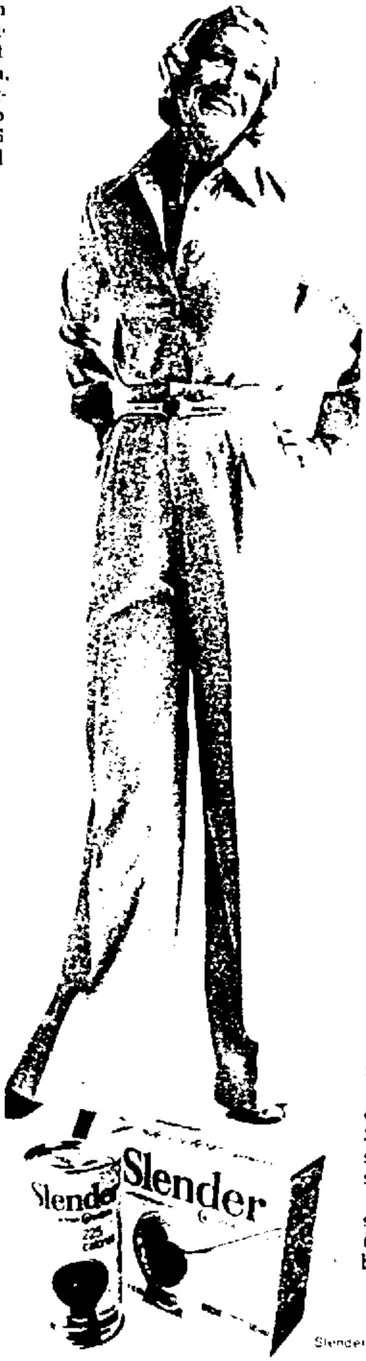
"When I grow up, I'm going to be the head of a large corporation and buy your corporation out!"



"I want to take a flyer on a sure thing."



"Take two aspirins and keep your head down."



How Virginia Hughes got Slender and stayed Slender.

Virginia Hughes is tall, tanned, terrific – and 52! She walks with the easy grace of the natural born athlete that she is. That's ever since Slender* diet food helped her get back in the swim. You see, Virginia, who once trained to swim the English channel, let her weight climb in later years to a grand total of 196 pounds on her 5'7" frame. She lived with all those extra pounds for over two years "wearing mumu's and tent dresses and swimsuits with those little skirts on the front" – until she saw an ad for Slender.

Says Virginia, "I tried all sorts of diets and I just couldn't lose. Then I saw the Slender ad, and being familiar with Carnation milk products for so many years, I decided a product they put out must be good so I tried Slender and am I glad!"

It took ten months but Virginia lost 66 pounds with the help of Slender: dropping pound after pound from 196 to a trim 130. Today she wears a size 11 or 12 and shops for her swimsuits (sometimes bikinis) in the junior department.

"Getting fat is like being on a merry-go-round," says Virginia. 'You start gaining weight...you begin to feel it and see it. This makes you nervous and tends to make you eat for consolation. So you gain some more weight and then you eat to console yourself again and, pretty soon...you're way out!

"Well, I started with the Slender powder – Chocolate's my favorite – and mixed it with skimmed milk because that cuts the calories even further yet it doesn't cut the nutrition, or the feeling of well-being when you're through. I stayed on Slender for 4 months...then for the next 4 months I went on a high protein diet and watched my calories. After that, I went back on Slender again for another 2 months and took off some more. Sure, it takes a certain amount of determination. Lots of people want to lose weight, but they have to ask themselves – am I willing to go on a diet?

"I found Slender a pleasant way to diet because I like sweets, and Slender satisfied my appetite for sweets. I've kept my new figure for 3 years now. If I go up 3 pounds, I go right back on Slender until I drop it. I try not to gain even 5."

Virginia, whose children are 24 and 14, swims 3 times a week at her swim club. "I get lots of compliments," she says. "One man said that I'd taken 10 years off my body."

Virginia Hughes' whole life changed when she decided to try Slender. So get Slender and get started yourself. And the very same thing could happen to you.

We hope Virginia's story inspires you to get your own figure back. If it does, please write. Maybe you could inspire someone else.
